PROPOSE TO TAP NIAGARA AGAIN AND BEAUTIFY IT

Power Men Plan to Improve Hue.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Niagara Falls, N. Y., June 22.—[Special.]—The United States and Canada have embarked upon a project to take away for power purposes half the normal flow of water over Niagara falls in such manner as to improve the appearance and retard the erosion of the famous cataract.

To this end the two countries have signed a treaty allowing a temporary increased diversion for power and providing for the construction of remedial works above the falls designed to redistribute the flow so as to reclothe with water in low water periods the bared flanks of the Canadian or Horseshoe falls, and to increase the flow over the American falls. The remedial works include a lowering of the crest of the Canadian falls on the flanks from two to four feet.

Unbroken Crest Line Planned.

By such artificial interference with the natural flow of the Niagara river the majesty of the spectacle can be preserved, according to the authors of the project, and an unbroken crest line restored to the falls in low water periods, despite the withdrawal of half the volume of water normally falling over the precipice.

The engineers who conceived the project even assert that the effect will be a more beautiful emerald hue in the waters of the Horseshoe falls and a reduction of the mist that frequently obscures the view.

If the expectations of the engineers are realized there will become available an increased volume of water for electrical power, which will be worth not less than $40,000,000 a year to the government owned Canadian utilities and to the privately owned power interests of New York state, which form an important unit of the new $650,000,000 merger of hydro-electric power companies, engineered by J. Pierpont Morgan.

Every Drop Is Wanted.

In order to conserve every drop of hydraulic energy latent in the great lakes for the development of power at Niagara falls, Canada and New York state are determined to fight to the last ditch the diversion of lake waters at other points. Particularly are they determined to compass, if possible, the complete cessation of the Chicago sanitation diversion, now amounting to 8,500 cubic feet of water per second, in order to assure the feasibility of diverting more than 100,000 second feet in the aggregate from Niagara falls for power.

The remedial works above the falls contemplated by the treaty are to be constructed at a cost of $1,750,000 by the Niagara Falls Power company of New York and the Hydro-Electric Power commission of Ontario, which for an experimental period, not to exceed seven years, are to be permitted to divert 20,000 cubic feet of water per second from above the falls, in addition to the 56,000 second feet now being diverted for power purposes.

Experiment to Be Made in Winter.

The additional diversion of 20,000 second feet which is to be divided equally between the Niagara Falls Power company and the Canadian Hydro-Electric Power commission is to be permitted only during the six months from Oct. 1 to April 1, when comparatively few tourists visit the falls.

The two power concerns will recoup themselves for the expense of the remedial works from the profit on the power developed from the additional 10,000 second feet each will be permitted to divert. From the sale of this power each concern will profit not less than $1,000,000 a year during the experimental period.

But the big stake for the water power concerns in this game is the eventual permanent increased diversion of not less than 50,000 second feet they expect to obtain if the experiment proves successful. If it appears that more than 100,000 second feet can be diverted, including the present diversion of 56,000 second feet, without impairing the beauty of the falls the American company and the Canadian commission will stand to receive windfalls of power valued at $20,000,000 each per year.

Treaty Is Up to Senate.

The power concerns, therefore, have everything to gain and nothing to lose by the experiment. They will be reimbursed for the cost of the remedial works and make a handsome profit besides in the seven year experimental period and if the plan works and the two countries agree to

SINCLAIR'S NEW SENTENCE WILL START AT ONCE

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, now serving a three months' sentence in the District of Columbia jail for contempt of the senate, will be able to serve his six months' term for jury shadowing concurrently with his present imprisonment. This was permitted today by Chief Justice McCoy of the District of Columbia Supreme court, when the mandate from the Supreme court of the United States upholding the jury shadowing sentence was received.

The six months' sentence will commence at once, overlapping the three months' sentence, which still has some weeks to run. Counting the time off for good behavior, Sinclair will be released from the jail on Nov. 22, about a month and a half earlier than if the sentence had been imposed to run consecutively.

Henry Mason Day, associate of Sinclair, who was sentenced to four months in the jury shadowing case, is expected to be surrendered Monday to start his jail stay.

KIND STRANGER'S NEW AIR RECORD PUTS HER IN JAIL

Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton, 23 year old divorcee of Canton, Ill., was delighted yesterday when Robert Burns, 36 years old, a kind stranger whom she met in Peoria, invited her to join him in a flight to Chicago.

Mrs. Hamilton, who had long wanted to view metropolitan wonders, gushed her gratitude as she climbed into a plane at the Peoria airport and she gave not a thought to the fact that Mr. Burns tendered a $36 check for the double passage.

But officials of the Universal Air Lines telephoned to the First National bank of Chicago and learned that Mr. Burns had no account there. So Sergt. George Helman of the Chicago Lawn police was on hand when the Peoria plane reached the municipal airport to make the first arrest recorded here for an airplane ride on a fraudulent check.

Burns, who identified himself as a professional billiard player living at 949 Addison street, was locked up at the Chicago Lawn station on a charge of issuing worthless checks, and Mrs. Hamilton was held in the same station as a witness.

Indict 3 in Lake County, Indiana, Fraud Inquiry

Warrants served on a township trustee and two physicians yesterday marked the climax of a five months' investigation by the Lake county, Ind., grand jury into charges of alleged fraud in the management of county poor relief.

The grand jury Friday returned indictments against Trustee Eric Lund and Drs. W. E. Nichols and S. A. Bell, charging them with collusion and misappropriation of funds. More than 100 witnesses were heard in the course of the investigation.

Air Depot at Edge of Loop Placed in Use

BY ROBERT WOOD.

Chicago's downtown depot for airplane travelers was opened yesterday and in connection with the opening a Sikorsky amphibion of the Curtiss Flying service flew the passengers over the aerial ferry from the lake front to the Municipal airport. The trip was made in five minutes.

The depot was completed by the South Park board at a cost of less than $10,000, yet this small expenditure makes it possible for seaplanes and amphibions to use the wide harbor off Grant park as an operating base. The terminal consists of a ramp leading out of the lake to the shore at the foot of 8th street just north of the Field museum. A plank platform 100 feet square has been built on shore to provide space in which amphibions may turn around under their own power. This area has been forced in to prevent spectators from being injured by the planes.

Quick Trip Is Made.

The first passengers to make use of the aviation beach left the consolidated air ticket office in the Palmer house by taxi and within some five minutes were boarding the two motored amphibion parked on the lake shore. The plane turned about under its own power, rolled down the ramp, slid into the water and took off over the Field museum.

Within less than five minutes the plane landed at the airport next to a trimotored Ford cabin plane of the Northwest airways and the passengers were transferred to the land plane. A moment later the Northwest ship took off for the Twin Cities. The Northwest airways is the only passenger line which has made a hook up with the Curtiss shuttle service, although Curtiss planes fly regularly between the airport and downtown with the mail under a contract recently granted them.

Maj. Schroeder Is Passenger.

Maj. R. W. Schroeder, vice president and general manager of the Curtiss Flying service here, was one of the first passengers to use the shuttle service yestereday.

Officials of the South Park board will take part in the formal opening of the ramp Monday afternoon.

Mayflower Dirigible Flies 500 Miles in Good Time

Lakehurst, N. J., June 22.—(AP)—The Mayflower, one of the fleet of diminutive dirigibles owned by the Goodyear company, arrived today at the naval air station from its home in Akron, O. Pilot V. I. Smith and his mechanic reported an uneventful voyage of 500 miles. They averaged about fifty miles an hour, and arrived well ahead of their landing crew of 20 men who travel by truck. A group of sailors brought the 100 foot craft down and walked it into the hangar.

TRAIN ROBBERS SHOOT ENGINEER AND ESCAPE WITH $20,000 LOOT

Martinez, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—Robbers armed with automatics and a machine gun today held up a Southern Pacific passenger train near McAvoy, Cal., and escaped with loot estimated at more than $20,000.

Two bandits boarded the train near Pittsburg. One climbed into the engine cab and ordered Engineer J. H. Barnes to back up the train. He refused and the robber shot him through the arm.

The wounded engineer then backed the train to a spot where a third robber sat beside a machine gun. Here the passengers were ordered out and lined up.

The machine gunner sent a shower of bullets at the feet of Conductor Harry Walmsley because he would not give up the key to the mail car.

Walmsley then produced the key. One robber entered the car and, after firing three shots in the general direction of the clerk, shoved him out of the door and lined him up with the passengers. Sixteen registered mail pouches were rifled.

Irene Kozial, 2 years old, 2112 Augusta street, died in St. Mary of Nazareth hospital last night of a fracture of the skull she suffered when she fell five feet to the ground from her rear porch earlier in the day. Mrs. Kozial, her mother, had left her on the porch and when the child wandered too near to the edge she fell.

FIRST STAGE OF ATLANTIC JUMP ENDS IN AZORES

MADRID, June 22.—(AP)—All Spain tonight, after a a day of uncertainties and conflicting reports, rejoiced over a radio message from Maj. Ramon Franco that he had arrived safely with his three fellow aviators at the isolated island of San Miguel, the Azores.

Maj. Franco, after careful examination of the entire plane, said that it was in perfect condition and that it would be flown to Horta early tomorrow morning. Mechanic Pedro Madariago had worked on the motors from noon to 5 p. m.

At that hour his three companions, much refreshed by a long sleep, awoke and made an inspection of the plane. Maj. Franco said that as soon as 2,000 liters [about 530 gallons] of gasoline were taken on at Horta the flight would continue toward New York via Halifax.

Land on Remote Island.

No explanation was received of why the flyers chose to land at the easternmost point of the island group instead of at Horta, where supplies would have been readily available and from where their safe arrival could have been immediately flashed to the world.

Indeed, news of the landing was received here hours before Horta had word of it. For a space of time this morning it appeared, since they were unreported, that the flyers might have been forced down short of the islands, but no fears were entertained because their Dorniel Wal seaplane was regarded as extremely seaworthy. They had started from Cartagena, Spain, at 4:50 p. m. yesterday [10:50 a. m. Chicago daylight saving time].

Warship Picks Up Message.

The first definite word came from the Portuguese warship Vasco da Gama, which relayed the message it had picked up from Maj. Franco.

"We arrived at 8 a. m. and intend to resume our flight at 5 p. m. tomorrow, Sunday," it said.

Premier Primo de Rivera ordered the news broadcast throughout Spain and termed it a new triumph for the Spanish aviators. King Alfonso, who was en route to Paris, was kept informed by special arrangements. Government officials look upon the venture as a demonstration of the commercial practicability of a regular air service between Spain and the United States rather than as a sporting effort.

Will Refuel at Halifax.

The Spanish Air lines, controlling aviation throughout the kingdom, cabled the flyers that it was hoped that the success of the flight would prove the possibility of establishment of regular air service over the route.

The flyers have arranged to refuel at Halifax, N. S., if their gasoline supply should be exhausted by struggling against head winds. The Spaniards plan to visit Washington and after a short stay to reverse their route to Spain.

FOG FOILS ROUND TRIP

Cleveland, O., June 22.—[Special.]—Lee Schoenhair, who left Los Angeles early today in an attempt to make a nonstop flight from Los Angeles to New York, was forced down here this evening. His motor was smoking from lack of oil. He said his landing also was prompted by the prospect of fog ahead.

According to advices from Los Angeles, Schoenhair barely got off on his flight in time to escape arrest on a bad check charge. A complaint signed by I. Boverstein, employé of a Fresno jewelry store, of a bad check amounting to $125 had been passed last March was back of the charge, according to the Associated Press. Los Angeles friends of the flyer were quoted as insisting that "there must be some mistake."

EX-MAYOR DEVER RETURNS FROM MAYO HOSPITAL

Former Mayor William E. Dever returned to Chicago last night after a month at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. He said he had lost about fifty pounds, but had not undergone any operation.

"What's been going on in Chicago?" he asked when reporters met him at the train. When told the legislature had passed the transit bills and Gov. Emmerson had signed them, he said he didn't know enough about them to comment on them.

"I've been sick for ten months," he said, as if in apology. "I'm going to be home for two weeks and then I'm going back to Rochester. It's certainly fine to be in Chicago again."

Counties War Over Poison Liquor Case

Morris Mansfield, alleged wholesaler of poison alcohol which caused the deaths of twenty-two persons in Peoria last March, was the storm center of a hotly disputed legal tangle last night which included clashes between officials of Kane and Peoria counties, issuance of a warrant for the arrest of Sheriff Grant Minor of Peoria and charges that race prejudice in the latter city has been permitted to deprive Mansfield of his constitutional rights.

Following refusal of the Peoria county courts to fix bonds for Mansfield, the alleged "pivot man" of the liquor ring, and an unsuccessful petitioning of the State Supreme court to have such bonds ordered, Attorney George W. Sprenger last week filed a petition before Judge Frank E. Shopen in the City court at Elgin, bringing up the race prejudice question and asking that Mansfield, who is a Jew, be brought into court and bonds for his release fixed.

Charges Race Prejudice.

The attorney alleged in asking a writ of habeas corpus that because of his nationality his client had not been accorded the same privileges extended to six others indicted with him, all of whom have been admitted to bail in bonds of $7,500 each.

Judge Shopen allowed the petition to be filed and authorized Sprenger to serve a summons on Sheriff Minor in Peoria county, ordering him to have the prisoner in the Elgin court yesterday. The sheriff refused to obey the summons and as a result is named in an attachment issued by the court and faces possible prosecution for violation of the state habeas corpus law and for contempt of court. Last night diplomatic relations between Kane county, where Elgin is located, and Peoria county, threatened with invasion by "alien" process servers, were exceedingly strained.

Friction developed at the outset when court opened and there was no answer as Mansfield's name was called. Instead, State's Attorney Henry Pratt of Peoria county stepped to the bar and laid a lengthy document before the court.

Peoria Presents Answer.

"What's this?" queried the judge.

"An answer to the summons served on Sheriff Minor and a plea that it be set aside on the grounds that its authorization is outside the jurisdiction of this court," was the reply.

When no sheriff appeared, the judge issued the attachment and ordered it placed in the hands of Sheriff Leslie Urich of Lake county for service.

"It is preposterous to assert that I have no jurisdiction over the sheriff of your county in a question like this," Judge Shopen told State's Attorney Pratt.

Defends His Jurisdiction.

"This court was established in 1857 as the Court of Common Pleas of the city of Elgin," he continued. "Its powers have been consistently enlarged and its jurisdiction increased since that time, although its name has been changed to the City court of Elgin. An act by the session of the legislature just closed made its jurisdiction concurrent with that of a Circuit court."

While Kane county officials remained convinced of their power and Mr. Pratt hurried homeward for a consultation with the sheriff, there was excitement in Peoria county when the residents learned that an official from another county threatened to invade their territory and arrest their own arresting officer.

Sheriff Minor expressed himself as satisfied that the only person with authority to arrest him is the coroner of Peoria county, and the coroner announced he had no intention of exercising this power.

MEXICO FUTURE ROSY AS CHURCH STRIFE IS ENDED

Nation Happy Over New Prospects.

BY JOHN CORNYN.

MEXICO CITY, June 22.—A wave of optimism has swept over Mexico as a result of the settlement yesterday of the three year old religious question.

Business men today see a revived business all along the line in the near future; heads of universities and public schools see the beginning of an animated campaign for the suppression of illiteracy, and bankers predict the influx of foreign capital and a reestablished agrarian credit as the result of public confidence inspired by the agreement between the Roman Catholic church and government to work together for the reconstruction of Mexico.

Both Sides Optimistic.

The government and church authorities alike express themselves in most optimistic terms. The Catholics are preparing to reorganize the forces of the church for the beginning of a new régime in which the church shall adjust itself to the new conditions under which it will have to work. With the privilege of conducting schools gone, the church will confine itself to spiritual work largely and will organize places in every city, town and hamlet where religious instruction may be imparted apart from public education.

May Teach Children Privately.

It was said today that priests would be allowed to make agreements with private and public schools to take children before and after school to places especially provided for religious instruction.

All the Catholic bishops now in Mexico met today at the residence of Msgr. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, archbishop of Michoacan, and for two hours discussed the reopening of the churches, the filling of numerous places vacant in the priesthood and the ceremonies with which the reopening of the churches will be celebrated.

Catholic Mexico is preparing a great program of public rejoicing, which will extend to every church, shrine and chapel in the republic. Pilgrimages will be made from all parts of Mexico to the shrine of the Collegiate church and the holy well of Mexico's national saint and protectress, Our Lady of Guadalupe, three miles from here.

Diaz Elevated to Archbishopric.

An outstanding development in the church situation today was the appointment of Msgr. Pascual Diaz, bishop of Tabasco, as archbishop of the diocese of Mexico (federal district). The new archbishop, who is a full blooded Indian, is known as a rare leader of men who possesses remarkable administrative abilities. It was he who with Archbishop y Flores conducted the peace negotiations with President Portes Gil. The elevation of Msgr. Diaz to this high honor came on his 53d birthday.

It was said today that the government will issue amnesty to all taking part in the religious struggle. The women sent to the penal colony of Tres Marias have already been ordered returned to their homes. The government will scatter broadcast over rebel territory from airplanes an announcement of the amnesty and settlement of the religious differences, and the church will do the same through priests and Catholic societies.

Instead of undertaking an intensive campaign for the pacification of the vast territory covered by the Cristeros bands, which constitutes 30 per cent of the national territory, the policing of each district will be left largely to the local authorities.

The government in its new campaign of pacification is counting on the aid of the church, whereas in former campaigns the militant element of the church was found in the ranks of the opposition.

Morrow Praised for Aid.

Much of the credit for the successful termination of the negotiations between the Vatican and President Portes Gil is given to American Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, who acted as go-between for the papal envoys, Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores and Bishop Pascual Diaz, and President Portes Gil. Ambassador Morrow is credited with having prevented the negotiations from ending in complete failure.

"Ambassador Morrow's greatest triumph, when the history of his diplomatic work in Mexico has been recorded, will be found to have been his pulling the fat out of the fire when the negotiations for settlement of the religious question seemed practically broken off without hope of a reconciliation," said one who has been closely identified with the negotiations.

"Both sides recognize Ambassador Morrow's tenacity and ability to make both sides take their medicine. He has been working for months and to him more than to any one else is due the credit for bringing the government and church together and enabling a discussion of religious matters in a friendly atmosphere."

May End Limit on Priests.

The agreement between President Portes Gil and the prelates breathes a spirit of mutual confidence, according to opinion here. The president has emphasized the spirit of patriotism shown by the prelates during the conferences, while at the same time expressing his own desire to remove the restrictions and regulations imposed upon the church by the constitution and laws.

As an example of the latter, President Portes Gil cites the arbitrary action of Mexican states in regulating the number of priests which the church might station in each state, and intimates that a way will be found to allow the religious authorities to maintain in each state the number of priests necessary for the proper conducting of public worship.

It was stated today on high authority that the prelates had been assured by President Portes Gil of his intention to see that "regulations, constitutions and laws relating to religious institutions" are revised with the help of the church itself in a spirit of fair play.

MRS. HOOVER GIVES TALK TO YOUNG AMERICA

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President, tonight delivered an address to the boys and girls of the country over a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting company system. Her talk was part of a special program planned for representatives of the 4-H Boys' and Girls' clubs, who are now encamped on the grounds of the department of agriculture in this city.

Mrs. Hoover spoke from the President's summer camp on the Rapidan river in Virginia, where the President and his wife, accompanied by friends, are spending the week-end. The first lady sent her greetings to the "boys and girls of America," whom she described as the "men and women of tomorrow." She urged her youthful hearers, notably those on the farm, to do their share in home making, and asserted that this was as much the work of the boys as of the girls.

DRY SNOOPERS ARRESTED; GAVE RUM TO MINORS

Carbondale, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—The fate of two dry snoopers, who made a social affair out of their duties, drinking and having a good time while they were out to get "buys," is being watched.

They are under arrest at Hardin charged with transporting and giving away liquor to minors. The complaint was made by Perry Richie, an alleged saloon proprietor, who declares there is nothing in the law which permits snoopers to violate the law for their own good time to trap a liquor violator.

Eleven youths all under 21 have been subpœnaed against the detectives, who are J. H. Smith and Charles Berry, employed by State's Attorney William Cox of Calhoun county.

HAROLD CUSACK JAILED IN FATAL AUTO COLLISION

Heir of Advertising Man Held for Manslaughter.

Harold Cusack, nephew and adopted son of the late Thomas Cusack, outdoor advertising man, was locked up in the Du Page county jail at Wheaton last night following a fatal automobile collision at Roosevelt and Finley roads, west of Lombard.

His companion, Frank Wilson, official of a Chicago laundry company and a resident of La Grange, was also jailed. Both are charged with manslaughter in the death of Arthur F. Miller, 36 years old, 2914 Diversey avenue, Chicago, foreman for the Commonwealth Edison company, although Cusack was driving the car.

Dies on Roadside.

Miller, with his wife and two children aged 10 and 12 years, was driving east on Roosevelt road, an arterial highway, when Cusack's sedan, headed south on Finley road, struck their car broadside. Miller died a few moments later on the roadside. His wife and children were only slightly injured.

Du Page county deputies took Cusack and Wilson to the Wheaton jail where a physician examined both and found them neither injured nor intoxicated. Cusack admitted driving onto Roosevelt road without stopping, having failed, he said, to notice a stop sign.

Face Two Other Charges.

In addition to the manslaughter charge, Sheriff Lawrence Hattendorf booked both for assault with a deadly weapon and driving through an arterial highway. Witnesses asserted that two women were in Cusack's car when the crash occurred but deputies were unable to find them. Cusack is a widower, while Wilson is reported to be married.

Cusack, who resides at 522 Fair Oaks avenue, Oak Park, was awarded $265,777 of his foster father's estate by the Appellate court on May 22. He had sued his foster brothers and sister for an accounting of 3,802 shares of stock in the Thomas Cusack company, bequeathed him by the elder Cusack, who adopted him at the age of 4 years.

Two deaths were reported in Cook county auto accidents, the total being raised to 369.

Ignacy Zimniczak, 55 years old, 4711 South Throop street, died in the St. Francis hospital, Evanston, last night of injuries he suffered when he was struck by an automobile June 15 driven by W. W. Root, 912½ Sherman street, Evanston, at Main street and Dodge avenue, Evanston.

Walter Rogh, 50 years old, of Willow Springs was killed when he was struck by an automobile at 103d street and Archer avenue in Willow Springs. The automobile was driven by Clarence Bohm, 7018 South May street, who was held for the inquest.

Garfield Gilbert, 21 years old, 4117 Pierce avenue, was fatally injured on Wisconsin highway 41, eight miles west of Kenosha, when his motorcycle crashed headon into an automobile driven by Clarence Warman, 25 years old, 813 North Karlov avenue. Gilbert was attempting to pass another car when the crash occurred. He died in the Kenosha hospital.

Motorcycle Policeman Arthur Patrick Ryan, 28 years old, 543 East 80th street, was possibly fatally injured when his machine collided with an automobile driven by Joseph Christie, colored, 3131 Vernon avenue, at 33d street and South Park way yesterday. In a second accident, which occurred a few minutes later, Miss Alice McGinnis, 6418 South Artesian avenue, was slightly injured by an automobile driven by Dr. Edward C. Ryan, brother of the injured policeman, who had been summoned to his bedside.

Policeman Ryan was taken to the Michael Reese hospital, suffering from a fractured skull and other injuries. He is married and is the father of two children. Christie was also injured. Miss McGinnis was taken to St. Bernard's hospital where she was treated by Dr. Ryan. She was injured at 63d and State streets.

Rex Carpenter, 5 years old, 4518 North Damen avenue, was probably fatally injured when he was struck by an automobile driven by George Bratschi, 22 years old, 2033 Berteau street, while playing in front of his home.

Negro Seized as "Dip," Shot When He Resists

Emboldened by a gathering crowd of 100 members of his own race, Roger Mosely, 25 year old Negro of 235 California avenue, attempted to wrest a pistol from Sergt. William Dugan of the Warren avenue police last night at Hoyne and Maypole avenues when the officer arrested him as a pickpocket. As the Negro grappled, Sergt. Dugan shot him in the chest. The crowd scattered as a wailing siren gave notice of an approaching squad car. The Negro's wound is not serious.

Collector Shot 3 Times as He Stands in Street

Shot twice in the back and once in the hip, Charles Carroll, 26 years old, who identifies himself as a collector for the Fish Furniture company, living at 5223 South Honore street, staggered into the Roseland community hospital early this morning. Carroll said he was standing in front of a saloon on 111th street when a man unknown to him opened fire without warning. Kensington police removed Carroll to the Bridewell hospital.

A $5,500 pay roll, intended for members of the cast of "A Connecticut Yankee," playing at the Garrick theater, was taken yesterday afternoon by a gunman who held up Joseph De Milt, company manager. The robbery occurred shortly after 1 o'clock as hundreds of persons were passing by on Chicago's Rialto.

De Milt put the money in envelopes while in the box office of the theater and then he walked through the foyer into the Garrick Theater building, next door, at 64 W. Randolph street. This was the way backstage and as he passed through the lobby of the building he entered a narrow hallway leading to the rear.

Hides in Small Room.

Midway in this passage is a room used by janitors for storage and water supply. A short man, wearing a brown suit, with his hat pulled down over his eyes, stepped from this room, stopped De Milt, and forced him back into the room.

The pay envelopes were in De Milt's pockets and the robber removed them.

"Stay in here five minutes or I'll shoot your head off," the bandit commanded.

De Milt stayed one minute and then ran towards Randolph street, but the robber was not in sight. A girl at the cigar stand and another at the ticket brokerage office in the office building lobby said they had seen no one come out.

Hunt Through Theater.

Charles C. Barton, publicity manager for the show, and Harry Foster, ticket taker, were quickly summoned and the lights were put on in the theater and all through the building, but no one was found hiding.

The search finished without success and De Milt collapsed under a heart attack. He was removed to his rooms in the Bismarck hotel, where Dr. E. Chainsky attended him and where police called to question him.

Panama Canal Landslide Fails to Hinder Shipping

[Copyright: 1929: By the New York Times.]

BALBOA, June 22.—A landslide involving 250,000 cubic yards of material began moving into Panama canal Gaillard cut yesterday evening from the east bank near the old east Culebra slide. There will, however, be no interruption of shipping through the canal. Two huge dredges were dispatched to the site. The landslide reduced the depth of the cut at one point to 38 feet. The channel already has been cleared as far as the center line, providing 150 foot width at the full 40 foot depth for navigation. The break extends 500 feet along a part of the bank that had not moved since the completion of the cut. Dredges can keep it under control without difficulty.

TWO HELD AS BURGLARS.

James Robinson, 21, and Louis Washington, 18, both Negroes, were held to the grand jury on 16 charges of burglary by Judge John H. Lyle in the Boy's court yesterday.

GAR WOOD SAILS FOR GERMANY TO INSPECT HUGE NEW AIR YACHT

New York, June 22.—(AP)—A man who fifteen years ago was a midwest garage mechanic with no money beyond his daily wage, sailed on the Majestic today to superintendent the last touches on a $125,000 air yacht being built to his order in Germany.

The new plane is a Dornier seaplane and will be the largest seaplane in America. It will have sleeping accommodations for 12, three washrooms, a full sized shower bath, and a regular stateroom with a bed in it for the owner.

Dr. H. M. Torrey, Detroit capitalist, sailed with Wood and will travel with him abroad. They expect to return in August, probably bringing the giant plane with them.

FORTUNE MADE ON DERBY GOES INTO A FARM FOR TEN

Indianapolis, Ind., June 22.—[Special.]—Instead of plunging it back in other chance devices, Arthur Court, Indianapolis stationary engineer, who obtained $56,980 on a $1 ticket in a Canadian war veterans' pool on the English Derby, has added ten recruits to the ranks of the farmers by buying a farm of fifty-eight acres in Hamilton county. He will move his wife and eight children to it about July 8.

Negotiations for the farm were made through Hugh M. Gerow, real estate dealer and a veteran of the 1st Canadian infantry division, who lost his right arm in the fighting overseas during the world war.

"Heretofore the Courts had lived in very moderate circumstances on the edge of the city here.

Nab "Moonshine Bessie" on Disorderly Conduct Charge

Mrs. Bessie Cronin, 42 years old, 7951 Yates avenue, known in various south side police districts as "Moonshine Bessie," was locked up along with three men at the Grand Crossing station last night, charged with disorderly conduct. The woman and her former bartender, Ernest Rudolph, 65 years old, 1637 East 74th street, were brawling in Rudolph's flat when a police squad arrived and arersted the pair, along with William Harper, 7320 Stewart avenue, and Edward Wilson, 7351 Yates avenue. Mrs. Cronin said she called to collect rent from Rudolph and he used violence when he tried to eject her.

ROBOT TRAFFIC LIGHT WILL BE TESTED HERE

New Device to Control Autos at Corner.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

Chicago is to have its first experience with robot traffic control at street and boulevard intersections about July 1. The installation of this newly developed electrical automaton is to be made at Marquette road and Woodlawn avenue. Attorney Thomas Lindskog, has been conducting negotiations between the manufacturers of the device and the south park commission.

The particular type of control unit to be experimented with is known as the Miller traffolator, although a number of types are in existence and have been under experimental operation in a number of cities throughout the country.

Hinders Cross Traffic.

The mechanism to be tried here is of the magnetic control plan. Its operations are calculated to overcome the inconveniences of fixed period light signals at intersections where traffic is heavy on a main thoroughfare and light upon the cross street. When the time alternations of signals are fixed it is sometimes found that the heavy traffic line is unnecessarily halted although no cross traffic puts in an appearance.

This device is said to maintain movement signals continuously on the main thoroughfare until cross traffic approaches the intersection. When the cross traffic car approaches to within twelve feet of the intersection it contacts a switch which, in a moment, will give it a green light and change the main artery signal to red. As soon as the cross traffic car passes, the main line signal will return to green.

"The system is entirely automatic and interlocking," Mr. Lindskog said. "It automatically serves the heavier line of traffic, but it also gives necessary attention to the lesser line.

In Use in Philadelphia.

"The concern has eighteen of these lights operating in Philadelphia and several in Washington, all of which have proved dependable under working condition for a year, I believe.

"The south park commission is interested and has agreed to permit this demonstration with a view of improving its own signal system, if all that is claimed for the device proves true. We chose Woodlawn and Marquette because of the heavy continuous traffic on the latter and the comparatively light traffic on the former.

"The makers of this latest traffic control are also makers of the train control systems now used as standard and necessary equipment on several of the leading railways, which have proved wholly practical in operation."

POINCARE REGIME MAY FALL OVER U. S. DEBT ISSUE

Revolt Against O. K. of Pact Grows.

BY HENRY WALES.

PARIS, June 22.—Ratification of the American war debt threatens to provoke a governmental crisis and may possibly result in the overthrow of the Poincaire cabinet. Developments on the situation are considered extremely grave. Numerous groups of deputies see a chance to win popular support among the masses and newspapers by refusing to vote in favor of paying the Mellon-Berenger annuities.

Today, following the ministerial council, it was announced that Premier Poincare will not permit the associations of war veterans to formally present him their demands against ratifying the debt, although the former combatants' monster parade tomorrow in protest against ratification of the war debt accord will be permitted with the stipulation that the veterans only march up the Champs des Elysée, place a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier, and keep away from the premier's residence.

Vote Split on Debt Approval.

The ranks of the French war veterans are split over tomorrow's parade. Organizers of the demonstration admitted this evening that they did not expect to see the same vast number of marchers as participated in previous parades of the same nature.

Accusing Henry Rossignol and Edmond Bloch, leaders of the national conference of veterans, of political motives in arranging the demonstration, the Federal Union of Veterans, numbering 500,000 members, the National Federation of Combatant Republicans, numbering 120,000, the National Federation of Wounded, numbering 10,000, the Workers' and Peasants Veteran federation, numbering 130,000, and a number of other similar groups have refused to join in the march.

In Rossignol's own group there is dissension because the chief was so indiscreet as to attend a violent manifestation staged by royalist veterans Friday night which was more antigovernment than anti-debt in character.

Louis Marin, former cabinet minister and leader of a group of fifty-odd deputies known as the Union democrats, whose party recently seemed in favor of ratification of the debts, today gave an unequivocal statement of their intention to fight recognition of the American debt to the last ditch.

Cites "Perils to France."

"The more newspaper arguments and governmental explanations I see why the debts should be ratified, the more I am convinced of the perils to which France is exposed if it does," said M. Marin. "The doctrine I always have upheld is the impossibility of inflicting on France the liquidation for the war, which leaves her all the charges and enslaves her for three generations, while other countries were formidably enriched by our misfortune as the result of victory, in which we played the greatest part.

"Universal conscience will never tolerate such iniquity. It is our duty to defend the interests of our country and defend justice, and oblige parliamentarians to do their duty despite their resistance.

"It is useless to speak of the league of nations—justice among the peoples—the Kellogg anti-war pact, if on the question concerning money the peoples, after common operations, will not make a common liquidation among themselves on a basis of most elementary equity.

"Fought for U. S."

"As the right cannot be disputed, and no one puts forth an argument to change my opinion, all arguments to the contrary disclose the monstrous detriment to France the ratification imposes.

"The English and Americans, when they had no army to throw into the furnace with ours, placed at allied disposition the money necessary for the common struggle. They understood then the principle of innate human conscience. But now they wish not only to be repaid all war charges, but a tribute besides.

"Nevertheless, none of them have forgotten that during the fifteen months after declaring war America let our soldiers fight for her, except for heroic Americans who volunteered in our army at the beginning of hostilities.

"Then That Other Scandal."

"Then there is the other scandal, where the late President Woodrow Wilson and David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister of Great Britain, in the name of a so-called new ideal—meaning the league of nations—obliged us to renounce obtaining from Germany the costs of the war and promised solemnly that we would be repaid by reparations. But not only since then have the two former allies worked to prevent Germany from repaying us, but the operation they now propose consists of taking all the funds destined for reparations and use them to pay war debts.

"While the United States in 1914 struggled with the greatest economic and financial difficulties, the war came along enriching it, thanks to our sufferings. Now, universal opinion, kneeling before dollars, gives America a political influence entirely unmerited.

"America can give her soldiers—of whom more than 2,000,000 never even crossed the Atlantic—luxurious pensions, while our maimed heroes received incongruous sums and the government does not dare envisage a pension for the poilus who served the entire 52 months of the war."

Germany Asked to Use Restraint.

BERLIN, June 22.—(AP)—The illness of Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, and Chancellor Mueller today prevented the hoped for comprehensive survey on the international situation with relation to the Young plan on reparations and the pending political conference to put it into effect.

Dr. Rudolph Hilferding, minister of finance, addressed the reichstag in behalf of the cabinet, but did little more than enjoin parliament not to create difficulties for Germany's political negotiations at the coming international conference.

RUM RUNNERS MASS FORCES AT DETROIT'S MOUTH

Abandon Smuggling at River Front.

Detroit, Mich., June 22.—[Special.]—Detroit river rum runners, harassed by the combined enforcement agencies of the government, have massed their blockade running operations at the mouth of the river and virtually have abandoned the river front at Detroit. This was the conclusion today of A. E. Cuddy, deputy commissioner of the Ontario provincial police, who has been assigned by Attorney General Price of Ontario to conduct an investigation of recent shootings on the river.

Three Run Blockade.

The report that a fleet of small craft loaded with Canadian liquor was concentrated at Amherstburg, awaiting an opportunity to confuse the coast guard by making a concerted rush for the American shore, was substantiated late today by a dispatch which said that of seven such craft which had made a sally into the mouth of the Detroit river four had been driven back by coast guard boats. Three had run the blockade after the engine in one of the government boats had died, the dispatch added.

Activity of the runners does not necessitate an increase in the number of Canadian police along the border, Cuddy said.

The complaint of the Canadian citizen who was fired upon by rum runners who fled to shelter in Canadian waters was regarded by Cuddy as sufficiently serious to warrant thorough investigation. The charge that customs inspectors fired the machine gun bullets into a pleasure craft failed to create much interest among customs officials in Detroit, inasmuch as it repeatedly has been stated that the only armament carried by customs crews on the river consists of pistols, to be used only in self-defense.

Try to Trick U. S.

The possibility that the rum runners are resorting to the old strategy of massing their forces and attempting to confuse the government's enforcement crews by rushing a number of boats across the river in the hope that they will succeed in running the blockade was discussed following Cuddy's visit to Amherstburg.

"There appears to be no activity along the rum front except at Amherstburg," he said. "They appear to be pretty busy there."

The Amherstburg river front is in the sector that had been patrolled by the coast guard fleet.

Einstein Says He Would Refuse to Aid If War Comes

BERLIN, June 22.—Prof. Albert Einstein today published the text of his reply to a symposium by the Prague review, Die Wahrheit, which led to the paper's confiscation by the Czecho-Slovakian government. "In case of war I should refuse all war service, direct or indirect, and endeavor to persuade my friends to do likewise, irrespective of the rights or wrongs of the war's origin," Dr. Einstein said.

Seven hundred and eighty-five firemen assembled in the Wendell Phillips high school yesterday and took a written civil service examination to qualify for lieutenancies. The questions were prepared by Carlos Ames, president of the civil service commission, and Fire Marshal Michael J. Corrigan. The class of 785 represented those of 1,500 applicants who passed the physical examinations some time ago.

DRY WHO KILLED VIRKULA ASKING RELEASE ON BAIL

Bemidji, Minn., June 22.—(AP)—Application for bail for Emmet J. White, border customs agent charged with murder for slaying a motorist who failed to halt on command, was filed here today with District Judge Graham Torrance. Judge Torrance reserved decision.

White has been in jail at International Falls since he killed Henry Virkula on June 8 near the international boundary.

No attempt was made at first to obtain White's release on bail. Because of the feeling at International Falls aroused by the shooting, customs officials believed that the border patrolman was safer in jail. But fellow patrolmen now are said to be seeking to raise the necessary bond to obtain White's release.

AUTO PARTY OF FIVE FIRED ON; TWO MEN THEN PURSUE THEM

St. Paul, Minn., June 22.—(AP)—An attack by two men, who attempted to stop his automobile between Port Arthur and Two Harbors and who fired on him when he refused to halt, was disclosed here today by Alphonse Biron. The shot punctured the windshield of the car, but none of the five occupants was injured.

After firing on him, Biron said, the men pursued his machine at a speed of between sixty-five and seventy miles an hour for twenty miles and rapidly were overtaking him when they met a bus. The pursuers then gave up the chase.

Biron said the attack occurred Thursday at dusk on the North Shore road, 120 miles from the Canadian border.

Biron, who is cashier for a wholesale meat concern, was on a vacation trip with two daughters, a son, and a chum of his children. Lucille, his 16 year old daughter, was driving when the attack occurred.

Bandits of the border region apparently are taking advantage of the fears of autoists for customs men since the killing of Henry Virkula, officials here said tonight.

"The men who attacked Mr. Biron could not have been prohibition officials," said M. L. Harney, assistant federal prohibition administrator for the northwest. "I think that bandits in the border region are stopping cars under the impression that drivers will fear to continue driving. The Virkula shooting has intimidated autoists to the extent where they will stop at the slightest warning."

SEIZE 9 WOMEN IN HYDE PARK GAMBLING RAID

A fashionable apartment at 1365 Hyde Park boulevard, which police alleged was operated as a handbook for women patrons, most of them of middle age, was raided last night by Hyde Park police and nine women and two men arrested. The two men were charged with being keepers of a disorderly house, while the women were booked at the police station as inmates of a disorderly house.

Police said that the apartment had been under surveillance for several weeks and that a warning had been issued to its tenants to close it. When the warning was ignored last night's raid followed. Ed Smith, 32 years old, 835 East 63rd street, and George Smith, 24 years old, 6314 Maryland avenue, were arrested as the keepers.

The nine women found in the apartment were booked at the police station as Mrs. Mary Dean, 48 years old, 824 North State street; Mrs. Rose Mack, 38 years old, 540 West 43rd street; Mrs. Lena Sherman, 54 years old, 5507 Everett avenue; Mrs. Belle Johnson, 47 years old, 1115 East 47th street; Mrs. Nellie Lyons, 39 years old, 4349 Greenwood avenue; Miss Helen Martin, 28 years old, 8104 Laflin street; Mrs. Olive Potts, 45 years old, 1365 Hyde Park boulevard; Mrs. Mary Mack, 58 years old, 540 West 43rd street; and Miss N. Wilson, 50 years old, 4726 Drexel boulevard. All were released on bonds.

BUILDINGS ABLAZE 12 TIMES.

For the twelfth time in three days firemen were called to extinguish a blaze last night in a row of dilapidated buildings at Sholto street and Damen avenue. Chief William Bieze of the seventh battalion believes children started the fires in the buildings, which are being torn down.

Among 120 Signed by Gov. Emmerson.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Springfield, Ill., June 22. — [Special.]—Before taking the midnight train for Chicago last night, Gov. Louis L. Emmerson put in some hard licks on the stack of bills lying on his desk at the executive mansion and the results showed today at the office of Secretary of State Stratton.

The governor signed 120 bills and vetoed one. The one vetoed was Representative Richard J. Lyons' bill to protect the sleep of the Fox lake territory by requiring mufflers on motor boats. The big group of approved measures contained all varieties of legislation from acts of merely local interest to some of general importance.

As a result of the governor's action Chicago on July 1 will have the right to develop intensively its real estate holdings. The governor signed the Joyce bill giving the city the authority to lease for 99 years any unused parcels of its real estate and also to lease the air rights over its property where it can use only the ground rights.

Means New Skyscraper.

The principal example of this presented here was the Chicago avenue pumping station. The city needs only the space required for its engines and pumps. It has been suggested that these can be dropped below the surface in a new structure that, rearing skyward, will pay the municipality an immense revenue.

The governor also signed the two bills authorizing the city and the school board to swap real estate, the city to receive school board land for an enlargement of the municipal airport and the educational authorities to take over the present Clarendon bathing beach as a site for a junior high school.

Among other bills of interest to Chicago today was the zoological garden bill, which, by an extension of the temporary building tax, preserves the original five year construction program and assures the completion of the zoo as it was planned, a model for the rest of the world.

Bills of general interest that were formally recorded for inclusion in the 1929 statutes follows:

HOUSE BILLS.

10—Rategan—Requires pneumatic tires on buses.

236 and 237—Juul—Permits exchange of land between Chicago school board and city; Clarendon beach and municipal airport.

329—Church—Permits municipalities to put police magistrates on salary.

652—Marinier—Raises park board bonding maximum from 2.5 to 5 per cent where there is referendum.

782—Tice—Appropriates $275,000 for completion of Chicago naval reserve armory.

561—McSweeney—Authorizes school dentists.

708—Sullivan—Defines and regulates dentistry.

749—Dixon—Prohibits employment of snoopers except on time basis.

SENATE BILLS.

18—Barr—Authorizes cities of less than 500,000 to levy bridge and terminal tax.

130—Baker—Permits voting aid for blind persons.

189—Meents—Increases maximum penalty for driving while intoxicated to $1,000 fine or six months imprisonment.

220—Carlson—Permits cities to lease water terminals.

547—Carlson—Creates revenue investigation commission.

The majority of the other bills in the big batch sent to the office of the secretary of state were appropriations, the facts about which already have been published or are minor statutory changes such as are classified as "validation" measures or for some other reason are considered of little general interest.

KILLER CONFESSES IN "SIGNBOARD MURDER" CASE

Santa Ana, Cal., June 22.—(AP)—The death of Mrs. Myrtle Wood, 40 year old widow of Long Beach, Cal., was cleared up here today when John McClure, 57, real estate dealer, pleaded guilty to a charge of murder and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

McClure confessed that he shot Mrs. Wood June 13 and placed her body behind a sign board at Laguna Beach, where it was found.

He said the woman often had discussed a suicide pact with him. He told in court of his own alleged attempt at suicide after the slaying and of his flight to Mexico where he was captured.

His son, J. H. McClure, is serving a prison term for a bank robbery attempt.

GOVERNOR SIGNS BILL REQUIRING SOFT BUS TIRES

City Wins Fight to Regulate Truck Loads.

Gov. Louis L. Emmerson yesterday signed a bill requiring all motor buses operating in the state to be equipped with pneumatic tires before July 1, 1931. The Chicago Motor Coach company plans to make the change gradually, beginning at once.

A second development aiding Chicago in the care of its pavements was an Illinois Supreme court decision upholding the validity of the 1927 ordinance regulating the maximum load for trucks operating on the city's streets. The opinion, a copy of which was received at the city hall yesterday, was in a test case entitled the City of Chicago versus J. Foley.

Reverses Municipal Judge.

The Supreme court reversed a decision last year by Judge Warren H. Orr, a country judge who was sitting in the Municipal court. He sustained a defense contention that the ordinance was void because of a confusion in its wording when considered with a former load ordinance. Mr. Foley, a contractor, was tried on a quasi criminal charge that one of his trucks had used the city's streets with a load, including the machine, of 2,000 pounds more than maximum of 30,000 pounds permitted by the ordinance. The case is now remanded for a new trial.

The news was received in the city hall with considerable satisfaction. A council investigation, preliminary to passage of the ordinance two years ago, showed that overloaded trucks were responsible for much damage to concrete and asphalt in the city. Enforcement of the regulation was slackened while the test case was pending before the Supreme court.

Buses Damage Streets.

The bus law, while applying throughout the state, will be of particular benefit to Chicago, where most of the motor conveyances pound over the streets with hard tires. Representative Joseph L. Rategan, who introduced the bill, charged that the buses not only damaged pavements but also jolted passengers and along some streets shook houses. Most interurban buses now run on soft tires.

The bill, as originally drafted, called for a time limit of July 1, 1930, for requiring pneumatic tires. The limit was extended to July 1, 1931, at the request of the Chicago Motor Coach company, which indicated it would begin to make the change at once but that two years would be necessary to complete the installation of the new equipment without serious financial difficulties.

Playfulness cost William Gibson, 19 years old, a Negro addicted to reaching through elevated train windows, snatching hats and sailing them from the platform, $50 and court costs when he was arraigned before Judge John H. Lyle in the Boys' court yesterday. He was arrested on the platform of the 47th street station after trying to snatch a straw hat from the head of Joseph Andrews, 6134 Woodlawn avenue. More than a score of passengers have reported themselves the victim of this trick.

ANOTHER HOLDUP IS LAID AT DOOR OF WILLIE DOODY

Taxi Driver Names Killer; Wounded Man Dies.

Another robbery was charged to Willie Doody yesterday while police were scouring the city to arrest him on numerous murder charges. Earl Bence, a taxi driver, identified a picture of Doody as that of the man who robbed and threatened to kill him.

Meanwhile Milton Vasapupolis, owner of a restaurant at 803 West 74th street, died yesterday morning after being shot by a holdup man thought to have been Doody. But at the inquest witnesses were not positive in their identification when shown Doody's picture and the police were considering the possibility that another dangerous gunman is roaming the city and creating the impression that he is Doody.

Threaten Taxi Driver.

Bence, who lives at 3744 Bosworth avenue, was stopped at Belmont and Kedzie avenues at 4 o'clock in the morning by two men who asked to be driven to 4605 Wellington avenue. Arriving there, they flashed guns on Bence and ordered him to hand over his cash.

"This is our thirteenth job this morning and to keep bad luck away we ought to kill you," said one of the men—the one Bence, when shown the picture, declared was Doody. He said he was sure because of the robber's pug nose, which is one of Doody's characteristics.

List Array of Charges.

The charges against Doody thus far follow:

APRIL 22—Named as the man who shot Postal Inspector Evan L. Jackson after the robbery of a subpostal station in Oak Park.

JUNE 20—Hunted in connection with the shooting of Vasapupolis and of Sergt. Clarence Falk of the forest preserve police.

In addition Doody was believed to have been present when Detective Joseph Sullivan of Deputy Commissioner Stege's staff was killed in "Red" Bolton's saloon.

Accomplices gave statements against Doody in the shooting of Inspector Jackson and Chief Levy and both of the victims identified his picture—Levy, before he died, picking it out of a group. Vasapupolis and Falk were less certain about Doody's picture.

John Schmuesser, 20 years old, [illegible] Dorchester avenue, after testifying at the inquest yesterday, said he was certain Doody was not the killer of the restaurant man.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Albert Bertram, burglary, sentenced 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory. John Smith, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Otto Kerner.

MURDERERS' ROW ASTOUNDED BY SOUTH AMERICAN DRINK

The Cubs had just finished another slugfest, and the weary members of Murderers' Row were trooping to the club house when Senorita Alvarez, the Yermat demonstrator, invited them to try this tempting, thirst-quenching stimulant.

And what a sensation it was! Hornsby, Wilson, Grimm and Cuyler were astonished to find that it made them feel as fresh as they were before the game. So impressed was Manager Joe McCarthy that he ordered Yermat for the entire team!

Fine for Athletes

Yermat is brewed from Yerba Mate, an herb used for centuries in South America as a harmless "pick up" drink. The 30 million South Americans who drink it daily find it so satisfying that they have no desire for alcoholic beverages.

According to doctors, Yermat speedily dispels fatigue without increasing the heart action, exciting the nerves or causing insomnia. Thus it may be freely consumed even by athletes in the strictest training.

Doctors also credit Yermat with counteracting acidity and its attendant digestive disturbances. This advantage, together with its delightful flavor and champagne-like sparkle, makes it an ideal beverage for table use.

It Grows on You

You will find that Yermat grows on you . . . that the more you drink the better you will like it and the finer you will feel. So give it a fair test by drinking at least a bottle daily for a period of ten days or two weeks.

Enjoy Yermat as an "eye opener" on arising, at meals, or whenever you feel thirsty, tired or blue. Also enliven your friends with it when they drop in to call or play cards. It's sold in 3 and 12 bottle cartons by druggists and grocers, and is served by the bottle or glass at fountains, restaurants, hotels and clubs. Begin its regular use today!

10¢ A GLASS AT MOST FOUNTAINS

Bottle 30c
3-bottle carton 85c
12-bottle carton $3.25

When only a glass of Yermat is desired, cork the bottle tightly and put in a cold place. The remainder will retain its original sparkle and freshness for several days.

AWES-GIBSON TALK TO SPEED UP NAVY PARLEY

British Think U. S. Will Act Through League.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 22.—News from Washington that President Hoover has ordered Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, and chief delegate to the preparatory disarmament conference in Geneva, early this year to come to London to confer on the suggested navy cuts with Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to the court of St. James, was taken here as a logical step in the negotiations initiated when Gen. Dawes made his trip to Scotland to meet Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald. It is interpreted here as indicating that President Hoover favors the handling of the matter through the league of nations.

Mr. Gibson arrives in London on Monday evening, and it is expected that he will meet not only Gen. Dawes, but Mr. MacDonald and Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, and perhaps other British statesmen. It is believed that the President has in mind an early summoning of the league's preparatory commission on disarmament as soon as the experts of the various nations have prepared yardsticks to be matched against each other.

Naval Experts Resigned.

The United States, Great Britain, and Japan are known to have proposals ready, but so far nothing is known of the preparedness of France or Italy, and neither has been particularly enthusiastic about the Dawes suggestions. What the British experts think is shown by the speech made yesterday by Vice Admiral V. H. S. Haggard, fourth sea lord of the admiralty, at the launching of the new submarine Borrow.

"Possibly both we in the navy and armament firms may be in for hard times in the future," he said. "Gen. Dawes had some hard things to say about naval officers, and how he would not leave it to them to cut down armaments. Possibly he was wise. However, everything points to reduction of armaments, and I think we'll have to face it."

May Postpone U. S. Trip.

It is now suggested that Prime Minister MacDonald's trip to America may be postponed until the end of the year, or even the beginning of next year. He is outlining an immense program of legislation in the king's speech, which will require his personal attention every day that parliament is sitting.

Just now a lively interchange is going on between Great Britain and other powers over the conference on acceptance of the Young reparations plan and Rhine evacuation. The French and Germans are anxious to hold it at some spa or summer resort, but Mr. MacDonald wants it at London because he cannot spare the time to go abroad.

If it is held abroad, he will send Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, and Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, and this does not please the French, who expect little sympathy for their financial viewpoints and methods from Mr. Snowden. It is still possible, therefore, that it may be held in London, though just now Switzerland looks most like the final selection.

A. F. OF L. INVITES RAMSAY MACDONALD TO BANQUET ON VISIT

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, today cabled Ramsay MacDonald, British premier, an invitation to be a guest at a banquet to be attended by organized labor on the occasion of his prospective visit to the United States.

Mr. Green's cablegram follows:

"In behalf of the officers and members of the American Federation of Labor I extend to you a cordial invitation to be our guest at a testimonial dinner at some convenient date when you make your contemplated visit to the United States. Be assured your early acceptance of this invitation will be deeply appreciated."

Inhalator Squad Saves Infant Pneumonia Victim

The life of another infant pneumonia victim was saved last night when Capt. John Garrity and his inhalator squad revived Harry Kelly, 18 months old, 3825 West Van Buren street, who had stopped breathing. Normal breathing was restored by the squad after they had worked over the child for thirty-five minutes.

DAWES GETS TWO HELPINGS OF OLD LONDON INN'S PIE

LONDON, June 22.—(AP)—Ambassador Charles G. Dawes lunched today at that mecca of Yankee tourists, "Ye Olde Cheshire Cheese," in Fleet street, which is the heart of London's newspaper world.

Sir Warren Fisher, permanent secretary of the treasury and head of the British civil service, accompanied the ambassador.

Gen. Dawes was greatly interested in the associations of the hostelry with Dr. Samuel Johnson, the eighteenth century lexicographer. He insisted on partaking of the steak, lark, and kidney pie, of the Cheshire Cheese; in fact, like Oliver Twist, he even asked for more. At the end of his luncheon the ambassador accepted and lighted a great churchwarden pipe, but after a few puffs begged to be excused from smoking it further and produced his own underslung cherrywood.

5 Minute Rum Acquittal Makes Judge Rebuke Jury

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—[U. P.]—A Circuit court jury which acquitted a liquor defendant in five minutes today was severely rebuked by Judge Jerry Mulloy. He said:

"You are discharged without thanks, because in spite of the solemnity of your oaths, you have fallen down on your duty. I hope you never are called again as jurors in my court."

The court ordered the twelve names stricken from the list of jurors eligible for future service.

BORAH EXPLAINS HIS NAVAL TALK WITH SIR ESME HOWARD

Washington, D. C., June 22.—(AP)—Senator Borah, chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, tonight explained the much discussed call upon him by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador.

It became known after the brief conversation of the two in Senator Borah's office on Thursday that the question of naval armaments was discussed. The next day the state department hastened to issue a denial for the ambassador that "freedom of the seas" had been talked about between the two.

In a letter to the New York Times, the senator says:

"The British ambassador . . . came to my office upon his own request. I broached no subject nor suggested any subject during that conversation upon my own initiative. I discussed singly and solely and exclusively with the ambassador the subject matters about which he came to talk with me. It did not occur to me that I should decline to see him at my office lest I should be charged with engaging in 'highly unusual' proceedings."

Judge Evan Evans Heads Wisconsin Alumni Board

Madison, Wis., June 22.—(AP)—Federal Judge Evan A. Evans, Chicago, was reëlected president of the board of directors of the general alumni association of the University of Wisconsin at the association meeting here today. Hi Marks, Chicago, was named representative on the athletic council.

BUILDERS OPPOSE LABOR COUNCIL'S 5 DAY WEEK PLAN

Will Insist on 44 Hour Schedule, Craig Says.

Chicago building contractors will oppose any action of the Building Trades council to establish the five day work week for Chicago's 112,000 building workers. Edward M. Craig, secretary of the Building Construction Employers' associations, made this announcement last night.

Mr. Craig said that with the exception of the plasterers, lathers and painters practically all local building trades have negotiated new agreements which specify the 5 1-2 day week. He declared that the contracts were negotiated to expire in 1933 and 1934 in an effort to avoid any interruption on construction of the World's Fair building program. Continuation of the 44 hour week, he said, would mean that all construction work on the 1933 centennial celebration could be handled by resident building workers.

Seek Relief of Unemployment.

At the last trades council meeting discussion of the five day week was made a special order of business. Labor officials who advocated the five day week say that agreements on working conditions can be reopened at any time on sixty days' notice.

Builders state that Chicago's building program with its attendant high wage scales has attracted thousands of building workers to the city. As a result many of the basic trades report a large unemployment list.

Commenting on the proposed five day week Michael J. Artery, head of the Iron Workers' District council, told the trades council at its last session on Friday night that the short work week would relieve some of the unemployment among the building workers.

"Building contractors are more opposed to paying overtime rates than they are to adoption of the five day week," said Artery.

"To curb the workers' desire for overtime, I am in favor of having the men contribute 60 per cent of their overtime pay to their respective unions' sick and death benefit fund. Builders are aware that the 40 hour week is just around the corner and will be firmly established in the nation's building industry within a short time."

Time Is Big Factor.

That the employers of building labor will function as a unit in opposing the adoption of the five day week was indicated in the following statement issued by Oscar W. Rosenthal, president of the Builders' association of Chicago:

"Time is an important factor when it comes to the expense of erecting all types of construction from bungalow to skyscraper. Naturally, then, the proposed establishment of a 40 hour week will increase building costs. There is the interest to be taken into consideration and the interest to pay.

"Construction costs have reached a peak and cannot stand any further assessment. Building trades leaders seeking the 40 hour week are not consistent, as the ink is hardly dry on the agreements they negotiated and which specify a five and a half day week schedule."

Clicquot Club—open—pour: The quickest "between meals" lunch that a busy mother ever prepared for hungry, healthy youngsters

Aged 6 months in the making

Why many mothers now serve Clicquot Club as a tonic food

CLICQUOT CLUB Golden has long been famous for its mellow flavor. But only recently have women come to realize that Clicquot Club should be served with meals as well as between meals.

Clicquot Club is a regulatory food beverage. The energy value of Clicquot Club is actually greater than that of numerous other foods which dietitians give a high rating as energy foods.

The pure Jamaica ginger, the sparkling double carbonation, the pure fruit syrups of Clicquot Club aid digestion and combat acidity. And Clicquot Club contains "invert" sugar—sugar in its most useful, most digestible form. That is why Clicquot Club is so exhilarating. It gives instant energy.

Clicquot Club Golden is aged six months. First its flavor-base is aged. Then the bottled ginger ale is aged. A marvelous flavor develops. And this slow process of maturing the flavor makes Clicquot Club quicker, easier to digest.

And so, Clicquot Club takes its place in the normal diet—a healthful food as well as a festive beverage. Clicquot Club comes in bottles never used before, and costs no more, ounce for ounce, than the "quarts" of ordinary ginger ale. And you will find that Clicquot Club pints are far more convenient and economical than wasteful near-quarts.

ANN, HARDINGE PROMISE FLOOD OF BILLETS DOUX

"Read 'Em and Weep" Is Slogan for Tomorrow.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

Bigger and better love letters were promised yesterday by Attorney Benjamin Ehrlich for the resumption tomorrow of Miss Ann Livingston's $250,000 breach of promise suit against Franklin S. Hardinge, Chicago millionaire. Friday's session of course was almost entirely occupied with introduction of the earlier billets-doux in the romance of the Tulsa divorcée and the Chicago widower, before Judge Charles H. Miller in the county building.

Claims of counsel for both sides are based on their alleged ability to prove the opposite party as the aggressor in the courtship that led up to the antenuptial contract providing $100,000 as a marriage settlement on the bride, but which stopped just short of the altar. So short, in fact, that the wedding supper was left untasted and the bridegroom sailed on a brideless honeymoon journey to the West Indies.

"Read 'Em and Weep."

"Read 'em and weep," is the attitude of both Ehrlich, for the plaintiff and Attorney John H. Bussian, for the defense. Both brandished bundles of unread letters yesterday as they met in Judge Miller's chambers for a conference at which mutual identification of the documents was effected. This parley is expected to expedite proceedings tomorrow, as considerable delay was occasioned on Friday by the defense examining the missives before they were read the jury.

Miss Livingston was calmly confident of the outcome of her case yesterday. She confessed to a vast nervousness at being placed on the stand, declaring it was only her second experience in a court room. Her first was not, however, the occasion of her divorce, for she was not present at that time, being represented by an attorney, she explained. The divorce was granted to her husband, Robert J. Puderbaugh, an Oklahoma attorney.

"I wasn't really out of high school when I married him," she reminisced. "It was war time and all the girls in my crowd were getting married to army men, and I guess I just got the fever, too."

Tells Her Past History.

After her husband sailed for France, she related, she went into an Oklahoma hospital to study nursing, but suffered a nervous breakdown and was compelled to give up the profession. She has spent most of her life in the south, in Texas and Arkansas. Her father, she said, was an electrical engineer in the employ of a railroad, and the family made many moves during her childhood. For the last several years her father has been an invalid.

Interest in the forthcoming series of letters is somewhat divided with speculation as to whether Hardinge's bride, whom he would identify only as "Peggy" at the time of their marriage several months ago, will be compelled to appear in court tomorrow in answer to a summons sent out by Attorney Ehrlich. A world war veteran named Weems has communicated with American Legion posts here claiming that "Peggy" still was his wife when she was married to Hardinge.

The millionaire manufacturer claims that he and his bride went through a second ceremony that legalized their union after her divorce, and that he has been in touch with Weems.

NEW FIGHTING PLANES WILL BE TESTED BY NAVY

One Has Speed of 183 Miles an Hour.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—The rapid development of new high speed and high performance airplanes soon is to be revealed here during tests at the naval air station of new types of military planes designed for the naval bureau of aeronautics.

At least seven new airplanes, all of greater speed and of greater performance than any of their type ever built, now either are under tests or awaiting tests by crack naval pilots at the air station.

Speed of 183 Miles.

Among them are planes which have theoretical high speeds of 183 miles an hour and another with a speed of 150 miles an hour while carrying a giant 1,100 pound bomb.

New types of two-seated fighting planes, new multi-motored transports and two new flying boats from which eventually will be developed fleets of commercial air liners for services along the coasts or over coastal waters, also are to be tested.

All Excess Weight Off.

The latest plane to reach the naval air station for tests is a new Boeing pursuit plane, which, according to reports, has a speed of 183 miles an hour. It is a trim fighting craft, with every ounce of excess weight eliminated.

It is powered by a Wasp radial air-cooled motor. Naval flyers who inspected the plane while mechanics were setting it up said they believed the speed would be cut to close to 170 miles an hour when armament and its other military load is added.

CHANNEL DEATHS LAID TO NEGLECT OF FLYING RULES

Air Safety Factors Listed by Guggenheim.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, in a radio address here tonight declared that two of the seven cardinal principles of safe passenger air transport were violated in the recent English channel airplane accident when an Imperial Airways plane, with one motor dead, plunged into the sea and killed seven passengers.

"That accident," said Mr. Guggenheim, "occurred in an airplane which was forced down over the channel, necessitating a landing on the sea in a land plane unequipped for this purpose.

"In addition, this was the type of plane which, although equipped with two engines, was unable to fly with its load with one motor disabled. I think it fair to assume that in this particular case if either one of these principles had not been violated, there would have been no injuries to personnel or plant."

Mr. Guggenheim cautioned the public to look for the following safety factors in air transportation if they would fly in confidence:

1. Multi-engines, planes capable of flying on the disability of at least one engine.
2. Two licensed pilots.
3. Planes and engines licensed by the government.
4. Adequate landing facilities over the route to be flown.
5. Intensive weather reporting service over the route.
6. Wireless, or at least visual, communication system between the plane and the airway.
7. Responsibility of the operators of the air service.

The father and mother of the children, Mr. and Mrs. Irving Markowski, who also were affected by the poison, are being retained in the psychopathic hospital for observation.

DEAN PREFERS POLYGAMY TO MODERN TREND

Lutheran Leader Warns of Companionate Peril.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Open and legalized polygamy is preferable to the final result of current moral trends, particularly as suggested by companionate marriage, according to Dean John H. C. Fritz of Concordia Theological seminary, St. Louis. Dean Fritz is attending the convention of the Missouri Lutheran synod, River Forest, and is the head of one of the largest Protestant theological seminaries in America.

"Any man who has read any history knows the direction in which the country is now heading," Dean Fritz said yesterday. "Open polygamy or something worse is the thing toward which we are drifting. I believe polygamy is to be preferred to the situation one sees in the future.

"The only remedy is found in the gospel. There is not one syllable in the Bible from Genesis to Revelation recommending incompatibility, mutual consent, or clashing temperaments as cause or reason for divorce, nor will one find anything which even remotely suggests a companionate marriage idea."

Finds Men Go to Church.

Prof. Walter A. Maier, St. Louis, who will be the principal speaker at the 400th anniversary exercises at Soldiers' field this afternoon, yesterday stated that as a result of careful study of 100 Lutheran congregations, 43 out of every 100 people attending church are men. Prof. Maier prepared these figures in answer to the charge of the Rev. Dr. Courtland Meyers, former pastor of Tremont temple, Boston, that not more than 10 per cent of the Protestant congregations in America are men, and that 75 per cent of the Protestant church membership is composed of women.

"Even in the largest cities," Dr. Maier declared, "our percentage shows that the average congregation is more than 38 per cent men. We hear a great deal about radio affecting congregations. Our investigations prove that its influence is minor. Business or occupation was found to be the greatest cause for keeping people away from church."

Dean Blames Modernism.

On this subject, Dean Fritz declared that modernism is the real cause for empty churches. The Lutheran church has never changed its creed and for that reason church attendance is not one of our problems, in his belief.

The Rev. J. W. Behnken of Houston was elected vice president of the synod yesterday morning. The constitution provides for the election of four vice presidents. The Rev. Mr. Behnken is the third to be elected.

The convention praised the growth of the Lutheran Publishing house, St. Louis, when a report of that institution was presented yesterday by Edmund Seuel, manager. The institution was founded in 1867 as a parish concern, but has expanded into a $2,000,000 plant, the largest publishing plant in the country confined to synodical business.

POPE POSTPONES VATICAN EXIT; DUCE BLAMED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, June 22.—Plans for the pope's first exit from the Vatican, which has been awaited with much interest by Italian Catholics and which it was thought would take place next Monday, have been entirely upset. It was announced from Vatican City tonight that for the moment no provisions are being made for the eventual coming out of the pope. This has tonight given rise to rumors that the pope has decided not to leave the Vatican until the acerbities caused by Premier Benito Mussolini's speeches and the pontiff's replies have been mollified.

Yesterday there appeared a pamphlet published by the government and containing Premier Benito Mussolini's two speeches delivered before the senate and the chamber on the subject of the Lateran pacts, prefaced by a specially written introduction prepared by the duce.

Replying to this, the pontiff wrote a letter to Cardinal Pietro Gasparri, papal secretary of state, which was published in the Osservatore Romano, requesting that his two replies to the premier's speeches be also published. Accordingly, the Vatican organ tonight reprints in five columns the pope's speech to the students at Mondragone in which he announced his uncompromising attitude on the subject of education, and also the pontiff's letter to Cardinal Gasparri asserting that the Lateran treaty and concordat were not separate agreements but must stand or fall together.

Boy Dies of Lockjaw After Cartridge Explodes

Ralph Elbergroeshel, 12 years old, 356 Windsor avenue, Lombard, died in his home yesterday of lockjaw which developed from a gun shot wound he received two days ago when a blank cartridge exploded in a .22 caliber gun with which he was playing.

LEROY GODDARD, AT 75, TELLS HIS CREED IN MAXIMS

Dean of Chicago Bankers Celebrates Birthday.

Leroy A. Goddard, vice chairman of the board of directors of the State Bank of Chicago, yesterday observed his 75th birthday anniversary. The genial dean of Chicago bankers looked back over half a century of banking experience, during which time he was called upon to study human character virtually every day to ascertain honesty and trustworthiness, and delivered this observation:

The late president and chairman of the board of the bank, who retired to his present advisory capacity "in order to enjoy life before it is too late," uttered a number of epigrams as he read telegrams of congratulation and greeted scores of friends who dropped in to see him. Some of his shrewd comments were:

"A snob is like a person ascending in a balloon. All the world looks awfully small to him, but he looks awfully small to the rest of the world."

"It pays to be a gentleman. It is the best investment and pays the best dividends I know."

"It is not a business that makes a man, but the man who makes the business."

"The more people there are in this world, the more opportunities there are for every one."

"All work is honorable if the purpose is honorable."

"Let a young man have a cheerful heart and a glad hand and confidence in people and he will succeed."

"Only character makes people different."

At the age of 23, Mr. Goddard was the "boy mayor" of Marion, Ill., the place of his birth, June 22, 1854. The following year he was a "boy banker," head of his own institution. He came to Chicago in 1892 to join the old Fort Dearborn State bank as cashier. Then, in 1908, he was induced to join the State Bank of Chicago. He rose to be president and chairman of the board.

7 Horses Burn to Death in Feed Store Flames

Seven horses were burned to death early this morning in a fire which caused $10,000 damage to the F. W. Bauermeister & Co. grain and feed store, 3071 Elston avenue. The feed store occupied a one story building, with stables in the rear in which the horses were kept. When firemen arrived the flames had gained such headway that a 2-11 alarm was sounded by Marshal John P. Stahl of the Fourth division. Large quantities of hay burned, causing such dense smoke the firemen were handicapped in fighting the flames.

TRUCK DRIVER IS ROBBED.

Two armed men accosted Edward Hickey, 3264 Cortland street, a driver for the Western Laundry company, 2125 West Madison street, last night and robbed him of $100 while at Spaulding avenue and Augusta street.

BIG WAGES AND HIGH PRODUCTION BOGEY TO FRENCH

PARIS, June 22.—(AP)—Intensive production and higher wages for workmen were the questions discussed today by delegates to the fourth international congress for scientific management at the Sorbonne. Many delegates took the view that higher wages for workmen would destroy the benefits reached by intensive production.

There was an underlying fear on the part of some delegates that the entrance of American automobile manufacturers into the French field would cause an upheaval in French automobile manufacturing methods. American delegates argued that increased pay for workmen had made the American workingman the most prosperous and the most productive in the world.

A letter from William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in which he indicated American labor's willingness to utilize scientific management and machinery to advance the cause of increased production, was read by Morris Dewelyn Cooke of Philadelphia.

Charles R. Lichtenberg, 921 North Harding avenue, secretary of the Mulvihill-Goodwin company, bottlers, 1527 Flournoy street, was kidnaped by a lone robber early this morning, driven around for several hours, then forced to open the safe in the plant from which the bandit took $1,700. Lichtenberg was putting his automobile in the garage when the robber appeared. He compelled Lichtenberg at the point of a gun to reënter his car and drive out on the far west side, then return to the plant.

Lichtenberg's father, Abe, 70 years old, is caretaker at the plant at night. He was forced to join his son and look on while the robber took the money. Both Lichtenbergs were then tied up and the bandit escaped in Lichtenberg's car.

TRIES TO END LIFE WITH POISON.

REBUTS SHERIFF; DEFENDS MEMORY OF DEAD WARDEN

Loomis Answers Effort to "Whitewash" Traeger.

A brotherly appeal, from one Democrat to another, made by Sheriff John E. Traeger to Anton J. Cermack, president of the county board, to quiet unpleasant rumors linking the sheriff's interference in jail administration with the suicide of Warden Edward J. Fogarty, drew an answer yesterday from Frank D. Loomis, head of the citizens' committee on jail welfare. In defence of Mr. Fogarty's memory Mr. Loomis replied heatedly to the whitewash report to be submitted to the county board Wednesday by Sheriff Traeger.

In his report the sheriff declares he retained Warden Fogarty at the close of the administration of Sheriff Charles E. Graydon, and asserts that no order issued by the late warden was ever countermanded. He maintains that Warden Fogarty in writing and verbally assured him that no additional help was needed in the new jail. The sheriff says that he felt additional help was needed in spite of Warden Fogarty's assurances.

Sheriff Gives Some Figures.

The report continues by avering that 90 per cent of the men whose retention was requested by Fogarty are on duty today. Of the forty-five men, whose retention was deemed advisable by Fogarty, only four were replaced, two resigned, and one was discharged for incompetency, according to the sheriff's version.

"All other changes made in the personnel of the jail force were of employés whose discharge was requested by the warden or of personsl indicated by the warden whose discharge would not interfere with the efficiency of the force," the report reads.

Traeger also mentions that during Graydon's term Fogarty discharged on an average of three men a week as a comment on the efficiency of those on the pay roll prior to Traeger's tenure. The sheriff denies that political interference hampered jail efficiency and praises the employés of the institution.

"Politics," Is Loomis' Reply.

To all this Mr. Loomis made a spirited reply.

"Sheriff Traeger during his campaign pledged himself to keep the jail out of politics both to the public and the committee," said Mr. Loomis. "Yet within a week after his election, if not the day after, he replaced a competent woman in charge of the women's ward.

"By April 20, after less than six months in office, Sheriff Traeger had so handled the jail staff that only 19 of the 76 on duty when he took office remained. These changes were made without notice, without consultation, and without consideration. The sheriff would send over a man with a curt note that he was to replace some employé.

Comes to Defense of Dead.

"Naturally Fogarty got mad. When Fogarty protested, the sheriff went about the town proclaiming the warden a 'blackguard' and by other names I will not mention. No doubt this friction worked on the warden's mind and when news of the impending discharge reached a mind already over worn with care, there was the unfortunate climax.

"I have no quarrel with Sheriff Traeger, but I do not hesitate to come to the defense of the memory and record of an admirable man, who is unable to fight back against calumny. He was my friend."

Sheriff Traeger has made his plea, Mr. Loomis makes answer, and Warden Fogarty lies buried in a South Bend cemetery. Mr. Loomis said that records which might be brought to Fogarty's defense are in the hands of the sheriff.

JESSE SPALDING HALL DEDICATION IS HELD AT GLENWOOD SCHOOL

Dedication ceremonies for the Jesse Spalding hall, given by Mrs. Elizabeth McElwee of Lake Forest to Glenwood Manual Training school, Glenwood, in memory of her father, a pioneer lumber dealer, were held yesterday. The formal opening preceded the 33rd annual competitive military drill of the school cadets on the campus.

Mrs. McElwee presented the building, its furnishings and an endowment to the school, following invocation by the Rev. Herbert W. Prince, rector of the Church of the Holy Spirit, Lake Forest. N. C. Mather, president of the training school, accepted the gift in the name of the school. A large crowd inspected the building, and witnessed the cadet review and presentation of prizes. Col. A. V. Anderson, head of the R. O. T. C. of the Sixth corps area, and Capt. Frank Nelson of Morgan Park academy, judged the drills.

McDONOUGH SEES SMOOTH SAILING FOR CAR PARLEY

Predicts No Storms Till Council Gets Plan.

Ald. Joseph B. McDonongh [13th], chairman of the local transportation committee, predicted yesterday that his group will proceed with the transit problem without serious discord, and that no important opposition is likely to develop before the franchise ordinance is presented on the floor of the council.

The council committee will meet tomorrow morning for the first time since Gov. Louis L. Emmerson signed the enabling legislation. The chairman forecast that the citizens' committee program for the appointment of an investigating group on elevated road valuations will be carried through without a hitch.

Trio Promise to Accept.

These investigators, as suggested by James Simpson, chairman of the citizens' committee, will be Col. Albert A. Sprague, former commissioner of public works; Joshua D'Esposito, well known engineer, and George Woodruff, vice chairman of the National Bank of the Republic directorate. The three indicated yesterday that they will accept the appointments if tendered by the aldermen.

Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th], another member of the local transportation committee, said that the aldermen are preparing to work throughout the summer on the proposed consolidated transit plan, disregarding the extended vacation that is the council's annual custom. Part of the deliberative sessions may be held in a northern resort, depending on the weather in Chicago.

In addition to the appointment of an investigating committee on valuation the councilmen tomorrow will canvass their own suggestions for the franchise ordinance. They will have the advice of Walter L. Fisher, secretary of the interior in the Taft cabinet and the author of the 1907 traction ordinance, who has been named by Federal Judge Wilkerson to aid the city in its legislation problem.

Graduation exercises of the centenary class of cadets will be held at 7:45 o'clock in the Moody Bible Institute auditorium, Chicago avenue and La Salle street.

For the last year the class of forty girls, twenty-six single men and six married couples has been trained at the Salvation Army's Central Training college, 700 Brompton place. The graduates will receive commissions as probationary lieutenants or captains.

STEPINA HEADS PLOT TO FREE 39 AT COUNTY JAIL

Seven Prisoners Held in Solitary Confinement.

Carlos Stepina, diminutive bandit, whose exploits some years ago were as well known as those of Tommy O'Connor or Martin Durkin, was the leader of a plot to execute a wholesale escape of prisoners from the county jail at 6 o'clock this morning. The discovery of the plan to liberate an entire tier of prisoners from section D2, the second floor of the left wing of the second cell building of the new jail, was made by David Warden Moneypenny early yesterday morning.

Stepina, who once led a delivery of a dozen prisoners from the Joliet penitentiary, had perfected a plan of escape which would have had excellent chances of success, according to jail officials, despite the modern devices installed in the supposedly escape-proof $7,500,000 jail and court building.

The plan was simple and easy of execution because of the lack of sufficient jail guards, according to Warden Moneypenny, who was recently given the permanet appointment to succeed the late Edward J. Fogarty.

Make Hook of Can Handles.

A long pliable hook made from the handles of tin pails, used as garbage containers in the jail kitchens, was the tool manufactured by the prisoners to be used in opening the automatic locks, which control each tier of cells. The locks are located in a guard's cage just outside of the tier of cells, and could be reached with such a hook.

A mirror, fastened on a pole to be used as a sort of periscope to guide the lock picker in his work, was also discovered in one of the cells by Warden Moneypenny and his chief assistant, Frank Dalke, who helped to suppress the plot and incarcerate the ringleaders in the dungeonlike solitary confinement cells.

The plan of the prisoners was to wait until about 6 o'clock this morning when all would be quiet around the outside of the jail, and there would be no possibility of aid near at hand. The guard at that time would make his rounds and open up the cell doors, letting the prisoners into the corridor of the tier of cells.

Guard Shortage Aids Plotters.

Because of the shortage of guards, particularly on the late shifts, each man has about four cell tiers to take care of. The master lock was to be picked while the guard was at one of the other cell tiers. If a guard was stationed at each tier or even each floor, as was originally planned, the plot could not be executed.

When the guard returned to the section containing the plotters, he was to be overpowered and stripped of his uniform and keys. One of the prisoners then intended to don the uniform, walk downstairs, seize the guard there and open the door leading to freedom.

Warden Moneypenny became suspicious when he noticed the handles from several of the pails missing. He set investigators at work and they informed him of the contemplated plot. With Dalke and some of his trusted guards he went to the suspected section early yesterday morning, routed the prisoners from their cells and started a search. He found the hook and mirror.

One of Plotters Confesses.

Seven of the prisoners were placed in solitary confinement. One of them confessed and told the entire story of the contemplated escape. Among those placed in solitary confinement were Stepina and Ray Ostrom, also held on a robbery charge. The tier contains about 39 prisoners, charged with murder, robbery and burglary.

Stepina gained notoriety in 1921 when he and another bandit tried to steal the automobile of First Deputy of Police John Alcock. John Bumbaugh, his companion, was shot to death and Stepina wounded. Later he made a sensational escape from his guards at the county hospital. In 1921 he led an escape from Joliet penitentiary.

Stepina is now under conviction for the robbery of a bank messenger for the Service State bank His case is pending on appeal in the Supreme court. He is paroled from the penitentiary.

$55,000 SOUGHT TO FINANCE WORK OF DENTAL CLINIC

45,000 Children Treated, School Board Told.

An appropriation of $55,000 for the continuance of the dental bureau of the department of health, which has treated 45,000 grade school pupils in the last four and one-half months will be asked tomorrow of the board of education by health department officials and a committee of dentists headed by Harold H. Smith, chairman of the dental advisory committee of the Chicago Dental society.

The city council provided the dental bureau with an appropriation of $55,000 for six months, with the provision that the board of educatiton would be asked to share half the cost by making a like appropriation for the balance of the year.

11,933 Children Attended.

The bureau has operated not only in the first four grades of the public schools, Dr. Smith pointed out, but has worked in the Parental school for boys in the Spaulding and other schools for crippled children. Eleven dentists have attended 11,933 children who came to their clinics during this period. Seventeen other dentists and fifteen dental hygienists have made 129,768 mouth examinations.

Bad teeth and bad boys go together in 92 out of 100 cases, it was discovered at the Parental school for truant boys. According to O. J. Milliken, superintendent of the school, this was the percentage of boys coming to the school who needed dental attention. Many of them were suffering from acute and painful dental ills.

Teeth Treatment Cures Boys.

"None of the boys who have had dental attention since the work began last February have broken their paroles after leaving the school," said Mr. Milliken. "The value of the dental clinic has been proved beyond doubt and I consider that it would be extremely unfortunate if the dental service were discontinued."

Dr. Smith said the mouth hygiene service faces discontinuance because the council appropriation has been almost exhausted and no similar appropriation has been made by the school board to carry on the work for the balance of the year.

CAPONE TO SEEK LIBERTY, HIS 2 LAWYERS ADMIT

Confirmation of Chicago rumors that Al Capone is anxious to leave Holmesburg prison in Philadelphia, where he is serving a year's sentence for pistol toting, was received here last night in dispatches from Philadelphia quoting his lawyers, Benjamin M. Gilder and Bernard L. Lemisch.

Earlier reports interpreted Capone's plea of guilty and consequent incarceration as a ruse of the gangster to escape his enemies' bullets and eliminate his own heavy pay roll for bodyguards.

While branding as "pipe dreams" the rumors that Capone will be back to Chicago within a week, Attorney Gilder admitted he and his partner are contemplating an attempt to have Capone liberated, either through parole or by a rehearing of the court proceedings at which he and his bodyguard, Frank Cline, pleaded guilty. Director of Public Safety Schofield recently declared he had information that the lawyer who effected Capone's release would get $50,000.

The first weekly cruise will start at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the pier, going to Mackinac island by way of Green Bay. The boat will return Friday at 4:30 p. m.

Old Doc Franklin O. Carter, self-styled optical specialist, whose bungling with surgical knives has blinded several of his patients, filed an appeal in the Supreme court at Springfield yesterday against a $200 fine and a sentence of six months in the Bridewell. The old doc was convicted of practicing medicine without a license before Municipal Judge Samuel H. Trude on May 26, but obtained a stay pending an appeal.

2,400 TAXPAYERS SIGN PROTEST ON FAHERTY SEWER

May Ask Court to Block $3,500,000 Program.

Ald. E. I. Frankhauser [49th] and J. E. Massen [48th] led a delegation of citizens to the board of local improvements yesterday, where a petition signed by 2,400 property owners of Rogers Park and Edgewater was filed in protest against a $3,500,000 sewer system for the district.

Michael J. Faherty, president of the board, told the indignation committee that he will gladly drop the project if a majority of the property owners within the assessment area have signed the protest petition. This he is required to do by law.

May Appeal to Court.

Ald. Frankhauser predicted that the citizens will not find any relief in the board of local improvements, but will have to carry their fight into the County court when the special assessment rolls are submitted for adjudication.

"Mr. Faherty needs work to support his patronage pay rolls," said the alderman. "His engineers have designed a system covering nine and a half miles. We are convinced that two and a half miles of sewer would care for our needs."

"My ward already has an adequate sewer system," added Ald. Massen. "Residents of my district would be taxed more than $1,000,000 unnecessarily if the board of local improvements is allowed to proceed. Why should the 48th ward be compelled to pay $1,000,000 for a sewer needed by the 49th ward only?"

"It's true," Ald. Frankhauser remarked, "that part of my ward needs a new drainage system. But most of the property owners are willing to wait."

"We want to wait until Mike Faherty is out of office," interjected George A. Jacob, 1315 Thorndale avenue, chairman of a citizens' committee. "We lack confidence in the city administration. We don't want Mr. Faherty to handle $3,500,000 of our money."

SEWER CASE SUBMITTED

Decision in the $750,000 taxpayers' suit to prevent levying of assessments for a sanitary plant in Downers Grove, will be rendered Friday by Judge W. L. Pond in the Du Page County court. This was announced yesterday when the six months' court battle ended and the judge took the case under advisement.

The suit was brought last December by Attorneys Irving Rooks and Daniel S. Wentworth, representing property owners who objected to scrapping the present plant and building a new one about a mile away. They contended that an addition costing about $225,000 to the old plant, which was built seven years ago, is sufficent to meet all needs.

69% said "Checker"

MORE than five hundred business men were asked the kind of cab they preferred.

Sixty-nine per cent said "Checker."

When asked "why," the great majority responded:

"Because I would rather ride with a man who has a direct financial interest in the cab he is driving. He is less likely to take chances; more likely to go out of his way to please you."

Many replied that they found Checker drivers Chicago-posted. They knew that any Checker driver from among the 2809 knows our streets; public institutions; parks; hospitals; depots.

And many, too, said they liked Checker cab roominess, privacy, clean upholstery, shining bodies.

This being the opinion of the men folks, small wonder the ladies of Chicago are giving Checker more and more of their patronage. Upon their part, they have found Checker stockholder-drivers to be courteous, efficient, quick to follow orders.

If you make a test—today or tonight—to find out why the 69% said Checker, you will experience a new comfort in transportation.

But it doesn't at all take a mathematical genius to see the clinching common sense reason why you should own a HUPMOBILE now.

That reason has been written in the bills of sale of thousands of new HUPMOBILE owners since HUPMOBILE announced its cash savings price-cut.

And it means just this: that the car chosen by Wilmer Stultz for its motor-superiority, by Clarence Chamberlin for its engineering excellence, and by a veritable blue-book of social celebrities for its smartness, its modern flair—can now be yours for the smallest sum that ever was exchanged for a Century HUPMOBILE. And you can write your own ticket in selecting your model. All Century Sixes and Eights participate in the savings plan.

Motors are an open book to Wilmer Stultz, seasoned air-skipper, who flew the first woman across the Atlantic. In the air he now pilots this twin-motored seaplane. On the road he pilots this HUPMOBILE. "I chose HUPMOBILE," he says, "for its speed and economy."

A question 365 days long!

Overloaded, steaming, crowding the speedometer from dawn to dawn, they cover concrete and gravel, hill and dale, piling up often as much each as 800 miles a day.

Some of them are big cars, some small; some cruise in Ohio, some in Florida, some in Arizona and New Mexico, some on the Pacific Coast.

Altogether they comprise the largest tire-testing fleet in the world, and they're kept on the run in sunshine and storm the whole year through.

THIS ceaseless and unmerciful testing—this question 365 days long—is the kind of scrutiny Goodyear Tires must survive before they are offered to the public.

Every improvement in compound, every advance in construction, must run this gauntlet successfully before it is incorporated in production.

As a consequence Goodyear quality is a definite and dependable thing—so outstanding as to support the largest tire business in the world.

When you buy a tire, ask yourself if it has this background—this insurance of brilliant and economical performance that is intrinsic in every Goodyear Tire.

Ask yourself if it contains the values made possible by Goodyear experience and science, proceeding from the largest tire engineering and development corps in the industry.

Ask yourself if it can possibly approach the Goodyear measure of excellence, enabled by the fact that Goodyear production is almost twice that of any other manufacturer.

Ask yourself what can weigh against that outstanding superiority in Goodyear Tires which last year gave Goodyear a percentage of gain in sales nearly three times the percentage of gain in sales recorded for the tire industry as a whole!

WHEN you have considered fundamentals like these you will be proof against the specious plea of the tire dealer who advances the misstatement "All tires are about alike."

You will understand why the leading manufacturers of motor cars, seeking the best in equipment, use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind.

You will understand why the cost-wary owners of the great truck fleets of industry, seeking utmost economy, use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind.

You will understand why the purchasing experts of the urban, interurban and transcontinental bus lines, seeking safe and profitable operation, use more Goodyear Tires than any other kind.

Finally, you will understand why it is true throughout the world this year as for fourteen years past, that "more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

And because Goodyear Tires cost little if anything more to buy than others, you will realize they cost less to use, and will want their savings and satisfaction for yourself.

PROPOSE TO TAP NIAGARA AGAIN AND BEAUTIFY IT

Power Men Planning to Improve Hue.

an increased diversion the American company and Canadian commission will fall heirs to a gold mine.

The treaty has been ratified by the Canadian parliament and is pending consideration in the United States senate. It will not be acted upon earlier than the regular session of congress next winter, before which time the foreign relations committee of the senate will hold public hearings on the project embodied in the convention.

The principal opposition to the treaty emanates from the Mississippi valley states which are unwilling to consent to increased diversion of lake waters at Niagara falls until Canada and New York state are willing to withdraw opposition to a diversion at Chicago sufficient for the navigation requirements of the lakes to the gulf waterway.

Flow Is High Now.

At this time there is an avalanche of water to spare tumbling over the falls, despite the present power diversion of 56,000 second feet. The lakes are close to their high water mark, although there has been no diminution of the Chicago diversion, which the Supreme court has held responsible for the gradual fall of lake levels in the last decade.

The normal flow over the falls was originally, it is estimated, about 200,000 second feet. It has been about 150,000 second feet since the power concerns began to divert 56,000 second feet from above the falls, under the terms of the boundary waters treaty of 1909 between the United States and Canada. As a result of the high water in the lakes it is now about 180,000 second feet.

With the high water prevailing at this time there is an unbroken crest line of water of varying depth from flank to flank of each of the cataracts. Altogether Niagara this summer is a grander sight than it has been for a decade.

But, according to the engineers, the cycle of lake levels is now nearing the top of the upward curve. In a year or two the downward curve will again be perceptible. Then the normal flow over the falls, with 56,000 second feet diverted for power, will return to 150,000 second feet. The flanks of the Canadian falls will be bared again and the American falls will be thinned.

Half of Original Flow Planned.

The proposed additional experimental diversion, if allowed, will reduce the volume in the winter to 130,000 second feet and the permanent increased diversion eventually, if allowed, contingent upon the success of the remedial works, will bring the total flow down to about 100,000 second feet, or half the original normal volume.

More than two decades ago agitation to save Niagara falls from the water power hogs resulted in the Burton act limiting diversion on the American side and eventually the boundary waters treaty limiting Canadian diversion to 36,000 and American diversion to 20,000 second feet. Niagara was saved, but not wholly, for the remedial works now proposed are designed not only to compensate for a still greater diversion but to restore beauties of which it was robbed in part by the diversion authorized in the very treaty that was to save it.

Falls Thinned Materially.

With reference to all lake water diversion, of which the 56,000 second feet at the falls is by far the greatest, J. Horace McFarland, widely known as the savior of Niagara twenty years ago and now a member of the special international Niagara board which has sanctioned the remedial works, has this to say:

"The effect of these combined diversions has been to thin the American falls materially, to reduce the beauty of the rapids on the American side and between the Three Sister islands and almost to bare the flanks of the Horseshoe falls near Terrapin rock on the American side as well as for a considerable distance on the Canadian side."

It is now proposed to repair this damage to the scenic value of the falls by a system of works above the falls.

These proposed works consist of excavations on the flanks of the Canadian falls and of a system of submerged weirs designed to deflect a portion of the currents of the Niagara river above the falls from their present into different channels.

At no time does more than 5 or 6 per cent of the total volume of water flowing through the Niagara gorge descend over the American falls. The other 94 or 95 per cent goes over the Canadian falls, which are separated from the American falls by Goat island. In the low water period the flow over the American falls is about 7,000, over the Canadian falls 140,000 cubic feet per second. At such times the American falls are greatly thinned.

Big Deflection Proposed.

It is proposed to correct this condition with respect to the American falls by building a submerged masonry weir in the Grass island pool at a point about a mile above the falls on the Canadian side. This weir would extend into the river at right angles to the Canadian bank about 2,000 feet. It would have the effect, say the engineers, of diverting from 2,000 to 5,000 cubic feet of water per second from the channels leading to the Canadian Falls and throwing it against the head of Goat island, where it would be deflected into the channel of the American falls.

By this means the flow over the American falls would be increased to not less than 9,000 second feet in the low water period, and to 22,000 second feet in high water.

The problem on the Canadian side is to thin out the volume of water pouring through the notch in the toe of the horseshoe and spread it more equally over the entire crest line, thereby re-watering the flanks exposed at low water periods.

To accomplish this result the flanks of the horseshoe will be lowered by excavation and water will be deflected from the main channels into the excavated channels by means of submerged weirs. On the Goat island flank of the horseshoe the excavation will take place in an area 150 feet in width extending upstream from the brink of the falls about 700 feet. In the neighborhood of this excavation two submerged weirs will deflect the current from the deep water channel to the American flank of the horseshoe.

On the Canadian flank of the horseshoe the excavation is to be in an area extending upstream from the crest a distance of about 1,200 feet, with a width of 200 feet.

Disagree as to Crest.

As to whether it is intended to lower the height of the falls on the flanks of the horseshoe there is conflicting testimony. Norman R. Gibson, vice president and chief engineer of the Niagara Falls Power company, says that while the flanks will be excavated for a distance behind the crest there will be no lowering of the crest itself. Col. William Kelly, vice president in charge of engineering of the Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern Power corporation, of which the Niagara company is a part, says that the crest on each flank is to be lowered from two to four feet.

With 150,000 second feet flowing over the falls the depth of the water in the notch of the horseshoe is about 14 feet. It is deeper at that point now with the high water prevailing. The engineers have endeavored to determine to what depth of water the famous emerald hue at this point is due. By a newly invented instrument called the telecolorimeter the depths giving various shades of green have been measured.

On the basis of these tests the engineers assert that a more beautiful shade of green would be produced in the center of the horseshoe by a depth of five than of 14 feet. This is another argument they advance in support of their thesis that the flow over the falls may be tremendously reduced again by additional power diversion without impairing the spectacle.

INVESTIGATE FIRE'S ORIGIN.

Fire attorneys yesterday were investigating the origin of a fire which early in the day caused damage estimated at $12,000 to a building at 5926 West Madison street. An explosion is believed to have started the blaze.

DUTCH MARINES REACH CURACAO TO CURB REBELS

Fear Venezuelans Plan Coup on Island.

BY GERALD MARTIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WILLEMSTAD, Dutch West Indies, June 22.—Dutch Shell Oil company officials registered relief this morning when the Dutch destroyer Kortenaer entered this harbor of the Island of Curacao and landed marine reinforcements to assist in the maintenance of martial law in the city, patrolling streets and guarding the refinery, forts, and government buildings.

Oil investments here, including tankers, amount to more than $60,000,000, and the refinery, which is reputed to be the world's largest, ships 15,000 tons daily. The raw product is received from Venezuela, is refined and then shipped to European countries.

Of about 7,000 employés, 3,000 are Venezuelans, and among these latter it is said there are 200 pronounced revolutionists who exert a powerful influence over their fellow countrymen by means of money and intimidation. European employés are armed and the plant is barricaded with entanglements and trenches, as are also the island forts.

The neighboring Dutch island of Aruba, where the Pan-American Petroleum company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, is constructing the world's largest refinery, reports that an American cruiser, accompanied by three smaller ships, sails by each morning at 6 o'clock in sight of the islanders, but it will not answer wireless inquiries.

Oil Brings Prosperity.

Dutch oil operations have raised the Island of Curacao from a sleepy, poverty stricken way station to a prosperous community, and it is rumored that Venezuelan revolutionists entertain the idea of transferring the refineries to Venezuela, where the oil is mined.

A prominent Hollander said today that the slackness of the company's intelligence department was responsible for the surprise attack which Venezuelan filibusters made upon the island on June 8, temporarily controlling the refinery and wells. Venezuela since has demanded the extradition of the rebels.

It is alleged that when the raiders brought their depredations to a close by kidnaping Governor K. L. A. Fruytier of the colony of Curacao [which includes five other islands besides Curacao] and carrying him away on a commandeered American vessel, they had placed dynamite charges in the four corners of the refinery. These allegations have not been proved. It is pointed out that the Dutch governor sacrificed his dignity by submitting to the kidnaping in order to protect property, including the American steamer.

Island Badly Protected.

Dutch economy has undoubtedly left the island badly protected. Business men here complain that the guard has been ridiculously insufficient during recent years, the fort being left open day and night unguarded, and no intelligence work being done.

There are no American industries on the island, British phosphate mines and the oil wells and refinery representing the only large foreign interests.

PLAN DISCUSSE TO UNITE GUA WITH REGULA

Provisions to make the guard a component of the army without removing it fr control were discussed a special committee of the Guard a component of the Morrison hotel. Maj. Hough, chairman of the pointed out the advantage tion, which would make sary for the guard to go federalizing process in Col. Howard T. Kingsbury York pointed out the making the National Guard the regulars without removing state control. The committee draft a report for presentation annual convention of the Guard association in Los October.

PROPAGANDA AND OPINION IN THE UNITED STATES.

Inasmuch as ours is, more than any other, a government by public opinion, it is obvious that influences creating opinion are of greater moment in our scheme of things than elsewhere. We have no governing class and less feeling for authority and tradition than any other great nation. We are, for this and other reasons too numerous or complicated to be given here, especially susceptible to impressions, to emotions, and to the pressure of propaganda. A huge mass, heterogeneous in its sources and character, generating an enormous energy, and preoccupied with the rewarding activities of our private lives, we are, as a body politic, superficial in our reactions and easily swayed in public concerns which have not yet come home to us as conditions important to us as individuals. Enthusiastic minorities have control over policy and action. Organized interests, conscious of their own objects and concentrated upon them, get things accomplished easily because of our mingled indifference and naïveté.

This is very apparent in the field of our foreign relations, where, until a concrete and practical assault upon some obvious interest occurs, we are overrun by theorists, idealogues, and sentimentalists and exploited by alien interests aware of our weaknesses.

There has been no more significant instance of this than the public reaction to the Washington conference on disarmament. We came out of those negotiations defeated of our essential object, which was to end naval competition and establish as nearly as practicable a status quo or balance among the great naval powers whose rivalry we believe promised war. We made the most serious sacrifices, in fact the only serious sacrifices, without preventing competition. We merely removed it to other phases of naval armament. In the following five years the naval building of ocean-going combat ships by the signatory powers was as follows: United States 12, Great Britain 54, Japan 117, France 99, Italy 57.

This was our reward for junking great battleships and a program which would have given us the first place among the navies of the world, and relinquishing our right to fortify and develop naval bases in the Pacific, a vital element of sea power and defense.

But the picture of conference results given by the press at the close of the conference, publicity having been left in the hands of the British publicity agent, Lord Riddell, is well and fairly summarized in Capt. Knox's timely article on the navy and indoctrination, published in the Naval Institute Proceedings of June, lately commented upon:

(1) That the sacrifices entailed in our battleship scrapping program were paralleled by the battleship scrapping of other powers.

(2) That the failure to limit auxiliary tonnage, whereby Great Britain retained the huge cruiser preponderance, did not involve any unfairness to this country and bore no essential relationship to battleship scrapping.

(3) That the failure to limit auxiliaries did not materially affect the value of the treaty in preventing future competitive building and excessive expenditures.

(4) That the effort of France to obtain sufficient submarine force to safeguard her sea communications against overwhelming British naval dominance was reprehensible in the extreme and made it impossible to limit cruisers and other auxiliaries.

The opposite of every one of these conclusions was the truth. Eventually, of course, this truth began to transpire, and at the Geneva conference of 1927 the press redeemed itself by presenting the facts. But American pacifism, intent upon fruitless sacrifices for us, was unrepentant and unenlightened, and when at the last congress an effort was made in the cruiser to begin to recover our relinquished position and to redress some of the dangerous disadvantages under which our zeal for economy and peace had placed us, congress was inundated by telegrams and demands to repress the President's and the navy's considered proposals.

This was not a spontaneous expression of public opinion. It was an effort of organized propaganda. The headquarters of the federal council and other pacifist societies which overlap in personnel and closely coöperate were at work.

We are about to reopen the question of naval accord in circumstances which promise accomplishment. It is unquestionably desirable that a satisfactory and durable understanding among the great naval powers, and especially with Great Britain, be reached, if it is humanly practicable. But no understanding or agreement that is reached under the pressure of British self-interest on the one hand and American pacifism and colonialism on the other will be anything but mischievous not only in the first instance to us but eventually to the cause of international peace. Mr. MacDonald represents or is in sympathy with British conceptions of maritime policy which are not incompatible with our own; with the extension and protection of the rights of neutral commerce, for example. But the former Labor government was not ignorant of essential British interests nor disposed to sacrifice them and neither will this one be, whereas the American President or his delegate at any conference will be besought and belabored by organizations of pedagogues and preachers, doctrinaires and apologetic Americans to make sacrifices in the alleged interests of peace, while the solid and practical minded mass of the nation remains inarticulate. Capt. Knox is wholly right when he says: "Truly the time has come for American education and indoctrination in maritime matters, both for constructive and for protective purposes. The time has come for a national awakening in the major play of national economic forces which inevitably link up production, sea transportation, foreign markets, and sources of material with sea power. Only thus may we retrieve for ourselves the ability to make decisions based on reality and truth, as to how we shall promote the peace of the world while at the same time preserving justice and equality of opportunity for America."

THE STRANGE UNIVERSITY PRESIDENTS.

Dr. Clarence C. Little, retiring president of the University of Michigan, in his address to the graduating class and his last message to the university spoke of the narrowness of American patriotism. "We stand, I believe," said Dr. Little, "next to Italy in this respect. Forgiven our own shortcomings and protected for years by allies whom we gave certain material aid, we refuse to forgive them their debts, thus belittling ourselves and postponing the coming of true friendship between ourselves and Europe."

Many American college presidents have become curiosities in their own land. Dr. Little could get an indorsement of his statement from the presidents of a score of the largest universities of the country. It is so extraordinarily wrong that its prevalence in the minds of the most important educators of the United States is an extraordinary exhibit. Where thought would be expected emotionalism and an almost hysterical sentimentalism are found. When rationalism would be supposed to exist reason is found to be dismissed. The university president has become the voice of unreason in public life. His mental processes have become clouded and obscured. He thinks strangely and urges young people to think, setting strange examples. He has scholarship and knowledge and makes curious uses of them to arrive at unreasonable and fantastic conclusions.

Presumably these presidents are affecting the lives of hundreds of thousands of young Americans and when the source of scholastic authority is observed there is a natural wonder as to what the product of the schools will be. It is probably fortunate at the present time that the young people pay more attention to the football coach than to the college president. The United States needs more football and fewer presidents in its universities.

FEDERAL CITIES.

New York has recently been presented with a regional plan which contemplates a systematic development of the territory which is commonly thought of as metropolitan New York. As matters stand at present, the achievement of the plan is so difficult as to appear almost impossible. The difficulties arise only in part from the fact that, in carrying out such projects, conflict between individual interest and the proposals of the planners is sure to arise. Even more important is the fact that there is no single legislative or administrative unit in control.

The metropolitan New York of the regional plan reaches into three states, New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut. The cities, towns and villages which it embraces are incorporated under a diversity of laws. The same situation applies to many of the largest cities in the nation. Regional Chicago is in two states certainly today and in another decade or two will be in three. It is one community today from Gary to Waukegan and back to the Fox river; it is easy to foresee the time when practical considerations of close community interest will extend the metropolitan district northward into Wisconsin, perhaps as far as Milwaukee and certainly as far as Kenosha.

Kansas City is in two states. The three cities, St. Louis, East St. Louis, and Granite City, are really one community which crosses the state line. Philadelphia and Camden are one. Davenport, Rock Island and Moline are a single community, unfortunately divided. Buffalo and Detroit each extend across the international frontier, as do some of the towns on the Mexican border.

It is difficult to see how the goal of administrative unity can be achieved readily for the international cities, but when cities merely cross state lines the problem is much simplified. It might be met by federal incorporation. For lack of unified administration, our greatest metropolitan cities are in danger of becoming increasingly disorderly agglomerations, wasteful of land and taxes and presenting needless obstacles to healthy growth. If they were federally incorporated they might deal with their problems more successfully.

ANOTHER PROHIBITION KILLING.

[New York Evening Post.]

"My two children began to cry."

That simple sentence brings out the pathos in the killing of another American citizen by prohibition enforcement agents Henry Virkula, driving his wife and family back to his home at Big Falls, Minn., was riddled with bullets by two inspectors after the briefest of warnings. No liquor was found in his car, which contained twenty-six bullet holes. His two little children and his wife apparently escaped only because they were crouched down on the rear seat.

Virkula's murderers will probably have their case taken out of the hands of the state so that they can be defended with the full power of the federal department of justice. Delay, change of jurisdiction and other legal tricks that figured in the acquittal of the Buffalo prohibition killer will probably be used to get them off.

Cannot the President do something in this situation? Can he not make some significant change in personnel or policy that will make the country and the prohibition forces understand that these killings must cease?

For one thing we may be thankful: that the house did not cheer the killing as it did some weeks ago. Bishop Cannon will sigh, we presume, over this lack of "wholesome" applause.

TWO INFLUENCES OF RELIGION

BY THE REV. CLELAND BOYD McAFEE, Ph.D., D.D., LL.D.

[Professor of Systematic Theology, Presbyterian Theological seminary, Chicago, and newly elected moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly.]

Any one who knows the history of religion will realize that two effects can be traced to it. Sometimes it appears as a great inspiration; sometimes it works as a great restraint. Men who criticize the idea of religion are generally chiefly concerned with one or the other aspect of its influence, seldom with both. If they think of its restraints, they miss its inspirations. If they note its tendency to drive men to action, they fail to see its tendency to hold men back from action.

Yet religion at its best does both those things. And it is especially true of the Christian religion. At this present time no more heroic, self-forgetting campaigns are being carried on than those inspired by the desire to be loyal to Christ. No one could travel intelligently around the world without noting the way in which nationals of all lands, alone or in fellowship with missionaries or other visitors from other lands, are attempting enormous programs for human good. The world is heavily in debt to explorers who break into new sections and bring back word of the people and conditions they find. But often before the explorers and quite invariably after them other men go, not for a few weeks but for a lifetime, and help to reconstruct life according to the Christian way of living. Our government has brought home many of our soldier bodies from across the sea, though some of us have good reason for knowing how many are still left there. But there is hardly a land around the world which does not contain the bodies of some of these self-forgetting workers in behalf of humanity, left there as hostages to the kingdom of God which they tried to establish. Similar inspiration appears in a multitude of places in this land. After all the complaints made of the poor results of the Sunday schools it remains true that thousands of faithful, hard working men and women have given up their ease and quiet for the sake of young people, a sacrifice which large numbers of their critics would never have made. It has often been a thankless task and they have never claimed to do it perfectly, but they have kept at it through summer and winter, rain and shine, not for pay and not for glory, but simply under the inspiration of their religion. In numbers and faithfulness they cannot be matched by any similar group of unselfish workers. Nor ought one to omit the church officers who render the largest amount of unpaid official service of any group in the nation. If they looked out for their own ease, they could stay at home like their critics and be comfortable in the evenings or on Sundays. Instead, they go on bearing the burden of the church, not because of any glory in it but because it is one way to help and their religion drives them to it.

Nor is this inspiring power of the Christian religion at all exhausted. This is still its largest appeal to men. One trouble with our recent appeals in behalf of Christianity is that we have not made it hard enough. Jesus made it very plain that while he wanted disciples he did not want them on any cheap terms. Anybody who is looking for the soft snap or the easy road may as well decline to follow Christ at first. He always spoke in terms of cross bearing. Imagine telling a little group of followers to set out on a world errand to tell everybody about him and to teach the world the things he had commanded! It sounds supremely foolish. But the fact that saves it from being foolish is that it actually worked and those people did start the movement. He made the impossible attractive to them.

Every suggestion of a thorough Christian program has the same smack of impossibility about it today. Here is this attempt to develop a sense of the value of law—the task which the church is increasingly accepting. Anybody can see how impossible it is, since it runs straight across many human impulses and desires. Precisely; but what is the use of a religious impulse if it does not make right things attractive and in the long run possible? No one can suppose that disregard for law can ever be compatible with a religion whose principle is love, when every violation of law hurts somebody, the violator himself first but generally some innocent persons more still. Can a religion of love agree that it does not matter when a man is drunk or a thief or a murderer? How could it love him and how could it love the lives allied to him if it did not care?

And here the other effect of religion emerges in full view—its tendency to restrain men. Some adults can recall little of their early religious life but the restrictions which were issued in the name of Christianity. They could not do this nor say that nor go there. Multitudes of people really think that their fathers thought they would go to hell if they whistled on Sunday—which no father ever did think or say, of course. But the negations of religion bulk large in many minds. And there ought to be no denying of these negations, for life needs restraint and must have it before it can come to its best. No man can look about him today without wishing that some people felt more of the restraints of a decent religion. The "glad, free life" of which some men boast is terribly hard on everybody else. If it were a little less "free" in some directions, it would be more "glad" for other people.

Jesus said that in every life there would be places where a man must say no to himself, hold himself in, refuse to do what he was inclined to do, and that this is the only hope for living a really fine life. Common sense supports that idea. We all need to be held back from some impulses, and the restraint ought to come from within us where our religion roots, rather than from without us where law operates upon us.

Here are the two effects of religion, specially of the Christian religion—its challenge to daring attempts and its restraint from unworthy living. On the one hand it forbids a believer to say that any worthy thing is impossible in the world of a good God; on the other hand it forbids a believer to disregard the limitations of his relation to other men and to God. Each man knows which aspect of it means most to him; let each man see to it that both aspects have their chance with him.

BY DOROTHY A. THRUPP.

Savior, like a shepherd lead us,
  Much we need thy tend'rest care;
In thy pleasant pastures feed us,
  For our use thy folds prepare;
Blessed Jesus, blessed Jesus!
  Thou hast bought us, thine we are.

We are thine, do thou befriend us,
  Be the guardian of our way;
Keep thy flock, from sin defend us,
  Seek us when we go astray;
Blessed Jesus, blessed Jesus!
  Hear, O hear us, when we pray.

Thou hast promised to receive us,
  Poor and sinful though we be;
Thou hast mercy to relieve us,
  Grace to cleanse, and power to free;
Blessed Jesus, blessed Jesus!
  We will early turn to thee.

Early let us seek thy favor,
  Early let us do thy will;
Blessed Lord and only Savior,
  With thy love our bosoms fill;
Blessed Jesus, blessed Jesus!
  Thou hast loved us, love us still.

OLD PERSONS MADE OVER.

IN HIS very learned scientific study on old age, Dr. A. S. Warthin does not fail to pay his respects to the various proposed methods for making old people over. His book, "Old Age," devotes one chapter, and that only three pages long, to rejuvenation, but the brevity of the treatment makes the opinions of the writer stand out more boldly. He summarizes: "There is no rejuvenation possible for the senile individual, and the idea of physical rejuvenation is but a myth of ancient lineage disguised in quasi-scientific garments." The various operations and other therapeutic procedures can have no effect on the general tissues of the body. The evidences of senility are the results either of pathologic processes such as infections, or of the involution which is natural to age, and may be said to be the results of the ordinary wear and tear of living. The effects of pathologic processes clearly cannot be removed by the so-called rejuvenation processes. Dr. Warthin demonstrates that rejuvenation is not possible in those evidences of age that are called natural or physiological in the organs other than the sex organs.

His next demonstration is that rejuvenation produces no changes that can be seen with the microscope or at autopsy, with the sex organs. However, there are some effects which even untrained observers have seen in some rejuvenated men. These are of psychic origin. He speaks of these men as reëroticized old men. There is some such effect and in some lines and for some men it may be held to be a good effect. But, he adds, such a process is not without its hazards. It is another example of the dangers of putting new wine into old bottles, as has been shown by the sudden deaths of a number of reëroticized old men.

Nor does Dr. Warthin think highly of the efforts to unduly prolong the lives of people beyond the age of usefulness. Up to date the increase in the average span of human life has been due to making safe the lives of the young. Eventually we will lessen the hazards to the old materially. But what is the use, he asks, of keeping old people living on after they have become useless? Why should an old leaf be kept on a tree when all the other leaves have fallen and there is no longer work for any leaf to do? Perhaps as we increase our knowledge of the processes of senescence, and learn to prevent pathogenic death and delay natural death, we may change our social methods so as to provide functions for the old.

CAUSES OF RHEUMATISM.

S. R. writes: Will you let me know the cause of St. Vitus dance, its cure, and duration. My boy, 7½ years old, had acidosis, when his feet and hands were swollen and large blotches covered him from head to toe. This condition lasted for three weeks and then he developed rheumatism and St. Vitus dance.

REPLY.

St. Vitus dance is due to the same germ which causes rheumatism. It is, in fact, a near relative of rheumatism. Other causes are operating at the same time.

It is a very serious disease and should never to be neglected. Heart disease is likely to follow it.

The treatment consists in prolonged rest, tonics and treatment for rheumatism. It is disposed to hang on for months.

SHOULD PROTECT FINGERS.

A. G. writes: I do secretarial work and have to dig down in the files for papers, etc. These papers cut the skin on the sides of my fingers and as a result I have calluses on every finger (next to the nail) on my right hand. I have had these about one year now and they are going away. I have used a caustic pencil on them, vaseline and pumice stone, but the results have been nil.

REPLY.

If you can protect your fingers by wearing cots or even gloves when you work in the files, the callosities will disappear spontaneously.

NO FIREWORKS.

Chicago, June 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Are there any Fourth of July fireworks that may be sold in Chicago "lawfully"? STOREKEEPER.

Sec. 1236 of the Chicago Municipal code states the rule as follows:

"It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to keep or expose for sale any fireworks, firecrackers, torpedoes, bombs, squibs, rockets, spinwheels, fire balloons, roman candles, sparklers, detonating canes or ammunition therefor, or any substances or articles of an explosive nature designed or intended to be used as fireworks, without a license issued for that purpose as hereafter provided."

SERVICE FOR THE POOR.

Chicago, June 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is there a "poor law" divorce here whereby one may make application for service on getting a divorce, free of charge? I would like to get a divorce, but have no money to do so.

D. A. S.

Where it appears, after investigation, that a client is unable to pay an attorney and that a divorce is necessary for the proper protection of the family, the Legal Aid Bureau of the United Charities sometimes takes such action, but there is no other agency through which one can avoid paying an attorney's fee. The mere fact that you have legal grounds and that the payment will involve some sacrifice for you will not suffice. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

AIR TRAVEL INSURANCE.

La Salle, Ill., June 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—The writer and others plan to operate an air travel insurance company exclusively. In what state can a charter be obtained at the least cost and maintenance expense? C. H. S.

To answer your question it would be necessary for us to investigate the statutes of each of the states in the Union, involving in many cases the examination of several volumes. It seems probable that the greater part of this labor would be of no service to you. Hence we suggest that you write us another letter stating the facts on which we can limit our search. We strongly advise you to employ an attorney in such an enterprise. An attorney so employed would be in a better position to advise than we are.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 23, 1864.

WASHINGTON.—Dispatches to Secretary Stanton from City Point report no fighting yesterday near Petersburg. Movements are in progress which are not now proper for publication. The Richmond papers report an attack on Lynchburg by Gen. Hunter on the 18th and that he was repulsed. It is believed, however, that there was nothing more than a reconnoissance. Gen. Sigel reports from Martinsburg that there is no truth in the report of a raid north of the Potomac by Moseby.

WASHINGTON.—A dispatch from Gen. Sherman, dated the evening of the 21st, says it has rained almost incessantly, in spite of which our lines have been pressed forward steadily and an important position has been gained by Gen. Howard. The enemy made a desperate attempt to retake the position, making seven assaults on Gen. Whitaker's brigade of Stanley's division and losing not less than 700 or 800 men, but they were repulsed.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Foster, commanding the department of the south at Hilton Head, S. C., reports that the rebel Gen. Samuel Jones has informed him that five of our general officers, prisoners of war, have been placed in Charleston to be retained there under our fire. Secretary Stanton has issued a retaliatory order transferring five rebel general officers who are our prisoners to Gen. Foster to be placed under rebel fire as long as our officers are exposed.

JUNE 23, 1899.

WASHINGTON.—President McKinley has decided to call for volunteers for Philippine service. It has been determined to form at least nine regiments and possibly twelve.

PARIS.—President Loubet has triumphed. Waldeck-Rousseau today formed one of the strongest ministries in the history of France. He is to be the premier, M. Delcasse, minister of foreign affairs; M. Caillaux, minister of finance; M. Millerand, minister of commerce; Gen. Marquis de Gallifet, minister of war, and M. Monist, minister of justice.

LONDON.—The Times correspondent at The Hague says that there was a sharp controversy between the Russian and American naval delegates to the peace congress. Capt. Mahan demanded to know why the employment of gases should be interdicted in war while the more cruel, wholesale destruction of life aimed at by the use of submarine torpedo boats should be permitted. A Russian delegate replied that men might be picked up when a ship sank. Despite the fact that Capt. Mahan's arguments were logical and unassailable the commission voted him down.

CHICAGO.—Miss Helen Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Thompson, 6522 Lafayette avenue, and James Boyce were married at the home of the bride's parents by the Rev. W. H. Robinson of the First Presbyterian church of Englewood.

JUNE 23, 1919.

BERLIN.—Germany will sign the peace treaty of the allied and associated powers. The national assembly by a vote of 237 to 138 decided to sign. The assembly also voted confidence in the government of the new premier, Gustav Bauer, 236 to 89.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—Gov. Lowden signed the so-called search and seizure bill, after receiving an opinion from Attorney General Edward J. Brundage that the act would not make it unlawful for a person to serve intoxicating liquors to his family or bona fide guests in his home. The governor holds that it is the plain duty of Illinois to enforce any and all laws, prohibition included.

ST. PAUL, Minn.—The destruction of the central part of Fergus Falls, Minn., by a tornado with the loss perhaps of 200 lives was reported by railroad officials and dispatches from nearby towns.

CHICAGO.—The engagement is announced of Miss Donna Marie Paradis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Paradis, 1444 East 54th street, to Harvey Smith Hayden Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Smith Hayden, 5487 Hyde Park boulevard.

BATHING BEACHES OR SCENERY FOR MOTORISTS.

Chicago, June 14.—It was reported that commissioners of Lincoln park proposed extending the Fullerton avenue beach south to North avenue, thus creating a sandy beach one mile long. I consider this an ill advised project.

The beauty and impressiveness of that stretch of the lake front drive would be vastly decreased if the lake were to be filled in directly adjacent to the drive. Here we have one of the few points in the city open to traffic where we can make practically direct contact with the water. This contact, though brief, is a godsend to thousands of Chicago motorists and visitors.

Chicago needs bathing beaches, but are not smaller and more numerous beaches desirable rather than one or two or three huge stretches?

CANADA'S TOURIST BUSINESS.

HAMILTON, Ont., June 3.—As an American citizen living in Canada [not by choice], am enclosing a few clippings which I presume you may or may not have seen. They will speak plainer than I of the feeling which exists in Canada regarding the U. S. A. As a resident here I am in a position to see and hear the bitter, sarcastic editorials and anti-American feeling which exists here, and, in fact, all over the dominion. Preference is always given the British and nothing is rank enough to hand the American.

At this season of the year they are looking forward here to harvest a fortune out of the American tourists who visit Canada by thousands. Placards are displayed everywhere advising the visitors they are allowed goods to the value of $100 duty free. Also every other inducement to wheedle the money from them. They charge exorbitant rates wherever the tourist has occasion to stop.

ENGLISHMEN'S SHOULDERS.

Chicago, June 6.—My attention was drawn to a letter by Helen Morris in which she said that Englishmen had a half starved look. Evidently she has not seen many Englishmen or she could not possibly refer to them as half starved looking unless in a spirit of pure jealousy.

The men from the British isles [women also] are noted for their healthy, clean-cut appearance. I might add, also, the women from the British isles don't find it necessary to buy their complexions at the drug store.

As for your broad shouldered men, where do all your big policemen come from? The British isles, of course, or, to be explicit, Ireland. The men of the New York police force, said to be the finest specimens in the world, make a great show for this country, but where do they come from? Not the United States, but Ireland. Many of your American visitors to Canada often excite this remark: "They must be Yanks; look at the way their clothes are thrown on." I've heard many such remarks passed while living there.

NEWS OF UKRAINIANS.

WINNIPEG, Man., June 7.—My attention has been called to an article which appeared in THE TRIBUNE, issue of April 18, under the caption, "Ukraine Keeps Soviet Moscow Awake Nights."

I have read this article with the greatest interest and wish to congratulate you on publishing news items regarding the Ukrainian problem such as the one in question, truly reflecting the existing condition in soviet Ukraine.

As far back as 1919, when I was acting as collaborator of the Ukrainian government in Ukraine, I met there the representative of your paper, Thomas Stewart Ryan, who was very carefully collecting information and data dealing with the Ukrainian problem. Our national territory being divided among four hostile occupants, these invaders are trying to spread wrong information regarding our aims and ideals, and in view of such misrepresentation all the friends of Ukrainian independence appreciate very much the impartial attitude of THE TRIBUNE.

I shall be greatly obliged if you will see that my name is placed on your mailing list, and on receipt of invoice I shall be pleased to remit the amount.

PETITION FOR HIGH DIVES.

Chicago, June 11.—The beaches will open in about three weeks and the bathers are hoping to find high diving or at least spring boards. A number of years ago the south side beaches all had high dives, but these were removed on account of low water. This argument is now washed away and there is no reason to deny bathers the pleasure of diving.

REALTY RESTRICTIONS.

Streator, Ill., June 5.—"Restrictions on Realty Sales to Negroes Legal," page 8, column 3, June 4.

Wouldn't it be a fine climax, and a fitting reward for those Negroes trying to push to the upper crust of our holy city, to demand that they recite in public, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States and to the republic for which it stands; one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all"?

If any should waver on the last phrase turn the hoodlums of chauvinism loose upon them and let the unpatriotic wretches be mobbed. I find it impossible to chant the flag liturgy and thus engage in a mockery of justice and truth.

WANTS GERALD INDICTED.

Chicago, June 6.—Why do not the "drys" bring to trial Gerald De King, the brave boy who tried to defend his father and mother from infamous brutality? He shot an officer of the law, according to the evidence, or is that evidence not positive? Does not State's Attorney Carbary realize his duty? Is he afraid of public sentiment, in view of the purse raised for Gerald's education?

The announcement was made by Clayton W. Mogg, former president of the Chicago Camera club, who with W. S. Nichols composed the jury.

The community map contest of the campaign held among the continuation schools was won by Lane Technical High school. Washburne took second and Lane took third. Announcement was made by C. Chandler, principal of Morrill elementary school.

PARTNER ACCUSES PARTNER IN SUIT OVER $5,000,000

Manistee, Mich., June 22.—[Special.]—Denying charges of fraud in the $5,000,000 suit recently filed against him by John H. Rademaker, his associate in the lumber and salt business for 19 years, Charles F. Ruggles, in a cross bill filed today counter charges Rademaker with altering the firm's books to his benefit. A total of $5,000,000 is involved in the suit.

GUEST AT TEA

MARY DAWES.

The tea which Mr. and Mrs. Rufus C. Dawes gave for their daughter, Miss Mary Dawes, yesterday afternoon at their Evanston residence had all the aspects of a debut reception. Many of her mother's friends as well as members of the younger set stopped in to greet Miss Dawes, who was graduated this month from Pine Manor at Wellesley, Mass.

Her dress for the occasion was of trailing chiffon flowered in rose, blue, and green and her bouquet of Spanish roses shading from yellow to bronze. Assisting in the receiving line and at the tea tables were Mrs. Henry Dawes, Mrs. C. H. Bosworth, Mrs. Walter Ross, Mrs. W. Irving Osborne, Mrs. H. B. Maynard of Waterloo, Ia., Mrs. Robert T. Sherman, and Mrs. Charles C. Dawes of Winnetka.

NEW PROHIBITION LAW IN KENOSHA TO HAVE 'TEETH'

Kenosha, Wis., June 22.—[Special.]—Kenosha will have a city prohibition ordinance that will lose none of the strength of the Severson act, recently repealed, and carries some provisions that are even more strict.

The ordinance now is on its way for passage in the city council. It provides for a bond of $250 from each saloon operator applying for a permit, instead of the $100, as before. It also provides for the right of police to make inspections of such licensed places at any reasonable time without a warrant.

The fine for conviction under the ordinance is set at $100 for each offense, with an alternative of four months in the county jail.

Order Big Game Shoot to End Tse-Tse Fly Pest

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, June 22.—An order to destroy the tse-tse fly pest has been issued by the government of the district of Wankie, in southern Rhodesia. FAMOUS CHURCH WILL CELEBRATE ITS CENTENNIAL

Gen. U. S. Grant Heard Sermons There.

Galena, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—Next week will be centennial week for the First Methodist Episcopal church here during which time a fitting observance will be made of this 100th milestone in the history of the church in which Gen. U. S. Grant and family were regular attendants during his residence in this city. Beginning tomorrow, special services will be held. The Rev. Dr. John Thompson, pastor of the Chicago City Temple, will deliver the sermon on the topic, "Spirits, Speech with Spirit."

Other speakers tomorrow will be Dr. Hugh Atchison, a son of the pastor of the church from 1887 to 1891; Dr. J. Hastie Rodgers, Chicago, and the Rev. Charles K. Karpenter, superintendent of the Rockford district.

Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes of Chicago will address a general mass meeting Thursday night.

John Dew First Minister.

Galena has the distinction of receiving the first regularly appointed Methodist Episcopal minister ever sent the white settlers in the bounds of the present Rock River conference. This conference was held in 1828 and John Dew was the minister sent to Galena. The Illinois conference then included the whole state of Illinois, two great circuits in Indiana, and the northwest territory.

The Methodist Episcopal church in Galena had its birth within the years 1828-'29. In 1833 the first regular church building was erected. This was the first Methodist church building within the bounds of the present conference, the second being built in Chicago a year later. The original Galena church was destroyed by fire in January, 1838. Work was soon begun on a new building and the stone basement completed. All regular services were then resumed. In 1841 the church was dedicated. This substantial building now known as Harris hall stands today two doors south of the present church building on Bench street and is still a part of the church property, being used as a recreation hall. On Jan. 18, 1856, the present structure was dedicated by Bishop Ames.

Gen. Grant Attended.

During the pastorate of Bishop John H. Vincent of national chautauqua fame, Gen. U. S. Grant and family attended this church and the pew in which the Grants worshiped is now fittingly marked with a silver plate bearing the inscription, "U. S. Grant, 1859-'63." Preparations for the celebration have now been completed under the direction of the present pastor, the Rev. W. Atkey Brewster, and special committees of the various bodies in church activities.

A PIRATE IS NOT A PIRATE WHEN HE IS D'ANNUNZIO

ROME, June 22.—The appeals court of Turin today decided that the legionnaries of Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italian poet of Fiume fame, were waging legitimate warfare and not committing piracy on the high seas on Sept. 2, 1920, when they emerged from their hiding places on board the ship Cogne when it was off the coast of Sicily and forced the captain to bring the ship back to port, where Sig. D'Annunzio charged him 13,000,000 lire (about $625,000) as the price of freedom.

D'Annunzio was then boss of Fiume, which he had seized shortly before, and needed money for current expenses. Faced by Sig. D'Annunzio's demand, the captain got the money from owners of the cargo. He then proceeded to South America and delivered his cargo, and later the owners of the cargo tried to charge off the money to consignees in South America.

The South Americans protested, and then the buck was passed to two Milan insurance companies, which claimed that D'Annunzio was a pirate and that, therefore, the insurance regulations did not cover the loss.

FORD REMOVING SHED IN WHICH EDISON WORKED

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—About 400 persons today saw Henry Ford and Thomas A. Edison remove the first two boards from the small wooden building at Parsippany, N. J., in which Edison successfully completed his experiments on the incandescent lamp.

The building, a glass-blowing shed on the property of the Mazzabrook General Electric company, was turned over today to Mr. Ford, who will have it rebuilt in his Edisonian museum at Dearborn, Mich., where on Oct. 1 his friend Edison is to act the experimenter all over again, using the original equipment and apparatus.

In the bashful speech at today's ceremony Mr. Ford told Mr. Edison that the small wooden building would have the place of honor in the museum and handed him the key to the shed, which Mr. Edison accepted with that benignant smile that all the world knows.

ARRANGE TO SEND GARY'S BODY TO U. S. FOR BURIAL

Relatives of Kellogg Gary, 26 year old son of Mrs. John W. Gary of Glencoe, planned last night to have his body returned to the United States aboard the Ile de France, sailing next Thursday. This was learned in a dispatch from Paris.

Young Gary died early Thursday from an overdose of sleeping potion in his hotel room at Antibes, a resort near Nice on the French Riviera. His uncle, Calvin Fentriss of Winnetka left Paris last evening for Antibes to arrange for the funeral.

Close friends of the young man indignantly deny the theory of suicide. Arthur Meeker Jr., young Chicagoan now in Paris, informed THE TRIBUNE that Gary was in excellent spirits when they met a few weeks ago. Richard Bolling, an American living in Morocco, said that Gary returned to the Antibes hotel on Wednesday and announced he was feeling badly and needed sleep. Unable to awaken him at dinner time, Bolling summoned a physician, but resuscitation efforts, continued through the night were unavailing.

SAFETY COUNCIL GIVES RULES FOR SAFE AND HAPPY 4TH OF JULY

Substitution of community displays under competent management for general use of fireworks on July 4 by children was urged in a warning bulletin issued yesterday by the Chicago Safety council. The bulletin says 80 per cent of the persons killed by fireworks are children.

Picnicking, speechmaking, pageantry, motoring, swimming, and other sports also were recommended as safer for holiday makers than the indiscriminate use of firecrackers. For those who insist on explosive entertainment, the council suggested supervision by adults as the first precautionary move. Other recommendations were:

All fireworks should be lighted by adults.

Firearms should not be used under any circumstances.

Firecrackers should not be held in the hand while being lighted.

Firecrackers should not be exploded in any kind of container.

Several pails of water should be kept close to the scene of operations.

Used matches and burnt-out sparkers should be thrown into a pail of water.

When the Heart Speaks-

When another's race is run, there is no sweeter final message than utmost elegance in devotion and service. It is a message which will never be answered, save in the living heart, through the self-satisfaction that comes from a tribute fully and sublimely expressed!

It is to this elegance of final expression that "Hursen's" has always been consecrated. At every "Hursen" funeral there is seen and felt a lavishness of service and attention, and an unusual elegance which has made the name of "Hursen" known and understood—everywhere.

Anyone who attends a "Hursen" funeral sees and feels this elegance. Anyone who visits any one of "Hursen's" three "funeral-homes" is a witness to it. In the quality and beauty of everything that is furnished, in service rendered, in the beauty of each "funeral-home," in the superb automobile equipment, this outstanding purpose to give the best the world affords is emphasized.

Yet the charge for "Hursen" funerals is much less than the charges made elsewhere. It costs no more for the use of "Hursen" funeral-automobiles, or for the "Hursen" "limousine-hearses" than the usual charges made for the less desirable equipment usually seen. There is but one answer when the heart speaks: "Call 'Hursen,' of course!"

FARM PLEADER DRAWS FIRE OF G. O. P. SENATORS

Tariff Hearing Enlivened by Controversy.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—The question of the relative protection given industry and agriculture provided a sharp controversy today before a subcommittee of the senate finance committee.

Chester H. Gray, Washington representative of the American Farm Bureau federation, drew the fire of Republican members of the committee when he presented figures purporting to show average duties on agricultural and industrial products in the tariff bill as passed by the house and in the present law.

Questioned by Senators.

Questions by Senators Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the finance committee; James E. Watson [Rep., Ind.], chairman of the agricultural subcommittee, and S. M. Shortridge [Rep., Cal.] brought out the fact that Mr. Gray had classed as agricultural commodities only raw farm products in an unprocessed state.

All processed farm commodities, such as meats and other packing house products, dressed poultry, canned milk, dried eggs, and refined sugar, many of which carry high duties, Mr. Gray listed with industrial products.

"It is clear to me, now, why I haven't been able to figure the way you are doing," said Senator Smoot after Mr. Gray had asserted that the average rate on agricultural products has been increased from 25.85 per cent to 29.90 per cent and the average rate on industrial products from 42.03 per cent to 47.07 per cent. "You say that if there is a high duty on tomatoes it is for the benefit of agriculture, but that if the tomatoes are put into a can then the whole duty is to be added to duties given to manufactured products."

Calls Spread Too Great.

Senator Watson said that most of the high rates imposed on processed farm products were at the request of agriculture. Mr. Gray admitted this but insisted that there was too great a spread between the duty on the raw material and the processed commodity.

"The promises to the farmers concerning readjustment of tariff rates have not been fulfilled," Mr. Gray said. "Both the Democratic and Republican platforms promised tariff relief to agriculture. The Republican platform pledged the support of the party to legislation which would give the home market to the American farmer 'to the full extent of his ability to supply it.'

"These assurances were further amplified by party leaders and congressional leaders and a special session of congress was called to afford agricultural relief through a marketing measure and a tariff readjustment.

Promised to Effect Parity.

"This readjustment was defined by responsible leaders as one which meant raising the agricultural rates, with little or no changes in industrial rates, to the end that agriculture might be placed on a parity with industry in tariff protection.

"A careful analysis of the house bill shows that there has been no such readjustment. Industrial rates have been increased as much, if not more, than agricultural rates, and the disparity between these rates has not been lessened but rather increased. A segregation of the rates on purely agricultural products from industrial products shows that the average rate on agricultural products has been increased from 25.85 per cent in the act of 1922 to 29.90 per cent in the bill reported by the ways and means committee.

"On the other hand, the average rate on industrial products has been increased from 42.03 per cent to 47.07 per cent, or an increase of 4.05 points for agriculture and 5.04 points for industry. Moreover, the disparity of 16.18 points between agriculture and industry has been increased to 17.17 points.

Claims Industry Is Favored.

"The amendments to the committee bill which were approved by the house still further favor industry. For agriculture, there were 23 changes to increase rates and two to decrease rates; for industry there were 89 changes to increase rates to 15 to decrease rates, or a net increase of 21 upward changes for agriculture and a net increase of 74 upward changes for industry."

Mr. Gray presented a list of commodities on which the American Farm Bureau federation is seeking higher duties than in the house bill.

Another witness before the subcommittee was Stanley Wyckoff of the Fairmont Creamery company of Chicago, who asked an increase in the duty on frozen eggs from 8 cents per pound, as in the house bill, and 7½ cents, as in the present law, to 12 cents, to provide greater protection against Chinese eggs.

California almond growers sought higher duties through Prof. R. L. Adams of the University of California. Higher rates were asked by other witnesses on cocoa and chocolate, cut flowers and bulbs. Enos Taylor of Chicago, representing the Mirror Manufacturers' association, asked a higher duty on mirrors at a hearing before a finance subcommittee dealing with the earths, earthenware and glassware schedule.

BERLIN BECOMES CENTER FOR RED WAR ON AMERICA

U. S. Man Calls Radicals for July Meeting.

BY GEOFFREY FRASER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 22.—Berlin has become a center for revolutionary agitation not only in British India but also in America and the Philippines. Strenuous campaigns are being prepared by a special committee of the League Against Imperialism and for National Independence in a well appointed office in the Friedrichstrasse directed by an American, Robert S. Bridgeman.

Bridgeman has signed a secret confidential circular in which it is announced that "during the last year the league's chief effort has been directed against British imperialism in India."

Calls Filipinos Oppressed.

"America is the next point of attack," the circular continues. "Ways and means of tackling this problem therefore constitute the chief business of this year's world congress to be held in Frankfort-am-Main in July."

Following a violent indictment of America's colonial administration, framed along the usual bolshevisk lines, the document proceeds: "It is regrettable that with the present state of world opinion and the helplessness of the subject races direct action is seldom practicable. Standing alone, the oppressed Filipinos could not rise successfully. For this reason the executive recommends a policy of linking up revolutionary efforts in the Philippines with similar efforts in India, Europe, Africa, and South America.

Invite Filipinos to Germany.

"In accordance with this policy, invitations have been issued to Filipino revolutionary leaders to proceed to Germany to attend the Frankfort congress. Should they be prevented from attending, reliable experts on the Philippine question will be available to explain to the congress the conditions existing in America's colonial empire."

The leaders of the Berlin bureau suffered a dampening of their ador by the pessimistic report of the Industrial Workers of the World, warning agitators that the present spell of economic prosperity in America is producing conditions highly unfavorable to the growth of a revolutionary crop in the American proletariat. An indirect attack by way of the American colonies was therefore deemed better strategy.

Caused Strikes in India.

The Frankfort congress will direct its attentions chiefly to India and America. The promoters point out that as a result of the Indian campaign 31,500,000 working days were crimped through strikes which cost the mill owners of Calcutta, Ahmadabad, and Bombay, several million rupees. Hope is expressed that similar "glorious" results will reward the campaign planned for the American dependencies.

The program for the congress includes a general report and recommendations by Bridgeman, in addition to a report, on "American Imperialism" by Roger Baldwin, described as New York delegate. Diego Rivera of Mexico, Jose Barreros of Cuba, and representatives from Panama and Nicaragua will lecture on "The Encroachments of American Imperialism Upon the Sovereignty of Latin-America." A Negro delegate named Ford is scheduled to speak on "The American's Negro's Struggle for Emancipation."

MISS OLGA LUNDMARK.

Rockford police recovered from the Rock river yesterday the body of Miss Olga Lundmark, 24 years old, who had written Chicago friends of her intention to drown herself. Authorities began dragging the river after Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Anderson, 3712 Clifton avenue, Chicago, had received a letter enclosing Miss Lundmark's photograph in which she said she contemplated suicide. Her sweetheart, Ray Swanson, 1638 Bryn Mawr avenue, who received a duplicate of the letter to the Andersons, left for Rockford last night to identify the body. No motive for the apparent suicide has been discovered.

U. S. Aids County Jail by Drive on Narcotics

Assistant United States District Attorney Henry Balaban yesterday sent a squad of narcotic agents to the Cook county jail to assist Warden David Moneypenny in preventing morphine and cocaine from being smuggled into the prison. The drive is likely to result in an order forbidding any person sending packages to known addicts confined there.

Chicago May Be Host to World Air Meet in 1933

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SWEDEN CASTS FRIENDLY EYE ON SOVIET RUSSIA

King Gustaf Would Unite All Baltic States.

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

STOCKHOLM, June 22.—The Baltic sea, which Sweden for a hundred years considered a wall against Russia, was changed by the world war, which established the Baltic states, into a bridge between the Scandinavian countries and the soviet government, and Sweden is now interested in improving its relations with the new nations on the other side of the Baltic. This was explained today by a high official of the Swedish government.

The eve of King Gustaf's visit to Esthonia and Latvia finds Swedish politicians not willing to be quoted on the subject of Baltic politics, but all are willing to discuss the situation unofficially.

In ancient times the Swedish vikings traveled across the Baltic into Russia, opening trade with the near eastern countries. Later many Swedes settled there.

War Changes Political Status.

Until Peter the Great defeated Sweden, the Baltic was a means of communication. When the Russians occupied the Baltic seaboard, Sweden became frightened and the loss of Finland was a national catastrophe.

The outcome of the world war and the revolution in Russia completely changed the political situation in northwestern Europe, and there is a general movement under way to develop cultural and economic connections with northern Baltic countries.

The Swedes hesitate even to talk about the possibility of any formal union, saying the friendship movement is only begun and until cultural and economic ties are stronger they cannot discuss political questions.

Sweden also hopes to use the Baltic states as transit countries for establishing trade with Russia, and as long as the soviet government respects the independence of Latvia, Esthonia and Finland, the Swedish political policies are likely to remain passive.

Sweden, continues this statesman, has followed a policy of neutral isolation too long to make a change, such as actively leading a movement to form some kind of a northern alliance. However, Sweden has been pleased by the discovery of a warm feeling of gratitude for its rule among the Esthonians and Letts, and speeches which the presidents of Esthonia and Latvia made during their visits to Stockholm recalling "the good old Swedish times across the Baltic" made a deep impression here.

During its reign in the eastern Baltic, Sweden consistently helped against Slav domination, while in Esthonia and Latvia Sweden introduced forms of municipal government, establishing fair courts, just laws, and high type judges, and the Swedes sided with the peasants against the German barons, who today are reaping the reward for their policy of coöperating with Russia in keeping these populations oppressed.

These facts today are leading toward a closer friendship between the northern Baltic countries and the visit of King Gustaf will aim to strengthen the friendship. The present policy of Sweden is directed towards making a Baltic connection instead of dividing by the sea, and promoting every possible cultural and economic factor which would be conducive to strengthening peace.

You Can Buy Graham-Paige

Quality at $855

Many people are surprised to learn that Graham-Paige quality can be purchased for as little as $855, at factory.

The 612, with prices beginning at this figure, is a large, powerful automobile.

When you lift the hood, you see a big engine—delivering 62 horsepower, with smooth operation assured by good balance. A seven-bearing crankshaft (2½ inches in diameter) is supported by a rigid motor block. Water jackets extend clear to the bottom of every cylinder, giving complete and uniform cooling for dependable performance and long life.

The internal expanding hydraulic brakes, protected from dirt and water, are larger than usual in a car at this price. Brake drums are machined absolutely true, insuring contact for the full surface of the brake shoes on all four wheels. This means less need for adjustments and relining, and greater security through more efficient braking.

The emergency brake is entirely separate, giving the protection—which we believe essential—of two independent braking systems.

All through the 612, you will find extra size, weight and strength. Every one of its 3,125 pounds contributes directly to better performance and increased comfort and safety of its passengers.

The bodies are roomy and beautifully finished. Upholstery is genuine mohair, with a guarantee of long wear attached to every cushion.

THIRSTY IOWANS MAY LOSE EVEN THEIR NEAR BEER

Held 150,000 Bottles for Court Hearing.

Des Moines, Ia., June 22.—(AP)—A long, dry summer loomed for the near beer drinkers of Des Moines today because one man found a clause in the state law few suspected existed.

Yesterday it seemed there would be plenty of near beer; 150,000 bottles rolled into the city in 12 railroad cars, making up one of the largest shipments ever made in the middle west.

But John B. Hammond, former chief of police, quoted court decisions he said make it illegal to sell malt liquor of any sort, regardless of its alcoholic content or intoxicating qualities, in states with laws such as Iowa's.

And so next Wednesday a hearing will be held to determine whether the 150,000 bottles of near beer, which came from Manitowoc, Wis., shall be spared for those who relish it or shall be emptied into the Des Moines river. In the meantime, police guard the cars. The bottles are not to be disturbed except a single case which will be taken out for testing to see if it is truly malt liquor.

That to Hammond today appeared a mere formality, for he pointed to signs on the cars, which arrived heavily decorated with bunting, says "A true malt beverage."

It is reported twelve other states have similar laws.

RAVINIA OPENS IN LYRIC SETTING OF YOUTH AND JUNE

Record Crowd Hears "Manon Lescaut."

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ravinia is now open for the summer, and the opening was something to make managements rejoice and audiences grow lyrical. On such a night one finds a direct connection between summer breeze and whispering breeze, and there is a close relationship between a moon, even though slightly veiled, a night in June, and an operatic tune. There were about 5,000 of us in the park to trace such relationships for ourselves, the largest opening Ravinia ever had, and that was where the jubilant management came in.

To make it better all around, Puccini's "Manon Lescaut" was chosen to begin the season. It is my favorite Puccini score. It not only has all of Puccini in it, but it breathes youth and gayety throughout. Even though it is forced to end in tragedy in order to keep operatic traditions intact, it is a decidedly youthful tragedy after all.

Youth Pervades Music.

Also, the youthfulness of the music gets into the performance at all times. It cannot be avoided. Giovanni Martinelli was gallantly youthful in voice and bearing whenever he came on the stage. Lucrezia Boris is one of the most youthful operatic heroines that ever wafted charm across the footlights. In this "Manon Lescaut" performance I am reasonably certain that she was not a day over 18 years old. Likewise there are no words to express what a comfort it is to confront a chorus whose members both sound and look young. It was back in the summer of 1927 when Miss Bori last appeared at Ravinia.

In saying that the interval has had no effect upon her, one merely tries to indicate that her Manon is one of the perfect things of the operatic world. It is a compound of beauty and grace and light, even light minded frivolity that you would no more resent than you would feel like cuffing a kitten. And it has already been hinted that her delightful youthfulness never fails.

Martinelli Sets Pace.

Mr. Martinelli is another artist in whom to take delight. His singing, whether in the light vein of the first act or the more serious manner following, was something to set the pace for the whole performance. Around him and with him were some character parts done with great cleverness, among them Desire Defrere's Lescaut, Louis D'Angelo's Geronte, and Jose Mojica's dancing master. It is with such singers almost as much as with such great artists as Mr. Martinelli and Miss Bori that Ravinia makes its reputation. And over them all presided Gennaro Papi, a conductor of brains and soul who knows and loves his Puccini.

As I have said, there was a great crowd present. The New York Metropolitan Opera company was represented by Edward Ziegler, its assistant manager, whom Mr. Eckstein called upon to rise up and bow during a speech between the acts. Otto H. Kahn sent a cablegram from Europe saying that Ravinia continued to hold its accustomed place in his affection and admiration and that he was looking forward to his usual week-end visit later in the summer. But even his cordial greeting was no more than deserved for an expert performance exquisitely done.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An item in The Tribune last Wednesday concerning police raids on three loop speakeasies erroneously listed the Westminster building, 108 South Dearborn street, as one of the places entered. The raid ocurred at 108 North Dearborn street. Frankenstein & Co., agents for the Westminster building, declare there are no proprietors of speakeasies among their tenants.

An item in The Tribune June 18 stated that at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Stella Eichstaedt, 48 years old, 1835 South Troy street, her husband testified that she had threatened to take her life. Mr. Eichstaedt testified that his wife was suffering from a nervous disorder and had been ill for several weeks before her body was found in the Douglas park lagoon. The coroner's jury held that Mrs. Eichstaedt died a suicide while mentally deranged.

FIND MURDERED MAN WEARING DIAMOND BELT

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—An unidentified man, wearing a diamond studded belt, was taken for a ride and murdered two blocks from the main business center of Hackensack, N. J., early today. His body was discovered in a path through an empty lot by a Negress on her way to work.

A single bullet, probably from a .45 caliber pistol, entered the left temple and emerged through the right eye of the victim. Although police searched the neighborhood, they were unable to find the pistol or a trace of the killers. The buckle of the victim's bejeweled belt bore the single initial "S." On the body was a 17 jewel gold watch.

STANDPATTERS IN THIRD PARTY, BROOKHART SAYS

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Rep., Ia.], who recently in a senate speech threatened a revolt against the Republican party, today denied he has in mind the formation of a third party.

"There is an acute political situation at the present moment," said Senator Brookhart. "A third party already has been organized, not of progressives but of standpatters. The votes on the Borah resolution fully have uncovered this fact. When I stated a few days ago that the progressives should have candidates for congress in both parties, the reactionary press immediately took up this fact and quoted it as a suggestion for a third party.

"Although I had made no mention of a third party, I now see their purpose was to cover up the fact that they already had organized a third party of reaction.

"In the senate on the tariff bill the standpatters of both parties have joined together. However, I think the vote on the Borah resolution, together with the public announcements made by senators, show them to be clearly in the minority."

Senator Brookhart said he favored the adoption of amendments to the tariff bill providing for the export debenture schehe, the proposal of Senator Carter Glass [Dem., Va.] for a tax on sales of speculative stocks, and a plan for the regulation of profits of industry.

French Court Acquits Ex-Deputy of Treason

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BESANCON, France, June 22.—The question whether Alsatians can be autonomists without being traitors was answered in the affirmative here today when a jury acquitted Dr. Philip Roos, whose election to the house of deputies was voided for his share in the Alsatian autonomist movement. Dr. Roos was arrested on the charge of having received money from Germany to foment a plot to separate Alsace from France. The verdict is significant because it was delivered by a French jury on French soil and evidently was dictated by the wish not to make more Alsatians martyrs.

SHANGHAI POLICE RAID ROULETTE JOINT; SEIZE 200

SHANGHAI, June 22.—Police authorities of the international settlement last night closed Shanghai's famous roulette and gambling resort known as "The Wheel" and at the same time raided a similar place in another section of the city allegedly under the same management.

The arrests included almost 200 foreigners and Chinese. The foreigners being Mexican, Spanish, and Portugese. Those of Mexican and Spanish nationality are alleged to be operators and employés of the roulette wheels, while most of the Chinese arrested were patrons. Practically all the Chinese arrested in the raid were fined, the sums ranging to $500, detained for further hearing, or released on $500 bail.

In the meantime the British greyhound gambling resorts, which are illegal under British law, were continuing in full blast tonight, large advertisements in the local newspapers announcing enlarged programs, with music supplied by a band belonging to the British Norfolk regiment which is stationed here.

While it is an even finer car than last year's model 115, yet it is available for considerably less. THAT is the secret of Auburn's amazing growth and success.

AUBURN

Sales records broken! Thousands of deposits returned to buyers who could not wait! Production increased 100 percent! May's output alone was 140% greater than May last year and 600 cars more than for the entire year of 1924. While the industry shows a recession in May compared to April, Auburn shows over 30% increase. And still Auburn continues oversold. Everywhere you hear Auburn cars favorably discussed—admired—praised. Everywhere Auburn owners report unprecedented success with their cars; finer performance; less driving effort; longer and more care-free service and a riding comfort that eclipses all previous experiences. What is causing this veritable landslide of public demand for Auburn cars? It is no mere accident, but the logical result of long planning and deliberate determination to lead in the world in one thing. And that is, to build better cars than ever built before; bigger, stronger, roomier, more horsepower, and more durable. And then, to sell them for much less than comparable values were ever obtainable before. Easy to say! Difficult to achieve! But Auburn is doing it. That is the whole explanation for Auburn's remarkably rapid growth. The cars themselves prove all of these claims.

E. L. CORD says:
Manufacturers are apt to over-advertise their products; to exaggerate and over-sell. Therefore Auburn's policy continues to make Auburn cars sell themselves by your comparing and driving them.

FUMIGATE FILMS FOR PUBLIC GOOD, CENSORS EXPLAIN

Antiseptic Movies Best for Morals, They Say.

Censorship of moving pictures is not an encroachment on our fast disappearing liberties, according to Mrs. Effie D. Sigler, chief censor for Chicago, and Police Commissioner William F. Russell, yesterday added a statement that censorship in Chicago is not on the increase.

Mrs. Sigler declared censorship is a necessary application of the law's chiding hand, while the police commissioner deprecated the suggestion that, having closed saloons, gambling joints and vice dens, and forbidden jay walking, he had now turned his attention to improving the morals of Chicago folks.

Mrs. Sigler resents the term "reformer" being applied to her, and Commissioner Russell gives comfort to the citizenry by the declaration that Sunday movies or Sunday baseball are in no danger of coming under the ban.

Gives Thought to Theater.

Censorship apparently had not reached a point where it was irksome to Chicagoans. At least for several years back it had not. But a few weeks ago, when it seemed that the energies of the police department were not fully occupied with combating crime, the commissioner decided to give more attention to the censorship both of the stage and the screen.

"Frankie and Johnnie" were excommunicated from Chicago. Another play, "Harlem," was permitted to continue its run only after expurgations. It then became the turn for the movies and the talkies.

"The Trial of Mary Dugan" was kicked right off the screen, courtroom and all. Judge and jury were sent into exile and the young brother-lawyer wasn't allowed even to make his dramatic exposé of the real murderer.

Mary Not a Nice Girl.

"Why?" Commissioner Russell was asked.

"Mary wasn't a virtuous girl," came the explanation. "She allowed four men to support her at different times. We were too busy with other matters when the play was made known in Chicago and it escaped our notice, but it may not re-enter our midst in the films."

A reporter went to the office of the censor bureau, which is under the jurisdiction of the police commissioner. A request for an audience was denied; the censors weren't there.

"What are their names?" the clerk at the office was asked.

Protecting the Children.

"Our censorship begins with our names which are deleted," said Mrs. Sigler later when information from other sources disclosed her as chief of the board. "We know we aren't popular and we do not wish to advertise our unpopularity concerning ourselves as individuals. We are interested only in the welfare of the children; we aren't trying to exercise any corrective influence on adults because we know we can't.

"As a play in a downtown theater at $5 a seat 'Mary Dugan' may have been all right, but as a movie character to be seen and heard by children, she won't do."

"Isn't there a trend towards stricter censorship?" Mrs. Sigler was asked.

"O, no," she answered. "While it is true we rejected more pictures in the last year or two, it was only because they portrayed too much crime. Every sensational crime brought a movie in its wake involving its plot. We're against too much crime, even in pictures."

Will Hays' Influence.

"What about Will Hays' influence for purity in the movies?" the questioner wondered.

"As far as we can see he has had none," Mrs. Sigler stated. "It appears he was made czar of the movies because he was a powerful politician.

"The city records show that $30,491 was appropriated this year for salaries of censors and operators, outside of the cost of material and supplies. Do you believe the people of the city get their money's worth in censorship benefits?" Mrs. Sigler was asked.

"O, yes," she retorted. "We collect about $80,000 a year for permits, so it's a good enterprise for the city."

Drys Raid 2 Roadhouses and North Side Speakeasy

Prohibition agents raided two roadhouses near Chicago and a north side speakeasy yesterday, arresting three men and seizing a small amount of beer and whisky. They first went to the Windsor house, Homewood, close to the Washington Park racetrack, arresting Joe Patti when they found a barrel of beer and thirteen pints of liquor. At the Pine Garden inn, Thornton, the agents took John Williams and seized three barrels of beer. In Chicago, they raided a speakeasy at 1016 North Clark street and arrested Frank E. Pearson, finding three barrels of beer and a small amount of whisky.

FREE WOMAN WHO SHOT AT BROTHER.

Mrs. Irene Best, 1619 Mohawk street, arraigned yesterday before Judge Joseph W. Schulman in Chicago Avenue court after shooting at her brother Thursday for keeping her husband out late, was cleared of charge of disorderly conduct yesterday when her brother failed to appear against her.

WON'T PROSECUTE HER KIDNAPERS, BUT THEY ARE JAILED

Two men who kidnaped Mrs. Malcolm J. Boyle, 2310 Arthur avenue, following an automobile accident between their car and that of her husband Thursday night, escaped prosecution yesterday on the kidnaping charge because their victim refused to prosecute. Boyle begged his wife to prosecute on the kidnaping charge, bue she declined, saying that she thought the men to have been intoxicated and not responsible.

Judge Edgar Jonas also urged Mrs. Boyle to prosecute and when she refused he meted out sentences of 60 days each in the Bridewell for reckless driving. John Spellman, 26 years old, 1315 Madison street, Evanston, was the driver of the car, and Joseph Becker, 33 years old, 1915 Greenwood avenue, Evanston, was his companion.

The cars collided at Ridge and Estes avenues, and Mrs. Boyle was pushed into Spellman's car as the man tried to flee. They were captured after a chase of a few blocks by Policeman John Wagner Jr. and the husband.

"I am sorry that a jury cannot hear the kidnaping charges," said Judge Jonas. "Kidnaping is one of the most atrocious crimes. It is time that the courts and the police show that all laws are strictly enforced, but in this case nothing more can be done when the witness refuses to prosecute."

WORRIES GALORE AWAIT DAVIS AT PHILIPPINE POST

Must Tame Politicians, Solve Chinese Problem.

BY CHARLES DAILEY.

MANILA, June 22.—One of the most ticklish of the problems that await the taking over by Dwight Davis, new governor general of the Philippine islands, is that of restricting the powers of the legislature. This body is dominated by Manuel Quezon and other leaders of the Nacionalista party.

The Filipino politician believes only in success for himself and his immediate friends and seems to think that the amassing of money is the privilege of any man who gets into high office. This idea extends right down to the bottom, and to this state of mind foreigners in the islands ascribe their basis for the belief that independence would be a crime to the people as a whole. For that reason they feel that the United States must bear the brown man's burden for years to come. Many think the American government has gone too far already and will be unable to retrace its steps, but urge that whatever further steps be taken these should be taken slowly.

Demand Still Greater Power.

Interest centers, therefore, in what Governor General Davis will do in the matter of the demand of the legislature for greater powers, and perhaps on this question his success or failure will be measured at the end of his term.

The question is whether the principle of the board of control decisions shall be extended to the great number of boards and commissions which still exercise important government functions. In brief, these decisions were to the effect that the legislative members could not create boards having executive functions and appoint their own members to these boards. This policy was held to be an encroachment by the legislature upon the executive functions of the government and a direct violation of the principle of the separation of powers.

Former Governor General Stimson took no action with respect to applying the decisions of the board of control to similar situations. Eugene A. Gilmore, serving only as an interim governor general, being the vice governor, with only limited authority, of necessity let the matter rest where it was when Mr. Stimson went home. It is up to Mr. Davis to look into this question and to see that the powers of the executive are not taken over by the legislature, leaving the former a mere rubber stamp.

Chinese Immigration an Issue.

Another question that must be taken up soon by the new governor general is the policy with reference to Chinese immigration. Year by year the Chinese population in the Philippines is steadily increasing, and unless steps are taken to control it the competition of the Chinese will be more than the Filipino can meet, and the same questions that arose in the United States and later in Australia and in Canada are sure to come to the fore.

It is stated on reliable government authority that Chinese immigration is going on more or less surreptitiously and already several serious cases have arisen, notably their control of the shoe industry, both marketing and manufacturing, and the Filipino in the same line already is at the mercy of the Chinese in the matter both of the purchase of raw material and of marketing the finished product.

Chinese Extend Control.

The Chinese are rapidly extending their present large control of local business. Particularly is this true of the tienda, or small grocery and tobacco shop. These are to be found all over the islands and the Filipino is unable to compete with the Chinese in this respect. Now the competition is reaching larger lines of business and industry. Ironworkers are mostly Chinese, and in other skilled trades they are rapidly gaining headway. In fact, the Filipino has only in the last third or half century come to manufacturing or to the better lines of business.

It is stated on all sides, from the labor unions to the higher grade businesses and industries, that the policy to be adopted by the new governor general with respect to Chinese immigration will have a great deal to do with the program of economic development when considered from the standpoint of Filipino participation therein.

The Stimson administration let this situation remain where it was. Since then conditions have become more critical, for with the continual civil war in China and the increasing taxes and military levies the Chinese are more and more turning to other countries. Many doors are closed to them, but the bars in the Philippines remain virtually down. There are laws, of course, but they are being evaded by hook or crook.

Then on the constructive side there are many problems that await the new governor general. A strong hand is needed to curb the graft that is rampant, and official corruption which prevails not only in a number of bureaus directly under the eye of the governor general but extends almost without exception throughout the islands to provincial and municipal officials.

YOUTH DROWNS WHILE SWIMMING.

U.S. PROBES CHARGE OF MONOPOLY IN BAILING FEDERAL PRISONERS

Charges that several professional bondsmen have established a virtual monopoly on the business of furnishing bail to prisoners taken to the federal building caused an investigation into their practices yesterday by Assistant United States District Attorney Edward A. Fisher.

Mr. Fisher was told that the bondsmen have forcibly resisted efforts of other bondsmen, not frequenters of the federal courts, to post securities for prisoners taken there, the war climaxing in a fist fight between two of the men in the corridors yesterday morning. The federal bondsmen are said to have accosted prisoners in the halls and practically forced them to accept bonds, threatening them with being forced to remain in jail if they refused. In one case that came to Fisher's attention a prisoner refused this offer and was followed to the patrol wagon by two of the bondsmen who stood on the steps of the federal building and laughed as he was taken to jail.

Several of the surety schedulers are said to be working hand in hand with lawyers and in many instances the attorney fees and bondsmen's fees are listed together on the same bill.

South Shore Lines Adopt Daylight Time Schedule

Trains of the South Shore line begin operation today on daylight saving time. The change in time was deemed advisable due to the fact that all cities and towns served by the railroad have made the change this year, according to Charles H. Jones, general manager.

END 7,500 MILE 14 WEEK MOTOR TRIP IN AFRICA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, June 22.—Cope Morgan, mining engineer, and his wife arrived here today after having traveled a distance of 7,500 miles in a motor truck. They left Nigeria 14 weeks ago and the only time they did not travel in the truck was when they crossed Lake Tanganyika by steamer. One thousand miles of the journey was made through French equatorial Africa, where a break down would have meant death, said Mr. Morgan, there being neither food nor gas available.

Mr. Morgan and his wife, who is the first woman to travel this wild country, said that one of their greatest memories was the celebration staged by Moslem tribesmen of northern Nigeria. One thousand of these warriors dashed by at full gallop, wearing old English armor, which their ancestors had captured during the crusades.

The intense heat constituted the greatest hardship. A curious experience of the trip was the discovery of modern road signs in the jungle, where they had apparently been placed by natives unable to read them, since the directions were so out of place as to be more amusing than puzzling.

As the first step in a campaign sponsored by the Waukegan chapter of the Izaak Walton league to protect the game fish of Lake county, a state conservation department expert last night began to seine Third Lake and Druces Lake for carp, dogfish, gars, and other gamefish destroyers. All the lakes in the county will be cleaned of these cannibal fish during the summer. The work is being carried on under the supervision of Deputy State Game Warden Henry Kern.

'MORE SUNSHINE AND VITAMINS,' IS ALGONQUIN SONG

And Plenty of Both Awaits Undernourished Kids.

"Moonlight and roses" may be the vacation time refrain sung in other camps, but out Algonquin way this season's chorus will be "Sunshine and vitamins."

Two hundred undernourished children, who will leave Chicago's tenements on July 1 and 2 to spend the summer becoming well and strong in the Harlowarden section of Camp Algonquin, will have plenty of both for the asking. Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, said yesterday that no better brand of sunshine is provided anywhere in the middle west. And the Harrison Orange Hut company, through Monroe Harrison, has offered the camp a crate of oranges a day as a gift to the visitors, so that the children will be in better physical condition to return to their studies next fall.

Orange Juice, Milk, Naps.

"Every afternoon orange juice will be served to children in both the upper and lower camps," Mrs. Save said. "With milk in the morning, regular naps, and a diet of wholesome food, their weights will shoot up before their first week is past."

After camp opened with the first 180 mothers and children last Tuesday, a deficiency of vegetable bowls in which to serve the generous helpings which come out of the kitchen was discovered. Any one who may be able to contribute additional bowls may learn the size needed by writing to Mrs. Save in care of the camp, Algonquin, Ill.

Before the sun has a chance to radiate much heat tomorrow, the first of the season's TRIBUNE ice wagons will visit homes throughout the congested districts, carrying cheer to mothers whose ice boxes have been empty since last summer. All the rest of the summer or as long as TRIBUNE readers come to the aid of the free ice fund, the wagons will make their daily trips, saving the lives of tiny babies and bringing health to whole families.

First Checks Received.

THE TRIBUNE's advertising department, right on time for the beginning of the ice distribution, sent in its annual gift yesterday. The gifts—$45 for the ice fund and $46 for Algonquin—were raised from an outing for the department.

Five dollars each from Mrs. S. S. Riesenfeld and the Austin Star club, together with the advertising department's contribution, bring the total of the camp fund to $3,305.73. A ten dollar anonymous gift and the advertising department's gift gives the free ice fund a total of $662.50.

Five women received degrees in law last night at the annual commencement exercises of the John Marshall Law school, held in the new Masonic temple building, 32 West Randolph street. Three of the graduates received bachelor degrees and the title of doctor of jurisprdence was conferred on the other two.

Misses Anna Gabriel, Margaret Knelleau Gardner, and Anna G. Rosenberg were made bachelors of law. Mrs. Sarah A. Marshall and Miss Estelle F. Thompson received the higher awards. Mrs. Marshall's husband also was a member of the class.

Attacks Modern Newspaper.

The modern newspaper is a menace to the privacy of the citizen, Dean Edward T. Lee, head of the school, told members of the graduating class at the exercises. His subject was "The Freedom of the Press."

"Journalists have no scuples and can give points in that respect to many public officials," he declared. "The newspapers are great corporations, unmoral in their aims, swayed by the influence of advertisers—just business enterprises with no moral responsibility to the public. The freedom of the press correlates with the denial of the right of privacy to the citizen.

Asks Freedom for "Victims."

"There is no power to keep the press within the bounds of decency. I agree with Dr. Frank that there should be a freedom of the press, but there should also be a freedom of the victim of the press to cudgel the editor when he is vilified.

"The newspapers simulate the old Puritans in their exposure of the moral foibles of citizens. A woman recently jumped to her death from a high building here with the photograph of a man pinned to her gown. Here was a rich morsel of scandal. That man was pilloried, not because he was in any way responsible for the death, but because it was an inducement to wider circulation.

"Lindbergh committed high treason by marrying privately."

Issues Writ to Stop Booze Sale at Lake County Resort

Judge Claire C. Edwards of the Lake county Circuit court yesterday issued an injunction to restrain Mrs. Elizabeth Cassidy and Leo Mongoven from selling intoxicating liquors at their Bluff Lake resort. The injunction was asked by State's Attorney A. V. Smith, who raided the resort, an alleged George "Bugs" Moran gang hangout, last Sunday.

TRIBE COUNCIL FREES SEMINOLE IN DEATH OF WIDOWED SQUAW

Miami, Fla., June 22.—(AP)—Cory Osceola, chief of the Musa Isle village of Seminole Indians, today disclosed that the Seminole high council of medicine men, sitting in solemn conclave deep in the Everglades, acquitted Josie Billie of the murder of the widowed squaw Nufche.

The trial of Josie was the outstanding event of the annual gathering and ceremonial of the tribe, the green corn dance. Billie, a chieftain and himself a member of the council, was charged with slaying the squaw during a fight over a small sum of money.

At the same time Phillip Billie was acquitted of killing Corn Billie, "handsomest brave of the race," who fell from a birch bark canoe and was drowned during an alligator hunt several weeks ago.

OLSON CLEW FALSE.

Dubuque, Ia., June 22.—[Special.]—Crawford county, Wis., officials went home again last night after another Erdman Olson tip fizzled five miles south of Bellevue, Ia. Charles Anderson, working in a saw mill there was mistaken for the missing murder suspect.

TWO NEW YORK FIRES AT ONCE; LOSS IS $600,000

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Fire today wiped out an entire Brooklyn block at about the same time flames were destroying a square in Tarrytown. Damage in Brooklyn was estimated at about $400,000 and in Tarrytown at $250,000. No lives were lost in either fire and no one was injured in Brooklyn, but in Tarrytown ten firemen were overcome.

Discovering the fire on the second floor of the apartment where he lives, he grabbed his crutches and made his way out the window to a shed which reaches over the apartment next door and awakened the neighbors. The police, hearing his cries, sent in the alarm.

GERMANY MAY AID POOR FARMER BY GRAIN MONOPOLY

Nation Fights Plan for Tariff Wall.

BY GEOFFREY FRASER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, June 22.—A new farm issue has sprung up in German politics which cuts directly across the ordinary lines of party cleavage. The Nationalists and Socialists unite in demanding that grain be made a state monopoly, with the Center Democrats strenuously oppose the idea.

The measure is advocated with the idea of helping the farmers, who in all parts of the country are in a state bordering upon bankruptcy. The proposal of the federation of German industry to erect a tariff wall against grain and meat has meet with the opposition of the general public, which has been taught to associate such a step with an increase in the cost of living.

Advocates of a monopoly, however, believe that relief may be obtained by this means without violating the public's free trade sentiment.

The Socialists are hotly in favor of the idea because they see in a state grain monopoly the thin edge of a wedge for nationalization of all means of production.

The Center Democrats base their opposition upon the party's tendency towards English liberalism, which is equally hostile to high tariffs and socialism.

A provisional decision in the matter has been entrusted to a commission of experts appointed by the government. Stormy discussions are going on within the commission, which is expected to make its report within a week.

FINED $100 FOR HOME BREW.

James Sullivan, 6046 South Park way, arrested Friday night when Woodlawn police raided his home and found 50 bottles of home brew, was fined $100 and costs for violation of the state prohibition law by Judge William E. Helander in the Grand Crossing court yesterday.

DIXIE ASKS U. S. FUNDS TO BUILD FARM COLONIES

Simmons Pushes Bill to Divide Plantations.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., June 22.—[Special.]—Southern states have joined forces to obtain federal funds for agricultural development.

Long jealous of the far western states, which have extracted large sums from the federal treasury for the reclamation of arid lands, the southerners have united on a somewhat comparable scheme.

A bill sponsored by Senator F. M. Simmons [Dem., N. C.] and reported favorably from the senate committee on irrigation and reclamation, authorizes an appropriation of $12,000,000 for the creation of original rural communities.

Ten Colonies Proposed.

It is proposed to establish one such rural community in each of ten southern states—Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, Tennessee and Texas. The secretary of the interior would be authorized to acquire, in each of the ten states, an area of land suitable for the purpose and sufficient to create at least 200 farms of such size as will permit of successful farming.

The department of the interior, through its bureau of reclamation, would take charge of the development and settlement of the farmers.

Lands would be sold to actual settlers on terms of payment running for as long as 40 years with interest at 4 per cent. The government would advance not to exceed $3,000 for each farm for permanent improvements.

No more than $2,000,000 of the initial authorization of $12,000,000 would be expended in any one of the ten states.

Trades May Improve Prospect.

There is no immediate prospect of approval of the Simmons bill by congress. However, the southerners propose to keep up an agitation for the scheme and hope for eventual success by means of trades with members of congress from other sections of the country who have their pet proposals. Thus far the administration has failed to approve the project, though the bureau of reclamation has given its promoters considerable encouragement. Senator Simmons insists there is nothing unduly paternalistic about the scheme.

"We will only be doing what Europe has been doing with great success and national advantage for half a century," said Senator Simmons. "Under the plan of buying great estates, subdividing and selling them to their former tenants or to other experienced cultivators with long time payments and low rates of interest, the agricultural and rural life of many countries has been transformed. It is one of the greatest agrarian advances of the last century."

Tenancy System Objectionable.

According to Senator Simmons the particular lands which would be involved in the project were large plantations in the slave holding days and since the civil war hav been cultivated under a tenancy system.

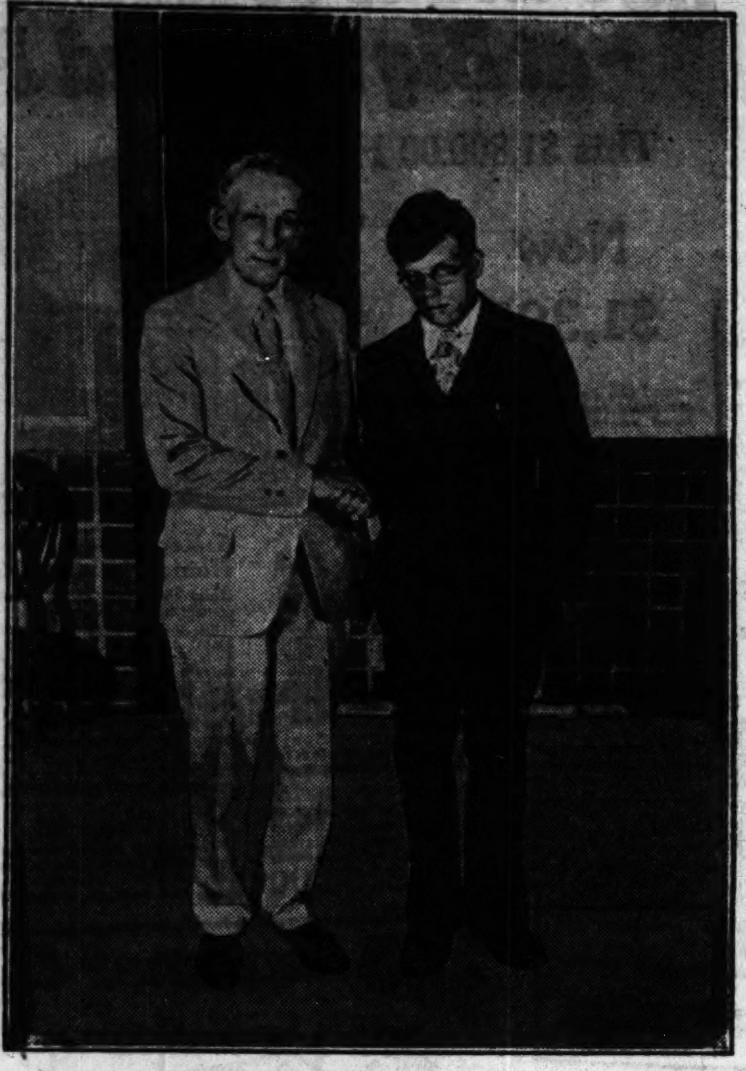
"In certain sections of the states mentioned there has been a marked decadence in agriculture since the civil war, largely the result of the one crop, tenancy system, which has long obtained there and which is apparently on the increase," said Senator Simmons. "The evils of this system are apparent and cannot be escaped except by a reconstruction of the methods of farming in those sections.

"In a good part of the south, especially the Piedmont and industrial sections, where, prior to the civil war, the lands were owned in small acreages by those who lived upon them and cultivated them, and are still so owned, there may be no necessity for this demonstration; but in the coastal sections that are still largely agricultural, and where the large plantations, which were cultivated by slave labor prior to the civil war, are still largely held in single ownership and cultivated chiefly by tenants upon the one crop system, it is believed that a demonstration of this sort by the government would be of very great benefit.

Social Gain Stressed.

"It may be that a few farmers would get the main benefit, in the first instance, of long time payments and cheap money, just as has been the case in the irrigated areas of the west, where the government irrigated large areas and sold the land on the plan proposed in this demonstration scheme; but in the end the results of this demonstration would inure to the benefit of agriculture throughout the section in which it is applied and lead to the introduction of new and more effective methods for increasing not only productiveness but the value of land, bringing about community concert in matters pertaining to the social, educational, and economic conditions, and adding to the attractiveness of rural life."

Winner in State Edison Contest



Robert Girndt, 17 year old youth from Lutheran orphanage near Dixon, who won state finals in "boy Edison" contest, shown with Gov. L. L. Emmerson. He is a former Chicago boy and will compete in national contest where youth will be selected to help carry on work of inventor.

A Chicago Boy

Robert Girndt, 17 years old, of the Lutheran orphanage at Nachusa, near Dixon, Ill., announced Friday as the Illinois winner of the "young Edison" contest, lived in Chicago on the south side until three years ago, it was revealed yesterday. Robert will be one of the contestants in a national contest to choose a boy to help carry on the work of Thomas A. Edison.

When Robert's father died three years ago his mother took her three children to the orphans' home at Nachusa to live, the boy said. He has attended the Dixon High school, from which he graduated this year with an average above 95 for every study.

Higher mathematics and science were declared by Robert to be his favorite subjects.

Women who are in vogue this year will wear "bear-skin stockings" of romany brown.

Rub them on with a puff! Take them off with cold cream! The smart set will also use romany brown on face, arms and shoulders to attain the fascinating gypsy colorings so popular at Palm Beach, Newport, and on the Riviera.

At last there is a scientific ensemble in makeup! romany brown is made by the makers of White Rouge—that famous waterproof rouge that so magically blends with each individual's coloring—making dark for brunettes, light for blondes and all the "in-between" shades; also the makers of Rouge Noir (black rouge) for the lips, which has the same magic qualities.

Madame may use these two rouges with her new romany brown gypsy makeup and she will find that they blend with it, just as they blended with her own fair or brunette loveliness.

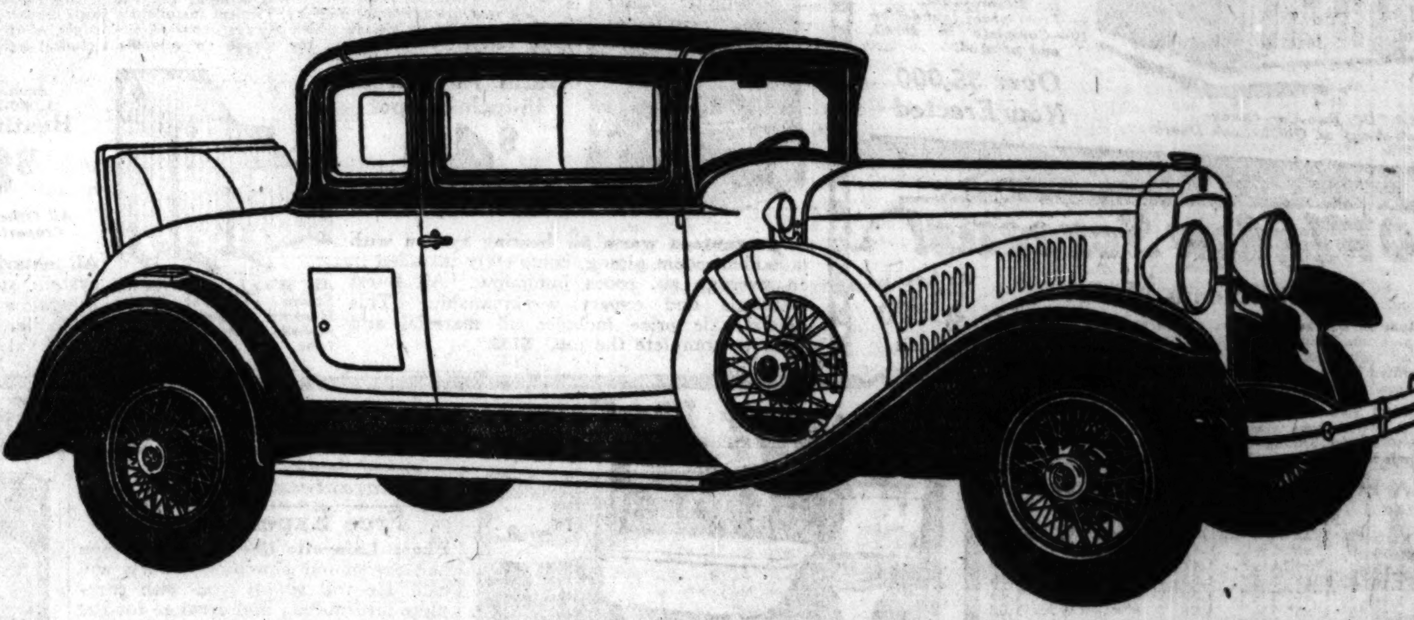
IT COSTS NO MORE TO OWN A REO THAN ANY GOOD $1000 CAR

Maybe you've thought that a Reo Flying Cloud was beyond your means. But let's consider! A hundred dollars, or so, more on the down-payment, possibly three additional payments, and you've cleared up the first cost difference—a difference which a Reo Flying Cloud will ultimately save you in repairs alone.

Reos are not built on the "one-year—two-year—trade-in" basis. They are built to give outstanding service for four, six, or even more, years—to be running well long after the ordinary car has outlived its usefulness.

More than that: a Reo gives you a degree of road performance and mechanical dependability that can fairly be compared only with that rendered by cars in the highest price-field. You will get a pleasure and continued satisfaction that you have never experienced . . . And it will cost you actually less than it would to run a $1000 car.



Illustrated is the 2-4-Passenger sport coupe model of the Reo Flying Cloud on the 115-inch chassis.

Now you can have a Reo Flying Cloud at a lower price than ever before.

REO FLYING CLOUDS

Reo Flying Clouds are priced at the factory as follows: 5-Passenger Sedans $1395, Sport $1495; Master $1745, Sport $1870; Car of the Month $1970. 2-Passenger Coupe $1375, Sport $1475. 2-4-Passenger Coupe $1395, Sport $1495; Master $1625, Sport $1750. 5-Passenger Brougham, Master $1595, Sport $1720. 4-Passenger Victoria, Master $1695, Sport $1820. PIRATES DEFEAT CUBS, 7-4; INCREASE LEAD

ATHLETICS, YANKS AGAIN DIVIDE TWIN BILL

ROSE OF SHARON WINS $10,000 ILLINOIS OAKS

Leads Field to Wire by Five Lengths.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A new queen of the western turf was crowned at Washington Park yesterday in the presence of a crowd of 20,000.

Rose of Sharon, chestnut daughter of Light Brigade-Rosa Mundi, owned by former Senator Johnson N. Camden of Kentucky, smothered her field in the $10,000 Illinois Oaks and won by five lengths. Current, another Kentucky filly, was second and Altitude, from the Audley Farms of Virginia, finished third.

It was Rose of Sharon's sixth triumph of the season and it was the third big western filly stake she has captured. She won the Ashland Oaks at Lexington early in the spring. She galloped to victory in the Kentucky Oaks at Churchill Downs last month, but in all her victories she never won so impressively as she did in the Illinois Oaks yesterday.

Current Takes the Lead.

But once did she give her great army of backers any cause for worry. As they hit the lower bend she was still in front. But Current was pulling up dangerously close under the skillful guiding of Jockey Earl Pool. Jockey C. E. Allen, on Rose of Sharon, seemed bewildered by this challenge. He stood straight up in his saddle and pulled Rose of Sharon up for an instant. Current raced on to the front.

Boxed in next to the rail and still standing up in the saddle, Allen didn't seem to know what to do. But Rose of Sharon, the best looking filly to race in the west since the days of Modesty, took care of herself. She dropped back just far enough to gain clear footing, started a drive after the flying Current, and caught her before they were out of the last turn.

From the head of the stretch to the finish line it was just a canter for Rose of Sharon. She pulled away to win as she pleased and when she finished out the mile and an eighth in 1:51 2-5 she came within fractions of a second of the track record held by Mrs. John Hertz's Fair Wind.

Rose of Sharon raced in the white and black jacket of Dan E. Stewart, who trains former Senator Camden's horses. Since the death of Mrs. Camden several months ago the horses owned by the widely known Kentuckian have raced in the silks of his trainer.

To Run in Classic.

The 3 year old colts which have been beating each other so regularly that [illegible] Bowman, the noted handicapper, declares "them bums had better beware of this Rose of Sharon" should really take some notice of the proud miss from Kentucky.

Old timers last night were comparing her not only to Modesty but to [illegible] and Regret, famous 3 year old fillies of their days. They are going to back this fleet filly to win the American Classic at Arlington Park next month. And she may do it like Modesty turned back a lot of colts of her age in the first running of the American Derby back many, many years ago.

In the betting Rose of Sharon paid $[illegible] to win, $2.22 to place, and $2.50 to show. Current was at $4.48 to place and $3.40 to show, while Altitude paid $[illegible] to show.

Blackwood Wins Again.

Immediately after the running of the Oaks the Liberty handicap was run. It brought a good field of seven into action and also brought the fourth straight victory of Mrs. E. Denemark's Blackwood. He got the decision over [illegible] by half a length with [illegible] third.

The favorite was Sir Harry, Canadian 5 year old, but never at any stage of the journey was he able to keep pace with the flying Blackwood.

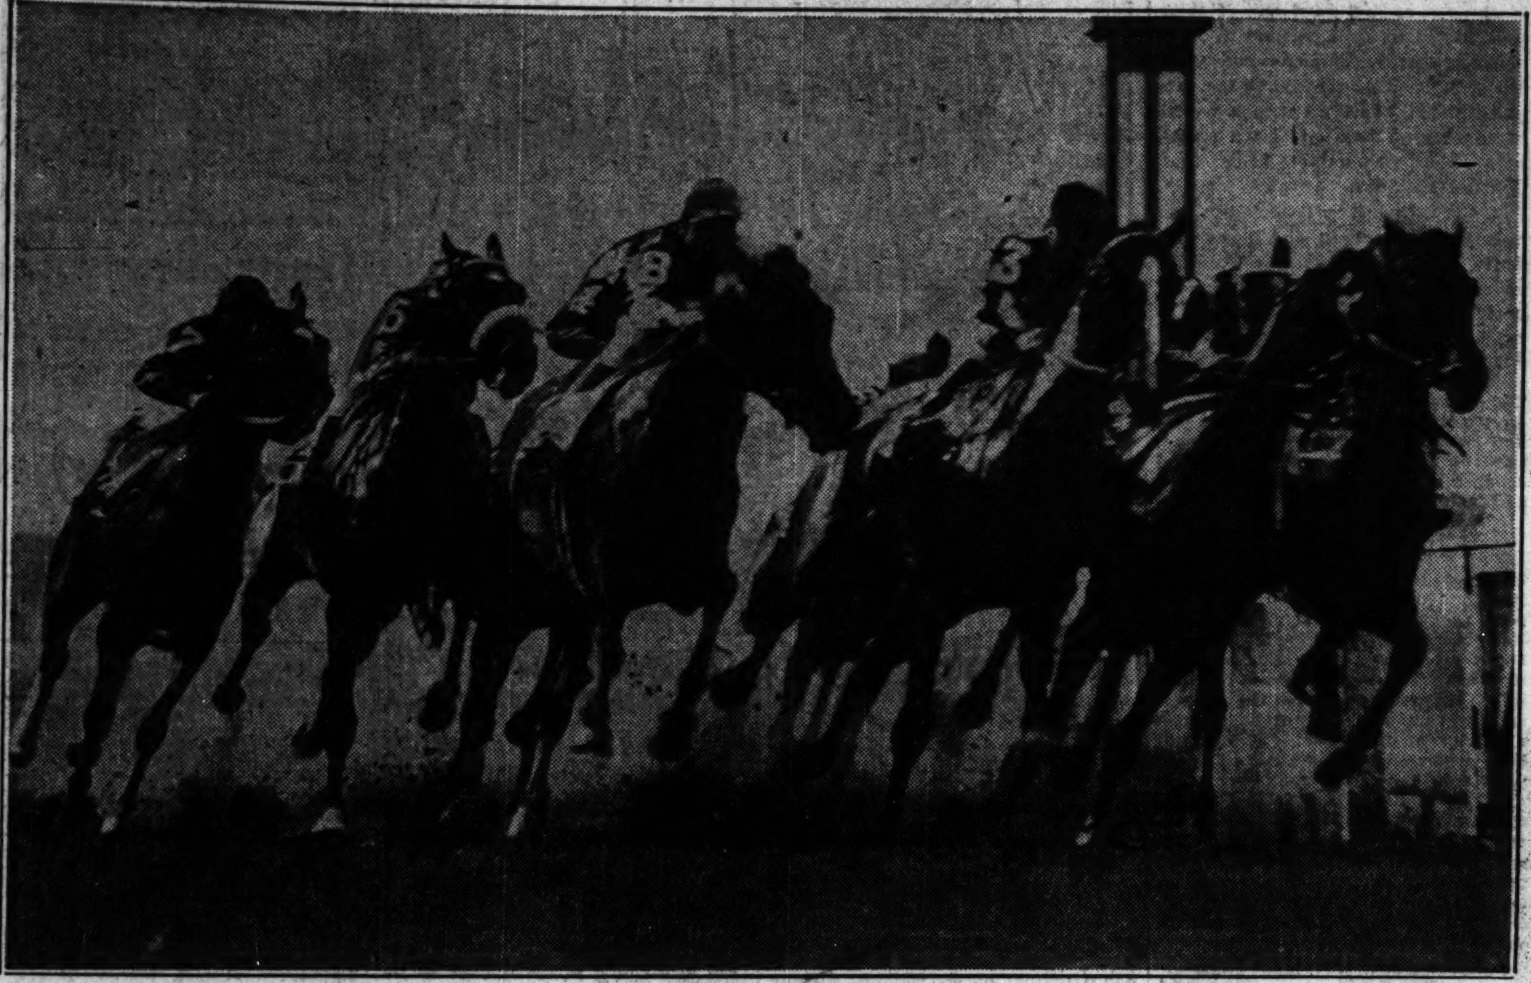
CORONATION OF WESTERN TURF'S QUEEN



Rose of Sharon, winner of the $10,000 Illinois Oaks at Washington Park, races third from the rail at the first turn in the mile and an eighth feature for three year old fillies. Immediately after she took the lead with a well timed sprint and held it most of the way. She eased up at the last turn, coming wide, but then dashed into a five length advantage.

Rose of Sharon crosses the finish line an easy winner. Current, another Kentucky filly, is second. By yesterday's victory Rose of Sharon became the queen of the western turf, having scored victories in the Ashland Oaks and the Kentucky Oaks before invading Chicago. She is owned by Johnson N. Camden, former senator from Kentucky.

Latonia, Ky., June 22.—(AP)—Clyde Van Dusen, Kentucky Derby winner, led the Latonia Derby field today over a mile and a half route with the exception of one step. That step, the very last of the race, proved a winning one for Buddy Basil, an outsider, owned by W. F. Folsom of Buffalo, N. Y., who snatched $23,075 away from Clyde Van Dusen's owners.

Buddy Basil was ridden by D. Dubois. He paid the longest price in Latonia Derby history, awarding his backers with $138.68 for a $2 straight ticket, $44.42 to place, and $15.12 to show.

The time was 2:30 2-5, about two seconds slower than the record set by Handy Mandy. Ben Machree finished third a length back of Clyde Van Dusen, and paid $4.66 to show.

African, favorite, was fourth, two lengths behind Ben Machree. Lord Braedalhane, The Choctaw, Amsterdam, and Boris finished in the order named.

Clyde Van Dusen, which was the second choice in the betting, carried an impost of 126 pounds, which forced him to concede eight pounds to each of his masculine rivals and Ben Machree also was in receipt of her sex allowance. After leading from the end of the first quarter, where he headed the fast beginner Amsterdam, he just failed to last to prove the last Kentucky Derby winner to account for this race since Sir Huon won the two prizes in 1906.

It was unfortunate indeed that Clarence McCrosson, the gelding's rider, failed to prevent Buddy Basil from finding racing room next to the inner rail in the final drive, but his mount's faltering probably contributed to the making of the opening which resulted in as thrilling a final drive as ever marked the race.

After passing Amsterdam as they turned into the stretch for the first time, Clyde Van Dusen was in command during the subsequent mile. With the first mile and a quarter completed, Ben Machree moved up on the outside, and was the first to challenge the Gardner gelding. Beginning the final three-sixteenths he was seen to swerve out a trifle, and almost before McCrosson could steady him, Dubois had rushed Buddy Basil up next to the rail, and it was impossible to deprive him of his vantage position for the later racing. For the entire final eighth he was in rather close quarters, but Dubois rode well, and this combination, with the gradual slowing up of Clyde Van Dusen's pace, permitted him to get up for his surprising triumph right at the end. As Buddy Basil slowly wore down Clyde Van Dusen, Ben Machree also improved her position with every stride in the final skirmish and, going gamely as the race waned, probably would have headed Clyde Van Dusen in a few strides more.

SPRINGTIME AND ARIEL VICTORS IN YACHT RACE

Michigan City, Ind., June 22.—[Special.]—Springtime, one of the trimmest yachts of the big Chicago fleet, won the Seewanhaka time prize in the 38th annual Michigan City race of the Columbia Yacht club. Springtime's corrected time was 4:06:07. Ariel won the universal time prize with a corrected time of 3:50:13.

More than 78 yachts, representing every yacht club in Chicago and Waukegan, took part in the race. Fame was the first sailing craft to be given the finishing gun. The yacht crossed the line at 2:10. From that time on the yachts arrived at frequent intervals.

Most of the yachts will take part in a handicap race back to Chicago tomorrow morning.

WOMEN GOLFERS BEAT MEN, BUT NEED HANDICAP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, June 22.—How near present day women golfers are approaching the men was shown today, when teams composed of ten leading British woman players defeated a like number of men, four matches to one, at Stoke Poges.

Joyce Wethered made her first public appearance since she defeated Glenna Collett in the finals of the British women's amateur golf tournament. Teamed with Molly Gourlay, French champion, she defeated D. B. Anderson and C. Shankland, 2 and 1.

The women were given a handicap of nine strokes which were credited merits. As Simmons' home run at odd holes as the matches progressed.

Mrs. Marshall Wins in Parks Golf Tourney

Mrs. Rose Marshall yesterday won the Woman's Public Parks tournament by defeating Mrs. F. S. FitzGibbon, 5 and 3, in their 36 hole title match at Marquette park. The champion was playing over her home course. Mrs. FitzGibbon is from Jackson.

With a morning round of 83, Mrs. Marshall led 3 up going to lunch. On the afternoon round she increased her margin to 5 up, winning the first and second holes. Mrs. FitzGibbon rallied to win the fourth, seventh, and eighth, cutting down the Marquette star's lead to 2 up. Her recovery was short lived, however, for Mrs. Marshall took the twelfth and thirteenth. The match ended on the fifteenth green, where Mrs. FitzGibbon, smiling in defeat, shook hands with the new champion.

Halve First Hole.

The first hole was halved in sixes when Mrs. FitzGibbon took three putts. On the long second both added six more to their score. A stymie on the third kept Mrs. Marshall from winning the hole. The fourth was tied in 4s. On the fifth Mrs. Marshall missed a short putt for a win. Mrs. Marshall took the sixth with a 4, Mrs. FitzGibbon topping her second. The seventh was tied in 5s. On the eighth Mrs. FitzGibbon's long putt hung on the lip for a win, both contestants taking 5. Mrs. FitzGibbon's drive on the ninth stopped 4 feet from the pin, but she was unable to negotiate the putt, halving the hole in 3.

Mrs. Marshall went to the tenth one up with a medal score of 42, Mrs. FitzGibbon having a 43. Mrs. Marshall missed a short putt on the tenth, both taking 5s. The eleventh was halved in 4 when Mrs. Marshall's short approach stopped a foot from the cup. Taking the twelfth in 4, Pipgras Gives Four Hits in Nightcap.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The Athletics and the Yankees played to a long deferred compromise in two ball games at the stadium this afternoon, and the second game of the program was one of those that will be accorded distinguished recognition in years to come among dusty compendiums of one thousand curious but not especially important facts about the national game. It was a 14 inning game and the Yankees won it, 4 to 3, having lost the first, 7 to 3, in the orthodox allotment of nine innings.

The Yankees' pitcher in the second game was George Pipgras, a Dane from Minnesota, whose ancestors fought in the battle of Copenhagen the time ten thousand Swedes crept through the weeds, as stated by the poet. The Athletics' pitcher was John Quinn, an elderly Pole of close on to fifty years' duration to date.

In fourteen innings of throwing to a snarling, quarrelsome lot of athletes who were suffering from ambition and heat rash, Pipgras allowed only four hits and for thirteen consecutive innings he pitched to only three hitters each time.

Simmons Has Home Run.

One of the four hits was a home run that bounced off Al Simmons' bat and away into the right field bleachers in the first inning, scoring Max Bishop and Mickey Cochrane who had walked. Quinn, on the contrary, allowed 18 hits at the rate of a single here and there as he went along and yet he was toiling away serenely, flapping his elderly right arm and serving up the ball with a dab of slippery elm on it, on even terms with Pipgras until Tony Lazzeri at last cracked one in the fourteenth, scoring Earl Combs from third.

The standoff between the Athletics and the Yankees was their second in two successive double headers played at the stadium in the presence of enough gross aggregate business to meet the entire season's pay roll for a major league firm of average generosity. There had been about 60,000 present for Friday's two games and there were a few thousand fewer in the park today, emitting strident noises, stretching, munching, sipping and scattering ball crowd litter about them as the afternoon wore on into the dusk.

The result of the four games leaves the ball clubs, obviously, just about where they were in relation to one another when the series began, which is to say, about seven and one-half games apart, with the Athletics in the lead.

Pipgras' Work Surprises.

Pipgras had not been pitching very handsomely of late and his work against the leading ball club of the league this afternoon was especially startling for that reason, although it was sufficiently interesting on its dropped into the cotton field of white shirts, in the right field steerage, it looked as though Mr. Huggins, the manager of the Yankees, might have to ask one of the janitors to lend relief because Waite Hoyt had worked his turn Friday and he was the only pitcher on the roster who was known not to be a positive menace to the team.

But the scoring stopped as the inning ended and the hitting of the Athletics became also negligible.

On days when Old John is going to pitch he stops at a drug store and buys himself ten cents worth of slippery elm which he chews to a pulp consistency as he rides out to the park. Then, as he pitches, he flips the ball up past his face and plants a little dab of elm on the hide. That makes the ball do something eccentric.

Some professor over at Columbia once got his name and picture in the papers explaining that it was the accumulated air pressure and the friction of the ball twirling through space that caused the hop on the fast one and the salooning arc of the fadeaway, but I have never had a satisfactory statement as to what a spitball does or why it does it or why pitchers can go on throwing it long after curve-ball pitchers and fast-ball pitchers have become door-tenders in moving picture theaters or bailiffs of the county court back in the old home towns.

Ruth Surprises A's.

It is stated that the spit-ball slips through the air and is just as likely to veer off one way as another when it decided to deviate. I hear it explained also that it is easy to throw once a man learns how and that this is why old Mr. Quinn can stand out in the sun on muggy days, striking out fat-legged young stalwarts like Louis Gehrig and holding Babe Ruth to pop flies and bunts and fouls.

It would seem that when a man of going-on-fifty years can pitch the Yankees to a stand-off for thirteen and two-thirds innings as John did this gummy afternoon in the sea-level heat, he is entitled to credit for something on the order of an achievement. But I don't know enough about baseball

In the WAKE of the NEWS

REIGH COUNT.

REIGH COUNT, American 3 year old champion of 1928, was shipped to England for the express purpose of winning the Ascot gold cup over that trying route of 2½ miles. He finished second. Was the trip, then, a failure?

While Reigh Count cannot return titular world champion race horse, and while his owners no doubt were disappointed by the result after his impressive recovery from three successive defeats when he won the Coronation stake, The Wake thinks the trip was not a failure. We will adduce two reasons.

In the first place, sportsmanship demanded that some American owner send a Yankee champion abroad. England previously had sent to this country—and faced the handicaps which such shipment impose—Ben Irish's Papyrus, Epsom Derby winner of 1923. France had sent Pierre Wertheimer's Epinard. Both had been defeated in this country. Consensus here was that Epinard was superior to at least two of the three horses which defeated him in match races. That is the handicap which shipment entails.

Obviously, then, we Americans, if we believe in international contests, could not expect overseas sportsmen to continue this practice without return engagements. The Wake emphatically believes in international turf conflicts.

Our second reason for feeling the trip was not a failure is that Reigh Count performed creditably. His record relatively is better than that of either Papyrus or Epinard. Just as we think Epinard, under reversed conditions, might have won two of his three races, so we think the two lengths which separated Invershin, Ascot cup winner and a great race horse, from Reigh Count certainly docs not more than represent the handicap which a horse traveling across seas undertakes. In fact, should the same horses meet in this country, we would string our modest wager with the Yankee.

Reigh Count will retire to his court, there to reproduce his thoroughbred strain, a proved stayer over a distance of ground. Lack of stamina, as you recall, has been the principal criticism against American thoroughbreds.

An Answer.

Now listen, dear girl friends, and you and I'll scoff
At this soulful and deep stuff when the boys pull it off.
Some petting and pawing they'll get with that line,
But it won't be the kind they are after, they'll find.
We'll mar them and scar them with plenty of peeping,
And send them back to Paul Fogarty weeping.

They'll look at us dumblike and show their true colors,
With black eyes and blue eyes they'll go off to their slumbers;
And will they act numblike and feel sort of dumblike
When they find we don't fall for that stuff and surrender
To the ever egotistical masculine gender?
They usually act dumb without any coaching,
Most of 'em get numb at our approaching.
We'll show 'em up, girls, and all they will reap
Is plenty of trouble from out of the deep.

Merry Widow.

Improving the Breed.

A member of the sporting department whose name we mercifully withhold from his friends improved the breed of pickpockets at Washington Park Friday. After indifferent success all afternoon, he had $60 left at the fifth race. He decided all or nothing. So he put $10 across on Longridge, $10 place and show on Ruane, and $10 to show on Devon. That's exactly the way they ran. Exultantly he reached into his change pocket, where he had placed the tickets. Some one else had been there first.

Shires Again Talks

ST. LOUIS, MO., June 22.—Professional baseball is "too darned sissy," Art Shires, White Sox first baseman, said today in a copyrighted interview with the St. Louis Star.

"Baseball is getting too sissy when a guy can't go out and take a few drinks without getting suspended," he was quoted as saying. "There's too much of this 'Hello, George' and 'Hello, Bill' in the business, and when you slide into second spikes first and try to dump the second sacker to cut off a double play the poor boob looks at you with the eyes of a wounded deer.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Those Pittsburgh Pirates gave our Cubs another thrashing yesterday, and, although the score—Pirates, 7; Cubs, 4—wasn't so lopsided as on Friday, the hides of the McCarthy athletes were just as thoroughly tanned.

The suspicion that the pitching department of the Chicago nine is approximately 60 per cent of what it should be to assure pennant success continued to grow yesterday when Fred Blake, who previously had shown he was a good six inning pitcher, revealed he wasn't even that.

Manager Joe McCarthy long since has become convinced there isn't any Santy Claus, but it is hard for him to accept the notion that the once great sheriff isn't what he used to be. Fred now has lost nine games and has won three. He got his third the other day against the Cardinals, but even then was yanked with the bases full in the seventh.

Root Relieves Blake.

And the conduct of the sheriff doesn't affect his game alone, for Mr. McCarthy has been relieving him with pitchers who should be free to be starting their games. For instance, Root was called upon yesterday for relief duty after just getting rested up from relieving Nehf in the Cardinal final.

Blake showed inefficiency immediately in yesterday's game instead of waiting until the half way point as usual. L. Waner singled with one down and P. Waner walked. Traynor singled to center, scoring L. Waner, P. Waner taking third. Grantham then grounded to Hornsby, who threw out P. Waner at the plate. Comorosky singled to right, scoring Traynor. The inning ended when Sheely flied to Wilson.

The Cubs tied the score in the fourth inning. After Wilson had fanned Cuyler beat out a smash of Kremer's glove and went to third on Stephenson's double to left. Ki scored and Stevie took third on Grimm's infield out. Gonzales singled to center, scoring Stevie with the tying marker.

Resume Attack on Blake.

Manager Bush immediately instructed his players to start hitting Blake again. Bartell beat out a bunt, went to third on L. Waner's single to center, and scored on P. Waner's single to left. The Waners were moved up on Traynor's sacrifice and Grantham was given an intentional pass, filling the bases. Comorosky popped to Beck, and Beck threw out Sheely.

After two were out in the sixth, Bartell doubled and scored on L. Waner's third hit, a triple. P. Waner walked and Traynor singled, scoring L. Waner and putting P. Waner on third. Root then took over his thankless task and forced Grantham to foul to Gonzales.

In their end of the sixth, the Cubs appeared to have returned to the ball game. After Wilson had fanned again, Cuyler walked, paused while Stevie popped to Traynor, and scored ahead of Grimm when Charley knocked his seventh homer of the year, a drive into the center field stand. The score was: Pirates, 5; Cubs, 4, at this point.

Grimm, English Tumble.

In the seventh Grimm and English entertained the little kiddies with a comedy tumbling act, the like of which rarely is seen in major league ball parks. The turnverein act was miserable baseball, but the little tots shreiked with delight. Sheely had doubled with one out, and Hargreaves had flied to Cuyler for the second out. Kremer popped a fly which eventually came down just back of the pitchers' box at a time when Woody was putting the funniest half-nelson on Grimm. While great for the kiddies, the act must have been very distressing to Root, for Sheely scored from second while the antics were going on. Baseball was resumed when Bartell flied to Cuyler.

A legit run was scored on Root in the eighth on a single by P. Waner, a walk to Grantham, and a single by Comorosky. The inning ended when Gonzales and Hornsby broke up a double steal.

Pat Malone will try to halt the Pirates today. He probably will draw Ervin Brame for an opponent.

Clubhouse Confessions of Our Cubs

WORDS AND ART BY Edward Burns

This is the eighth of a series of soul baring documents under the heading, "Clubhouse Confessions of Our Cubs," not counting last Sunday's piece in which we discontinued the series forever. The autograph business, which had formed such a worry for the transcriber of the confessions, is in a measure responsible for the renewal of the series. It seems that thousands of gals were caught with half finished sofa pillows, embroidered wall mementoes, table covers, doilies, etc., on their hands. We couldn't bear to think of all this artistic property going to waste for want of more Cub autographs to be used in fetching designs. There also was a lot of complaint about our promising to tell how to make permanent autograph tracings on the eggs of birds and other fowls and then not keeping our word.

TODAY'S confessor is Hazen S. [Kiki] Cuyler, holder of silver cups as the 1928 and 1929 waltz champion of Catalina Island and a mighty swell outfielder, batter and base runner besides.

The unusual thing about Kiki's waltzing is that his passion for Terpischore has no social phase, but is purely a training technique. In a series of blindfold tests, Ki was unable to tell whether his partners in the Catlina championships were blond or brunette or whether they were sprayed with Black Narcissus, Nuit Noel, Au Matin, Quelque Fleurs, Mary Garden or Jockey Club.

In this connection we'll never forget the comment of Rogers Hornsby as he viewed Ki whirling in the final heat of a dance in the solarium at the Hotel St. Catherine just before Ki won the 1929 cup.

"Great Gawd," says Rog, "don't that guy have to conserve no energy for baseball?"

Born in 1899; Never Smoked, Chewed or Drank.

"I was born in Harrisville, Mich., Aug. 30, 1899," said Ki in launching his confession. "I am the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cuyler and my father is superintendent of the Michigan state fish hatchery at Harrisville. I have never smoked, chewed or taken a drink in my life on account of a contract with my father, entered at a tender age.

"I never wore spiked shoes until after I had launched my professional baseball career, getting $5 a day and expenses for playing on Sundays while I still was a member of the Harrisville High school nine. I played left field for the pros and pitched for the high school team.

"I wore rubber sneakers up till the time my father advised me I would be faster with spiked shoes. Every night my father batted flies for me and one night he said, 'Son, I believe you would be much faster with spiked shoes.'

"So I bought some spiked shoes and have always worn spikes since."

Ki says the reason he agreed with his father never to use tobacco or strong drink grew out of the fact that his father, a man of considerably more than 200 pounds, was smoking excessively. One day Ki went to his father and said, "Father, if you'll quit smoking I'll never use tobacco or alcohol." They shook hands on it, and neither ever has broken the pledge, although George has been tempted to load up a pipe on drizzly days when the fish were stubborn about setting at the Harrisville hatchery.

Started Big League Career in Pittsburgh.

As all ball fans know, Ki started his major league career with Pittsburgh, his first real record being in 1924, although he was up in 1920, '21, '22 and '23.

His first year as a Pirate regular, he batted .354 in 117 games, and the following year he batted .357 in 153 games and stole 41 bases. In his seven years as a major league player Ki never batted under .309 until last year, his first season with the Cubs. The limelight blinded him early in the season, and though he played at his normal rate in the closing weeks of the season his average at the end was .285. Despite this he stole 37 bases.

This year he has been among the leading hitters all season, and already has stolen 21 bases to lead the pack of speed boys. He climaxed his base running attainments Thursday when he stole second three times in the first four innings against the veteran catcher, Earl Smith.

Among the feats that have placed Ki's name in the special archives was the hitting of a homer with the bases full in each of two successive games, a record he shares with Babe Ruth. He also has made ten hits in a row.

Cuyler Married; Spends Winter in Flint, Mich.

Cuyler is married and makes his winter home in Flint, Mich., where he moved after completing his service with Company A, 48th Infantry, in which he was enabled to enlist because he forgot his correct age. During the last months of the war and for several months thereafter he pursued a special course at West Point for enlisted men.

Ki is the father of a son, Harold, who is 9, and a daughter, Kelly June, who was one year old yesterday.

Ki originally was called Cuy, then David Belasco came out with a show for Lenore Ulrich, called Kiki. And for no other reason at all they've been calling Cuy Kiki ever since.

Next Sunday—Read about the great Damon and Pythias bond between Rogers Hornsby and Branch Rickey.

Hazen "KiKi" Cuyler

ATHLETICS AND YANKS DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

Macks Win, 7 to 3; Then Lose, 4-3, in 14th.

physics to argue the matter so I will let the statement of what he did and in that way stand for itself.

Mr. Quinn, then, got away to a lead of three runs and gave one of them back in the third. Lyn Lary, a juvenile who cost the Yankees some $750,000 or $800,000 at the sport-page rate of exchange, came up with a couple of runners on base and hit a single, scoring Pipgras. Just after that, Gehrig struck out.

In the fifth inning it took two singles, a base on balls and a sacrifice fly to bring in Dickey, the Yankee's young catcher, with their second run. After that the game rocked along to the last half of the eighth before the Yankees tied the score, Babe Ruth officiating in a surprising fashion. Combs doubled and went to third on Lary's infield out. Gehrig fouled out, and Ruth, to bring in the tieing run, gave up trying to crush the ball and dropped a bunt that confused the A's and brought in Combs.

Homes Gets Fifth Hit.

The Yankees made a drive for the ball game in the ninth. Dickey tripled, his third hit, but ran such a dawdling pace that he was taken out. Gene Robertson went in to hike for him, and Durst hit a long fly to Haas in center field. The return throw bounced into Cochran's glove as the runner stormed in and the boys went down in a jumble at the plate, but the run had been stopped and the ball game went into extra innings.

In the fourteenth Combs got his fifth hit off Mr. Quinn, a single, and stole second. Gehrig won a slight moral victory. He walked. Ruth was purposely passed, and then Lazzeri hit to center, bringing victory to his side and relief to the customers, who were quite winded by then.

Cardinals to Try Heideman, Jacobs of Northwestern

Two Northwestern university baseball players, Les Heideman and John Jacobs, leave today for St. Louis, where they will report for a tryout with the Cardinals. Both players graduated this spring after starring for three years on the Purple nine.

Heideman hails from Kewanee, Ill., where he starred as a pitcher on the high school team of that city. He was a regular on the Wildcat hurling staff during his college career and during the last season was one of the outstanding pitchers of the conference. He is six feet two inches tall and weighs 175 pounds.

Jacobs, a Chicago boy, is one of the best outfielders produced in the conference for a number of years. He played center field for the Purple and last season he hit .426. His best day at the plate was against Wisconsin at Madison when he collected six hits in six times at bat. On his last trip to the plate he hammered out a triple which won the game.

INDIAN FAILS IN IN ATTEMPT TO OUTRUN HORSE

Pecos, Tex., June 22.—(AP)—Andrew Chimoni, Zuni Indian runner, failed in his attempt to run a horse into the ground here today when a strained muscle forced him to drop out of the race.

Chimoni, running against a specially trained thoroughbred horse, General, set out this morning to beat his opponent in a race of 100 miles, and at the end of the first hour had covered ten miles to nine for the horse. The Indian maintained his pace for almost another ten miles, but was forced to drop out on the 19th lap.

STABLES OF EAST AND WEST VIE AT ARLINGTON PARK

Vanguard to Begin Trek Here Tomorrow.

BY FRENCH LANE.

An intersectional color which never has been known on the American turf except at Saratoga will be in evidence at Arlington Park on the afternoon of July 1 when the reorganized American National Jockey club, sponsored by a group of Chicago's most influential sportsmen, opens its summer race meeting.

This became known yesterday when President Otto W. Lehmann and his associates in the new turf association made a final check of the stables which have been allotted stalls at Arlington Park.

Every great eastern and western stable is to be represented by the best horses they have in training, it was revealed. The vanguard will begin arriving at Arlington tomorrow morning. The complete lineup of stables for the struggle between the east and the west will be about as follows:

EAST.	WEST.
Harry Payne Whitney	Edward R. Bradley
Rancocas stable	Stuyvesant Peabody
Joseph E. Widener	R. S. Clark
George D. Widener	Jack Baker
Jefferson Livingston	C. C. Van Meter
William Du Pont	Coldstream stable
Walter J. Salmon	Mrs. John D. Hertz
R. S. Wilson Jr.	Leo J. Marks
Max Hirsch	Otto W. Lehmann
W. R. Coe	Edward J. Lehmann
Mrs. G. F. Vanderbilt	Morris Vehon
Cary T. Grayson	Fred M. Grabner
Samuel D. Riddle	Clyde Van Dusen
Earl Sande	Johnson N. Camden
W. S. Kilmer	W. H. Whitehouse
Dorwood stable	Maj. T. C. McDowell
E. B. McLean	S. S. Combs
Seagram stable	Thomas E. Mueller
Audley Farm stable	Val Crane
E. K. Bryson	C. W. Hay
Glen Riddle farm	J. J. Coughlin

Other Prominent Stables.

Aside from the east-west lineup, there will be other great stables at Arlington which will play a prominent part in the rich stake program. The Three D's stable of Texas will be represented by a brilliant band of more than 20 trained by C. E. Durnell. From Nevada will come the crack Nevada Stock farm outfit and Colorado will be represented by R. C. Thatcher's string trained by Chappie Simms.

From the Pacific coast will come the stables of J. W. Marchbank, H. H. Cotton, N. W. Church, Baron Long, and Chaffee Earl. Other prominent middle westerns include the Valley Lake stable of Chicago, owned by P. A. and R. J. Nash, the Howard Oots string, the extensive Phil Reuter band, B. B. Williams' horses and those owned by C. H. Kneblekamp of Louisville. A hundred smaller stables, some of which boast stars of the first magnitude, also will be in the struggle for the prizes.

With Arlington Park now complete and beautified by the decorators and landscape gardeners it is one of the finest turf grounds in the world—the meeting will open one week from tomorrow under ideal conditions.

Feature Distance Races.

Apparently the American National Jockey club is going to feature long distance races, for events of this character outnumber the sprinting affairs. According to the condition book prepared by Racing Secretary Joseph McLennan, the program for the first ten days will embrace no less than four races at one mile or over.

While there is to be a minimum purse value of $1,200, there will be only two races of this class carded each day. The other five will range in value from $1,300 to $1,800, while the daily overnight handicaps are to be as high as $2,500.

During the first ten days of the meeting, four stakes are to be run. The American National handicap with $7,500 added will be the opening day feature. On July 4th the Stars and Stripes handicap, carrying $15,000 in added money, is to be the topliner and the two other rich stakes of the early days of the season are the Post and Paddock handicap valued at $10,000 and the Cherry Circle handicap, which offers $5,000 in added money.

The meeting will hit its peak on July 13 with the running of the $60,000 added American Classic for 3 year olds, which is expected to bring Blue Larkspur, Belmont stakes winner; Clyde Van Dusen, Kentucky Derby winner; Windy City, American Derby winner; Karl Eitel, Fairmount Derby winner, and Dr. Freeland, Preakness winner, into action. The race should settle the 3 year old championship of the year.

ONWENTSIA FOUR MEETS CANTIGNY IN FINAL TODAY

Today's Lineups

ONWENTSIA.		CANTIGNY.
Fitzpatrick	No. 1	Lt. Smith
Gaiding	No. 2	Corpening
Blair [c]	No. 3	Turner
Simmons	Back	McCormick[c]

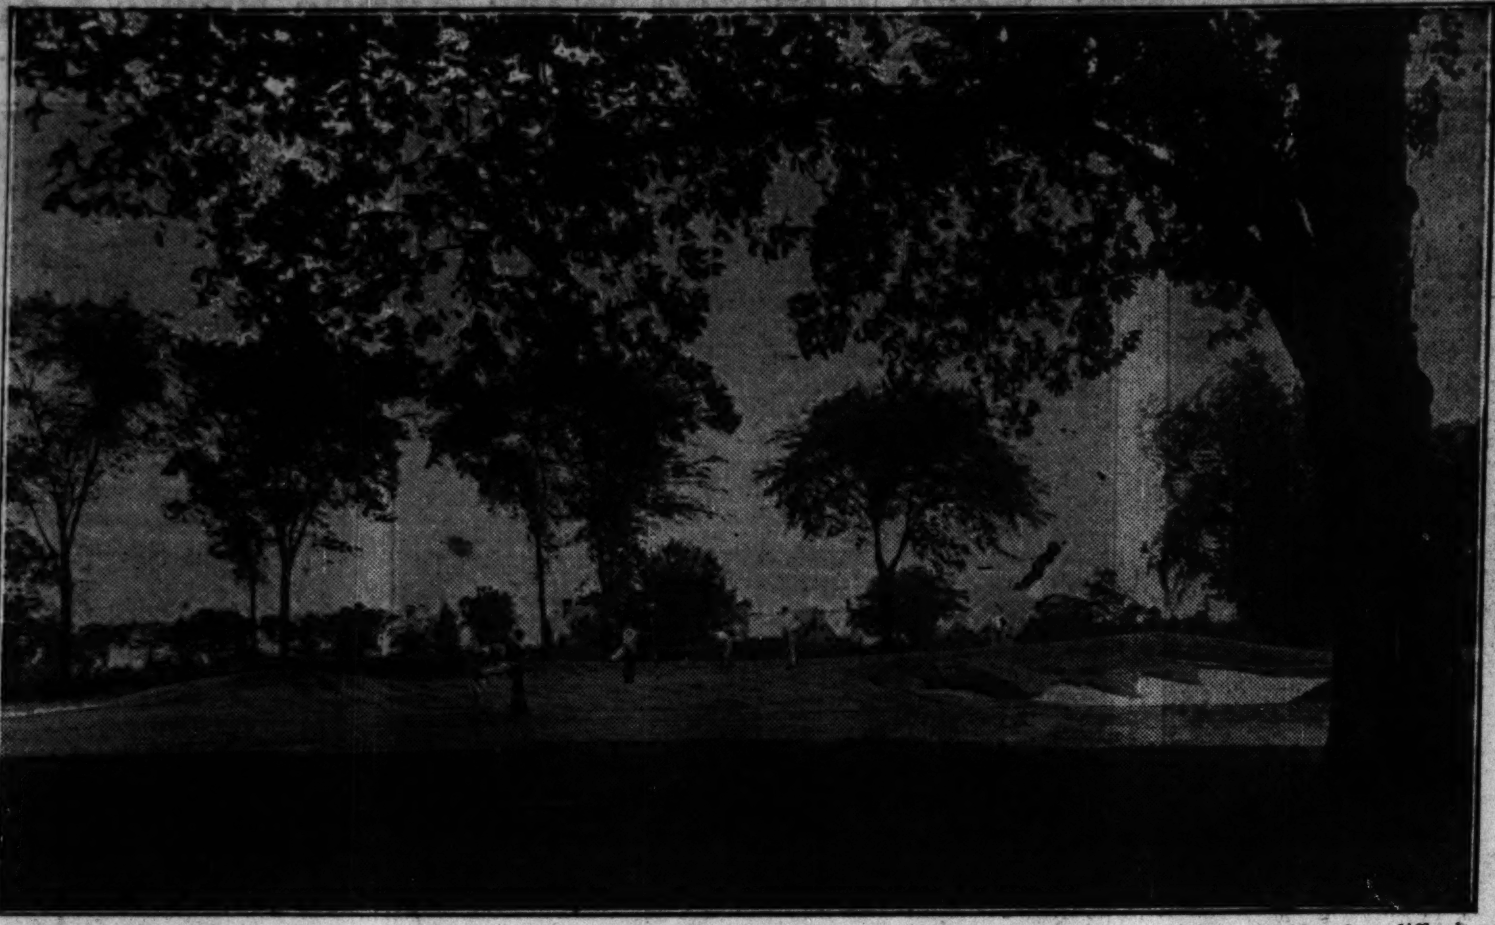
Time of each of the eight chukkers—7½ minutes.

Bolstered in its playing personnel by the presence of Lieut. Lawrence Smith, the Cantigny polo team, representing Oak Brook, today will attempt to stop Onwentsia's rush toward the Chicago twelve goal title when the two fours clash in the final. Play starting at 5 o'clock will be on Oak Brook's No. 3 field, an arena that has been under cover all this season and is used only for championship competition.

Both teams have been priming for today's engagement. Onwentsia, last Thursday, stopped the Four Horsemen, another Oak Brook entry, 11 to 10, in an overtime encounter in the first set-to of the current joust.

Preparations yesterday were virtually complete for the next major Chicago polo tournament, namely, the twelve goal handicap affair that probably will start Tuesday. According to William Mitchell Blair of the Onwentsia club, six entries have been lined up for play. These include the Four Horsemen and the Cantigny teams from Oak Brook, Onwentsia, Rovers, Fort Sheridan, and North Shore, the last named being the 1929 ten goal champions of Chicago.

WHERE HOPES OF 153 GOLFERS WILL RISE OR FALL



A field of 153 will tee off Thursday in the national open at the Wing ed Foot course at Mamaroneck, N. Y., which is considered as difficult as Olympia Fields, Chicago, scene of last year's tourney. This is the sevent eenth green, smooth as velvet.

LANE TECH PREPS ENTER CITY LOOP BASEBALL FINAL

Lane Tech, runnerup for the city league baseball title last year, apparently has a ninety-nine year lease on championship games. Yesterday, it defeated Lake View, 8 to 6, in the last of the league's semi-final games at Mills stadium and will meet Englewood for the title at 4 o'clock Wednesday on Wrigley field. It will be the ninth time within ten years that Lane has filled a title rôle.

Lane opened its attack early, scoring a run in the first inning and adding four more in the fourth. Then Lake View showed its stuff by scoring a pair in its half of the inning. The natural sectional rivalry of the two teams, both from the north division, then displayed itself. The Techs scored runs in the fifth and sixth but Lake View came right back with one in the fifth and three in the sixth to reduce the margin to one run. A run in the last inning clinched the game for Tech, although Lake View threatened by putting two men on base.

Konczyk and Vlacek, Lane's mound stars, held Lake View to eight hits, each fanning three, while O'Grady and Auston allowed the Techs only one more blow. Horvath, Lane's center fielder, checked potential Lake View runs with a pair of fielding gems. Bergman and O'Hara were the stars of the winners offensive, while Jaickel, Hardy, and Weinsheimer delivered timely hits for Lake View. Score:

Lane	100	411	1—8	9	1

Batteries—Konczyk, Vaicek and Smilgoff; Auston, O'Grady and Kott.

Kewanee, Ill., June 22.—[Special.]—Turning in a 42 for nine holes, Mrs. G. E. McDonald, Kewanee, established the course record for women at Midland Country club today.

Mrs. Marshall strengthened her lead to 2 up. All of Mrs. FitzGibbon's approach shots were short. On the thirteenth Mrs. FitzGibbon overshot the green and lost the hole. A fine putt enabled Mrs. FitzGibbon to halve the fourteenth.

Mrs. FitzGibbon Wins 17th.

Both had 4s on the fifteenth and required 5s on the sixteenth when the Marquette player laid Mrs. FitzGibbon a stymie. Mrs. FitzGibbon came back to win the seventeenth, her first hole, with a three when Mrs. Marshall three-putted. The latter took the eighteenth with a 5, the Jackson Park ace overshooting the green with her third.

Mrs. Marshall took the nineteenth when Mrs. FitzGibbon's drive found the bushes. The Marquette star won the twentieth as well. Mrs. Fitz Gibbon, topping her third and fourth, took an 8 for the hole. The twenty-first was tied in 4s. Mrs. FitzGibbon on the twenty-second holed a beautiful 60 yard approach for a birdie 2 and a win on the hole. The twenty-third was tied in 5s when Mrs. FitzGibbon's putt rimmed the cup. Breaks were evened up, however, when the twenty-fourth was halved, Mrs. Marshall missing a 3 foot putt. Mrs. FitzGibbon took the twenty-fifth when Mrs. Marshall dubbed her first and third. The Jackson ace cut down her opponent's lead to two by winning the twenty-sixth with a 4.

The twenty-seventh was halved in 3. On the twenty-eighth Mrs. Marshall missed another short putt for a win. Although her drive landed in the bushes, Mrs. Marshall managed to get a half on the twenty-ninth. The thirtieth was won by Mrs. Marshall when her long putt dropped for a birdie 3. Taking the thirty-first as well as by virtue of another long putt Mrs. Marshall strengthened her lead to 4 up. The thirty-second was tied with 6s, making Mrs. FitzGibbon dormie. Mrs. Marshall won the thirty-third, taking the match.

Miss Wilson Wins

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 22.—[A. P.]—Miss Virginia Wilson of Chicago, who yesterday shot an amazing round of 71, today won the annual Allegheny Country club invitation golf tournament with a 36 hole medal score of 151.

SCHMELING GIVES MATES 7 ROUNDS OF PUNISHMENT

Expects to Face Paulino at 187 Pounds.

Lakewood, N. J., June 22.—[Special.]—Max Schmeling, the German lad who is on the last lap of training for his fifteen round battle with Paulino Uzcudun Thursday night in the Yankee stadium, faced five sparring partners today in seven rounds of boxing—floored one, had two helpless, and had four of them streaming blood from battered noses—in one of his best workouts.

Schmeling had on exhibition a sharp right cross which was powerful when snapped home, and a left hook to the body which was solid and hurt. He said after the workout that he felt in excellent condition, and the fact that he finished seven rounds breathing lightly supported his declaration.

Manager Joe Jacobs announced that Schmeling weighed 189 pounds before this afternoon's drill, heavier than he has ever been. He weighed 183 pounds the night he knocked out Johnny Risko. It is expected Schmeling will enter the ring against Paulino weighing 187 pounds.

PAULINO SHEDS POUNDS.

He went a round apiece with Jack Demave and Buddy Howard, and two rounds with Benny Touchstone, following with bag punching, rope skipping and calisthenics. It was a strenuous workout and, despite the fact the woodchopper is down to a razor edge, he shed two pounds. Before his workout he weighed 190 pounds; after it, 188 lbs. Tomorrow probably will be his final workout.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question

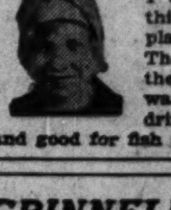
The Question.

Which would you prefer to see, the National open tournament matches or the Poughkeepsie regatta?

The Tribune will pay $5 for each question accepted for the Inquiring Reporter to ask. Send name and address with your question to "Inquiring Reporter," Chicago Tribune.

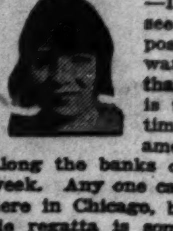
The Answers.

Al Seibel, 8223 Langley avenue, sales manager—The National open tournament for me. I am a golfer and I can get more fun out of watching a golf match between experts than in watching a regatta. If this regatta were a Chicago affair, it would be of more concern to me.



Miss Rinetta Catton, 5500 Everett avenue, clerk—I would rather see the regatta. I don't play golf, but this doesn't exactly explain my preference. The regatta is held on the Hudson and I like water; it's good for a drink, good to swim in and good for fish and I like to fish.

Victor J. Pofisek, 326 Ashbury avenue, Evanston, Ill., accountant—I would rather see the regatta. It would unquestionably be more interesting than the golf tournament. I play golf, which is perhaps one reason why I would like to see the races. The Poughkeepsie regatta is surrounded by a college atmosphere somewhat similar to football, and that means enthusiasm.



Miss Anne Kassie, 6331 South Ashland avenue, secretary—I would prefer to see the regatta, I suppose because I like the water much better than golf. All I need is the money and the time and I would be among the spectators along the banks of the Hudson this week. Any one can see golf matches here in Chicago, but the Poughkeepsie regatta is something out of the ordinary.

Harold Tatsch, 1913 Cullom avenue, catcher, Hillman's baseball team—I'd rather see the boat races, for there's no doubt in my mind that watching crews in action is far more thrilling than following a pair of golfers. Picture the long, slender shells, the long oars dipping into the water and the cheering throngs along shore. That's something I would like to see.

GRINNELL TENNIS STAR LOSES IN COLLEGIATE FINAL

New York, June 22.—(AP)—The eastern intercollegiate singles tennis crown fell into the hands of Gregory Mangin of Georgetown today. The Georgetown star defeated Harris Coggeshall, Grinnell ace, 6-4, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4, to win the title and clinch the team trophy for the Washington [D. C.] university.

Tulane, whose representatives, Clifford Sutter and Maurice Bayon, captured the doubles championship, finished in a tie for second place with Princeton in the team race, each compiling a total of 18 points each, nine points less than Georgetown's winning aggregate score. Grinnell was fourth with 17 points.

Crowley Succeeds Kipke as Michigan State Coach

East Lansing, Mich., June 22.—(AP)—James H. Crowley, assistant football coach at the University of Georgia, will succeed Harry Kipke as head coach at Michigan State college. Announcement of his appointment was made tonight by President R. S. Shaw of Michigan State.

Stars to Stage Exhibition Matches Today at Skokie

Exhibition tennis matches will be played at the Skokie country club today, involving Charles S. Garland, former American Davis cup team captain, Le Roy Weir, Illinois state champion, George Jennings, national municipal parks champion, and Louis Thalheimer, the Texas star. Singles and doubles matches will be played, starting at 3 o'clock.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—There was a marked deficiency of effective pitching among the White Sox forces today, and they tumbled before the Browns in the third of the series by the graceful score of 11 to 3.

A large portion of the ineffectiveness was represented by Ted Lyons, who was handled in such fashion as to indicate his sore arm is no myth. Lyons never even enjoyed the privilege of a fighting chance. The first man to face him hit a home run and several others hit other things before the initial chapter ended with three Brownies over the plate. Then Lyons made his foes a present of two tallies in the second, and after this the affair was just a lopsided ball game with one more hostile scoring against the excollegian in the fifth and five of them doing the same in the eighth, while Dan Dugan was endeavoring to show something.

Sox Hits Scattered.

As is usually the case, the Sox made enough hits to prove they were at work with their bats, but their opponent, Rip Collins, kept the taps widely scattered and was nobly assisted by three double plays. Even the great Shires was unable to start anything, barring a double in the seventh, and the assembled natives spoke to him in very unkindly terms for failing to make good on his broadcast that he'd surely hit a couple over the wall.

No time was wasted in starting the three run assault on Lyons in the opening inning. Blue whacked the second ball pitched into the right field seats for a homer. Badgro hit the next pitch for a single to right. Manush obliged by fouling out. Schulte almost tore a leg off Lyons with a drive that caromed through short for a single. Kress kept the attack moving by singling to right, Badgro scoring and Schulte taking third. O'Rourke's sacrifice fly to Watwood sent Schulte across the counter.

Browns Donated Two Runs.

The Sox broke in with a run in the second on a pass to Lyons and a double by Metzler, but the Browns moved further ahead in the home half by getting two runs without the aid of a hit. Lack of control on Lyons' part did this. Collins and Blue walked for a starter. Badgro bunted and Lyons threw wild over third, Collins scoring, Blue going to third and Badgro to second. Blue ran home on Manush's fly to center. This much gave the Browns an advantage of 5 to 1.

Lyons looked to be the real Lyons in the third and fourth, but things were different in the fifth, when a pair of sound blows picked up a run. With one out, Kress lined to right center and the ball slipped off the tip of Watwood's glove for a double. The runner went to third on O'Rourke's sacrifice and home when Melillo nicked the center field wall for three bases. Ferrell then walked, but Lyons nailed Collins for the third out.

Sox Checked Until Seventh.

Because of a paucity of timely base hits and the Browns' fondness for double plays, the Sox could accomplish nothing of consequence from the second to the seventh, when they managed their second run. Taitt started the seventh by singling for Lyons, but prospects of a rally were dimmed when Metzler bounced into a twin killing. Then Shires came up in the midst of a large assortment of raspberries and doubled to center. Reynolds, who had supplanted Hoffman in right because the latter's bum arm began to bother him, then hit to right for two bases, sending Shires home. Watwood completed the chapter by bouncing to Melillo.

To roll up their cluster of five runs in the eighth, the Brownies assessed Dugan for five hits and a pass. Dugan retired the first batter to face him, after which Collins singled over first and Blue doubled down the left field line, Collins halting at third. A pass to Badgro filled the sacks, and Manush drove home a couple of the runners by singling. Schulte fanned and Kress slapped a long fly to right. Reynolds was afraid of the wall and the ball dropped for a double, Badgro and Manush scoring. Kress counted the fifth run of the session on a hit by O'Rourke.

The Sox picked up a useless run in the ninth on Melillo's two base boot of Metzler's grounder and Watwood's safe poke to center.

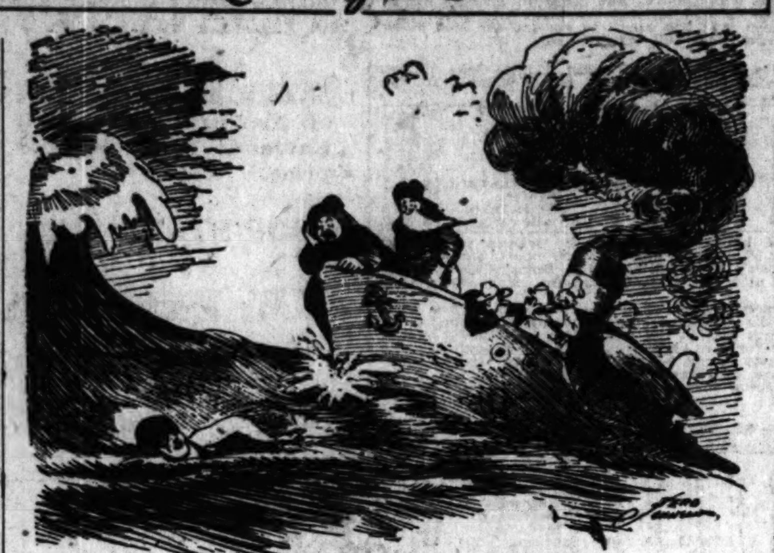
NOBODY'S BUSINESS

by Westbrook Pegler



"Trudy—come out!"

NEW YORK, June 22.—With the exception of a couple of billowy young ladies known as the Ziegaboom twins or the Feitelbaum twins or something like that, there has been no exodus of American deep-sea floaters this year, and all is quiet along the English channel. By this time, nearly everyone whoever set out to swim the channel or traverse the sleeve, as they say on the French side of the water, has done so, either by hand or by boat, or by hand with the assistance of such helpful devices as the duck-foot glove and the pneumatic pajama.

Even Georges Michel, the Parisian pastry cook who swims at the sedate pace of a water logged scow in a marshy backwater, walked upon the beach at Dover one day, shaking drops of brine from his physique, to announce that he, a Frenchman, had done what Fritz Vierkotter, the German, had done, and in much better time, and, also, vive la France, and bas les Allemandes!

Michel Gives His Time as Downright Phenomenal.

M. Michel gave his time as something downright phenomenal and when he was asked if he was quite sure there had been no error, he said that—Name of a pig! Name of a pipe! Name of a name of a name!—there had been no mistake. Of a truth he had made the swimming of the sleeve in time and method strictly as represented and, once more, vive la France!

All this was quite startling because George was one of those inert Willy-nilly swimmers who relied on his endurance and trusted to the pranks of tide, current and fate, to wash him across. He swam with the vigor of a sprig or sargasso and in fifteen or nineteen previous attempts had barely managed not to be washed back onto the beach at Gris Nez, which was the springboard for those swimming from France toward England. But this time, with the challenge of the German to urge him on and with no disinterested clockers to check his time and technique, old Georges crossed the channel in just over eleven hours, which would have been about 2½ miles an hour and great time for a great swimmer which he was something else than.

Resents Several Crossings; He's a Trudy Ederle Man.

If I seem to cast doubt on M. Michel's achievement that will be just about right, because I have been a Trudy Ederle man for several years and have doubted and resented not only his, but also some other noteworthy crossings, all done mysteriously, which would detract from the merit of Trudy's swim. The wind was blowing almost a gale, the sea was tumbling all over itself, she was carried far up into the North Sea, most of the people on the tugs were seasick, her own trainer lost confidence and disclaimed responsibility and when her father bawled through the storm, "Trudy, come out!" she rolled on her side and yelled back, "Come out? What for?"

Woman Establishes a Curious Record.

There were storm warnings set for small craft that day, so when Millie Corson, the Scandinavian girl, crossed from England to France a few weeks later, through a glycerine sea in longer time than Trudy had taken, it wasn't decent of her backers to allege that Trudy had been shielded by the lee of her tug.

There was a large fat lady who immersed herself in the channel for some twenty hours the same season, but did not finish the swim, and Madam Sion, the Belgian woman made two or three attempts and gave up for good. She had been at it for years, and although she never had succeeded, she had established a curious record of which she was rather proud. She claimed the female championship of the world for elapsed time in the water, and she was much put out when the plump stranger washed about in the channel for a considerably longer time.

"It is a dubious record anyway," said Dudley Field Malone, who had a percentage of Trudy. "Sitting in the water is not a standard event. I have no doubt whatever that a world-wide search would produce several ladies capable of sitting in the bathtub for weeks. I would like to promote such a contest in the Yankee stadium, but I would bar fat ladies. There is practically no glamor about a field of stout ladies sitting in bath tubs."

Gris Nez Never Emerged from Age of Innocence.

The Ziegaboom twins or the Feitelbaum twins, or whoever they are, may swim the sleeve and they may not, but they will have a pleasant summer at Gris Nez, one of the few spots on this earth that never has emerged from the age of innocence. It is innocent of plumbing, innocent of electricity and gas and innocent of illness except the malignant hangover which plagues the populace in epidemics now and again, due to the innocence of Marcel Blondiau, the Belgian who runs the hotel of the lighthouse.

M. Blondiau is so innocent himself that he runs his bar on the honor system. The American customers help themselves and drop their francs into the cash drawer. Perhaps, though, that is guile, not innocence. He may figure that an American would rather over pay than under pay for his beverages under these circumstances. The implied compliment to the customer's honor must be worth a few francs here and there. In fact, he told me he came out long more often than he came out short.

TILDEN, HUNTER TAKE LONDON TENNIS TITLE

LONDON, June 2.—With one eye cocked on the selection of the American Davis cup team, which will be picked next month for the challenge round, Big Bill Tilden and Francis T. Hunter gave all they had today to defeat Wilmer Allison and John Van Ryn, potential members of the Davis cup team, in the finals of the London tennis championship, 9-11, 6-2, 7-5, 6-3.

So exhausted were the American veterans after the gruelling match, which was played in the rain, that they declined to play in the finals for the singles championship scheduled between them, requesting officers to "divide the titles this year."

Miss Betty Ryan added another victory for America, defeating Elsie Goldsack, English youngster, 6-2, 2-6, 6-2, in the finals of the women's singles.

George Lott, Chicago's hopeful for the Wimbledon tournament and one of the eight seeded players, arrived in London tonight after his trans-Atlantic crossing.

He will have only tomorrow to get acquainted with the English grass courts and the damp weather, and get rid of his sea legs. His tardy arrival has already sent his stock down considerably. His first opponent on Monday is Edouard Duplaix, French star, who gave Tilden a battle recently.

OL' JACK BRITTON FIGHTS CANADIAN HERE TOMORROW

Pair Headlines Show at Logan Square.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Jack Britton, onetime world's welterweight champion, and Patsy Pollock of Winnipeg, Can., will meet in the feature bout of the boxing show at the Logan Square arena, 2233 Milwaukee-av., tomorrow night. On Thursday night, Jackie Fields, recognized as the world's 147 pound champion by the National Boxing association, will clash with Farmer Joe Cooper of Illinois at the Mills stadium. These are the only professional shows scheduled for Chicago this week.

Britton, whose given name is Jack Breslin, held the welterweight title for years. He learned to box in Chicago, his native city. It will be his first local appearance in years.

Mickey McLaughlin of the south side meets Kurt Prenzel of Germany in the ten round semi-windup at 150 pounds. Other fights on the card will bring together Hershie Wilson of Danville, Ill., and George Kerwin of the north side; Eddie Ballatine, local welterweight, and Bobby O'Hara of Georgia; King Levinsky and Joe Corrado, local 166 pounders, and Jimmy Murphy and Steve Hess, 147 pounders.

Fields Has Busy Day.

Fields put in a busy day yesterday at the Barry gymnasium. He boxed eight rounds with his sparring mates, showing all the skill that makes him a champion, as recognized by the National Boxing association.

Cooper arrived yesterday and established training headquarters at the Arcade gymnasium. He boxed six rounds.

This will be the second meeting of this pair of welterweights. They fought on the coast last summer, Fields taking the decision after ten rounds of milling.

Spug Myers of Idaho and Jackie Moore, local 140 pounder, will meet in the ten round semi-windup, while Al Crisp of Oakland, Cal., and Al Greenfield of the west side will clash in the third ten round fight on the card. They will weigh 130 pounds. Two five round bouts complete the card. The fights were arranged by James C. Mullen, matchmaker for Promoter Art during the summer.

Mandell to Resume Grind.

Promoter Paddy Harmon, who will stage the world's lightweight championship match between Sammy Mandell, the title holder, and Tony Canzoneri of New York at the Chicago stadium, August 2, yesterday announced that Mandell will resume training at Barry's gymnasium this week.

STILL GOING

DIAVOLO TAKES RACE FEATURE BY 1½ LENGTHS

Comes from Behind in the Brookdale.

New York, June 22.—[Special.]—Jockey Johnny Maiben's penchant for waiting until the stretch before making a run with a horse has seldom caused chills and fever thrills as badly as today when he brought Diavolo home first at Aqueduct in the fortieth running of the Brookdale handicap worth $8,250. Throughout most of the mile and a furlong, Diavolo trailed, but at the end he was striding vigorously with Maiben riding his best to get him home a length and a half ahead of Light Carbine.

Ironsides ran third today after being the leader until the turn into the stretch. The time of the race was 1:51, two-fifths of a second slower than Light Carbine's time for the same distance in the Brooklyn handicap last week.

The Rancocas stable's Grattan, winner of the Hudson stakes last Saturday, repeated in the Great American, the secondary feature today, and added $15,050 to his mounting score. These two prizes, together with his one other victory in the Friar Rock purse makes him the greatest money winning 2 year old in the east.

THISTLE FYRN WINS

Cleveland, O., June 22.—(AP)—Thistle Fyrn won the $12,000 added Ohio Derby on the final day of the meet at the Bainbridge racing track today. Dinah Did Upset was second, and Voltear, winner of the Chesapeake stakes and one of the favorites, came in third.

Thistle Fyrn was an outsider in the betting and paid $32.30 on a $2 ticket to win, $12.40 to place and $5.40 to show. Dinah Did Upset paid off $6.20 and $3.60, while Voltear paid $2.70.

Black Diamond and Silverdale were two of the favored horses which failed to show in the mile and one-eighth race over a fast track. Twelve of the country's best thoroughbreds started.

Jockey C. Churchman was near death in a hospital here tonight as a result of a fall in the fourth race at the Bainbridge track here today. He suffered a skull fracture when thrown from his mount, Roll 'Em Down. Jockeys R. Deprema and J. Savage were injured but not seriously in the same accident, which was caused by the fall of Deprema's mount, Princess Margaret, near the last turn. Savage was thrown when his horse, Ida Bell Bee, stumbled over Princess Margaret. Roll 'Em Down, which was running next to the last, piled on top.

SUNNINGDALE, England, June 22.—(AP)—The prince of Wales likes golf clubs that have lots of "whippiness" in them. The prince and the duke of York followed a match between Cyril Tolley and Rex Hartley at the Sunningdale club today and on several occasions tried practice swings with Tolley's iron clubs. He remarked that he had just purchased a set of new clubs and his idea about Tolley's sticks was that there was not enough "whippiness" about them to suit his fancy.

Lost Agnes had an advantage at the start and, showing good speed, moved into the lead at once, but had to be urged near the end to outstay Timour. The latter, away slowly and forced to race wide for the entire race, closed a big gap, and was going the strongest at the end. High Foot raced prominently for half a mile and tired. Friar Bell was given a bad ride, and swerved all during the stretch after being taken back just before reaching the stretch. Zev's Gold was away too poorly to be a factor in the race. The others were never seriously in the running.

Cebrian's br. c., 4, by American Ace-Prim Lady. Trained by G. Brooks. Went to post at 2:53. At post 4 minutes. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

General Grant, showing high speed, raced into a good lead at once, and was never seriously in danger, being eased in last sixteenth. Black Beetle was taken back soon after the start, and closed a big gap when urged hard. Gracious Gift raced prominently for the entire race, but tired badly during the last sixteenth. Flat Iron broke fast, but tired badly after racing well up for half a mile. Linda was well up when she stumbled and unseated rider.

Patricia Marian raced as if best, was restrained for half a mile, and moved into the lead when called on, but near the end had to be hustled to outstay Marlboro. The latter gained steadily in the stretch, and finished gamely. Herendeen came from far back during the last quarter. Quibbler began tiring badly after going three-quarters. David L. was always outrun.

Lowe's br. g., 3, by Brown Prince II.-Bargain II. Trained by owner. Went to post at 4:07. At post 3 minutes. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

Brown Brutus, racing in his best form under good handling, followed Christie Flanagan closely, and drew out in the stretch to win well in hand. Symphorosa came steadily in the stretch under stout handling, and was going gamely at the end. Christie Flanagan showed the most early speed, but began tiring in the stretch, and just lasted for third place. Jack Hawksley suffered some interference in the early stages, and came strong in the stretch, and would have been third in another stride. Golden Trail was outrun. Safety Pin never figured seriously at any stage. Judge Hay moved strong when reaching the lower turn, and was about to go into the lead when he was forced back, and he could never regain his full stride again.

E. Stewart's ch. f., 3, by Light Brigade-Rosa Mundo. Trained by D. E. Stewart. Went to post at 4:49. At post 1 minute. Start good. Won easily, second driving.

Rose of Sharon, showing fine speed, raced restrained in the lead for half a mile, and was taken back when Current and Willa challenged, came strong when called on at the beginning of the stretch, and drew out fast in the last sixteenth. Current moved into the lead with a rush after going five furlongs, but was not good enough for the winner, though best of the others. Altitude moved up strong after going six furlongs, and had to be urged hard to outstay Lady Broadcast. The latter was raced wide for most of the way. Willa quit badly after going three-quarters. The others were always far out of it.

Thousands of Responsible Dealers Say—

"The Best Motor Oil in the World"

Best because it is refined from pure Pennsylvania crude—and nothing else—made by the world's largest refiners of pure Pennsylvania oil. Best because it lasts fully twice as long as ordinary oils.

Sold by dealers from the Atlantic to Pacific who feature quality merchandise. They are good people to deal with.

GOLF LEGIONS MASS ON LOCAL COURSES FOR COMPETITIVE EVENTS

POUGHKEEPSIE AWAITS NATION'S ROWING CLASSIC

Nine College Crews Clash on Hudson Tomorrow.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 22.—[Special.]—Poughkeepsie is starting today the greatest week-end it has had since the close of the war. The streets of the town hung with flags from end to end, were filling up rapidly this afternoon with the first of what is expected will prove the greatest crowd that ever has watched a Poughkeepsie boat race since the Intercollegiate Rowing association started holding annual regattas here in 1895.

On the river the crews of nine colleges were finishing up the long grind of training that leads to Monday afternoon, and the final act of the 1929 college boat racing.

As the training draws to its close, the prospect still holds the promise of one of the finest four mile races that varsity crews have ever put on in this race for the main event, with every reason to suppose that the preliminary freshman race at two miles and the race for junior varsities at three miles will measure up in keenness of competition at least to the event for the varsities.

All of the real work of preparation has been concluded. The crews today were out on the river morning and afternoon for paddles and racing starts, but there was no hard work done, though each of the eights had fairly good paddles.

On Monday will come the high spot of racing for the year unless all signs fail. At a quarter after five, daylight saving time, on Monday the seven freshman crews entered will start their race. At intervals of one hour, according to the present schedule, the juniors and the varsities will follow six crews rowing in the second race and the nine in the varsity event, forming the biggest fleet of college boats that have ever rowed a race since crews took to eight oared shells.

Last year nearly 100,000 watched this race, and there is every indication that this year's throng may be as large.

As the race day draws near it is possible to find supporters for almost every crew entered in the race with the exception of one or two. The two western crews that arrived late have both found supporters during their six days on the river. Washington is the eight which took a late time row, using searchlights on the launch and flashlights on shore at the markers. They have been going well here and a good many observers think they will be a factor in the race. The other eight, Wisconsin was reported in a row upstream in a bit more than twenty minutes.

These two crews are both coached by young men, Al Ulbrickson, who has succeeded Rusty Callow at Washington, and Mike Murphy, until this year leader freshman coach at Yale and more recently successor to the late Dad Vail at Wisconsin.

Columbia, California Choices.

In the face of all rumors, however, a crowd from New York and one from the Pacific slope remain pretty much the real favorites. The situation two days before the race was that California and Columbia are expected to be be fighting for first honors. The race for third place is apparently wide open.

Cornell, with Jim Wray turning out the best Red and White eight in a good many years, is among the most powerful eights on the river. Washington is regarded as a threat and Navy, after a disappointing early season, has gone very well at times up here. Old Dick Glendon, shifted his boating again at the start of the week, but the rumor here is that Navy has made the fastest time row yet turned in.

Badgers Have New Coach.

Wisconsin, in its first year under a new coach, is not regarded as a really serious threat, though it is a good crew.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology, entered here for the first time in its history, is handicapped badly by the illness of Richardson, No. 6, who has been running a fever and been unable to row for the last two days.

Syracuse and Pennsylvania, both with poor early seasons and neither having shown enough development in training here, are generally regarded as being out of the main race when the probable leaders are discussed.

Of the two favorite crews, Columbia is the smoothest looking boat, but California is the strongest.

CORNELL CREW WINS.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 22.—(AP)—A Cornell crew won a boat race on the Hudson river today for the first time since 1923, the Ithacan eight defeating three other crews in a race for substitute combinations over a mile and a half course. Behind Cornell came Pennsylvania. Columbia and the Washington-Wisconsin combination were swamped.

TUNE UP TODAY FOR MIDWEST GOLF TOURNEY

Omaha, Neb., June 22.—(AP)—With the Field club course clear of member-players, contestants for the middle west golf crown will get down to practice tomorrow for the trans-Mississippi tourney here Monday.

Among the entries are some par busters who will familiarize themselves with the 18 hole links, one of them being Arthur Bartlett, Ottumwa, Ia., 1928 champion. His entry was received yesterday and the Iowan will arrive early tomorrow for a preliminary tour of the battle field.

Another late entrant is Gene Vaughn of Shenandoah, Ia., who has just won the southwest Iowa crown for the fourth time. Another formidable entry is Bob McKee of Des Moines. More than 75 players are on the tourney list.

Sawyer's 75 Wins Low Gross Honors in Advertisers' Golf

BY HARLAND ROHM.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Woodruff, Wis., June 22.—D. E. Sawyer of Midlothian, veteran of many a tense golf battle, who customarily answers to the name of Ned, proved himself the best of more than seventy members and guests of the Western Advertisers' Golf association on the first day of the two day tournament at the Minocqua Heights Golf club's course today by winning low gross.

Sawyer scored 38—37—75 on the nine hole course, despite two sixes on the second nine. The sixes came on the 380 yard par 4 sixth that follows along the top of a hog back with woods on each side and the ninth, which is only three yards short of 600. As usual, it was extra putts that added the strokes.

Bob Richardson Second.

Bob Richardson, who is big enough to drive 300 yards and occasionally does, was second in low gross, despite a bad start. The first tour of the course cost him 41 blows, though he drove to within 12 feet of the pin on the 253 yard seventh, but he came back with a 36, one over par, for a 77.

Jack Bender made it a field day for Midlothian by taking first in the low net, though three tied for the prizes by scoring under par with their net scores. Pushing them back to par with low handicap the victor, Bender's 43—39—82—12—70 won. A. S. Putney, 92—24—68, was second and Joseph Laubin was pushed out in the cold without a prize, though he scored 93—25—68.

Campbell Has Fewest Putts.

Low gross foursomes went to Wilbur Eichelberg, 43—38—81; William Gardner, 45—41—86; Jerry Seehof, 44—41—85, and Ed Davis, 45—45—90. Their total was 342. Second low gross foursome was awarded to A. S. Putney, 47—45—92; S. R. Penfield, 42—47—89; W. F. Lockridge, 40—38—78, and James Meigs, 43—37—80, for a total of 349.

First low net foursome went to Frank Whitman, 108—29—79; H. K. Clark, 103—28—75; Grey Sullivan, 101—25—76, and Jack Bender, 82—12—70, a total of 300. Second prize was taken by Roy Husbands, 95—21—74; H. E. Cole, 101—22—79; C. E. Carey, 90—14—76, and Raymond Campbell, 94—20—74, a total of 303. Raymond Campbell won the prizes for fewest putts with 30, and Herbert Craig and William Neunfeld tied for high gross with 122.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

BURNHAM AVENUE VIADUCT SOON TO BE CONSTRUCTED

Unless Street Is Fixed Value Will Be Lost.

After some six years of red tape and delays among the official units having to do with the railways, rivers and highways, work has been ordered by the county which will transform Burnham avenue, hitherto a useless thoroughfare to traffic, into an additional artery to accommodate travel at the southeast of Chicago—sometime.

Some of the reasons why Burnham avenue has been useless and dangerous were because it crossed at grade nineteen railway tracks, because it was only partly paved, because it was frequently overflowed, and because it was never opened at the northern end, according to highway engineers of the Chicago Motor club.

So far as the line of street is concerned it parallels Torrence avenue and, if passable, would offer a connection between an accessible point at about 135th street and the Lincoln highway, being intersected by Ridge road, Michigan City road, 154th street, Sibley boulevard, and the Glenwood-Dyer road [all paved], when finally completed.

A Long Viaduct.

The improvement now under contract consists of a viaduct extending for two-thirds of a mile over the Calumet river, the nineteen railway tracks and the State-Hammond highway.

The separation of the highway grades between Burnham avenue and the Hammond highway seems destined to be the first major highway grade separation to be completed by the county, although a number of them have been started during the last four years.

The cost of the viaduct will be about $560,000, of which the county will pay about $200,000, the balance being chargeable to the Michigan Central, Indiana Harbor Belt, and Baltimore and Ohio railways, under a belated decision of the Illinois commerce commission. It will be the most extensive permanent viaduct structure in the county road system and plans are complete for all phases of the structure.

Ends Unfinished.

Like most of the highways in the county and state systems, the thoroughfare will not be a complete, continuous unit, even after half a million dollars has been expended upon it. There will still remain a mile or so of rough and pitted asphalt-macadam paving at the north end and a couple of miles entirely unopened at the Lincoln highway end. So far as can be ascertained, no effort is being made to finish up the ends, so that when the viaduct is completed it may be years before it will be accessible to traffic.

Thus Burnham avenue is destined to become another landmark on the highway perspective, illustrating the folly of isolated improvements and expenditures. Paved continuously throughout its length this avenue would offer a moderately important relief artery to traffic using the southeast gateways to Chicago, permitting much of that now traveling the shore route and Dunes highways, through East Chicago, Whiting and congested cities along the lake to Gary, to bypass the crowded roads and come in by way of Lincoln highway and connections.

Because of the condition of the street surface Burnham avenue has never amounted to much and property values have been held down. Were the small amount of work that now will be required to connect the passable portions to result from the current improvement with through traffic arteries be done it would become of enough importance as an artery of travel to enhance values and stimulate interest in this part of the city.

Want Paris Police to Stop Bad Motor Manners

Members of auto clubs of France will lend their fast touring cars to police officers for investigations of bad road manners, which are causing an increasing number of serious accidents, if the suggestion of the French sporting magazine, Auto, is adopted. It is proposed that police in civilian clothes travel in private cars to seek drivers who violate road laws.

National Program of 200 Ft. Roads Adopted by Japs

A national road program adopted by the Japanese government is one of the many signs of progress in motor transport. Tokio is a leader of the world in its highway policies, as it is building 200 foot roads radiating out from the city in various directions.

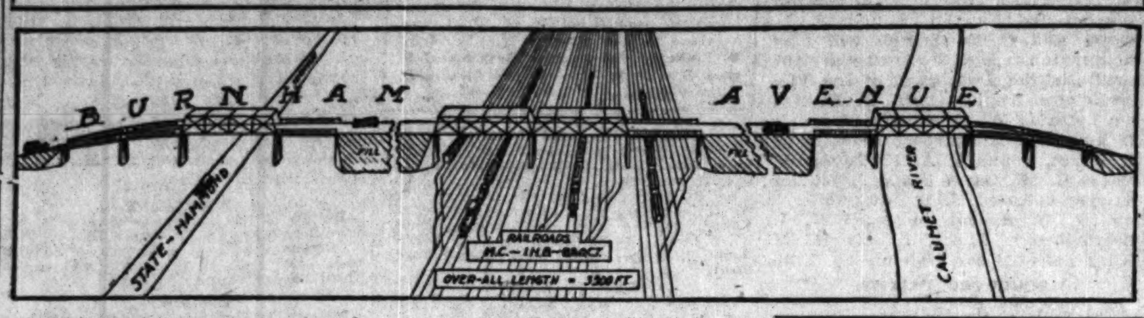
SUBSTITUTES FOR AUTO LICENSE TAGS HAVE NO LEGAL STANDING

Home-made auto tags, some crudely painted on wood or cardboard, some neatly printed either with numbers or the words "in transit," are seen frequently on the streets and highways. Such tags have no legal standing in either Wisconsin or Minnesota.

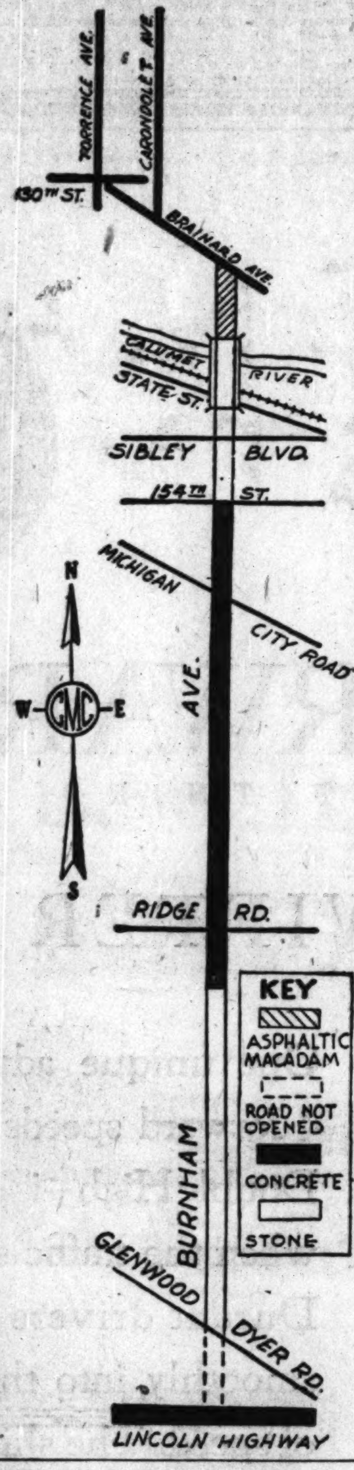
According to Minnesota officials there is only one substitute for a license which has any legal standing. That is the permit issued by duly appointed agents of the secretary of state in a number of cities in the state, upon a special form supplied by the secretary of state. Such permits may be issued by these agents at the time they forward the application for license, with the necessary fee, to the secretary of state. It is good only until the plates are received and in no case more than 15 days.

If you must drive your new car while waiting for your license plates, the bulletin suggests, either get an official permit or stay close to home where you are well known.

STRIDE OF A GIANT VIADUCT



The Burnham avenue viaduct, ordered under contract by the county board, is to be 3,500 feet long and will span a river, nineteen railway tracks, and another highway. The drawing, prepared by the Chicago Motor club's highway engineers, shows the method of construction and existing mass of railroad tracks which now bars traffic from the street. The strip map shows what Burnham avenue has in the way of improvements to promise traffic facilities when completed.



VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

THE LIGHT THAT FAILED!

Chicago, June 18.—We who must wend our way across the street in front of the Tribune Tower a couple of times a day are wondering whether we were not better off before we had the stop and go lights. In those days when we had to plunge we took our risks, but we were watching our steps carefully. Now, with the assurance of our green light, we're apt to start serenely across, only to be mowed down by one of the many determined motorists who consistently disregard these particular lights. Cars regularly dash through these lights. Can't we have an island light that drivers can see?

TRIBUNITES.

REFERRED TO MR. SWANSON.

Chicago, June 18.—It seems that THE TRIBUNE did not mention what happened to Officer L. A. Murphy, who arrested Marvin T. Thatcher.

In our opinion, formed by the stories, the officer should have then been arrested for speeding, breaking through the traffic signal, and for false arrest and the case be prosecuted.

If all the facts have been given, then common decency requires that the officer be disciplined, and that the story of the discipline be published in the daily papers.

J. SULLIVAN.

BLAMES THE MAYOR ET AL.

Chicago, June 19.—The Addison street pavement between California and Cicero is badly torn up, with holes ranging from three to 12 inches in depth the entire distance, which resulted in a broken front spring at a cost of $10 to me. Is there no remedy for such deplorable conditions of streets in Chicago? I should think that the city has, by this time, collected sufficient money from vehicle owners to start repairing streets. Chicago will be a wonderful town to live in when "Big Blah" Thompson and "Highpockets" Faherty are out of the city administration.

STANLEY JARECKI

THE MAYOR SPEAKS.

Muskegon, Mich., June 20.—In Voice of the Traffic there appeared an article signed E. Staehli in which this gentleman proceeds to give North Muskegon a rap because he got into trouble there. I think we should be heard on this matter. There are a number of statements made in this article which create a false impression.

It would appear from Mr. Staehli's article that he was driving not faster than 15 miles an hour. The police record shows he was charged with driving 40 miles an hour. His remark regarding the traffic officer referred to as "ill-mannered rowdyism" is untrue. Our traffic officer is paid a salary and does not depend upon arrests on the fee basis.

The remarks of this gentleman regarding the towns of Shelby and Hart also suggest to us that possibly he may have had some difficulty in those cities. Michigan speed laws are very liberal outside of the corporate limits, but in the corporate limits it is only fair that we should protect our children and grownups from fast driving. We want to encourage all the tourist traffic possible, but this must always be considered from the standpoint of safety first. I am sure he does North Muskegon and its officers an injustice.

ERNEST EIMER,
Mayor of North Muskegon.

POLICE STUFF.

Chicago, June 18.—Last night my car was stolen from in front of a theater where my brother-in-law had left it. He discovered it about 11:30 and, not being able to get a trolley, walked home to find if I had taken it. I immediately called the police and was told that I would have to go to the station in person and they would then see what they could do. It was then 12:30 a. m. The station was two miles away and the only transportation available was a taxi. In other words, I should lose a night's sleep and go to considerable expense before I could get the slightest assistance. In addition, I have yet to find a desk sergeant that is civil, much less courteous. To my mind this is a typical example of Chicago police protection. The lawbreaker is the recipient of the protection due the citizen and taxpayer. By the time I could have possibly reported the loss, the thief might well be safe in Indiana, as though he would not be perfectly safe from detection, or more so, in Chicago.

A SOUTH SIDER.

SHOTGUN ENFORCEMENT.

Chicago, June 21.—The police have treated pedestrians with commendable consideration in connection with the crossing ordinance. Nevertheless, it is only too apparent that there are offenders who disobey all signals and persist in law violation, and undoubtedly there are many who have it in their minds to do so as soon as the extra guards are withdrawn. For this reason enhanced penalties and more rigid enforcement should be instituted. I suggest that in accordance with a well known example, the police be armed with sawed-off shotguns and encouraged to use them in singling out the offenders from a crowd. A suspicion that a pedestrian approaching the crossing might have the intention to cross unlawfully ought to be a sufficient justification for prompt action.

WILLIAM MANNHARDT.

Open Automobile Route Into Interior of Mexico

At 12:01 o'clock on tomorrow morning, the newly completed bridge across Rio Salinas at Cienega de Flores, Mexico, will be opened to automobile traffic, according to announcement by W. H. Furlong, tour manager of the San Antonio chamber of commerce. The bridge will make available for traffic about 120 miles of newly graded and surfaced road straight south into old Mexico from Neuva Laredo. A celebration under direction of Gen. Juan Andreu Almazan, is scheduled to commemorate the highway achievement. This is the first considerable sector of the proposed Pan-American highway to be completed.

More Motorists Hurt in Accidents than Pedestrians

Motorists are more liable to injury in traffic than pedestrians, according to a report from the state of Massachusetts. This shows that there were 42,201 automobile injuries in the eastern state last year, and of this number 23,077, more than half, were injured while riding in motor cars.

ALL RIGHT OF WAY FOR HIGHWAY 49 NOW NEGOTIATED

Maj. George A. Quinlan, county superintendent of highways, has reported to the county board that all the county's obligations in the matter of furnishing right of way for state route No. 49, a four lane pavement extending from Kankakee to a junction with South Park avenue near 120th street, have been negotiated.

The last of six small parcels of land required for the line of highway have been purchased or contracted for he reported, the sixth being under contract for delivery this week.

Highway 49 is thirty-seven miles long, and portions of it have been completed for two years. For more than a year the northern end of the pavement terminated in a mucky cornfield near Richton Park. Easement at this point was obtained a year ago and contractors have been grading toward the city as far as Hazel Crest. The balance of the grading will probably be put under contract shortly, and the paving of the Cook county end of the route may be started this fall or next spring.

Make Hit and Run Offense a Felony, Expert Says

The only way to reach the hit and run motorist is to make the offense a felony, irrespective of the extent of the damage done, in the opinion of E. Austin Baughman, Maryland commissioner of motor vehicles. "The automobile driver who hits a pedestrian and goes on without stopping to learn the injuries he has inflicted commits the most despicable offenses in the whole category of automobile law violations," Mr. Baughman declared, commenting on the large increase in such cases in Maryland.

EMMERSON HERE TOMORROW FOR ROADCONFERENCE

Will Discuss Widening with Highway Experts.

Cook county pays for ONE-HALF and gets ONE-TWENTY-FIFTH of the state's highways.

BY PUTNEY HAIGHT.

The campaign pledge of Gov. Louis L. Emmerson that $7,000,000 of the forthcoming gasoline tax funds will be spent in the widening of main traveled arterial highways extending outward from Chicago, is to be thrashed out tomorrow before a group of planners and officials in a conference with the governor and Frank T. Sheets, state highway engineer, announced for 10 o'clock at the Stevens hotel.

The money with which to widen the radial highway pavements to 40 feet is to come from the recently enacted gas tax law revenue, and the funds will start to come in immediately after Aug. 1, when it goes into effect. No part of the money will be available, however, until Jan. 1, 1931, when it will be possible to allocate such funds as may be in hand to definite widening projects in the Chicago area.

To "Talk About It."

The purpose of the conference appears to be somewhat vague and the invitations to planning officials, motor club heads and city and county highway representatives, failed to elucidate. In a general way, however, it is concluded that the conference will "talk about it" at length and in detail, with a view of getting some unanimity of opinion upon the question of priority of construction.

As pointed out by THE TRIBUNE when the proposal to interest the candidates for governor in a pledge was first suggested last spring, the principal radials, or those of most traffic importance to the area, number seven. As specified at the time they are state routes 42-A, 21, 5, 6, 18, 4 and 1. Later, at the suggestion of the Chicago Motor club, several intervening routes were included as future projects.

In the preelection discussions it was indicated that the preferred improvements would be the widening of these routes out from Cook county [where their widening has already been provided for and finance arranged] for a distance of from 100 miles or so, as an initial good roads gesture.

Suggests 30 Foot Roads.

Since Gov. Emmerson has been in office, in discussing the project, he has indicated that with the $7,000,000 in sight for the purpose, it might be wiser to determine upon a plan for widening the existing pavements immediately to three lanes and construct the fourth lane as the funds became available. This plan would serve as an important relief to the congestion existing on the highways beyond the county limits for a distance of fifty miles or thereabouts, and would serve traffic within the next two years.

On the other hand, if the construction of 40 foot pavements at once beyond the county line were determined upon, the complications and engineering and other technical fuss involved would probably set back the actual relief for two or three years or more, even upon the most favorably conditioned existing radials.

Besides the subject of the expenditure of the definitely appropriated $7,000,000 for radial route widening, it is expected that the subject of highway grade separations, for which $2,500,000 was set aside in the law, will also be discussed. It was understood that the highway grade separation program principally affected downstate conditions, and that little of it will be allocated in the Chicago area.

Still further, the question of fulfilling the state's obligations in building state bond issue roads in the Chicago area and Cook county is expected to come up.

Previous to election it was stated by Engineer Sheets and the governor that the bond issue highways provided by the law for Cook county and the immediate surrounding territory but left undone by the Len Small administration, would be put under construction immediately if the people so voted. The people did so vote, and the matter of building these neglected routes is now a question of immediate importance to this region.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Al G. Fach, chosen to succeed Tim Beard as executive secretary of the Chicago Automobile Trade association, has taken charge of the activities of the organization. Mr. Beard, who has had charge of affairs for eighteen years, is now manager of the National Used Car Market Report. Mr. Fach has shown distinguished ability in building up the Cleveland Automobile club and the national dealers' association.

M. J. Lanahan, active in the affairs of the Dashiell organization, has been elected a director of the trade association. He has been a prominent figure in Dodge distribution here since 1914, when he joined Mr. Dashiell as a salesman.

Diamond T has equipped the Collins Ice Cream company with a fleet of thirteen trucks offering impressive operating economies. In the new type vehicles eighty pounds of "dry ice" takes the place of 1,200 pounds of water ice formerly required, plus 100 pounds of salt. Smaller trucks now used do the work of the larger predecessors more cheaply.

International Harvester tomorrow will have on display at the Fair the truck which crossed the Sahara desert, together with window displays of miniatures of the vehicle.

Two Roosevelt stock sedans, running continuously at Indianapolis, have broken all existing automotive nonstop endurance records. They remained constantly in motion under their own power 173 hours, 32 minutes and 1 second, under the official observation of the American Automobile association, Marmon executives announce. Kelly and Robbins, in their Fort Worth airplane, kept going 172 hours, 32 minutes, 1 second.

W. E. Butler, president of Butler Motors, Reo distributors, announces appointment of Harry Wulfers as service manager at their new south side branch, 6130 Cottage Grove avenue.

Duesenberg, Inc., a unit of Auburn, has set a new record for production of cars above the $10,000 class. Ten to 50 cars is looked on as high production for a year in this price, but Duesenberg is turning out an average of one and a quarter cars daily while orders are coming in at the rate of two and a half cars daily.

"I do not believe that it is within the power of man to say that demand for any necessity is limited," says R. J. McAneeny, president of Hudson. "That depends upon the purchasing power of the dollar, and the more we can increase that purchasing power the greater the demand will be. Automobiles are today sold for lower prices than ever before and their value has increased immeasurably. When we admit there is a limit to production progress will stop."

Six hour service in installing nonshatterable glass in any make of car is planned for Chicago by Triplex, according to D. E. Noel, president, who announced the opening of a service station at 2315 Indiana avenue.

Blinding light reflected from the windshield into the eyes of a driver has long been recognized as a source of danger in night driving. This condition has now been practically eliminated in the bodies on the new Viking eight, recently introduced as a companion car to the Oldsmobile six.

BLISS SEES BUSINESS AID

Chicago's $15,000,000 gateway street improvement plan, now under consideration by the Cook county board of commissioners will benefit retail business more than any civic move since the Chicago plan came into existence, in the opinion of C. H. Bliss, general sales manager of Nash.

With the county authorities laying down center pavements within the city to meet all of the highways entering Chicago and the city coöperating by widening these gateway streets and completing the pavements to proper widths, he pointed out, a half hundred new traffic outlets will be formed, and this diffusion of traffic will allow new business districts to spring up in every section of the city.

"Retail business always follows improved traffic movements," Mr. Bliss said. "In automobile merchandising as in other retail lines, decentralization of business has proved highly beneficial.

"Building wide highway pavements up to the city gates is a splendid move by the state and county highway departments, but most of the benefit of these roads is lost when motor traffic is forced to jam itself into a limited number of through streets entering the city and to follow the old congested lanes of traffic to central business districts. The new plan will certainly remedy this condition."

GLIDING, LANDING AND TAKEOFF OF SHIPS DISCUSSED

First of Series on Safety in Airplanes.

[This is the first of a series of articles on safety in airplanes. It deals with landing, takeoff and gliding speeds, and distances.]

BY ROBERT WOOD.

The summer increase in flying activity has brought a series of casualties from airplane accidents in various parts of the country and public confidence in aviation has been affected by them, perhaps to a greater degree than the facts warrant. However, this is due to the fact that the public learns more of the accidents themselves than of the causes which often are not determined until some time after the accident has occurred.

Adequate analysis of such accidents will not be available until the department of commerce publishes its semiannual report of air accidents giving the complete picture for the entire country, yet it is possible to draw a few conclusions from these latest catastrophes.

Inexperienced Flyers.

The majority may be attributed to inexperienced flyers, students or untrained pilots flying antiquated or unworthy planes from roadside pastures. The danger here is in the effect upon public opinion. Although it will be possible, through local laws, to curtail such accidents and to rule incapable flyers and their unsafe aircraft from the air, it will be as impossible to eliminate them entirely as it is to stop motor accidents due to foolhardy driving.

Second in importance are the accidents which have occurred during maneuvers of army and navy planes. There have been a number of this type recently. Service planes flying in formation have collided in mid-air or while landing or taking off and have crashed to the ground. The character of service training lends itself to accidents of this type. Stunting is a necessary training for the pilots prepairing to battle in the air.

The third group of accidents have occurred to transport and passenger planes while engaged in taking off or landing. This type deserves a broader consideration for it presents a problem whose solution has not yet been satisfactorily worked out, and until it is flying may not be considered an entirely safe means of travel.

Accidents to Passenger Ships.

Accidents in the last group mentioned have been attributed to various causes: small landing fields, loss of flying speed while landing, poor judgment of pilots, etc. Larger airports and better trained pilots have been suggested as a solution, but this would not get at the source of the thing, for no matter how perfect the plane, pilot or engine, airplanes will always be required at one time or another to make forced landings.

This is especially true of commercial carriers which are required to fly in unfavorable weather. Such planes frequently meet with impossible flying weather and are consequently driven to the ground. These landings are not necessarily due to failure of either engine or plane. The plane produced today by the reputable manufacturer is a sturdy craft. Its wings do not suddenly fall off; its engine rarely fails. But storms and fog will bring it down and then it must be able to alight in the first garden patch available and take off again without mishap.

It leads to these conclusions: The safe aircraft of the future must have a wide range of speed. It must be able to land at a slow rate of speed and attain high speed during flight, for an airplane must be able to dash through from one point to another while the weather is favorable. It must be able to come into a field over surrounding obstructions and land in a short distance. It must be able to take off on a short run and climb over these obstacles.

Aircraft Competition.

Such requirements are more essential in the smaller single motored commercial planes, for in the case of engine failure there is no other alternative but to land. In the case of the multimotored plane failure of one engine leaves reserve power. With all motors working the plane has greater power and thus is able to fly through conditions which a one motored plane could not negotiate.

Realizing that the safe aircraft must be almost birdlike in its performance, the Guggenheim Foundation for the promotion of aeronautics has established a safe aircraft competition and has drawn up requirements which the contestants must meet. These requirements present a picture of how the future airplane will maneuver. They are summarized here as follows:

The aircraft must be able to maintain level and controlled flight at a speed not in excess of 35 miles per hour; be able to glide for a period of three minutes with all power switched off, during which time the air speed shall never exceed 38 m. p. h. It shall land with all power switched off, and after first touching the ground shall come to rest within a distance of 100 feet.

Must Clear Obstructions.

The aircraft shall make a steady glide over an obstruction 35 feet high and land in a straight line with all power switched off. After landing it shall come to rest within a distance of 300 feet from the base of obstruction. The aircraft shall take off after running not more than 300 feet from a standing start. After taking off within a distance of 300 feet from the standing start it shall clear an obstruction 35 feet high at a distance of 500 feet from rest.

The ship shall be able to glide with all power switched off so that the angle between the flight path and the horizontal is not greater than eight degrees, and also be able to glide so that this angle is not less than 16 degrees. The object of this test is to demonstrate the ability of the plane to glide for a reasonable distance in case of engine failure and alternatively to glide at steep angles in order to facilitate the approach to a possible landing ground.

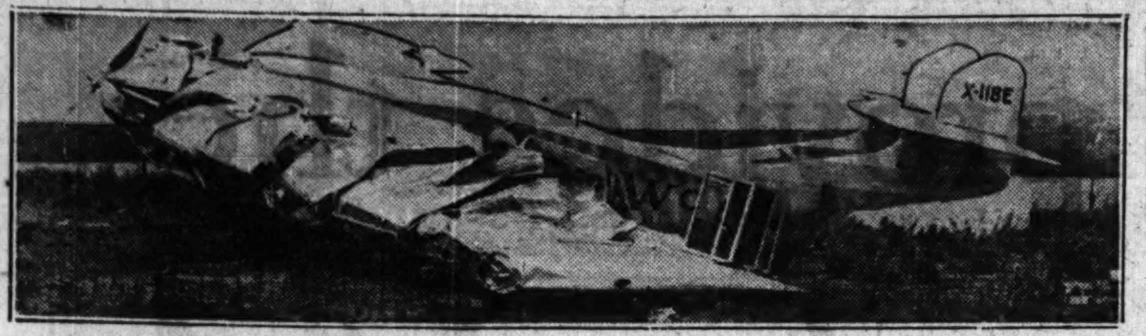
Other requirements are set up to test the stability of the plane under all normal flying conditions—that is to say, that if the attitude of the plane is disturbed either by gusts or by the application of the controls the aircraft shall return to its original attitued of its own accord when the controls are left free. Other requirements will test its ability to recover from attitudes into which it gets because of sudden failure under difficult circumstances.

The plane must have a maximum speed of 110 miles per hour and a rate of climb of 400 feet per minute with a useful load of five pounds per horse power.

Government Plans Long Channel to Test Seaplanes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Construction of a 2,500 foot seaplane test channel, which will permit the scientific designing of seaplane floats and flying boat hulls and their testings at take off and landing speeds, is planned by the national advisory committee for aeronautics. Germany, Italy, and Great Britain have such channels, and these countries, especially the first two, are leading the world today in seaplane and flying boat construction.

AN ARGUMENT FOR PAVED RUNWAYS



"It hit a hole" is the explanation of the cause of many a ground crackup. This Chapman-Burnelli plane was scheduled to fly 300 miles out to sea to meet the Leviathan when a wheel sank into a hole on a New York airport. The plane was wrecked, but the pilot and mechanic escaped injury. The picture is an argument for hard surface runways for big transport planes. [Pacific and Atlantic Photo.]

Airmail Pilots Save Homes by Reporting Fires

In addition to keeping one eye on a dozen or more different dials attached to his instrument board and sighting familiar landmarks with the other while listening to his humming motor, the air mail pilot assumes the job of aerial fire marshal. The American Air Transport association has received three reports of mail pilots who have sighted and reported fires in residences as they winged along the airways.

Detroit-Cleveland Air Service Fare Is Cut

A reduction in fare from $18 to $14 on the Detroit-Cleveland division, effective June 15, is announced by the Stout Air services, Inc. The round trip fare is reduced from $35 to $25.

AVIATION QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. R. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q.—What do the letters N. A. C. A. stand for with regard to aviation?—A. B., Chicago.

N. A. C. A. is an abbreviation for the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. It is subsidized by the government and its main field of endeavor is the solution of problems presented by the army, navy, or the industry in general dealing with increased efficiency, safety, and economy.

Such pins are made and sold by Meyer's Shop, 1331 "F" street, N. W., Washington, D. C. They could probably furnish you with a photograph at nominal cost.

Q.—What is the speed of an old war Spad and a Nieuport? Where can I purchase one of them? Can any one who wears glasses get a transport license? Can any one possibly get into the army or navy training school if he wears glasses?—G. B., Evanston, Ill.

The high speed of the average Spad was 136 miles per hour and of the Nieuport 120 miles per hour. I do not think you can purchase one of these planes anywhere, as they are now obsolete and very few were ever shipped to the United States. If your vision can be corrected to normal you will be able to pass the department of commerce physical examination as far as your eyes are concerned. To the best of my belief the army and navy will not accept people who need eye correction.

Q.—Is the Ireland company getting out some new models and what kind, size, etc., are they?—C. A., Chicago.

The latest Ireland aircraft product is a five place amphibian. It may be had in either open or inclosed models. The power used is the Wright J-6 300 horsepower Whirlwind or the ship is also available with a Pratt & Whitney Wasp motor.

LAST RA-TA-TA OF THE RIVETER SEEMS NEARER

Welding May Lessen Building Racket.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Relief apparently is looming nearer for the nerves of Chicagoans on edge from the racket—often approaching the proportions of a small battle—of the riveters engaged in their task of binding together the steel framework of the city's latest skyscrapers.

We have two good omens of a day when the tallest of our skyscrapers will be put up with comparatively little noise through the use of welding to unite the skeleton framework in place of riveting.

One is to be found in the interest displayed by engineering experts and city building officials throughout the east and middle west in a building at Niagara Falls, N. Y., in which the steel structural members were welded together instead of riveted.

The other is found right here in Chicago, where members of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' union, local No. 1, anticipating a day when they may throw away their riveting hammers in favor of welding devices, are going to school to learn how to weld.

200 Experts Study Building.

Last week some 200 engineers and building experts gathered in Niagara Falls to inspect a structure for the Linde Air Products company, a subsidiary of the Union Carbide and Carbon corporation, on which the finishing touches are being put. In this edifice—a research building—oxyacetylene welding completely replaced riveting in the fabrication and erection of the steel framework. The task, according to reports, was completed virtually without noise.

The Niagara Falls building is approximately 260 feet long and 75 feet wide, and it is 42 feet 5 inches from the floor to the lower chord of the trusses. About 300 tons of steel were used. Though several small buildings have been erected by the gas welding method, this was the first large one to be so put up, and the event was one considered of first importance by the building world.

The structure was designed and erected in accordance with the Niagara Falls building code and the American Welding society code.

Chicago sent a delegation, which included Robert Knight, for twenty-six years deputy building commissioner of the city and president of the Building Officials' Conference of America; T. L. Condron, architectural engineer; F. C. Hasse, general manager Oxweld Railroad Service company; E. J. Hayden and J. L. Banash, chairman of the American Society of Safety Engineers.

Little Noise Here.

Following the inspection trip Mr. Knight had this to say:

"This building is a wonderful demonstration of the possibilities of gas welding. The process may prove practical for skyscrapers of the future. It is up to the welders to prove this, and they have done a fine job at Niagara Falls."

Welding, being a comparatively new process, Chicago's building code contains no authorization for its general use. However, the committee at work on the new code is taking the subject up, and doubtless there will be provision for its use here. Mr. Knight was so pleased with the result of the Niagara Falls work that he felt it a pity no members of the committee could have been present to see it.

Knight Is Pleased.

Mr. Knight explained that welding, to be satisfactory, must be perfectly executed, with perfect materials. He emphasized that it would be possible to have a general use only through work by experts employed by highly reputable contracting organizations. He recalled a recent German warship—hailed as one of the most powerful in its class afloat—as a high example of welding; a demonstration of what may be accomplished in the building industry.

Of course, many buildings, bridges, towers, etc., have been welded, either in whole or in part, through the electric arc method developed by the General Electric and Westinghouse Electric companies. A notable example of a structure put up by the arc welding method is a ten or twelve story hotel, completed about eight months ago at Hot Springs, Va. The contract for this building specified that there must be no noise during construction. There is the Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, a six story hotel, at Atlantic City. There are three buildings for the Westinghouse Electric company at Sharon, Pa., in which 815 tons of steel were used.

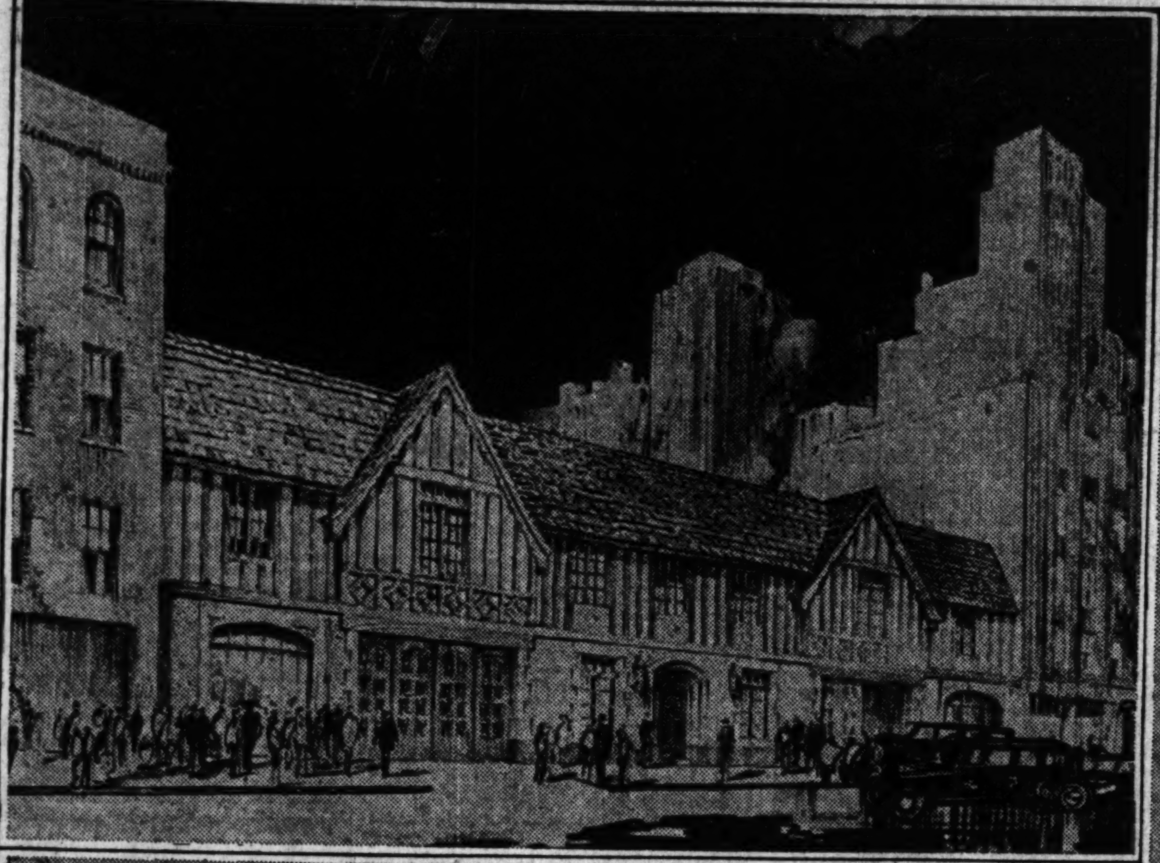
Other Welded Buildings.

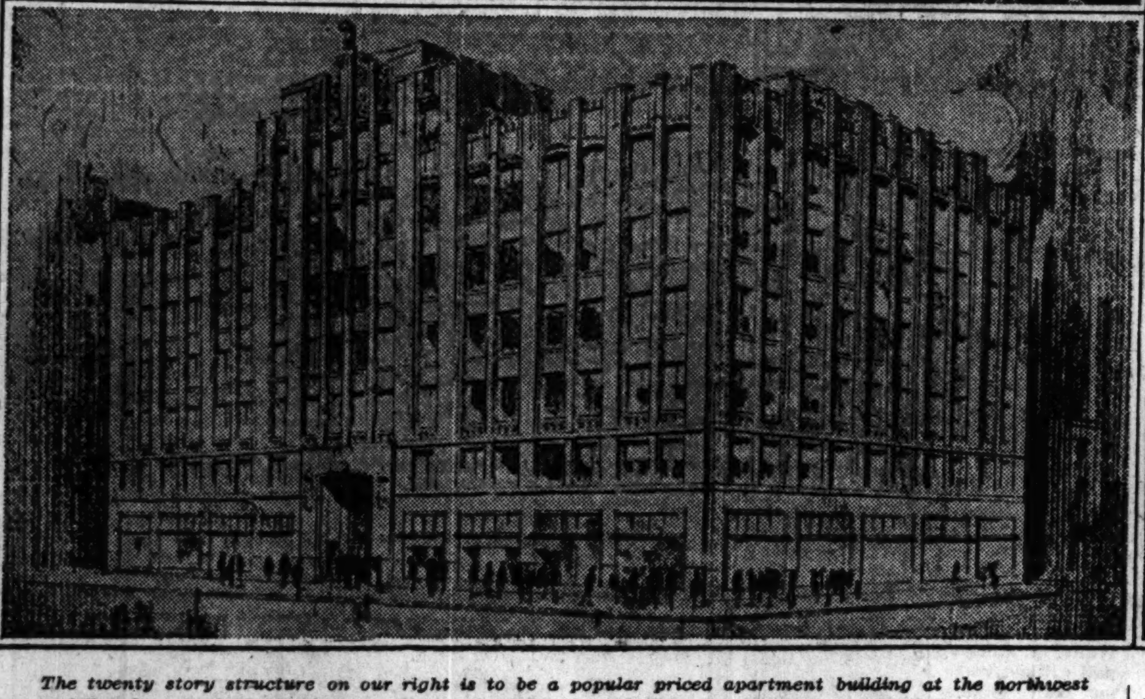
The General Electric company has a huge shop building at West Philadelphia—a huge welded structure, in which 1,000 tons of steel were used. The steel frame of a twenty-five story addition was welded to the original steel building of the First National bank of Detroit. And there are a host of other examples. In all, it is estimated there are about 150 welded buildings in the country.

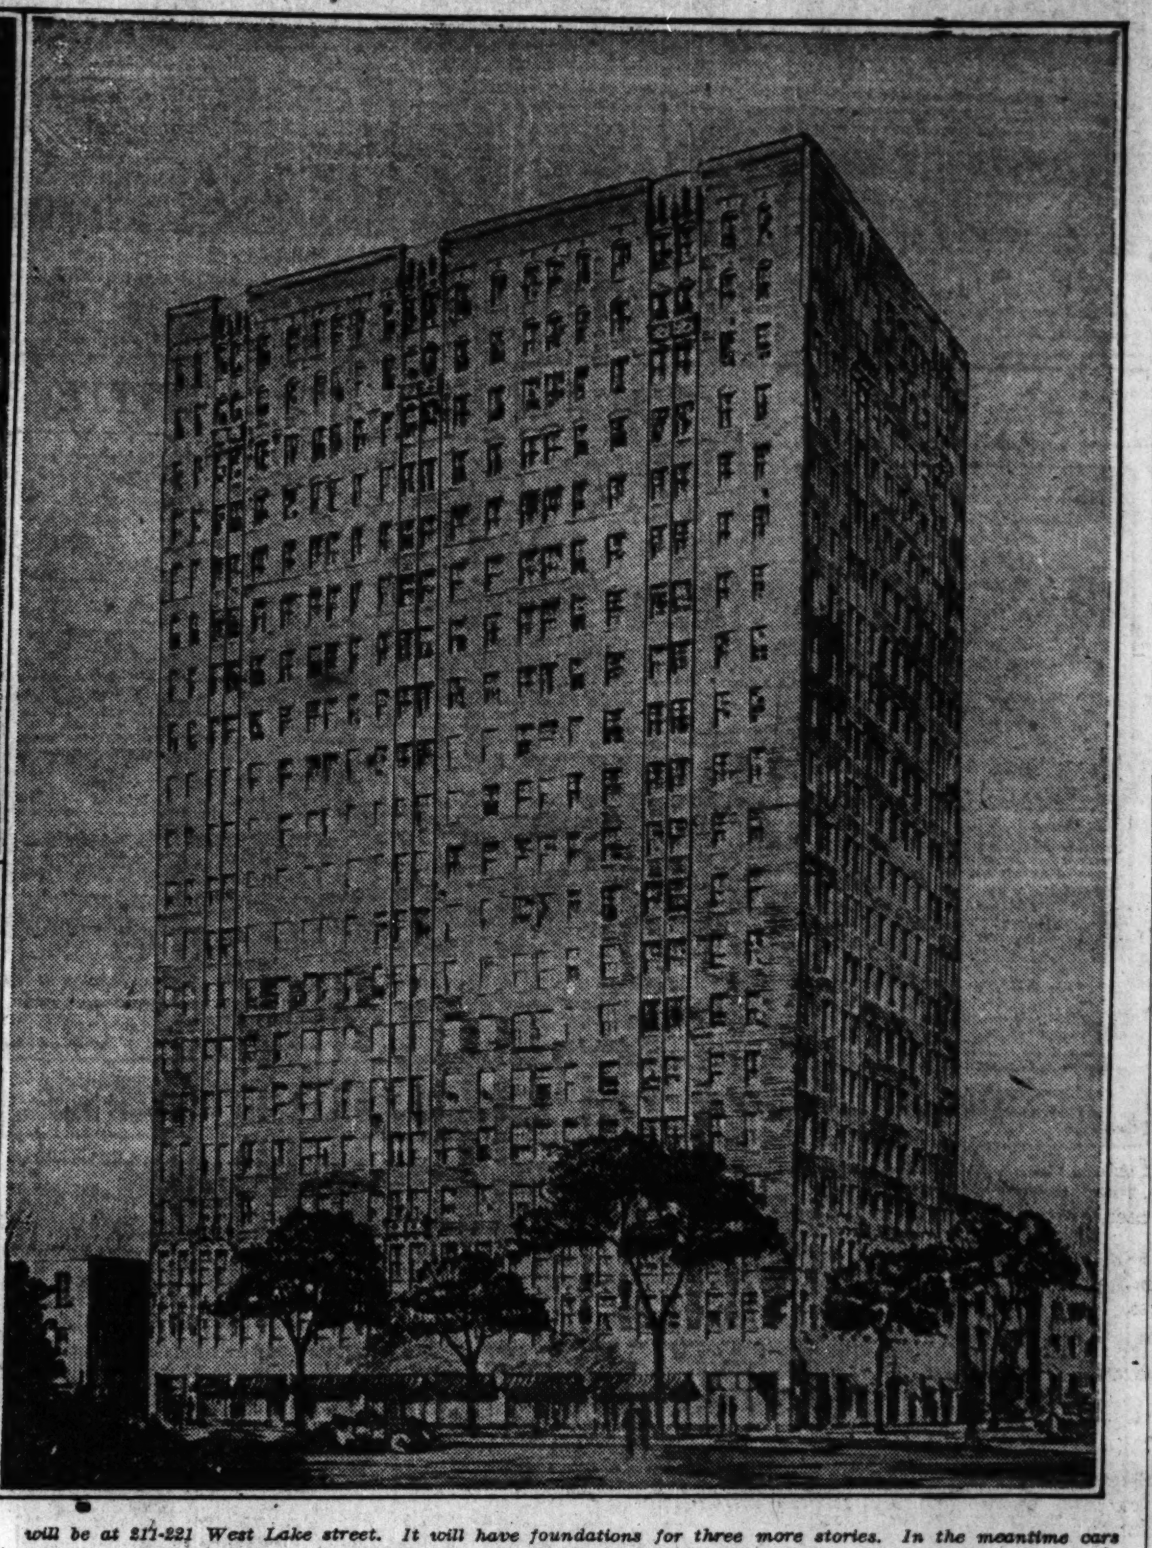
In Chicago repairs on the elevated railway structure have been made by welding, according to W. C. Pierson, a local representative of the Westinghouse Electric company.

Arthur Evensen of the Iron Workers' union states that three classes are held in welding—Monday, Wednesday, and Friday—each week at the Mitchell Welding company's plant at 228 North Western avenue. The school has been in operation four months, with twenty men in each class. The public schools may have a course next fall.

FOR THE LOOP AND THE NEAR NORTH SIDE







The twenty story structure on our right is to be a popular priced apartment building at the northwest corner of Dearborn and Maple streets. The owner is Carl A. Carlson, bank president. McNally & Quinn are architects. Details are given in the next column. George A. Mossack drew this sketch.

On your left, at the top, is what looks like a country club, but isn't. It's a garage done in the Elizabethan style of architecture by Nimmons, Carr & Wright for R. G. Lydy, owner of several open air garages. This will be at 211-221 West Lake street. It will have foundations for three more stories. In the meantime cars will be parked on the roof. Charles L. Morgan made the picture.

Below, also on your left, is a building to be erected at the southeast corner of Orleans and Huron streets from plans by H. A. Anderson. According to Lang, Weise & Cella, renting agents, the total investment will be $517,000. It will be a combination stock and office building. Attorney Edgar A. Buzzell is owner.

Lauds Shaw Design for Huge Plant

HOWARD VAN DOREN SHAW.

"The finishing of the tower addition to the R. H. Donnelley Sons' printing building at 22d and the south lake shore drive marks the completion of a structure that is destined to play a prominent part in the appearance of one of the important parts of the south shore improvements. Going south from the Field museum, after passing the stadium, it is the next important unit that forms the background or stage against which the main part of the 1933 World's Fair, and the landscape of South Shore drive, will be seen.

"It is fortunate, therefore, that this example of an industrial and business building happens to be one which represents the highest and best development of this type of structures in this city.

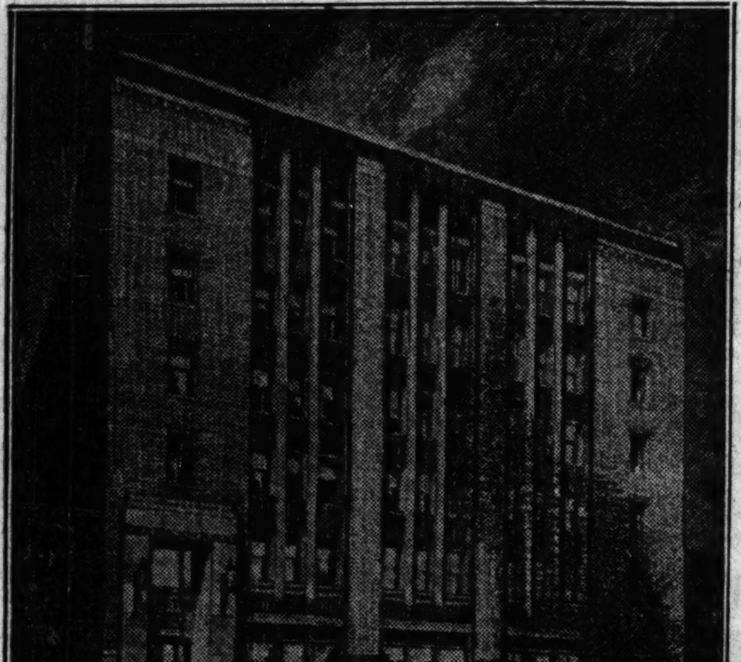
"This building might very well have been a commonplace affair—arriving only at the standard of appearance set by the strictly utilitarian. Or it might have been worse and taken the form of an ugly box of a building, with an unsightly sprinkler tank rising prominently above the roof and thereby displeasing or disappointing every one who looked at it. On the contrary, it is one of the most attractive and beautiful industrial buildings in the country.

"The original design of the building was made by the late Howard Van Doren Shaw, and the main building was built under his supervision. Since his death, the tower addition was designed by Howard Shaw's Associates, with Charles L. Klauder of Philadelphia as associate architect.

"As the recent addition now nears completion, it seems appropriate to recall the good service performed by the architects and builders, and to compliment the owners for their part in adding an 'architectural uplifter' to the city at this very conspicuous locality in the city's development.

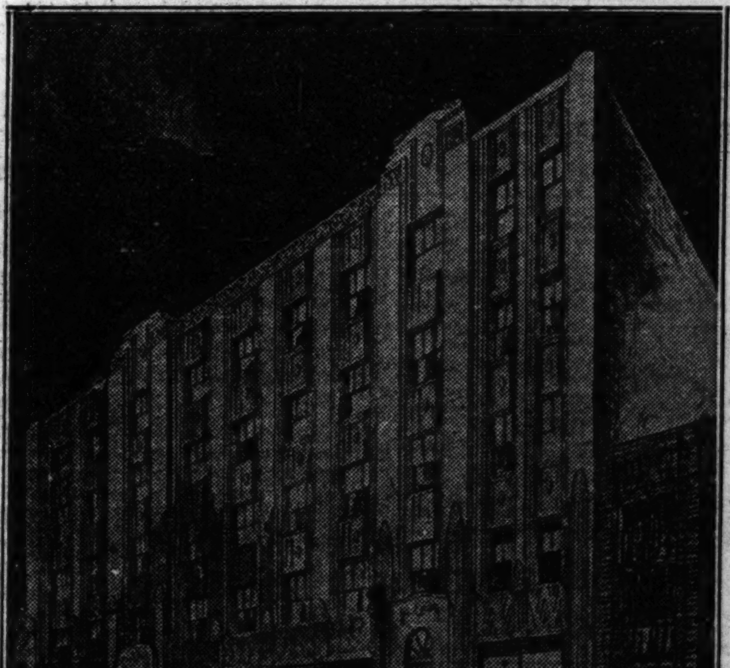
GEORGE C. NIMMONS."

SERVING PATRONS OF TALKIES



Picture of building to be erected for Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., at 1307 South Wabash avenue. Designed by Zimmerman, Saxe & Zimmerman, the structure will be six stories high and will house the Chicago headquarters of Warner Bros., Vitagraph, Inc., the Vitaphone corporation, and First National Pictures, Inc. Charles L. Morgan drew this picture.

ON SITE OF OLD COOPERAGE



Fox & Fox designed the above attractive building—a five story garage which will be erected at 2034-40 North Clark street. The site was for many years occupied by Thaler Bros.' cooperage. Sherburne M. Earling is the owner. Charles L. Morgan made this rendering.

PLAN $525,000 FLAT BUILDING FOR KENWOOD

The first unit in a $525,000 apartment building project has been announced for 1021 East 46th street. This will be a three story structure to represent a reported investment in land and building of $165,000. Herbert Sobel, architect, has drawn plans for a building to contain twenty-five suites. When the entire project is completed there will be eighty-four apartments.

According to Mr. Sobel as soon as work is finished on the first unit, construction will begin on the remaining two sections. It is expected the entire development will be completed by May, 1930.

The building will be of English Gothic style of architecture. Face brick and terra cotta trim will be used throughout. The first unit will be thirty feet wide with a depth of 256 feet. The lot is 55x256. The lot is on the south side of East 46th street, between Ellis and Greenwood avenues.

KATZMAN BUYS PAULTON HOTEL AT 909 WILSON

Meyer Katzman has purchased the five story Paulton hotel at 909 Wilson avenue from John N. and Elizabeth Gregori for a reported $350,000, subject to $246,500. The structure occupies a lot 60x145 feet and contains sixty-eight apartments. Mr. Katzman gave in part payment 246x150 feet of vacant located on Central avenue, between Wilson and Windsor. S. Cherman of E. A. Hastings & Co. was broker.

Lonnquist Is Honored by U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The United States chamber of commerce has appointed Axel Lonnquist, president of the Lonnquist company, real estate operators, to its civic development committee for the year 1929-30. This committee acts in an advisory capacity for the chamber of commerce and its directors on civic development matters.

ORGANIZE BODY TO HELP DEVELOP NEAR SOUTH SIDE

Announcement is made of the organization and election of officers of the North Indiana and Prairie Avenue Improvement association, having for its purpose the "regeneration" and progressive development of the locality roughly described as Indiana and Prairie avenues in the vicinity of 14th to 18th streets. The organization feels that the district needs cleaning up and proposes to work for the removal of undesirable tenants and the razing of wrecked or semi-wrecked buildings. It aims to promote beautification work in the section.

The membership consists of firms and individuals doing business in the district and of property owners. Eugene Taylor, secretary of the Chicago Plan commission, addressed the first meeting. E. F. Mansure, vice president of E. L. Mansure & Co., is president, Sanford Otis of the Central Trust company is vice president, and R. E. Weil, president of the Chicago Mercantile company, is secretary-treasurer.

Loop, North Side Get Two New Garages

A pair of garages before us this morning well illustrates the growing tendency of dressing up certain types of heavy construction business buildings which in past years have had scant attention paid them in an esthetic way. One of the garages—to be erected at 211-21 West Lake street, opposite Fork street, will be of Elizabethan design, giving the effect of a quaint old English structure. The other—to go up at 2036-40 North Clark street—will be an example of modern design.

R. G. LYDY.

Looking over the downtown building first, it's to be a two story structure for R. G. Lydy, who operates a chain of ten open air garages. Foundations will be put in for three additional floors. Supplementing the two floors, cars will be stored both in the basement and on the roof.

Mr. Lydy's garage was designed by Nimmons, Carr & Wright. The first floor will be finished in red face brick, with cut stone trim, while the second story will be given an English appearance through heavy oak timberwork.

Stalls inside the building will accommodate 320 cars and there will be four wash racks on the roof. The site, 100x181 feet, was leased by Mr. Lydy some time ago for 99 years through Albert H. Wetten & Co. The B. W. Construction company has the general contract. Completion is scheduled for Nov. 5. It is stated the enterprise will represent an investment of $275,000, in which connection the Old Dearborn State bank has underwritten a loan of $125,000.

The Clark street garage is being erected by Sherburne M. Earling on a site 75x200 feet opposite the tall apartment building being erected by Peter F. Reynolds. This garage, designed by Fox & Fox, will be five stories high, with a capacity of 550 cars.

The building will face on two thoroughfares. The Clark street façade will be of Indiana limestone and that on Lane court will be of pressed brick with cut stone trim. Work is to start in two weeks, with completion promised for early in November. The cost is placed at $275,000, including the land.

J. H. Salmon & Co and Joseph Gould were brokers, while Perlman, Goodman & Scolnik were attorneys in the purchase of the land by Mr. Earling.

POPULAR PRICE RENTALS ARE TO BE FEATURE

Structure Will Have 247 Suites.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

What is claimed will be the third popular priced tall apartment project in the last two years for the near north side district bounded by North Dearborn street North La Salle street, North avenue and the river, is announced by Carl A. Carlson, president of the Irving State Savings bank and an extensive owner of Chicago property. Mr. Carlson's building will be a twenty story structure to be erected at the northwest corner of Maple and North Dearborn streets.

CARL A. CARLSON.

Ground has just been broken for this newest in group homes for the slender pursed family and according to the architects, McNally & Quinn, it will be ready for tenants by April 1, 1930.

The building is to be known as 1100 North Dearborn and will ocupy a site fronting ninety feet on North Dearborn street and 150 feet on Maple street, extending west to an alley between Dearborn and North Clark streets. The property has been occupied for many years by an old brick residence which a few years ago was converted into a boarding house known as the Hotel Le Chateau. This has been wrecked to make way for the twenty story apartments.

Will Have 247 Suites

The new "1100 North Dearborn" building will contain a total of 247 apartments, all unfurnished. These will be divided into 171 suites of two rooms each. There'll also be fifty-seven flats of three rooms each and the remaining nineteen apartments will have four and five rooms.

There will be nineteen typical apartment floors. The first story will contain a large cafe which will be open both to the tenants and to the general public. The lobby will have marble floors and walls with hardwood wainscoting. The floors throughout the building will be of special parquetry type oak.

The building will have high speed electric elevators and will have a central refrigerating plant to pipe chill to the various apartment ice boxes. Bath rooms will have tile walls and showers. Woodwork throughout will be enameled.

Flats to Be Sound Proof.

And No. 1100 will boast something, so promise the architects, that even some of our more expensive apartment buildings overlook; all suites will be soundproofed. So the person in flat 23 who likes to make whoopee with his radio at all hours of the early morning, may do so without provoking squad calls by irate dwellers in 13 or suite 33.

Now that we've told about all we know regarding the inside of No. 1100, we'll say a word about the exterior. Mr. Carlson is not going to follow the example set by some of the near north side buildings in shirt-front architecture. He has had his architects design a structure which will be of face brick, with Bedford stone trim on all sides. As this will be the tallest building on North Dearborn street, it's to be hoped the architects have hidden their penthouses, tanks, etc., in a setback story and not scattered them about the roof which will be visible for miles.

The architecture will be a modern adaptation of English Tudor Gothic. The architects' plans call for a row of shops along the Maple street elevation and also a couple fronting on North Dearborn street.

$2,000,000 Investment.

The estimated investment in land and building is placed at approximately $2,000,000. The financing of the enterprise has been arranged for with the First Union Trust and Savings bank.

In the first paragraph we speak of this as the third popular priced project in this district to be announced in the last two years. John T. Wheeler, of John T. Wheeler & Co., originated the other two. One is his La Salle-Elm building which was opened to the public in April, 1928, and which has been completely occupied ever since the opening. This project now has a waiting list of seventy-five.

Mr. Wheeler's other project, a sixteen story building, is now under construction at the northwest corner of La Salle and Maple streets, just two blocks west of 1100 North Dearborn. His newest structure is to be operated along lines similar to his La Salle-Elm project. In both of these the prices are popular.

Wallace & Reynolds Lease Building on East Walton

Wallace & Reynolds, interior decorators, have leased the three story building at 66 East Walton place from the Arden Chemical company for ten years at an undisclosed rental. After alterations—superintended by Architects Anderson & Ticknor—the firm will occupy the building about Aug. 1. Duncan R. McVicker of Ross & Browne was broker.

CRAIG ASSERTS IRON WORKERS VIOLATED PACT

Handy Discusses Recent Strike Negotiations.

BY THOMAS WREN.

E. H. HANDY.

Two Chicago building trades—the architectural and structural iron workers—wilfully and deliberately violated and abrogated their trade arbitration agreements, when officers of both labor organizations sponsored strike action on June 1, according to a statement made by Edward M. Craig of the Building Construction Employers' association in the June issue of the Builders' monthly bulletin. Mr. Craig refers to the union agreements with the building contractors as "scraps of paper."

"The action of these two unions has caused not only the contractors, but the building public to question whether it is good practice to make agreements with labor unions," says Mr. Craig.

"If confidence is to be restored, the Chicago building trades should take immediate action to convince both contractors and building public that they are or are not able to control the affiliated trade organizations."

Held Secret Sessions.

"While negotiating with the Iron league for a new contract, the two international officers of the iron workers were holding secret sessions with another group of contractors for the purpose of using one against the other. They refrained from giving the employers any information regarding the strike action of the union. This was evidently done for selfish and political reasons."

The other group of contractors mentioned is the Chicago Steel Erectors association. The association signed a new agreement with the Structural Iron Workers' union, which conceded all demands of the union. It was responsible for ending the strike of the iron workers.

Handy Gives Views.

The steel erectors' secretary, E. H. Handy, says:

"Our body was formed late in 1926 when practically all erecting contractors of the Iron league, which is associated with the Builders' association, decided that another association was necessary. We signed up with the iron workers to keep the situation from going bad to worse. We wanted to avoid a repetition of 1926, when a strike of iron workers lasted for two weeks. Under-manning of jobs resulted and overtime at high rates had to be paid. The aftermath cost my company alone many thousands of dollars.

"There are about forty-seven building trades in Chicago. And the only disputes of recent years have centered about the iron workers. The men negotiating contracts with the unions are ones who generally maintain shops under their hats. When contract breaking is mentioned, the trouble with the iron workers is just as much the fault of the employer as the union. The employer permits the controversy to drag along until the last minute and then expects a settlement. Future action of the Iron league will largely determine the labor policy of the Chicago Steel Erectors' association.

Accepted Same Terms.

"Mr. Craig stated in an interview published in THE TRIBUNE on June 6 that the employers who had signed up were very small contractors, employing principally rod men. Yet his organization on that date acceded to the iron workers' demands and signed on the same terms as had the other body."

Chicago building trades leaders will attend a banquet Saturday evening, June 29, at the Palmer house, which will be given in honor of "Willie" Rooney of the sheet metal workers. Rooney will represent American labor at the British Trade Union congress, which will be held this summer at Belfast, Ireland.

CHICAGO TO GET LARGEST WHIP WORKS IN U. S.

Whips are still to be had and the largest whip factory in the country is located right here in Chicago. The above bit of information is a part of this week's contribution to the Fact Finders' Alliance, Inc., if there be such an organization.

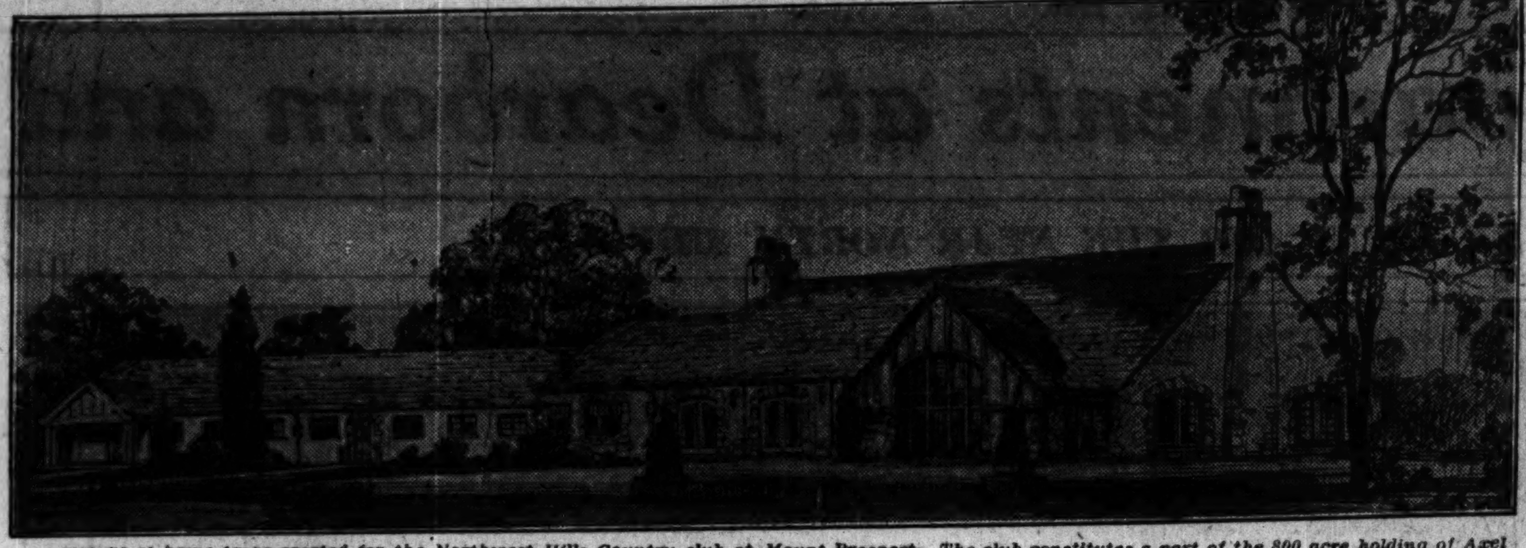
Walking about in the loop and along the boulevards, one might get the impression that whips are completely passé. But such is by no means the case. For the Chicago Industrial Construction company informs us that it has been awarded the contract for the erection of a factory for the Diamond Whip company at 609-13 North Western avenue.

And the company's factory is to be the largest of its kind in the country devoted to the manufacture of those articles which our four footed friends dislike so heartily. The Diamond Whip company was organized here about thirty-seven years ago by A. J. Schmidt, who is still its head. Mr. Schmidt says that his business now is better than when it was established, despite the automobile; not that more whips are being made, but the firms manufacturing them are growing fewer. Most of the Diamond company's whips are sent to the rural districts. The new factory will be [illegible] feet and will cost $15,000.

Pennsylvania Line Rents Office in Foreman Bank

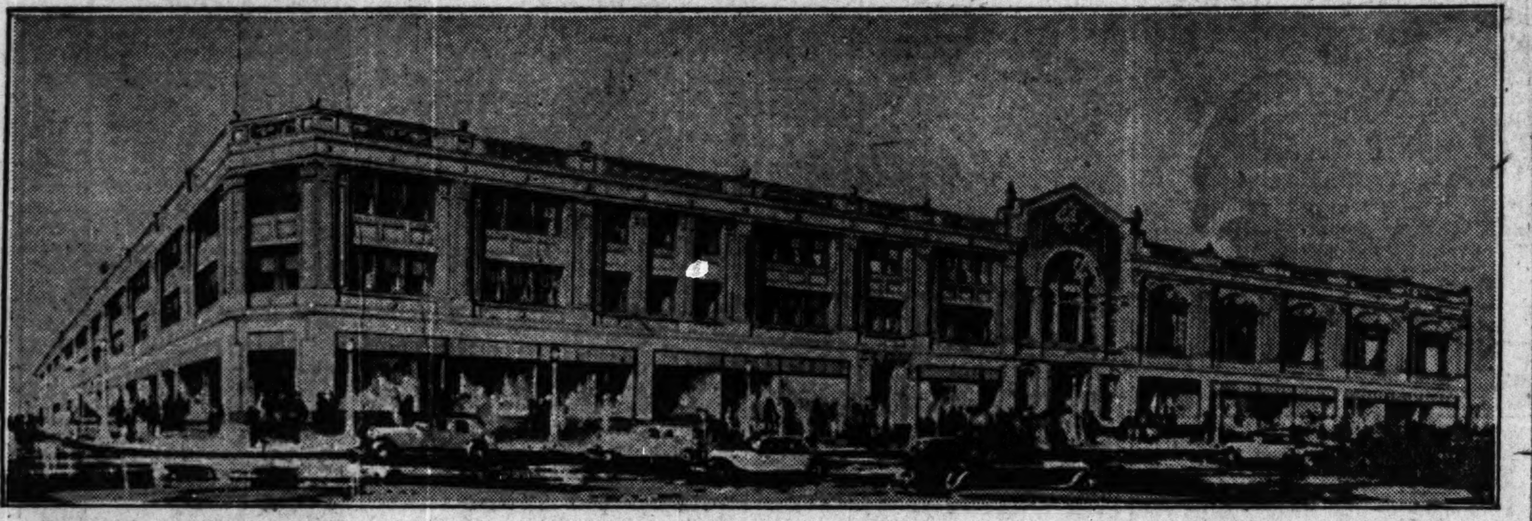
The Pennsylvania railroad has leased 2,008 square feet of space on the seventh floor of the Foreman National Bank building, at the southeast corner of La Salle and Washington streets. The quarters will be occupied by R. C. Caldwell, division passenger agent, and his staff.

NORTHWEST HILLS COUNTRY CLUB



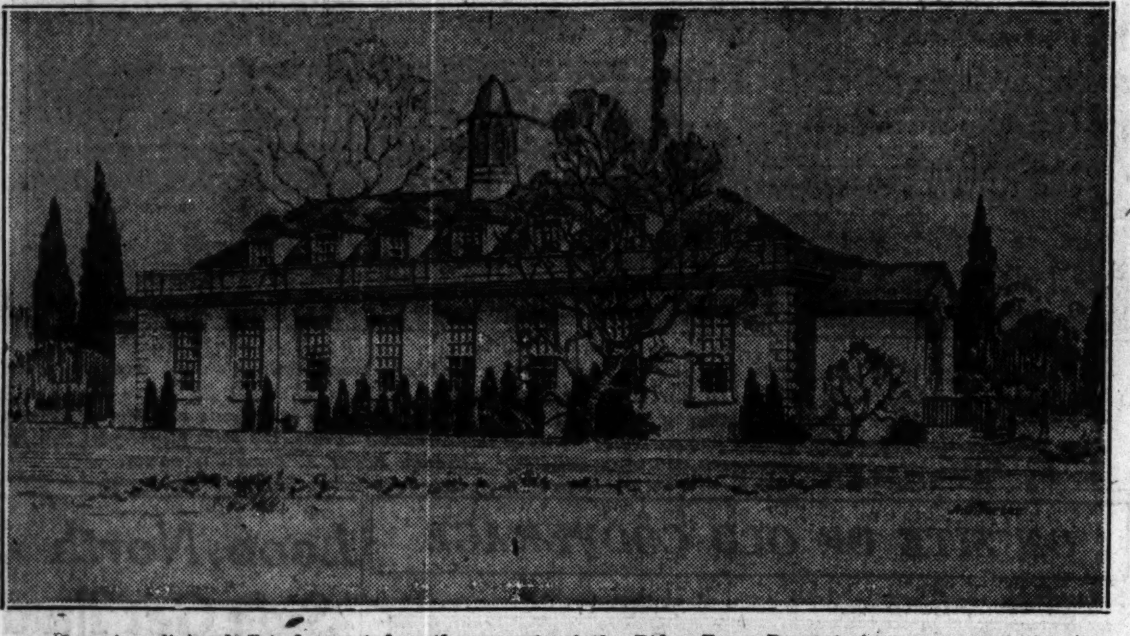
Picture of home to be erected for the Northwest Hills Country club at Mount Prospect. The club constitutes a part of the 800 acre holding of Axel Lonnquist in Mount Prospect, and is intended for the use of home owners in Mr. Lonnquist's Prospect Park Country club property. The golf club is deeded in perpetuity to the property owners. Two years ago these properties were farm lands, and now they constitute one of the most attractive new home districts in the Chicago suburban area. C. W. Lampe & Co. are architects. Lawrence Monberg made this rendering.

AT MILWAUKEE AND AGATITE



This building is under construction at the southeast corner of Milwaukee and Agatite avenues, from plans by Oldefest & Williams. The project is owned by a syndicate headed by M. F. Schiappone and William H. Hoops. The North Town Builders and Finance corporation has the general contract. Lawrence Monberg made the picture.

SMOOTHING PATH FOR HAPLESS YOUNGSTERS



Above is a dining hall to be erected on the property of the Ridge Farm Preventorium—a nonsectarian institution which restores to health children headed for tuberculosis—located a mile and a half west of Fort Sheridan. Edwin H. Clark, Inc., designed the buildings—including the one shown here—which the institution plans to erect. A. G. Porter made this rendering.

HERMAN PALMER VISITS EUROPE, ASIA AND AFRICA

H. L. Palmer, financial secretary of the Illinois Society of Architects, this week celebrates his twenty-fourth year as an officer of that organization. He has his offices in the Burnham building and lives at the Chicago Beach hotel. He and Mrs. Palmer have just returned from an eleven weeks' vacation [the first he states, that he has had in many years] to points in Africa, Asia and Europe. They visited Algiers, Cairo, Perusalem, Athens, Rome, Florence, the Riviera, Vienna, Berlin, Paris and London.

Dr. David J. Jones, a north side physician, has purchased from Walter R. Drennan the three story building at the northeast corner of 82d street and Ellis avenue for a reported consideration of $200,000 cash. The building, completed in October, 1928, contains eight stores and eighteen apartments. The lot is 125x78 feet. A. T. Curry of the South Shore Investment company and S. J. Rubloff of Harry L. Rubloff & Co., were brokers. The South Shore Investment company will continue to manage the property.

Robinson Refrigerator Works Plan Expansion

The Robinson Refrigerator Works have leased from the Cook Industrial district approximately 28,000 square feet of space in its terminal building at 2812 West Pershing road. As soon as the city proceeds with the extension of Pershing road west of Kedzie avenue a new building is contemplated for this company to contain 35,000 square feet, with provision for expansion up to 60,000. Hodge, Nicolson & Porter and J. P. Strickland & Co. were brokers.

ANOTHER FOOD SHOP FOR EAST OHIO STREET

The Blackstone Cafeteria, recently incorporated by Thomas K. Valos, Dan G. Valos, Gust Nicholson and John Christakos, has leased the one-story building now being erected just west of and adjoining the St. Clair hotel, at 156 East Ohio street, for twenty years at a reported term rental of $99,000. William H. Bush, lessor, is erecting a structure, 22x100, to cost a reported $25,000. No one seems to know who the architect is. Paul Demos is attorney for the corporation.

RIDGE FARM FOR SICK CHILDREN PLANS TO EXPAND

Dining Hall First Unit in Building Program.

Work has started on a dining hall for the Ridge Farm Preventorium, an organization located a mile and a half west of Fort Sheridan which takes youngsters from the city showing tendencies toward tuberculosis, gives them care and rest, and restores them to health.

MRS. FRANCIS R. DICKINSON.
[Painting by Cecil C. Davis.]

The Ridge Farm establishment was organized in 1912, and it has been located in its present quarters since 1914. The present building, which has accommodations for twenty-nine children, has been outgrown, and the institution is making plans for enlargement, so that it will be able to care for 100 children at a time.

Plans of the organization call for four dormitory cottages, each to house twenty-four children, a matron, and a teacher; an administration building, a dining hall and service building, and a combination schoolhouse and gymnasium.

The little matter of eating apparently coming first, it's the dining hall that will head the building program. This structure, designed by the architectural office of Edwin H. Clark, Inc., will be two stories high. It will be of modified colonial architecture. All four sides will be finished in red face brick, with cut stone used for ornamentation. The roof will be of slate.

Will Seat 130.

There will be seating accommodations for 130 on the main floor, including a dining room for the faculty and separate quarters for the help. The kitchen will be so arranged that the children can help in the washing of dishes and in doing other minor chores without interfering with the work of the regular employés.

On the second floor will be found the servants' quarters and in the basement will be a heating plant, laundry, and storage room for food. Completion of the building is expected by next fall. Work on the other buildings will start when the treasury is a bit fuller than it is now.

Officers of the preventorium are: Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, president; Mrs. Philip D. Armour, vice president; Mrs. Ayres Boal, secretary, and Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, treasurer. The directors are A. A. Carpenter, Edward F. Carry, Francis R. Dickinson, George A. McKinlock and Frederick A. Preston.

Board of Managers.

The board of managers includes the following: Mrs. Armour, Edward H. Bennett, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Bevan, Mrs. Boal, Mrs. Frederick P. Boynton, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. Herbert Campbell, Mrs. A. A. Carpenter, Mrs. Hubbard Carpenter, Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Clark, Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson, Mrs. Arthur H. Emerson, Mrs. I. K. Friedman, Mrs. Henry L. Glidden, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Hamill, Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, Mrs. Everett L. Millard, Mrs. Philip W. Moore, Mrs. Charles I. Pierce, Mrs. Frederick A. Preston, Mrs. Irving Randall, and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe.

Miss Lucy Cordiner is superintendent and Mrs. Willmore Alloway is social service director. Dr. George H. Coleman and Dr. Grover G. Grady are on the medical staff.

The farm comprises twenty-seven acres lying north of Old Mill road and west of the Chicago and North Western railway—a mile and a half west of Fort Sheridan. Since its establishment 700 children have been restored to health. A school is maintained on the grounds. After the children leave their health is watched over a period of years. The organization is nonsectarian.

Some Leases

The General Fountain and Fixture company has leased 60,000 square feet of space on the third, fourth, and fifth floors and part of the basement at 921 West 19th street for a term of years from A. L. Sykes and Fred de Coningh. E. N. Duerlein & Co. were brokers.

The H. C. Godman company, said to be one of the largest makers of shoes in the world, and a subsidiary of the Ohio Shoe company, has leased the entire second floor at 22 South Market street in connection with the third floor of the rear dock building on a sublease from the Ely-Walker Dry Goods company, through Robert White & Co.

Warshawsky & Co., auto parts and accessories, have leased the store at the northeast corner of Ogden and Harding avenues, from Herman Loeffler, for a term of years, through S. Charles Iversen & Co.

J. R. Palmenberg's Sons, Inc., of New York, makers of wax display forms, have leased space on the second floor of the Willoughby building, Jackson and Franklin, for a term of years, through Robert White & Co. The same brokers report leasing the entire fifth floor of the Fashion Trades building, 318 West Adams, for A. M. Counselbaum, to S. B. Rosenbaum. Arthur J. Hymen also was broker in the latter deal.

C. F. Noyes to Offer Stock to the Public

Charles F. Noyes, Inc., a nationally known real estate organization with headquarters in New York and a branch office in Chicago as well as in other cities, announces that its business has been mutualized and that shares in the corporation will be listed shortly for trade by the public. Applications to list Noyes company securities will probably be made with the listing committee of the Real Estate Board Exchange of New York, it is stated.

The organization is to have an outstanding capitalization of 10,000 shares of preferred stock and 120,000 shares of common stock, with 50,000 shares of additional common stock in the treasury of the company for future expansion. Employés were offered [illegible] 000 shares of treasury stock at $[illegible] a share—which amount it is stated has been largely oversubscribed.

Chicagoans Subscribe.

Of 225 employés in the executive offices in New York, 203 employés subscribed, while the subscription was [illegible] per cent in the Chicago office.

Charles F. Noyes established the company which bears his name in 1898. Starting with practically no initial business its gross volume is now reported to total approximately $[illegible] 000,000 annually. Its main offices are at 225 Broadway and 560 Fifth avenue, New York. Subsidiaries are the C. F. Noyes National Realty corporation and the C. F. Noyes National Realty Corporation of Illinois. Leo R[illegible] heads the Chicago office. The national organization handles the realty business of the United Cigar stores.

Gives Financial Status.

"On May 1, 1926 when the Noyes company was organized, the capital structure consisted of $2,400,000 of preferred stock of which $1,200,000 was class A preferred stock. During the first three years of the company's corporate existence we will have retired out of earnings the entire class A preferred stock amounting to $1,200,000.

"Subject to our plan of mutualization the company's capital will be adjusted to $1,000,000 outstanding preferred stock and 120,000 shares of common stock. The average earnings of the company for the four years ending April 30, 1929, before state, federal taxes, depreciation, employés' group insurance, and employés' coöperative fund, were approximately $780,000."

Sedgwick Street Flat Building Changes Hands

The twenty-one flats at 2118 Sedgwick street, known as the Steuben apartments, have been sold by Joseph Egel to Joseph Luckas through T. James of the Lincoln Center Realty exchange and A. M. Weber.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

BARN MADE INTO HOME BREATHING OF OLD SCOTLAND

Real Thatched Roof Casts Romantic Spell.

(Next week will appear an article on "Garden Architecture for the Home.")

LOUISE BARGELT.

It would be hard to imagine a more picturesque summer cottage than this one remodeled from a square and rather ugly old stone barn by a Chicago woman, Mrs. Walter Garrett Smith.

It is a touch of rural Scotland set down amid the wooded hills and dales of the Lawsonia Country club's 1,300 acre domain on Green lake, Wisconsin.

Glengary has the unique distinction of being covered with a genuine thatched roof which is as much a curiosity as a thing of beauty. Of a golden tint harmonizing with the gray of the stone masonry, the thatch is two feet thick, insuring protection from both heat and cold, and is as impervious to rain as the best shingle roof. It is made of rye straw from the nearby fields, hand mown and hand flailed, duly aged, and laid on by a Scotch expert whom, after a long search, Mrs. Smith discovered in eastern Canada. Even in the rustic parts of the British isles the thatched roof is becoming rare and is seen on souvenir postcards rather than on actual homes, as the country folk more and more are adopting the less quaint but decidedly practical shingle.

On Lovers' Lane.

The cottage, built on a hillside, faces Lovers' lane, a romantic little byway which, as lovers' lanes should, wanders off into nowhere. With the square and rather ugly stone barn as a nucleus, Mrs. Smith built on an annex to contain the kitchen and the bedrooms, improved the living room with a massive stone fireplace and added a Gothic front entrance. The original beams or rafters were retained.

The cow stalls were torn out and the earth floor was replaced with brick. This section, entered from the lower level, has been converted into an early American dining room, separated from the kitchen by a quaint English bar with sliding shutters. A spiral stairway leads from this floor to the living room and to the balcony and upper bedrooms.

The oaken floor of what was once the carriage house, but which is now the living room, is carpeted with New England hooked rugs. Glengary's furnishings reflect a love of antiques and old world curios, while the decorative schemes, especially of the cozy bedroom, were borrowed by Mrs. Smith from the peasant homes of Brittany and Provence which she visited recently while on a motor trip through France.

This Is the Life.

Jolly brass tankards and brass candlesticks impart a glow of color to the huge stone mantelpiece, and Breton peasant chairs invite the guest to draw up before the blazing pine logs.

Shropshire dogs beam placidly from the broken rows of books in the built-in cases; wheezy old clocks chime out the hours; drop-leaf tables and horsehair sofas remind you of grandmother's home.

What was once the hayloft has been converted into a balcony or mezzanine floor, where the hallways leading to the bedrooms are concealed by mellow tapestries. The guest may have his choice of a four poster canopy bed or of one of those quaint built-in beds tucked away under the sloping roof at either side of the dormer windows, and ornamented with chintz ruffling after the old Breton manner.

Glengary might be called a hobby, built by Mrs. Smith merely to fulfill a dream, or to supplement, perhaps, her nearby Anne Hathaway cottage, her permanent summer home. She has succeeded, however, in making this rustic cottage one of the show places of Lawsonia.

FILTER PROVES OF REAL SERVICE IN ANY HOUSE

Since the body is about 72 per cent water, one's system demands a lot of clean water. But though clean water purifies the blood and is of vast importance in transforming energy into work in the body, unclean water is one of the body's worst enemies.

Mineral salts are necessary to health so that any device which kills germs, eliminates chlorine and phenol and so on should leave the minerals and valuable earth compounds in the water.

Such devices in the form of filters adaptable to any style faucet or sink are on the market. Not cumbersome in any way they do not interfere, with French windows or obstruct working movements about the sink. And they do destroy that swarming population of living creatures which lurk in a glass of water.

Roof Lines Important in Home Design Treatment

Roof lines are an element of importance in any home design, and in the treatment of the bungalow they are of even greater importance, if possible, than in two story homes. Where the bungalow has interesting roof lines, well proportioned and pleasing, it is lifted out of the realm of the ordinary.

BUYS GAS STATION SITE.

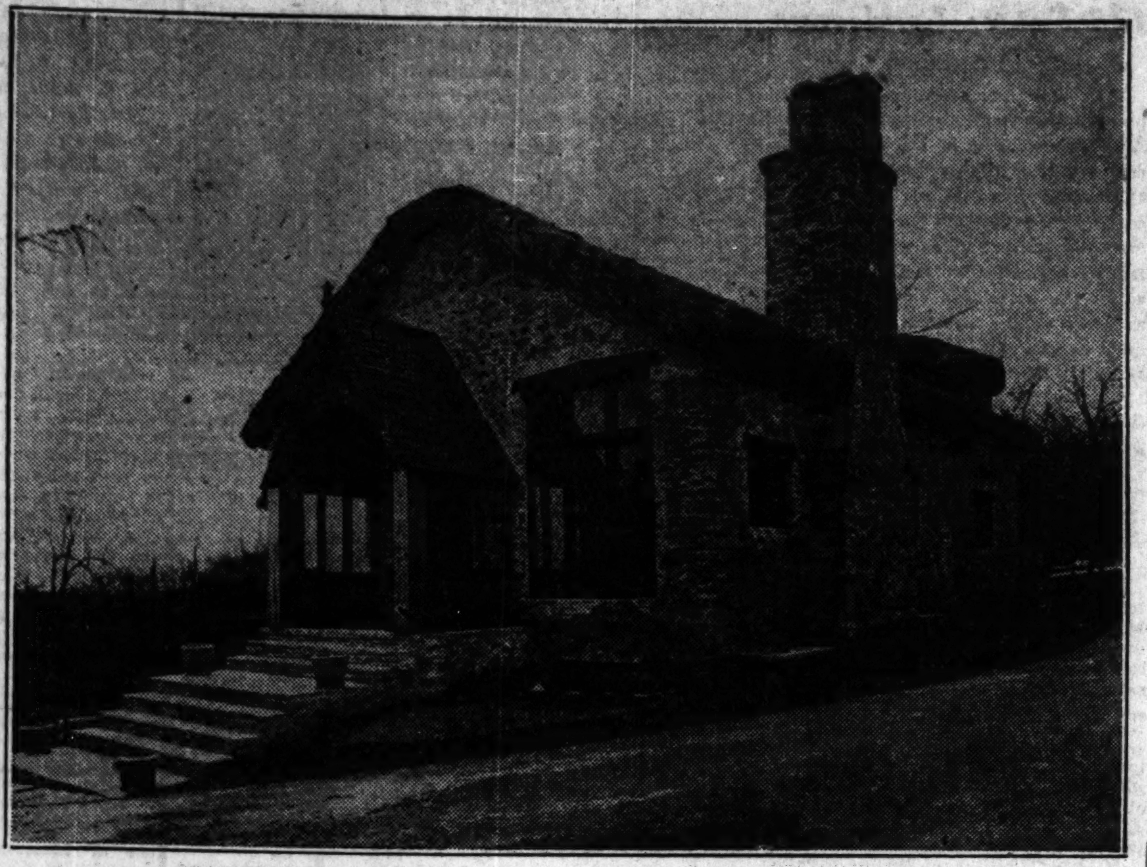
ONCE UGLY, NOW PLACE OF BEAUTY



From a square and ugly stone barn, Mrs. Walter Garrett Smith remodeled the structure into one of the most picturesque summer cottages imaginable. It has the distinction of being covered with a genuine thatched roof, made of rye straw from the nearby fields and laid on by a Scotch expert from eastern Canada. Observe the striking Gothic entrance, and massive stone chimney. Glengary cottage is located amid the wooded hills of the Lawsonia Country club's 1,300 acre domain on Green lake, Wisconsin.

SIX ARTICLES OF STEEL TERMED AS ESSENTIALS

One Combines Breakfast Nook, Ironing Board.

BY HOMER GRANT.

There are many features about the home which are now being classed among the so-called "essentials."

One manufacturer of steel products in Chicago is now naming six articles among the same essentials; offering them for the approval and use of the home owner.

These articles of steel construction include a clothes chute, a dust chute, a milk and package receiver, a combination ironing board and breakfast nook, a coal chute and steel basement windows.

Saves Much Work.

The dust chute, for instance, is set on the level with the floor, sweepings brought before it, and when a treadle is pressed with one foot the door opens inward from the bottom and the sweepings can be brushed into it. A steel shaft descends from the door down between the floor and wall joists to the dust chamber in the basement. The all steel construction eliminates danger from fire as well as the dust pan from the kitchen and much running up and down from basement to kitchen.

Another steel feature is the clothes chute which can be put in the bathroom; it merely appears as a neat panel painted to match its surroundings and without hardware of any sort.

A third is the milk and package receiver, cork lined and treated with germicide to prevent rotting and odors. No worry from delivery boys of many sorts when one is too busy upstairs to answer the door or is away from home.

Iron or Dine.

A fourth is the compact ironing board and breakfast board. For the kitchen this board can fill the purpose of a breakfast nook or in a small dining room one can bring it into service as a serving table by opening it half length.

The fifth and sixth features have to do with basement service; one is a coal chute which is made of heavy gauge of steel and cannot be opened from the outside. The other is the steel window with the V-sill which fortifies against rain or snow or wind or weather.

None of these features are expensive and, as many home owners can testify, they all contribute to home convenience and home safety.

MANY FAMILIES LOSE HOMES BY NEGLECT OF HEADS TO MAKE WILLS

Many homes are lost every year to widows and their children from the failure of the "head of the house" to make a will.

If, for instance, a man dies and leaves only a house and lot, expecting that the place will remain intact for his widow and children, one wilful child or other heir could by special proceedings force a sale in order to get "his share."

Nearly two-thirds of the people who die in this county do not leave wills. This often results in real estate passing into the hands of people incompetent to manage it properly and who only dissipate it.

While laws differ in the various state, in Illinois if a man dies without other property than real estate to pay his debts and leaves no will the law provides that such real estate can be sold at public sale to satisfy these debts. Such a forced sale might be made at an inopportune time when the realty market is low and the widow and her children would consequently suffer.

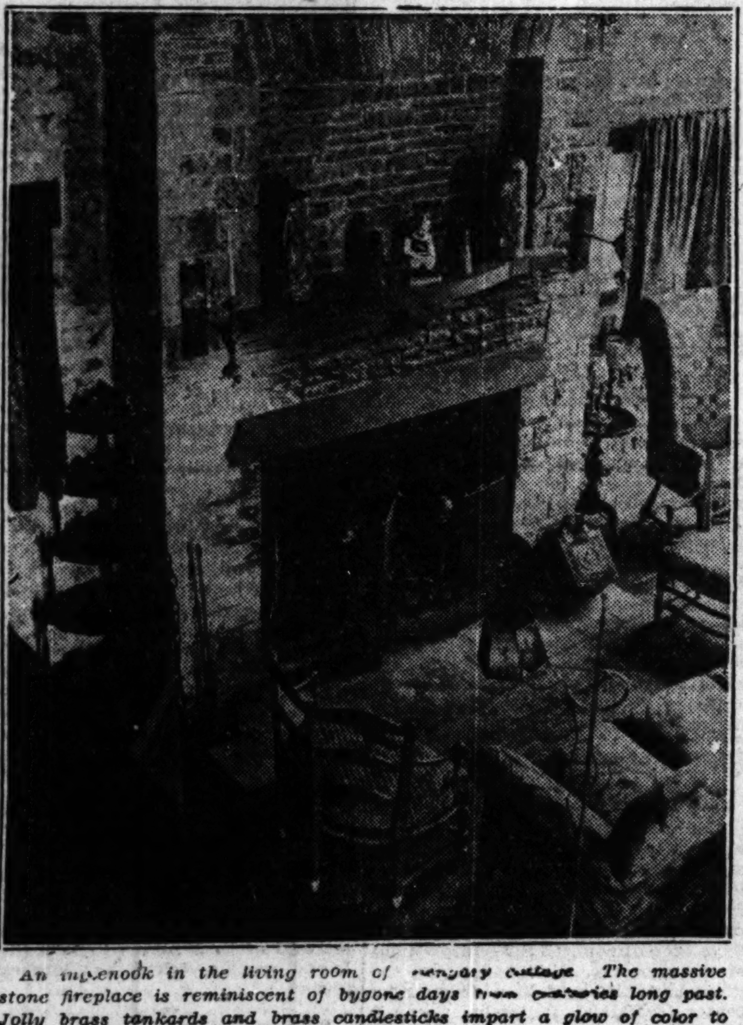
A home means for most people much planning, working, thought and sacrifice. A carfeully drawn up will takes up but a bit of time and money and it may make a big difference in what the family will get from their holdings. It may mean the entire future of the family. This is true as much in the case of the man who owns a small home and lot as of the man who owns a big estate.

USE OF GRANITE ABOUT HOMES IS INCREASING

Granite is becoming more used for homes these last few years, where formerly it was mostly employed in massive forms of construction. Steam power in stone working has been largely contributive to its general use.

Technically the word granite means a class of tough rocks of granular construction, consisting principally of quartz and feldspar. These rocks come in all shades of gray with occasional pink and red stones. Minnesota and Wisconsin are supplied with granite from their glaciated areas and Chicago receives a generous supply of red granite from igneous rock areas in Missouri.

SOLID COMFORT? HERE IT IS



An inglenook in the living room of Glengary cottage. The massive stone fireplace is reminiscent of bygone days from centuries long past. Jolly brass tankards and brass candlesticks impart a glow of color to the huge mantelpiece and Breton peasant chairs invite the guest to draw up before the blazing pine logs.

ELECTRIC WATER SOFTENER IS NEW AID TO COMFORT

To the long list of automatic and mechanical home labor savers and conveniences, including refrigeration, oil and gas heat, water heaters and incineration, comes the automatic electric water softener.

Every home mistress knows the disadvantages which come from hard water which uses up large quantities of soap and washing powders, clogs pipes, turns hair brittle and hard, roughens tender skins and discolors linens, silks and woolens, as well as bath tubs, lavatory bowls and sinks.

Water softeners have long been a joy in the home—and whether they are automatic or not they have a distinct place there.

SOME MEASURES FOR PROPER CARE OF HEATING PLANT

Here are a few simple precautions that should be carried out in regard to one's steam or hot water plant before it starts in on its long summer vacation.

Drain out the water in the boiler first. It is necessarily a little dirty and this dirt, dropping to the bottom of the boiler where it will remain all summer, may not be easy to remove in the fall. Then refill the boiler.

If the plant is hot water the system should also be drained and then immediately refilled.

Soot is not healthy to leave in the boiler or smoke pipe throughout the summer. The door should also be brushed free of all soot, and kept closed. To keep the door from sticking a drop of oil on the hinges and door edges will be found helpful.

You buy CHICAGO FAUCETS only once in a lifetime!

THAT'S a rather remarkable statement in view of the very few things that do last a lifetime. The bricks in your building, a good plumbing system, a tile roof . . . you can almost count them on one hand.

Chicago Faucets are never in need of "Spring cleaning." They don't belong in "overhauling or remodeling" class. They are hardy perennials, "perpetual," as Webster says. Like the brook in Tennyson's poem, they "go on and on for ever."

If you have tolerated those petty, expensive annoyances commonly called "faucet troubles," why not rid yourself of them NOW? Simply call your nearest plumber and tell him to replace your present fixtures with Chicago Faucets. It's just that easy to save yourself endless repair bills.

If you are building a new home or apartment, consult your architect—ask your plumber. They are competent to advise you and will gladly pass along the benefit of their long years of experience in solving vital building problems. If we can help you, don't hesitate to call on us.

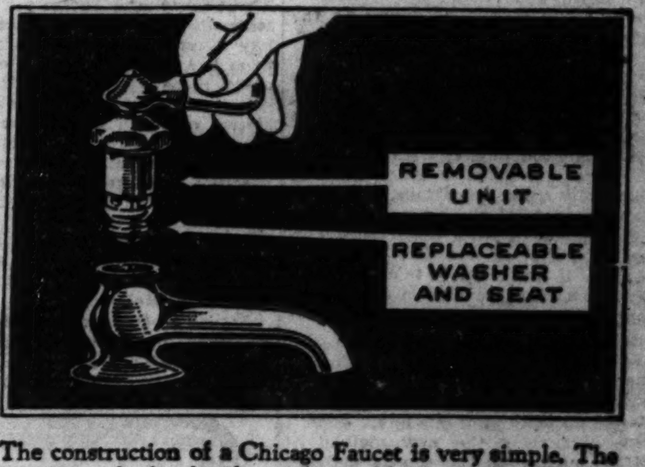
Downtown Display Room: 2nd Floor Builders Building



The construction of a Chicago Faucet is very simple. The unit is standardized and interchangeable in any other Chicago Faucet body. There are only two working parts, a seat and washer. They absorb all the wear and are renewable. It takes but a few minutes and costs but a few cents to replace either seat or washer. There is no wear on the body of the faucet so it cannot wear out. You know how easy it is to change an electric light bulb, don't you? Well, keeping Chicago Faucets in good condition is always as convenient as that!

FARM AND GARDEN

NEW METHODS AVOID WASTE IN HANDLING HAY

Side Delivery Rake Saves Leaves and Labor.

BY FRANK RIDGWAY.

In the elimination of waste on the farm lies one of the most effective forms of agricultural relief. A good time to start is during hay making days. There is a big loss in the actual tonnage but even a greater loss in the quality of hay, particularly since such crops as alfalfa, soy beans, cow peas, and sweet clover have been grown so extensively for roughage in this country.

J. L. Adams, a hay making expert of Ottumwa, Ia., says that there has been less advancement made in haymaking and haymaking machinery than in any other branch of agriculture.

"I believe that has been largely due to the fact that farmers in general have given less attention to the hay crop than to any other crop, looking upon it not as a money making crop, but rather as a sort of necessary evil—just something for roughage for the live stock," said Mr. Adams, who believes farmers have sustained a greater loss by improperly handling their hay than in any other crop they raise.

Care in Handling Necessary.

It is more necessary now than ever before for farmers to handle hay carefully, particularly since there are so many heavy leaf producing crops grown in the list of hay crops produced in this country today. The great value of the legume crops—the kind commonly grown for hay—is found in the leaf.

Alfalfa is the big legume hay producing crop of this country at the present time. Nearly three-fourths of the total food value in alfalfa is in the leaves. H. D. Hughes of the Iowa State college says that alfalfa leaves not only make up forty-five per cent of the weight of the hay, but also constitute sixty-five per cent of the protein material. Consequently, time of cutting is not so important a factor in making alfalfa hay, as is the saving of the leaves when the hay is being cured, says Mr. Hughes.

Saving the leaves is where many farmers fall down. Tests at the Iowa station have shown that alfalfa leaves are saved most successfully when the hay is raked into windrows as soon as it is cut and then turned once when it is about half cured. When it is desired to cure the crop quickly, it should be left in the swath until about one-fourth or one-half cured. It then may be put into windrows before the leaves are dry enough to shatter.

When to Cut Alfalfa.

The station men point out that it usually has been the custom to cut alfalfa when the field is about one-tenth in bloom. Aside from a slight increase in the coarseness of the stems for hay, no harm is done by cutting later. Instead of being injured by the cutting back of the new shoots at the crown, the plants seem to gain in vigor, according to Mr. Hughes.

He also points out that late cutting will not reduce the total of the year's production, will not injure the vigor of the plant and often allow urgent farm work to be completed before the alfalfa is touched. Due to the coarseness and the decrease in palatability which results from a delay in cutting, the station has generally found it best to cut alfalfa when the plants are about one-tenth in bloom.

The preservation of quality in hay depends largely on the way it is handled after it is cut. The Iowa station also found that hay thrown into the windrow to cure as soon as cut is of the best quality. A new method of handling hay recommended by crop experts is to cure it while the plant cells are alive and not wilted. To do this, as soon as the hay is cut it is raked into windrows in such a manner that the leaves are on the inside and the stems are left on the outside where they are exposed to sun and wind. Experts at Ames point out that if the hay is allowed to dry for a while—one to three hours, depending on the dryness of the air—before it is raked, a small sacrifice is made in the quality of the product, but much time is saved.

Hay that is left in the swath has been stored in the mow in about eight hours in good drying weather. If it is raked up at once after cutting, under the same conditions, it cannot be put up until the next day. This difference is of little importance during good drying weather, but if the weather is unfavorable it may be important to get the hay in as soon as possible, according to the tests at Iowa State college.

Explains New Method.

In explaining the new method of curing hay by using a side delivery rake, which leaves the hay in windrows, with the leaves inside and the stems outside, Mr. Adams says that while the plant is growing the leaves are always on top, it matter not what condition the hay is in. If the hay stands up straight the leaves are on top, or if it is lodged down the leaves immediately turn up seeking light and air. When the stems are cut with the mower the leves are still on top. If the hay stands up straight when cut it falls back over the cutter bar just like the shingles on a roof, with the leaves on top and the stems underneath, next to the cool, moist ground. The leaf of the hay plant is very thin, and if allowed to lie in the swath for any length of time it will wrinkle up and then no more moisture can pass through.

Mr. Adams says that to save the leaves and maintain the color the leaves must be protected soon after cutting in order to assist nature just as soon as possible. The moisture must continue to come up through the stem and go out through the leaf until the moisture has been reduced to the point where it is safe to store the hay.

Farmers have found that the side delivery rake can be effectively used in windrowing the hay in such a fashion that the stems are left on the outside and the leaves on the inside where they can be protected during the curing process. The left hand side delivery rake is used for this purpose.

The mower cuts to the right, explains Mr. Adams, and in order to properly cure the hay it must all be moved. To cover the leaves and put them inside the windrow, drive the rake in the mower's path—have the rake and the mower go in the same direction. This throws the hay to the left and leaves the windrow loose and fluffy, allowing a free circulation of air.

With the left side delivery rake in heavy hay eighty-five to ninety-five per cent of the leaves are hidded in the windrow. The leaves are put on the inside, where they do not burn.

Many Tests Made.

"We have made many tests trying to determine just how long the hay should lie in the swath and found that when we rake almost immediately after cutting we got a higher quality and a brighter hay than when we allowed the hay to lie in the swath from three to six hours and thoroughly wilt," said Mr. Adams. "The tests show that we can get the hay into the barn a little sooner by letting it wilt thoroughly before raking. These tests also show that in handling the hay after it had lain in the swath from five to six hours, we lost a great many more leaves by shattering."

Bert S. Gittins of the National Association of Farm Equipment manufacturers says that a valuable development in the handling of hay is the growing practice of chopping it up by running the hay through an ensilage cutter as it is hauled from the field. The chopped up hay is blown into the barn in much the same manner as oat straw is blown in from the thrashing machine.

In some of the western states, particularly in California and Oregon, hay is being commonly chopped. The Wisconsin experiment station has done some work under this system of handling hay.

Mr. Gittins points out that there are two chief advantages in handling the day by this method—one is that it requires only about one-third as much storage space. Both the Wisconsin and California stations found this to be true. Dairymen who have limited mow space consider this a real advantage because it enables them to get all the hay inside and not leave part of it in the stack. The mow in the barn must be built strong enough to hold the added weight.

"Another advantage of chopping is the ease of getting the hay out of the barn. It does not hang together as whole hay and can be handled nicely with an ensilage fork," he said.

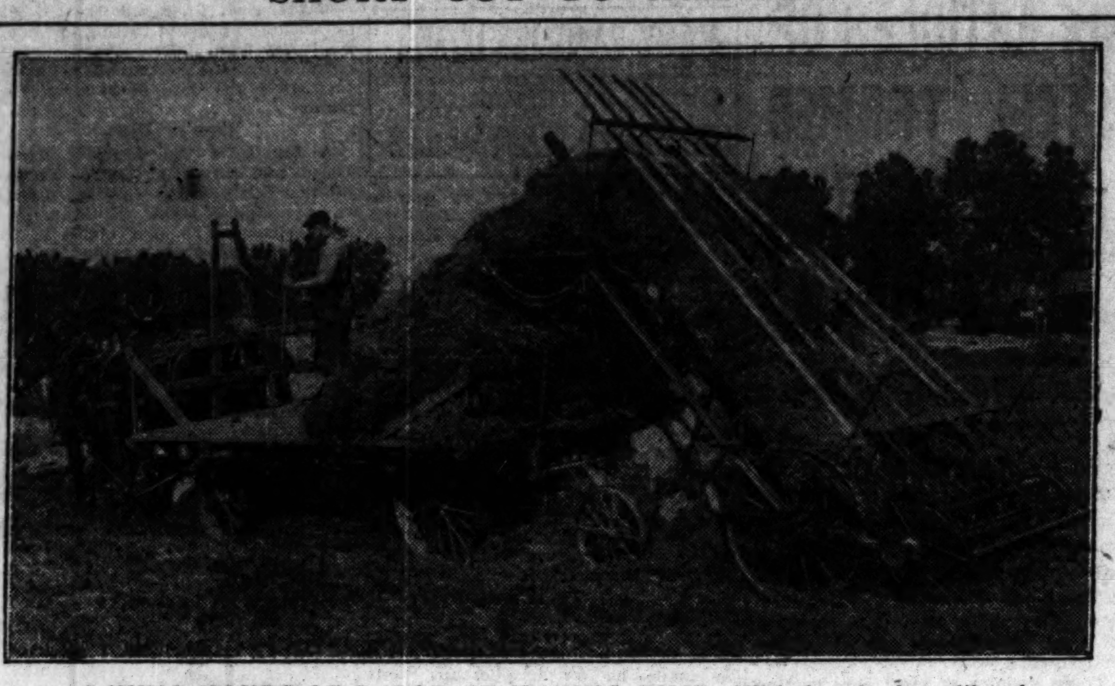
"Still another advantage is the reduction of feeding waste when the hay is chopped. At the University of California they found that 15 to 20 per cent of unchopped hay is wasted when fed from racks, but with chopped hay there was practically no waste.

"This practice is not common in the middlewest as yet but it is something to think about as a possible development in the future.

"Hay which is chopped can be put into the barn at the same stage of cure as it would be if it were handled in the regular manner.

"The disadvantage is that the hay must be unloaded by hand as it is hauled from the field, and then into the ensilage cutter by the old pitch fork method. We have had correspondence with farmers, however, who say that they consider this no particular disadvantage because blowing the hay into the mow eliminates the necessity of a man inside," said Mr. Gittins.

SHORT CUT TO HAYMOW



SAVING HOURS OF LABOR AT HAYING TIME—With hay loaders, like the one above, farmers put their hay in the barn in first class condition and avoid the back breaking job of pitching by hand.

From one and a half to two hours of labor per acre is saved by raking the hay into windrows with a side delivery rake so that it can be picked up later with a loader, according to hay making experts.

Raking in the Mower's Wake

Agricultural Questions and Answers

WHAT TO DO WITH SEED FROM JAPAN.

I have just returned from Japan, where I bought seeds of twelve different kinds of Japanese wild flowers. Here are the names of them: Puerara thumbergiana (Kudzu vine), trichosanthes cucumeroides, platycodon grandiflora, dolichos lablab, caryopteris mastacanthus, mirabilis japapa, hibiscus japonicus, primula japonica, imperial Japanese morning glory, iris kaempferi, vinca rosea, and paeonia mountan. I shall be very glad to have you tell me whether or not the seeds of these wild flowers should be fumigated or treated in some way before they are planted to prevent the spread of foreign diseases—E. G.

REPLY.

It will not be necessary to treat these seeds, according to Dr. E. W. D. Laufer, an authority on horticultural subjects. He points out that there is no embargo on any seeds coming into this country excepting the current and gooseberry—there is a ban on all parts of the plant of these two fruits. Dr. Laufer believes that the chance of introducing plant diseases by bringing seeds here from foreign countries is remote. Smut and rust may be carried in this way, but it is not necessary to treat wild flower seeds for these two diseases because if the work of the pests show up the individual plants can be pulled up and burned, Dr. Laufer added.

LOSE FERTILIZER BY BURNING CORNSTALKS.

In driving over the corn belt this spring I noticed several farmers burning their cornstalks. Is there any fertilizer value in cornstalks? If there is, would this be lost by burning the stalks? B. H.

REPLY.

Soil experts at the Iowa State college say that when a farmer burns an acre of cornstalks, several dollars worth of plant food goes up in smoke and the valuable organic matter is lost.

FIGURES ON COST OF STARTING A RABBITRY.

How much would it cost to go into the business of raising rabbits on a big commercial scale? I am particularly interested in the cost of hutches and the breeding stock.—F. M.

[Note—This is one of more than 400 letters received by THE TRIBUNE'S agricultural editor last week, following the publication of an article on domestic rabbits last Sunday.]

REPLY.

Arthur Weygandt, secretary of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders' association, estimates that it would cost approximately $10,000 to buy 1,000 does and 200 bucks and build good hutches for them. His estimate includes 1,000 does and 200 bucks at $5 each. The housing of the 1,200 breeding rabbits would cost about $4,000 He says that this is a very reasonable price for commercial breeding does and bucks. Registered stock would cost more.

Mr. Weygandt does not advise beginners to start in with as many as a thousand breeding does. He thinks it would be best to start with ten to fifty and after caring for them and studying the various angles of raising and marketing rabbits for about two years, then the business could be safely enlarged.

Shredding Stalk Kills European Corn Borer

Shredding corn stalks or putting corn in the silo have been found unusually effective means of European corn borer control. This was discovered in tests at the Iowa station.

WISCONSIN OPENS CHEESE FACTORY BEAUTY CONTEST

176 Enter; Landscape Grounds.

Wisconsin dairymen are having a new kind of beauty contest this year An announcement of the competition sent out from the agricultural college at Madison says that one hundred and seventy-six Wisconsin cheese factories are being dressed up as a result of the factory beautification contest conducted in the state this year under the auspices of the horticultural department of the state university and the Marshall dairy laboratory.

The factories are to be scored on the progress made in improving the grounds between spring and autumn. In addition to repairing and painting the buildings, the owners and operators are starting new lawns, planting trees, and setting shrubs and flowers.

Thirty in Special Contest.

Special contests have been planned for the factories of Sheyboygan and Manitowoc counties. Thirty factories in each of these counties have enrolled. Instead of being judged from sets of photographs, taken at the beginning and at the end of the contest, as will be done in the general contest, each will be personally inspected by a representative of the horticultural division. The Kiwanis clubs of the cities of Sheboygan and Manitowoc have offered five prizes to the factories showing the greatest improvement between the spring and the fall.

Flower and Vegetable Tips from Experts' Noteboo'

Flower and vegetable gardeners will find valuable advice on their summer gardening work in tips taken from the national garden bureau experts' notebook:

"Poppy seeds can be sown up to August 1 for a succession of the dainty bloom.

"Petunies are standby window box flowers. If you neglected to plant seeds use plants.

"Hoeing is the life of sweet peas Give them plenty of it.

"Give heliotropes a sunny spot They will give blooms only in sunny locations.

"Mow the lawn with the blades set high and sharp.

"See that all vegetables are thinned properly all over the garden. Too thick stands ruin the crop.

Northern Iowa Corn Is Damaged by Hailstorm

Reports coming from Iowa say that many acres of corn have been damaged recently by hail. Iowa's corn was injured in the northern part of the state. The official report indicates that the corn crop there, as in other states, is variable—some is a foot high while in other places it has not yet germinated. In the southern part of the state some of the fields intended for corn are yet to be planted. Rain is needed in Iowa.

83 BUNGALOWS IN FORMER SACKLEY ACRES FINISHED

Eighty-three bungalows have been completed in the $5,000,000 home development described in this department on April 28 for the old Sackley property bounded by Fullerton, North Menard and North Central and a line 300 feet north of Wrightwood avenue. The homes completed are located along Parkside avenue from Fullerton to a point below Wrightwood avenue.

LONDON STOCK MARTS DROWSY; TRADING SAGS

Speculation Seen at Low Ebb.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1929: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, June 22.—Midsummer drowsiness is drugging business on the London stock exchange. The attractions of Ascot depleted the staffs of numerous professionals, brokers and dealers, who preferred the inspiring atmosphere of the year's most fashionable racing event to the dullness and inactivity of dreary markets.

Public apathy toward stock exchange business is becoming increasingly intensified as the unprecedented lack of support causes an unchecked drifting toward lower levels in almost every section of the house.

Immediate prospects of an active revival are not encouraging, expert observers predicting that an improvement is now unlikely until early fall. Public speculation is at its lowest ebb and under the circumstances professionals are disposed to reduce their commitments, the market accordingly being left to follow the inevitable downward trend associated with slack conditions.

Holders Sit Tight.

Large holders are sitting tight, being loath to force stock upon an unwilling market, while, so far as the small speculator is concerned, his shares show such losses that in selling only a small portion of original purchase prices could be obtained. It is therefore contrary to human nature to dump stocks at this time.

Depression is everywhere evident. The best excuse available is the monetary situation. The belief has hitherto been held generally by leaders of the money market here that despite the extremely low level of the dollar exchange, a concerted action by American banks to prevent imports of gold into the United States from London would be successful.

This belief, however, has been shattered this week by the withdrawal of more than 1,500,000 sterling worth of gold from England for New York. This large loss of gold came as something of a shock to the money market, discount rates showing an immediate response, although since Tuesday, when the chief gold exports occurred, rather better feelings have developed on receipt of news of a fairly substantial amount of gold being shipped from Argentina to London. Financial circles here find it impossible to be definite when expressing views concerning the American financial situation, which has upset all previous theories and standards.

Depreciation in Sterling.

During the last week New York quotations for sterling-dollar exchange reached the lowest figure recorded in two years. As usual, the change of government has been reflected in quotations in the leading European centers, Paris, Berlin, Amsterdam and Stockholm having all quoted considerably less for the sterling. But in some instances, notably the Swedish rate, the depreciation of the sterling has been so pronounced as to indicate the influence of factors other than sympathy with the rise of the dollar.

Experts, busily attempting to explain the unusually persistent weakness, are all blaming the abnormal conditions of the American credit situation. The experts are generally agreed that, broadly speaking, European currencies are depreciating in terms of the dollar because of the extent of payments due America not only for ordinary imports from that country but also for war indebtedness. And since London is still the world's financial clearing house, the sterling naturally suffers most.

Some alarm is being created in influential quarters, although the position is not regarded as being sufficiently delicate to warrant an immediate rise in the bank rate. However, such an eventuality is a factor being kept in mind by market operators generally, thus making it improbable that speculative interest will be revived until the monetary position has been made clearer.

Threatens Movement.

The general prospect is that foreign currency, quoted in terms of the dollar, will continue to depreciate, thus threatening the continued movement of gold from the old to the new world.

The depression in the gilt edged section of the stock exchange is particularly unfortunate at the present juncture when political uncertainties consequent to the advent of the Labor government are an additional influencing factor.

Home rails have depressed, following disappointing traffic returns, while oils have been dull and rubbers weak. Tin is slightly better, mines generally reacting with profit-taking.

PARIS BOURSE FIRMER

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, June 22.—The bourse experienced a series of ups and downs this week. The opening was dull, with quotations finishing below their previous close. Money for settlement was marked up from three and one-quarter per cent to four per cent, with a consequent tendency to heaviness.

After a calm opening Tuesday the market was flooded with selling orders and the tone was decidedly weaker, although a rally occurred towards the close. The atmosphere cleared Wednesday with a cessation of the heavy selling and new buying orders coming in. The improvement continued moderately for the remainder of the week. While the activity was not great, the majority of the departments remained firm.

Lowly Match Big Factor in World Finance

BY SCRUTATOR.

The humble match, crowded more tightly than the proverbial sardine into boxes with its brothers, is one of the important factors in international finance. A number of European and South American countries have found it possible to obtain large loans from wealthy match makers in return for monopoly concessions in their territories, besides exacting a portion of the profits.

Combining its relations with the governments of these countries with its manufacture and selling to the ultimate user, the International Match corporation, an American concern controlled by Swedish interests, has spread its influence so far that its annual report sounds something like an exposition of diplomatic intricacies.

As an instance, the German government in 1926 agreed to give a preferential sales agreement to a company, half of the stock of which was owned by the Swedish and American firms. Legislation approving this was approved by the reichstag in 1927, with a provision that no more match companies could be started in the country. But meanwhile some small ones were established as independents. They were purchased by the Swedish and American corporations to get rid of the nuisance value they had, and now 65 per cent of Germany's matches are sold by subsidiaries of theirs.

The Operations in France.

In France the state match monopoly has agreed to purchase its supplies from these corporations in half finished condition, and to follow their sales methods. In return, the match concerns were to take over $75,000,000 of French bonds. They have purchased $50,000,000 of this amount. Hungary in 1928 granted the International Match and Swedish Match company the sole right to sell their type of product in that country for fifty years, and as part of the agreement the match concerns were to purchase $36,000,000 of 5½ per cent land reform bonds.

Six millions of Latvian bonds were taken in connection with a thirty-five year monopoly. Roumania was able to get up to thirty million dollars and a guaranteed income of at least three millions in return for a thirty year exclusive right beginning on July 1, 1929. Jugoslavia also granted a thirty year contract and passed legislation prohibiting the establishment of rival factories. This nation was financed to the extent of twenty-two millions.

Poland's price for a twenty year monopoly was a six million dollar loan and yearly revenues of one million. Esthonia took seven million crowns in a loan and annual revenues. To Greece a five million dollar loan was made for an exclusive twenty-eight year concession. Peru gave a subsidiary of the Swedish and American companies a monopoly in 1926, to run twenty-five years, for annual payments of $100,000. Although 85 per cent of this country's matches had been made at home, now they are nearly all imported. Ecuador obtained a two million dollar loan and considerable annual payments for a similar agreement.

Receive Assurances.

Some of these countries also received assurances that the match factories in their territories would be granted export business, and to care for this sales organizations have been set up in China. The annual report stated that satisfactory progress was being made there and in other parts of the far east.

The International Match corporation has found these activities quite profitable. Before allowances were made for taxes, its profits in 1928 were given as $20,259,000, as against $17,899,000 in 1927. In view of the fact that only Sweden, Denmark, Holland, and Switzerland among the European countries have no special revenue taxes it has been found advisable to make matches in most countries for local distribution. Large quantities of European manufacture have been introduced into the United States, but it is officially stated that if a heavy duty is placed on the product in the new tariff bill factories will be established here.

Because of the complexity of their financial dealings, the Swedish and American companies have given over to an investment firm in Stockholm the work of marketing the bonds taken from the various governments. It is an interesting speculation, and perhaps an idle one, whether these elaborate arrangements have made possible the stability of European governments; or whether the fate of ministers and cabinets may be determined on something no more stable than the flicker of matches.

CHICAGO TRIBUNE SURVEY

REPORT BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE MAY SPLIT UP STOCK

Move Seen Cause for Market Action.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Moderate activity and a rise of nearly 32 points in Baldwin Locomotive stock this week brought a renewed buzz of gossip in Wall street. On a turnover of around 12,000 shares, the price rose from 218 to 149¾ this week, while this month the price has moved up from 210. Earlier this year the stock sold as high as 271½.

Gossip Renewal.

The chief rumor attending this rise has been a renewal of gossip started several months ago to the effect that Baldwin Locomotive directors may split the common stock on a four-for-one basis at their meeting next week. It was said that the Fisher Brothers, who acquired a large interest last year, favored such a split-up. The common stock issue is $20,000,000 of $100 par value.

Accompanying rumors were that the $20,000,000 preferred stock also may be retired. The latter gossip, however, received less credence, as it would involve $25,000,000, including a premium of $5,000,000. The preferred stock is redeemable at 120. Furthermore, Baldwin Locomotive is making a heavy investment in the new General Steel Castings corporation, which recently was organized by the Baldwin, American Steel Foundries and American Locomotive interests.

New Locomotives.

There also was some talk that Baldwin Locomotive might bring out a new type of locomotive. The basis appears to be the two 80-ton engines being built for the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad. These locomotives are equipped with "gasofiers" for converting fuel oil into gas, although this process is not radically new. Baldwin Locomotives also is experimenting with improvements to steam locomotives, Diesel and other internal combustion engines.

SAYS PARAMOUNT RADIO MERGER REPORT IS FALSE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Reports from Chicago that the Radio Corporation of America and Paramount-Famous-Lasky corporation would announce a merger this week were positively denied tonight by Adolph Zukor, president of Paramount.

"There is nothing at all to the report," said Mr. Zukor. "No offer has been made by Radio and you may say that no negotiations are pending."

Mr. Zukor said he knew "nothing whatever" of any forthcoming conference in Chicago between officials of Radio and the motion picture corporation.

David Sarnoff, vice president and general manager of the Radio corporation, went on record with a formal denial of the merger story only last week. He could not be reached tonight.

Marmon Earnings Are Running Ahead of 1928

Net earnings of the Marmon Motor Car company for the quarter ended May 31 amounted to $1,238,637 after all charges except federal taxes, G. M. Williams, president, announced. This earning performance was in excess of the regular common stock dividends for the entire year. The net result of operations for the quarter closely approaches the net earnings of the company for the entire fiscal year ended Feb. 28, 1929, which were $1,447,919 before federal taxes. Shipments during the quarter totaled 14,847 units, an increase of more than 115 per cent over the corresponding quarter last year.

Insurance Company Stock Increase Plan Approved

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Approval of an increase of $5,000,000 in the authorized capital stocks of the Continental Insurance company and the Fidelity-Phenix Insurance company has been given by the stockholders of both. Part of the additional shares will be used to acquire the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, the Niagara Fire Insurance company, and the Maryland Insurance company.

Debits Gain 19 Per Cent, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Chicago Federal Reserve bank for the week ended June 19, 1929, by 262 banks in 38 leading clearing house cities in the seventh federal reserve district aggregate $1,824,721,000, an increase of 19.6 per cent compared with a week ago [$1,525,064,000]. Compared with the corresponding week of last year [$1,675,933,000], an increase of 8.9 per cent was shown.

A. T. & T. CONVERTIBLES BREAK ALL RECORDS IN BOND MART TRADING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Extraordinary activity in the new 4½ per cent convertible debenture issue of the American Telephone and Telegraph company broke all records for trading on the bond market in the brief session this morning. The volume exceeded marks established earlier in the week for a full five hour period. More than $2,825,000 par value of the convertibles changed hands at an advance of from 2 to 3 points.

The turnover of this stock privilege issue during the last week has been the largest of any bond issue on any exchange. With the trading today the total for the week amounted to more than $13,000,000 par value. The advance was about 8 points.

The only explanation is that with the convertible feature they constitute a call on the stock after Jan. 1 of next year. The bonds will be convertible into stock at $180 a share during 1930 and on a graduated upward scale until 1937. The issue totals $219,000,000 par value and is for ten years. Stockholders of record May 10 were offered the right to subscribe to the bonds at 100 in proportion of $100 principal amount for each share of stock held. One explanation for the heavy activity is that the rights will expire July 1.

Other convertible issues were bought in large volume. The record Saturday activity was in Atchison convertible 4½s, International Telephone and Telegraph 4½s, and Southern Pacific 4½s. Prices of standard investment issues were mixed.

Polish Business Is Picking Up, Research Bureau Finds

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The slackening industrial activity in Poland, which was so pronounced early in the year, has come to an end and business is once more beginning to expand, according to the monthly bulletin of the Polish institute for economic research at Warsaw, which was made public here today. The general index of production rose in April to 133.4, compared with 128.9 in March, and 126.7 in April, 1928, while the index of car loadings was exceptionally high during the month, averaging 140, as against 117 in March, and 103 in February. The activity of business continues to make considerable demands upon the credit supply and despite an increase in the discount rate from 8 to 9 per cent the Bank of Poland has extended its credit operations. The bill portfolio was 697,500,000 zlotys in April, as compared with 499,000,000 in April, 1928.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—(AP)—A final valuation of $27,370,000 on property owned and used by the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railroad as of June 30, 1915, was announced today by the interstate commerce commission.

Offerings of Bond Issues Rise Sharply

(New York bond list page 8.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—New offerings of bonds for the week ended yesterday reached $140,396,000, the largest weekly total since mid-March, when the figure reached $190,362,700, representing the greatest total since June, 1928. This week's aggregate ranks as the second largest for this year, and compares with $61,902,500 during the corresponding week last year.

Offerings by Groups.

The offerings by groups of this and last week follow:

Group.	This week.	Last week.
Foreign	$88,450,000	$ 6,620,000
Industrial	20,000,000	....
State and municipal	19,759,000	22,260,415
Investment Cpn.	11,000,000	....
Public Utility	1,187,000	23,400,000
Insular possess.	....	500,000
Total	$140,396,000	$52,784,451

The preponderance of the new financing was done in the foreign group this week, covering railway, public utility, industrial, and investment company borrowing. The principal issue in this group, which was also the largest for the week, was that of $40,000,000 Canadian National railway 5s, brought out at 99¾ by a group headed by Dillon, Read & Co.

Next in size was the issue of $32,000,000 Lautaro Nitrate Co., Ltd., 6s offered by the National City company and associates. The third largest was the issue of $20,000,000 General Steel Castings corporation 5½s, which were marketed at par.

Municipal offerings were fewer in number this week than in the past several weeks. The largest piece of financing in this group was the offering of the issue of $10,000,000 State of Illinois 4s on a 4.30 per cent basis by a group of New York and Chicago banks.

Foreign Financing Outlook.

The announcement this week that a banking group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. has arranged a credit amounting to $50,000,000 for the German government, while it does not involve any public financing, presages increased activity in the foreign field during the next few months. A number of Wall street banking houses are working on various pieces of foreign financing which may be brought out in the near future.

HUGE GERMAN CREDIT RELIEVES MONEY PINCH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The $50,000,000 credit extended to the German government this week by a syndicate composed of Dillon Read & Co., Harris, Forbes & Co., and the Chase Securities corporation, in association with a group of German banks, has already had the effect of relieving tight money conditions in Germany, acocrding to advices received here today. The rate on thirty day loans in Berlin, which has been above 10 per cent, has dropped to 9¼.

The Reichbank's position, which was recently improved by an increase in gold reserves, will be further aided through the impending deposit of proceeds of the credit. The advices state that anxiety in the security markets regarding month-end settlements has been visibly relieved. It is pointed out that the unfavorable condition on international money markets and reparations demands would have made it difficult for Germany to attempt long term financing at this time.

Edsel Ford Says European Demand Is Rising Steadily

New York, June 22.—(AP)—Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor company, returning after a six weeks' inspection of the company's foreign activities, said that from present indications the English Ford concern would produce nearly 50,000 cars this year and that it was expected the total would reach 200,000 in another year. Demand throughout Europe, he asserted, was increasing steadily.

Grigsby held the center of the stage in the radio group and was one point higher at the close of the trading. Ceco was up a fraction. N. L. The market value of the twenty-four stocks at the close of business yesterday was $632,111,196 or an increase of $254,717,747 over June 23, 1928. This is a gain of 67.49 per cent.

ENGLISH COTTON MILLS IMPOSE CUT IN WAGES

MANCHESTER, England, June 22.—(AP)—Announcement is made that notices will be posted by the employers for a 12.82 per cent reduction in wages in the Lancashire cotton spinning industry. The weaving employers have also decided to press for a reduction such as the cotton spinners propose to put into effect. The weavers employ 190,000 operatives, which would make a total of nearly 400,000 persons affected by such cuts. On June 19 representatives of the two employers' associations in the cotton trade arrived in London to confer with the ministry of labor concerning their proposals to reduce wages. The Manchester correspondent of the London Herald said that the visit caused surprise there because the wage reductions were scheduled for discussion at a meeting of employers to be held June 21. The visit was ascribed to direct intervention by the ministry of labor.

New York, June 22.—Everybody was cheerful in Wall street today and so the stock market moved another notch upward. Many stocks were pushed forward to new high levels in spite of the usual amount of week-end profit taking, which was readily absorbed. The volume of trading was a little larger, with total transactions of 1,478,100 shares, or at the rate of nearly 3,700,000 shares for a full five hour session.

With the call loan rate holding consistently around 7 per cent this week and with time money somewhat easier, bull traders have come to believe that there will not be the severe month-end credit pinch that had been feared. While rates may stiffen, still they are not expected to duplicate the sky-rocketing performance of a month or two ago.

Market Improvement.

The continued sharp recovery in grain prices and the optimistic mercantile reviews also promoted a more cheerful sentiment. There also were numerous rumors to the effect that important interests are sponsoring moves in many of the standard stocks, which have inspired the belief that the market is about to reflect greater buying interest.

The advance in today's short session was led by the steels, rails, utilities and coppers and several members of these groups recorded new high levels for the current movement. The oils and motors were somewhat draggy. The rubber stocks also were strong, reflecting a high rate of operations and satisfactory outlook for the last half of this year.

Rails Advance.

The strong upward movement of the railroad group inspired predictions among their enthusiastic followers that a real railroad market is in the offing. New York and Harlem soared 22 points, Texas and Pacific jumped six points and fair gains were recorded by Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Canadian Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Lehigh Valley, Louisville and Nashville, Pennsylvania, St. Louis Southwestern, Southern Railway, and Union Pacific. But Northwestern declined more than a point.

In the industrial list, Auburn Auto was the star performer, soaring 27½ points in one of its characteristic moves. Columbia Carbon came next with an upturn of 17¾ and United Aircraft common and preferred mount-

Little change was noted in the hog market Saturday, but prices on paper appeared to be lower due to the lack of quality. There were no strictly top hogs on sale and the best price paid was $11.10 compared with $11.25 Friday. The average price was $10.70 compared with $10.75 Friday. Of the 8,500 hogs on sale, around 7,000 of them were received direct to packers from outside points leaving but a small supply for sale.

There were 4,000 hogs held over from Friday's market and around 3,000 were left unsold for next week's trade. Bulk of all weights and grades on sale cashed at $10.50@11.00 and packing sows changed hands largely at $9.50@9.90, some good smooth butcher sows bringing $10.00 or better.

Hog receipts last week were the smallest in four weeks and held the general average at $10.85, equal to the highest since May 11, despite the slump in fresh pork back to the recent low spot. Arrivals at 120,000 compare with 148,900 a year ago and 168,738 two years ago. However, with the proportion of packing sows running larger the estimate average weight advanced to 247 lbs, heaviest since last September.

Buyers recently have been complaining of the low yield in light and underweight hogs which have been on grass during the last few weeks. Medium and weighty hogs have had plenty of corn and show little effect from grass.

Brisk demand for well finished cattle boosted the general average price to $14.55 last week, the highest since last November and above any corresponding week since 1920. Prime 1,487 lb. beeves reached $15.65 and 889 lb. yearlings, $15.50.

There was a general scarcity of topnotchers and Chicago found it difficult to hold its place as the highest market in the west. Several river markets reported top prices at $15.50 @15.65. About 1,000 steers were listed in Chicago sales at $15.35 and above, against less than 150 the previous week.

Despite the fact that sheep receipts last week were lowest of the year, the general average price of lambs dropped 95c at $14.95, standing below any corresponding week since 1924. The average a year ago was $16.10.

Matured stock averaged only $5.85, lowest since November. There was another reduction in prices paid for fresh lamb, with reports that eastern points are burdened with stock adding to the weakness. Shipping demand was the narrowest since July, 1927.

SURVEY REVEALS FACTS ABOUT NEW YORK CITY

Ne wYork, June 22.—The capital of the 32,590 manufacturing establishments in New York City is placed at $3,038,557,492, with the value of the products produced of $5,260,707,577, in a financial survey of the metropolitan district of New York City which has just been compiled in booklet form by the research department of Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law, Inc. The city's leadership in this field is attributed to the factors of high wages and irregularity of employment.

The average earned per worker in New York in any normal year is estimated at $1,439, including skilled and unskilled. This is said to be higher than in most other manufacturing states. The book places the population of New York City on July 1, 1928, at 6,017,500, and that of the metropolitan district at 9,565,500.

On the financial phase of the city's life it is shown that as of November, 1928, there were 56 national banks, 31 private bankers, 67 savings banks with savings bank deposits as of June 30, 1928, of $3,298,162,021; 93 savings and loan associations, 57 state banks, and 33 trust companies. In the state as a whole, savings banks deposits have shown an increase of 219 per cent since 1916.

Other facts in the book include the following: New York leads other states in salaries paid teachers; residents of New York now have in force about $12,321,000,000 in life insurance; New York school investment is the highest in the country; deeds and mortgages recorded in and near New York City and building construction in New York City are classified; and statistics on the wealth, debt, and taxation of New York state, New York clearing house transactions, New York state export sales are set forth.

Rumor Big Merger in Curtiss Group.

New York, June 22.—Continued heavy demand for a few utility holding company shares and a wave of buying in the aviations sector featured a quiet week-end session on the curb market today. The activity in the airplanes group grew out of rumors of a big merger in the Curtiss-Hoyt group.

Fokker, Aviation Corporation of America, and National Aviation responded to the aviation merger reports with fair sized gains after slumbering through the recent utility markets. Niles Bement Pond, which owns a large block of stock in United Aircraft, was strong in reflection of United Aircraft's runup on the big board.

Trading Favorite.

With the diminishing trading in the New York state utility involved in the new Morgan combine, American Superpower again was a trading favorite. It was turned over rapidly and on a block of 10,000 shares made a new high at 48, and went higher on succeeding sales. Superpower has large holdings in United Corporation, Commonwealth and Southern, and other key utilities. The old stocks, which were split up, were taken off the list a few days ago and relieved the new stock of selling pressure.

Heavy buying of United Gas Improvement continued on news that it was slated for listing on the big board. General Public Service and Checker Cab were active and strong for the same reason.

Shares in Good Supply.

Due to the enormous amount of stock to be distributed and arbitrage among the old and new stocks, Commonwealth and Southern and Niagara Hudson Power, the two new Morgan-Bonbright utility holding companies, were in good supply and failed to follow the advance of Superpower and other utilities. Buffalo Niagara Eastern, Southeastern Power, and other shares involved in these mergers were easier in sympathy with the parent stock.

RESERVE BOARD'S POLICY PROVES SUCCESS: HAMLIN

Danger Fades, Member Tells Bankers.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Describing the results of the federal reserve board's recent campaign to curb the stock market's absorption of credit as successful, Charles S. Hamlin, member of the reserve board, addressing members of the Maine Bankers' association in convention at Poland Springs, Me., today declared that the board's efforts have cleared up to a measurable degree a situation fraught with danger if allowed to continue unchecked.

Reviews Period.

In reviewing the situation which led up to the federal reserve board's famous warning of Feb. 6, Mr. Hamlin said:

"I shall not attempt here to characterize present or past conditions as disclosing expansion or inflation, but will content myself with stating a few facts which in my opinion justify the firming policy, including direct action, so called ,of the federal reserve system in connection with member bank credit developments."

Taking the period from 1922 to 1928 Mr. Hamlin pointed out that security loans of reporting member banks had increased from $3,600,000,000 to a total of $7,500,000,000, an expansion of over 100 per cent. At the same time, commercial loans had expanded only 18 per cent and the percentage of security loans to total loans and investments had increased from 25 per cent to 34 per cent.

Reserves Increase.

Member bank reserves, during this period, Mr. Hamlin said, increased from an average of $1,700,000,000 to $2,400,000,000 in January 1928, an expansion of forty per cent. Prices of 410 stocks combined, advanced from 58.7 in 1922 to 183.6 in January 1929.

SAYS CONCESSION OF DEBTS AIDS POSITION OF U.S. IN MANY MARTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—In commenting upon the substantial concessions made by the United States in its debts settlements with allies, the latest quarterly review of J. Henry Schroder & Co. of London, states that "the United States in one leap took a position which they might otherwise have spent generations in reaching and is now the dominating power in the international money market."

In touching on the question of the American tariff policy the review points out that its critics are on firmer ground when they urge that America's high tariff, shipping subsidies, and "her general desire to sell everywhere, buy nothing, do everybody's business and lend money to all comers," if carried to its logical conclusion, "will make it impossible for her debtors to pay because they will be prevented from selling their goods and services."

"In the meantime, however, America has done good service by assisting in coöperation with the Bank of England the monetary authorities of Europe in the reconstruction loans which have helped the stabilization of currencies and brought order out of chaos in the exchanges. She gave the name of one of her citizens to the Dawes plan, and at the present moment is doing a full share of the work in trying to put the problem of German reparations on business like basis. There is thus a handsome balance on the credit side, when we consider the use that America has made of her new found wealth and position."

Week's Clearings Drop Compared with Year Ago

New York, June 22. — Settlements through the banks continue on a slightly reduced scale when compared with the heavy amounts involved last year, total clearings this week at all leading cities in the United States, according to Dun's Review, amount to $12,174,744,000, a decline of 2.9 per cent as compared with the corresponding week of last year. At New York City, clearings of $8,290,000,000 are 3.1 per cent less than the amount reported a year ago, while the totals for the principal centers outside of New York of $3,884,744,000 show a loss of 2.5 per cent. Including New York, there are declines this week at eight of the twenty-three cities reporting.

U. S. MAY MAKE BID FOR WORLD'S BANKING HONORS

Concentration of Power Is Predicted.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—The movement for banking consolidations, which has resulted in eight major bank mergers thus far this year has only begun, according to several Wall street bankers. Coming months, it is said, will bring a number of new amalgamations, many of which are even now under discussion and from which may arise a concentration of American banking resources in a small group of powerful institutions, outranking any previously seen in this country and possibly wresting world banking supremacy from the "big five" of England.

Renews Interest.

Formal announcement during the last week of the merger of the Chase National bank and the National Park bank, resulting in the creation of the institution which ranks among the three largest in the country, has called renewed attention to the movement which is gaining in impetus.

According to a compilation by D. Richard Young of the National City bank, there have been 210 bank mergers in New York city up to and including the Chase-Park merger since 1784, the earliest date for which records are available.

Prior to 1899 only eleven bank consolidations took place, while the succeeding decade witnessed forty-seven. From 1909 to 1919, the pace of the preceding ten years was maintained and fifty mergers occurred. Since then, however, there has been a rapid speeding up, with 102 since 1919.

Figures for the number of mergers affecting member banks of the federal reserve system clearly show the recent growth of the movement. According to these figures, there were 124 mergers in 1924, 120 in 1925, 259 in 1927 and 204 in 1928.

Resources Increase.

Partly as a result of these mergers the year ended June 30, 1928, saw a decrease of nearly 850 in the number of banking institutions of all kinds in the country. At the same time total resources of banks increased during that year by nearly $3,500,000,000.

This tendency toward fewer banks but larger resources, while greater during the past few years, has been in process for some time. Since 1921 the movement has been continuous and has resulted in cutting down the number of banking institutions in the country by about 4,600 during the seven years ended June 30, 1928. In the same period, however, banking resources have risen by nearly $22,000,000.

SHIPPERS' BOARD SEES CAR ORDERS BUSINESS INDEX

Kearney, Neb., June 22.—(AP)—Figures taken by railroads as a barometer for car movements in the middle west for July, August and September of this year, and as a consistent criterion of business have been announced here by the central western regional shippers' advisory board.

The board, composed of shippers of all classes of commodities, takes in five states in its activities and minute surveys—Nebraska, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and Idaho.

Estimated total cars for all commodities needed for three months is 516,143, or an increase of 5.7 per cent over the same three months of 1928. Nebraska will show an 8 per cent increase in car movements, or 201,245 cars; Colorado, 131,586 cars, or a 5 per cent increase; Utah, 75,000 cars, 5.7 per cent; Wyoming, 75,349 cars, 2.3 per cent increase, and Idaho, 32,963 cars, or 1.2 per cent increase.

This is a general average increase for all commodities moved in car load volume as outbound loads from the various states. The largest increase in Nebraska car loads is in building materials and cement, ascribed to road building under the new 4 cent gasoline tax. About 28,000 cars of gravel, sand and rock—a 100 per cent increase—have been estimated for the Nebraska business.

RUBBER.

STEEL OUTPUT HOLDS STEADY; DEMAND DROPS

New York, June 22.—(AP)—While the mill output of steel, according to reports, promised to continue virtually at capacity for the balance of the month and run at an unusually high rate during July, there has been a material reduction in the demand for material from various industries, notably the automobile and building trades. On the other hand farm equipment manufacturers, shipyards, pipe lines and railroads continued to absorb large deliveries. Prices were steady in practically all positions. Demand for pig iron was somewhat better, but prices were irregular.

Export demand for copper continued moderate, while buying by domestic consumers was negligible. A statement indicating that the world's consumption is now equal to the mine output has been published during the week, and producers are believed to be waiting for the development of an increased buying movement, possibly for August-September shipment. In the meantime custom smelters continue to supply the demand in evidence with electrolytic unchanged at 18 cents delivered in the Connecticut valley.

WHEAT PRICES SOAR HIGHER IN GRAIN MART

Complaints of Damage to Crop Aid Buying.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Increasing complaints of dry weather in the American and Canadian northwest, with drought damage feared unless rain is received in the next few days, combined with sensational claims of crop deterioration in the southwest, brought in general local and commission house buying after a weak opening, and prices advanced 3⅝@4⅛c from the early low to a new high on the present movement, the outside figures showing 18⅝@19½c over the low on May 31. Closing trades were at net gains of 2@2⅛c, with July $1.13⅞@1.14; September, $1.18⅝@1.18⅞, and December, $1.23⅞.

Corn broke early with wheat but rallied later with that grain and on unfavorable crop comments from the central belt, and closed ⅞@1½c higher with December leading, the latter selling within ⅝c of the best price on the crop. July finished at 93½c; September, 93⅝@93⅝c, and December, 90¼@90⅝c. Oats were ⅛@½c higher with July, 44⅝c, September, 44⅝@44½c, and December, 47c. Rye gained 1⅝@1⅝c and closed with July at 87⅝c, September 91⅝c, and December 96c.

Grains Higher for Week.

A bull market developed in wheat after a small decline early in the week, with an upturn of around 10c from the inside figures of Tuesday, and at the last prices showed 5⅞@6⅝c over the finish of the previous week. Corn was 1⅜@3½c; oats, ⅛@1⅛c, and rye, 4⅝@5⅛c higher for the week. Lard and ribs closed unchanged to 5c higher, and bellies, 17½@22½c higher for the week.

Scattered showers in Canada and a break of 1½@1⅝d in Liverpool was responsible for selling of wheat at the opening and a moderate decline, but the break apparently corrected the weakened technical position, and the surplus in the pit was absorbed by strong commission houses, with a wave of general buying coming toward the last on a resumption of dry weather claims from both sides of the international line. There was a more general disposition shown to reduce estimates on the Kansas and Oklahoma crops, with premature ripening now reported in some sections, and Nebraska also sent in unfavorable comments.

Winnipeg wheat showed independent strength and closed 2⅜@4⅛c higher, the latter on July; forecast indicated generally fair weather over the spring wheat area for the week-end. Export demand at the seaboard was slow, with no sales of consequence reported. It was claimed that Greece, however, was inquiring for hard winters.

December Corn Strong.

Nearby deliveries of corn failed to fully reflect the strength in wheat as the result of buying of that grain against sales of corn. Bulk of the new business is going into the December, and it is also being taken by longs in the July who have been getting out of that delivery. Trade in the aggregate was not large. Buenos Aires finished unchanged to ½c lower for the day, with July at 81¼c, or about 11⅛c under Chicago at the time the former market closed.

Oats market was a rather small affair, with the July inclined to heaviness due to selling by scattered longs. Commission houses bought the deferred deliveries on strength in other grains. Crop reports were spotted. New outside buying was in evidence in rye, due to the sharp upturn in wheat, and offerings were not large. The mid-month North Dakota report told of a thin stand and short straw in that state.

Life Insurance Sales Increase Throughout U. S.

Hartford, Conn., June 22.—The first part of 1929 continues to show gains in insurance sales, the United States as a whole recording a 9 per cent increase, it is reported here. This increase was not confined to any particular section, but was generally distributed. Every section is recording increased sales, 60 per cent of the reporting companies increasing their volume in this period. The twelve month period ending May 31, 1929, shows that the volume of insurance sold was 7 per cent greater than in the preceding year. Every section except the south Atlantic states, which shows a slight decrease, record increased production.

GUARANTY TRUST SEES SEASONAL TRADE DECLINE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, June 22.—Pointing out that the leading industries of the country are operating at nearly, if not quite, the highest levels in their history, the Guaranty Survey, published today by the Guaranty Trust company, states that a seasonal recession is in order within the next five weeks.

Although no signs of severe distress have appeared in the market for manufactured goods," the Survey continues, "it is obvious that the present rate of industrial activity cannot be maintained indefinitely."

A scaling down of operating schedules may reasonably be looked for, the Survey finds, as the summer advances and unless the industrial expansion has proceeded further than appears on the surface, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the usual revival of activity may be witnessed in the early autumn.

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Unless more rain occurs in the American and Canadian northwest over the week-end, wheat traders generally look for a sharp advance in values. J. P. Griffin of J. S. Bache & Co., expressed decidedly bullish views, and said best Canadian authorities say moisture is insufficient over a wide area. Owing to the lack of subsoil moisture showers seem to have little effect, and Kinyon's report claimed there was evidence of firing in parts of North Dakota.

"Corn condition is considerably below last year," said E. H. Miller's mid-month crop report for J. E. Bennett & Co. "Acreage is about 1 per cent in excess of last year. Majority of reports on winter wheat show more than average loss for June, and it is quite likely that July 1 reports will show some reduction in crop estimates. Oats crop spotted, with reports ranging from very poor to very good."

Crop Observer R. O. Cromwell estimates the Oklahoma wheat crop at a maximum of 45,000,000 bu, or 10,000,000 bu less than his and the official figure of June 1. Rosenbaum Grain corporation had a message placing the Kansas crop at 125,000,000 bu.

While many corn traders continue bullish, the strength in that market during the day was largely a reflection of that in wheat. There was some selling of corn against purchases of wheat by local operators. Continued complaints of the lateness of the new crop were received, especially from Missouri which received heavy rains over night and during the day.

World's shipments of wheat for the week are estimated at 14,800,000 bu, compared with 17,578,000 bu the previous week, and 15,180,000 bu last year.

Moisture conditions in western third of North Dakota on June 15 were favorable for crop growth and crop conditions were good due to general showers during the first 10 days of the month, according to the government's mid-month crop summary for that state. Crops in the eastern two-thirds of the state will soon need rain. Several hailstorms in the southwestern section have caused some crop damage. Many early seeded fields of grain are badly infested with wild oats and will be cut for hay. Rye crop is only fair, with thin stand, and straw is short. Cool, moist weather at filling time will do much to improve the yield.

Weather in southern Argentina remains dry and seeding of the new wheat crop is progressing slowly. Russia continues to complain of dry weather in the south, but fair average yields are now expected in other parts of Europe. The recent raising of the French and Italian tariffs on wheat is not expected to curtail purchases to any great extent.

The investing public knows what is meant by a "first mortgage bond." There should be no question about the nature of the security behind a bond bearing this title.

But what sort of bonds are those labeled "first collateral trust," "first mortgage and refunding lien," or "first lien and consolidated mortgage"?

Such titles may denote almost anything and are therefore meaningless. It is not contended that they are employed with the aim of deceiving the investor. But they are confusing and the practice of obscuring the real nature of a bond and the security behind it by the use of vague titles leaves an opening for the unscrupulous salesman who would exploit an inexperienced public by false inferences.

Realizing the existence of this evil bankers and dealers in securities through their national associations have been seeking to standardize, as far as possible, the nomenclature of bonds and notes. Although the attempt to prepare a list of titles to cover all cases and procure general acceptance of such a list has been found to be hardly practicable, some headway has been reported. It is believed that the effective course will be a continued insistence by influential investment houses and banks upon the use of titles which fairly represent the issues to which they apply.

Self-Explanatory Titles.

There are some titles which are clear and concise and can carry but one meaning to the investor. A first mortgage bond issue is backed by first mortgage security. "First and refunding" means that the bond is a first lien on some physical property. The word "refunding" indicates that it is issued for the purpose of taking up other bonds.

"First mortgage collateral" states that the issue is secured not by its own first lien but by collateral which is a first lien. "First mortgage and collateral" suggests a bond which is itself a first lien on certain property and which is secured in part by collateral.

"Collateral trust," on the other hand, is not explanatory. It means simply that the security is collateral without pretending to give any information concerning its nature. "General and refunding mortgage," "unifying and refunding," "consolidated mortgage," and "general mortgage and collateral trust" are too vague to contain any definite meaning.

Then there are various titles beginning with the word "first" which might lead the investor to the erroneous conclusion that they represent first mortgage bonds.

Label a Selling Aid.

If all investors were able to analyze bonds before buying them and would take the trouble to study the provisions under which they are issued the title would not be so important a factor. As it is, however, the bond's label often helps to sell it just as the word "gold" in the title frequently leads the investor to believe that the bond referred to is a "gilt-edged" security, when in fact it simply means that the principal when due is payable in gold.

Efforts toward clarifying the names of bonds are laudable, because their success would mean additional protection for the average investor.

The bond buyer, however, can best protect himself by carefully examining the provisions of an issue to determine exactly what sort of bond he is getting and the nature of the security behind it.

SPOT EGGS IN DEMAND

Egg breakers were reported as good buyers in the spot market, and while prices there showed little change, it had some effect on futures on the Chicago Mercantile exchange, with November closing ¼c higher at 35⅝c. June finished unchanged at 30½c. Sales were 103 cars and receipts 16,190 cases. Government weekly report on butter production was construed as bearish, and November declined ¼c and closed at 43⅝c. Sales were 19 cars and receipts, 18,137 tubs.

4 Companies Capable of Indefinite Expansion?

WE have been referring constantly to the long pull possibilities of certain companies. Sometimes in the vicissitudes of the stock market, investors lose sight of the possibilities in individual securities. While this year the stock market has been backing and filling in a twenty-five point level, some stocks have been continuously in a bull market. A feature of this year's markets has been its selectivity. Substantial rewards have come to the investor who has had the courage and the foresight to place his funds in certain stocks and then to hold them regardless of temporary fluctuations in the ups and downs of the stock market.

An outstanding example of this sort of thing has been General Electric's sweeping advance.

General Electric is the type of stock which will probably advance steadily over the years because it represents the development and progress of what has become one of the greatest of our industries.

There are other companies which are in almost the same position as General Electric. We have constantly referred to them this year and have advised clients to take advantage of market weakness to acquire these securities and then to hold them for the long pull.

Such companies are outlined in the latest issue of our bulletin which will be sent free upon request to interested investors.

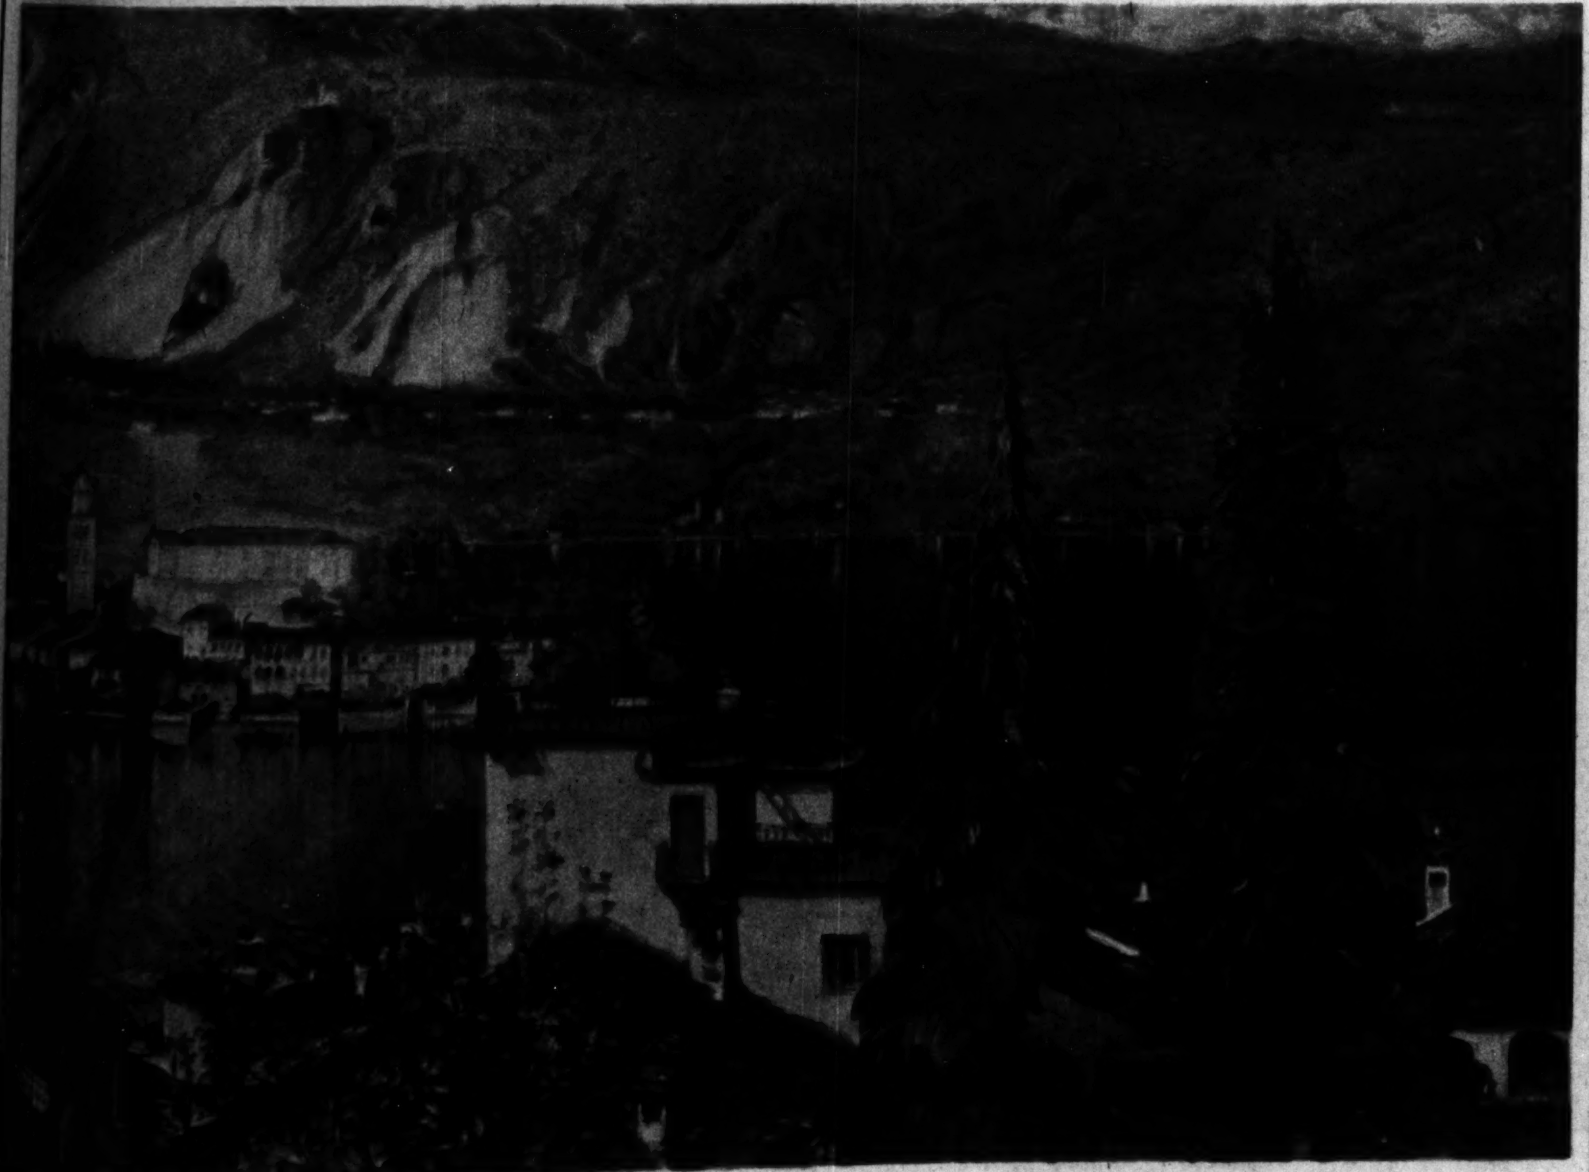
MOLLY PITCHER AT MONMOUTH—Seizing the rammer when her gunner husband was shot dead at the Battle of Monmouth, Molly Pitcher leaped to his place at the cannon and saved it from the British. General Washington made her a sergeant with pay for life. The 151st anniversary of this Revolutionary battle comes this week, on June 28. This old color print was provided by Mrs. Daisy Wood Caswell of 1631 East Seventy-fourth place. It has been in her family for many years.



JUNE MORNING, LAKE ORTA, was presented to the Chicago Art institute by the Friends of American Art. The painting is the work of a Chicago artist, Oliver Dennett Grover.

LEATRICE JOY looked lovely, as usual, when she graced our city with her presence on the vaudeville circuit recently. And that's one reason why we aren't seeing much of her in pictures. Leatrice, unlike most girls of the screen, can sing. (Color-photos by Godfrey Lundberg.)

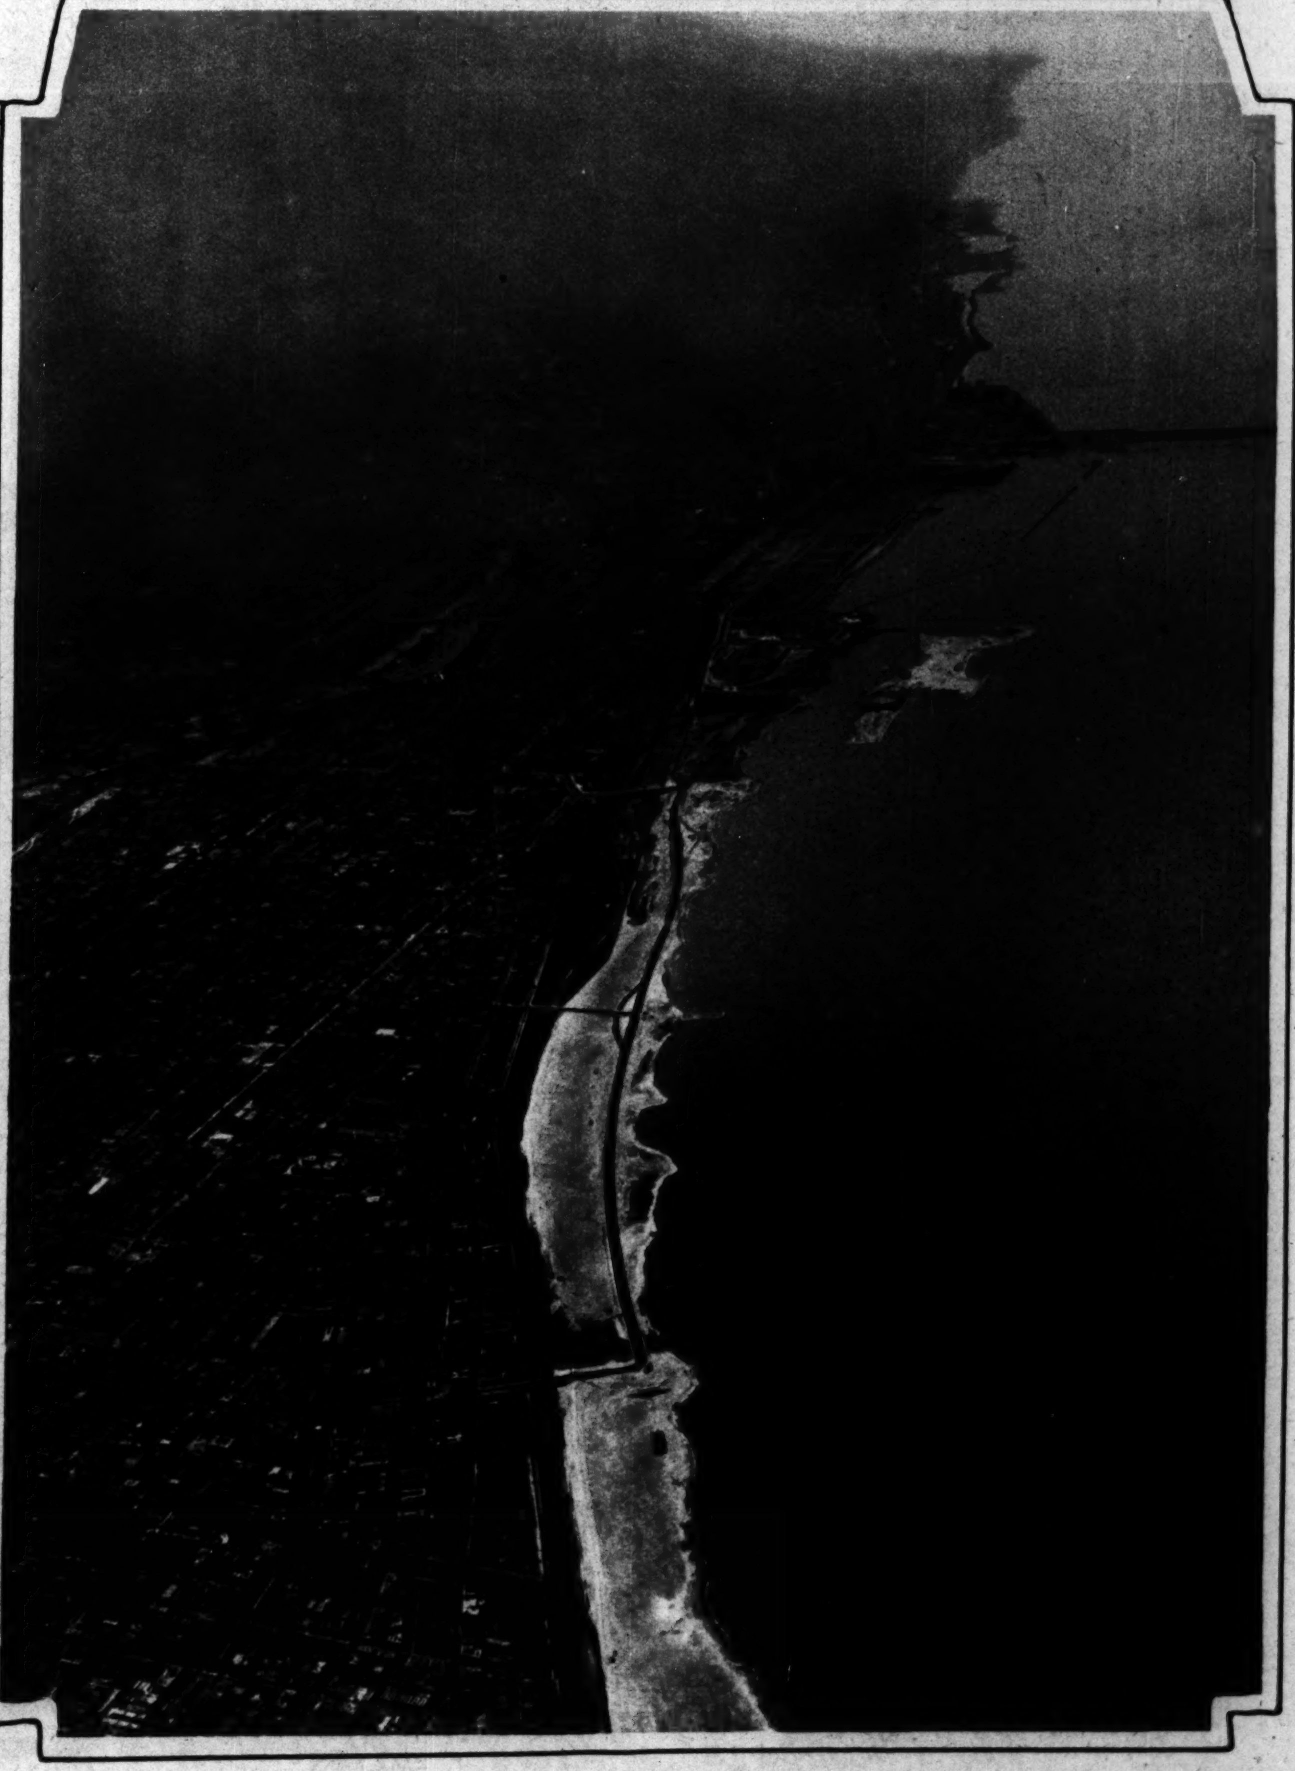
6,000 FEET UP and the city's great towers are dwarfed as you see here.



AT 9,000 FEET this is what the camera found as the 'Untin' Bowler roared through the clouds. It seems that the whole city comes into the camera's magic lens.

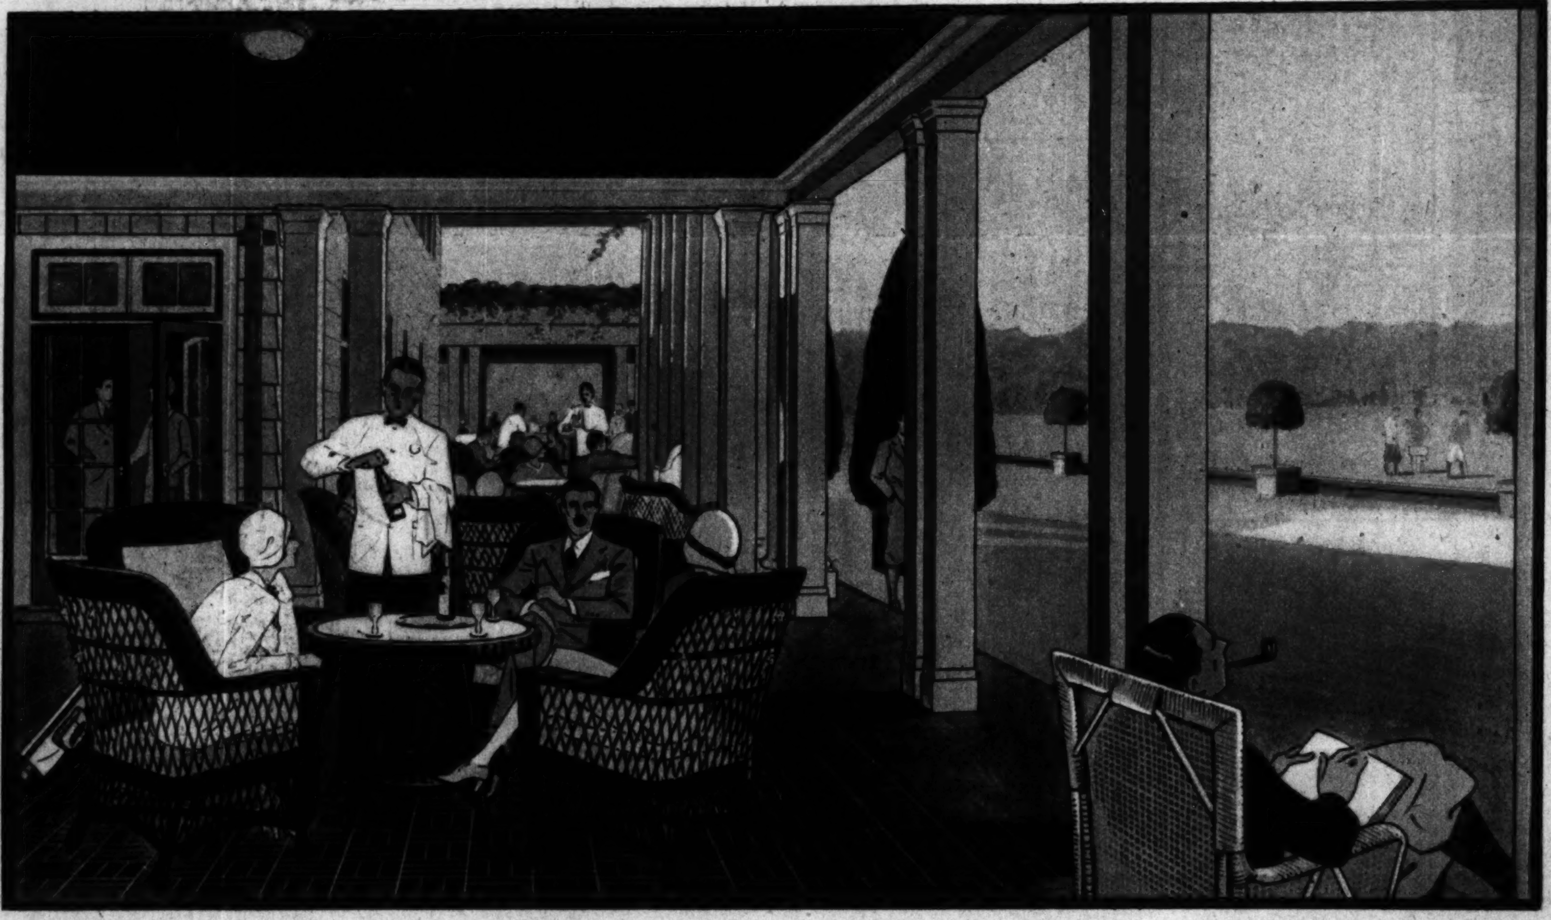
Gives Zest to Talk



THESE CHARMING PEOPLE

A WOMAN'S LAUGH falls gaily upon their ears, and the company hears of a well-played match. The talk turns to yachting and a youth tells of winning the King of Spain's cup. Fleet horses engage their interest and a Master of Hounds recounts a thrilling hunt in Maryland.

Among such conversation as this, as much a part of the scene as the butler, as necessary to it as the people themselves, is "Canada Dry" Ginger Ale.

The connoisseurs—people whose opinion and approval make for the success of things—drink "Canada Dry." In their opinion it is held high. For this fine old beverage makes its quality quietly felt. Their approval has been won by the marvelous flavor of The Champagne of Ginger Ales.

"'Dry,' like a good sauterne," one will say. "Mellow," adds another. "A ginger ale which has distinction," a third will say. True; for this fine old ginger ale is made with such expert care that naturally the mind turns to such approving comment.

Its quality and flavor proclaim the care with which it is made

Absolutely pure ingredients give "Canada Dry" basic excellence. Only high-quality Jamaica ginger is used. The blending and balancing of the ingredients is exactly proportioned. Hourly check-ups are made to watch for variations from those proportions. The carbonation, achieved by a secret process, enables "Canada Dry" to retain its sparkle long after the bottle is opened. And the resulting product is what you and countless others know as a better, finer, purer ginger ale. So pure is it that not only do leading hospitals serve it, but also many physicians prescribe it.

This mellow ginger ale sparkles with gaiety and refreshment

The mellow flavor of "Canada Dry" enhances the success of dinner. Its gaiety and joyousness adds good cheer when good friends call. Its zest and sparkle make an evening of bridge even more pieasant. Order "Canada Dry" today, and you'll know the thrill of drinking this wonderful ginger ale.

In Ravinia's Outdoor Opera

(Photograph copyright by Mishkin.)

LUCREZIA BORI, the fascinating, is here represented in the part of that fascinating young baggage, Manon. Two composers, Massenet and Puccini, have successfully set her affairs to music, and Miss Bori successfully plays the parts of both of them. According to present information, she is the only operatic artist who does.

(Photograph copyright by Carlo Edwards.)

(Photograph from Maurice Goldberg.)

FLORENCE MACBETH greets you here at the left as the incumbent of the name part in the tuneful opera about India, "Lakme." Because of its attractive melodies and the brilliant, skilled singing necessary to project them to the audience, "Lakme" is always a favorite with operagoers.

INA BOURSKAYA, Polish by birth, Russian by training, American by residence, exhibits the wiles and fascinations of the leading part in a Spanish opera composed by a Frenchman, "Carmen." She has been doing it at Ravinia for a number of seasons.

DO YOU KNOW WHY. . .ONE PERMANENT IS GOOD. . . ANOTHER BAD?

THAT your next permanent may be lovelier and more lasting than you had ever believed possible, consider these two things.

First—the operator, whose skill is of paramount importance.

Second—the pad, which is wrapped about your hair. It can make or mar the permanent. Be sure that the pad used on your hair is clearly marked "Wav-ette." They are used in thousands of the better shops where they have replaced old style methods.

Wav-ette pads require no wetting with fuming, odorous liquids. They insure waves of marvelous beauty and softness, even depth and permanency. There is nothing in Wav-ette to harm hair of any shade, texture, or condition.

Insist that your hairdresser use pads bearing the name "Wav-ette." In any waving machine they are your assurance of the soft, lustrous waves so much to be desired.

This Foam Penetrates

*How Colgate's Cleans Crevices Where Tooth Decay May Start

Greatly magnified picture of tiny tooth crevice. Note how ordinary, sluggish toothpaste (having high "surface tension") fails to penetrate deep down where the causes of decay lurk.

This diagram shows how Colgate's active foam (having low "surface-tension") penetrates deep down into the crevice, cleansing it completely where the toothbrush cannot reach.

Colgate's penetrating foam possesses a remarkable property (low "surface-tension"). This means that it penetrates into every tiny crevice.* There it softens and dislodges the impurities, which may hasten decay, washing them away in a detergent wave.

In this foam is carried a fine chalk powder, a polishing material used by dentists as safe yet effective in keeping teeth white and attractive.

Thus Colgate's is a double cleansing dentifrice, not a cure-all. Colgate's has never claimed to cure pyorrhea, to correct an acid condition of the mouth—things no toothpaste can do. Colgate does claim to clean teeth better.

Millions of sensible people have realized that Colgate's is more than an approved surface polisher; that it is the one dentifrice which successfully washes away all those decaying food particles and mucin deposits lurking in the tiny crevices which brushing doesn't reach.

Millions of people have been impressed by the fact that more dentists recommend Colgate's than any other leading dentifrice.

Also Colgate's has won friends because of its economical price—a 25¢ tube of Colgate's contains more toothpaste than any other leading brand priced at 25¢.

This great value is due to volume production—Colgate's is the largest-selling dentifrice in the world.

Why not accept this widespread acknowledgment of Colgate's as doubly superior?

Consider Colgate's two superiorities. It not only polishes the surface thoroughly but because it contains the world's greatest cleansing agent, it cleans where ordinary brushing can't. Really clean teeth help to protect against premature decay.

No More Oily Skin

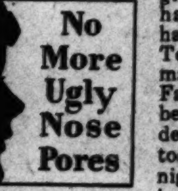
Creamed Magnesia beautifies the skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach

The newest discovery in beauty culture is that creamed magnesia is much better for oily skin than any soap or cleansing cream. It beautifies the skin instantly, in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach. This is because skin impurities are acid. Doctors treat acid inside the body with milk of magnesia. And now, dermatologists are getting amazing results in banishing complexion faults with creamed magnesia. All you do is anoint your skin with it, massage and rinse with water. It's as simple as washing your face.

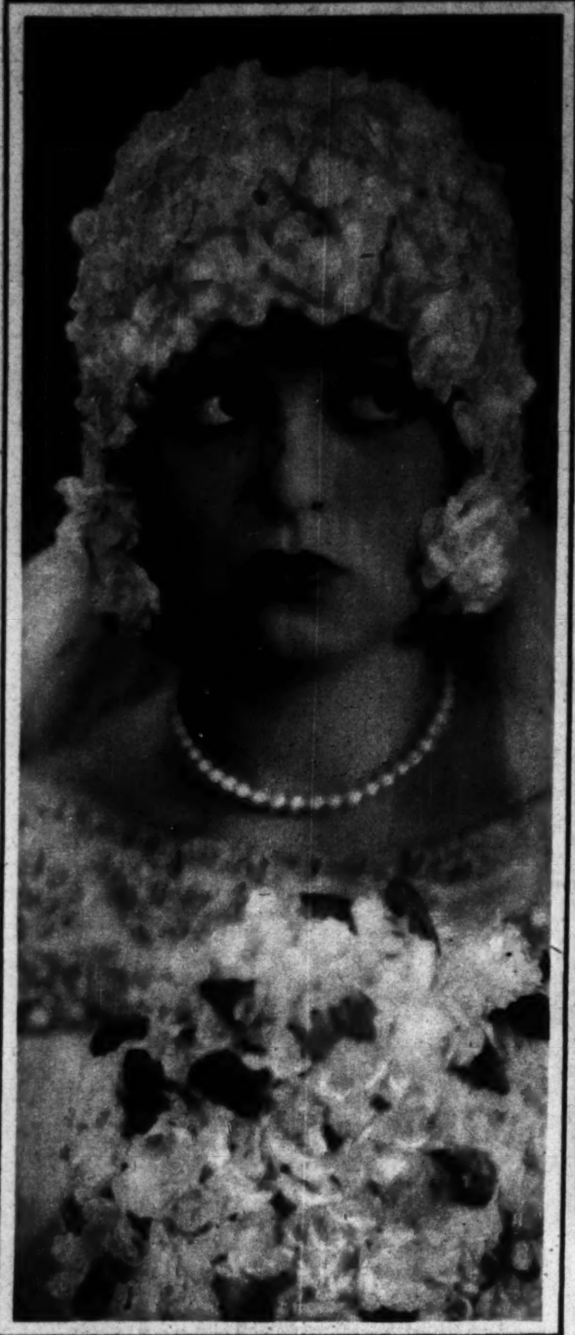
It reduces enlarged pores to the finest, smoothest texture almost as if by magic. Being astringent, it drives away the tell-tale signs of age. You will marvel at the effect of your first five-minute facial massage. It rejuvenates the skin so quickly that any woman can look lovely tonight, years younger. It's marvelous how magnesia dissolves blackheads, clears eruptions and corrects oily skin.

And because it is so mild, mothers use it instead of soap to bathe infants. It certainly is a blessing as a face wash for fine, sensitive skins that soap so easily irritates and coarsens. Being greaseless, it cannot fatten the face or grow hair. It removes make-up and extracts impurities deep-set in the pores better than soap or cold cream. It changes dull, sallow skin to radiant clearness and fades out freckles better than a bushel of lemons. Test it on those clogged nose pores that stand out so boldly. Let it whiten your neck. It will also keep your hands soft and white. Until recently, creamed magnesia was used only by New York doctors' wives, and nurses. But now the large druggists everywhere find it hard to keep enough on hand to supply the demand. To get genuine creamed magnesia, ask for Denton's Facial Magnesia. Remember, five minutes works wonders. So, get your magnesia today and look lovely tonight. It costs almost nothing to try. It's Guaranteed!

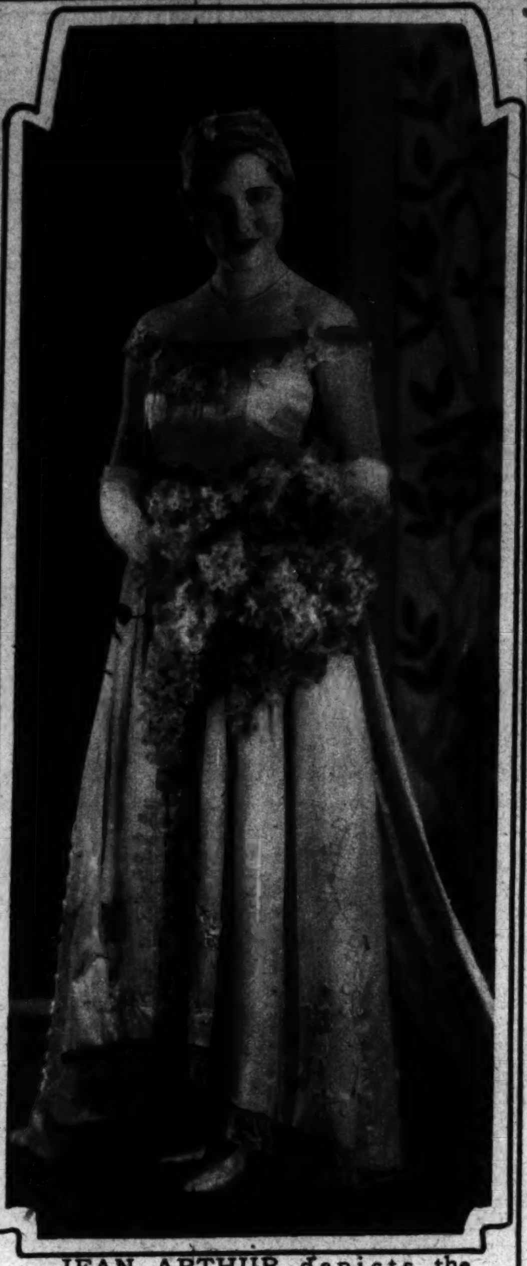


No More Ugly Nose Pores

CAUTION: Modern skin specialists say never use soap on your face if your skin is oily. All soap contains caustic, which paralyzes the little oil glands of the skin, keeping them constantly opened. That's why oily skin always gets more greasy-looking after soap. Oily skins should be cleansed only with Facial Magnesia, which corrects oily skin in the same easy way that milk of magnesia purifies the stomach.



CLARA BOW is here seen in a bridal costume. Quaint white wood violets form the cap of the tulle veil and the muff which is carried over one wrist. The gown is of ivory satin fashioned along period lines.



JEAN ARTHUR depicts the "Juliet bride." She wears a frock of ivory satin made along period lines and trimmed with garlands of silver and satin leaves. A petticoat of lace falls beneath the voluminous skirt. A Juliet cap of lace and satin is worn and there is a long court train. A shower of white lilacs is carried.

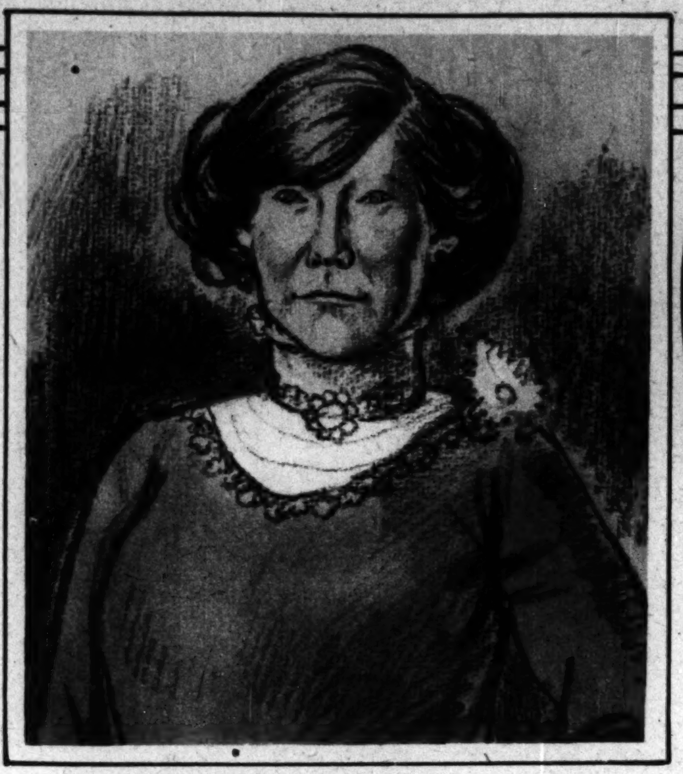
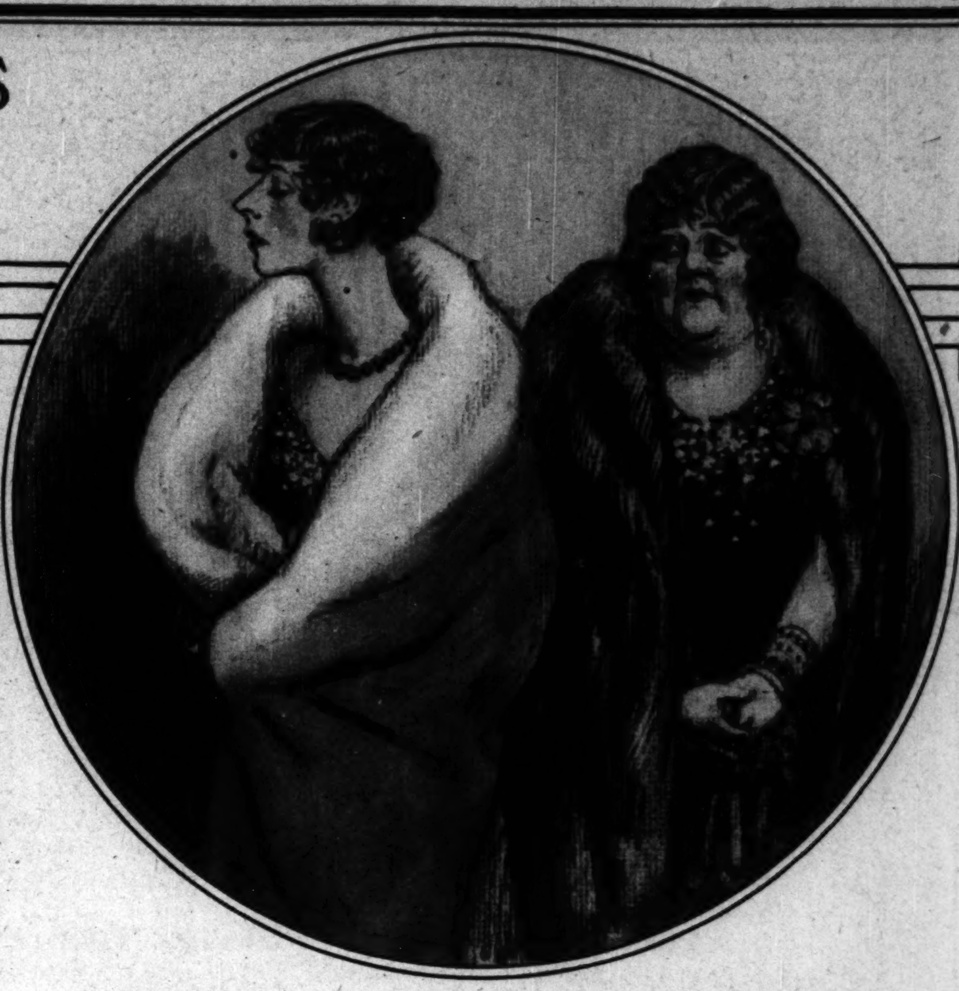
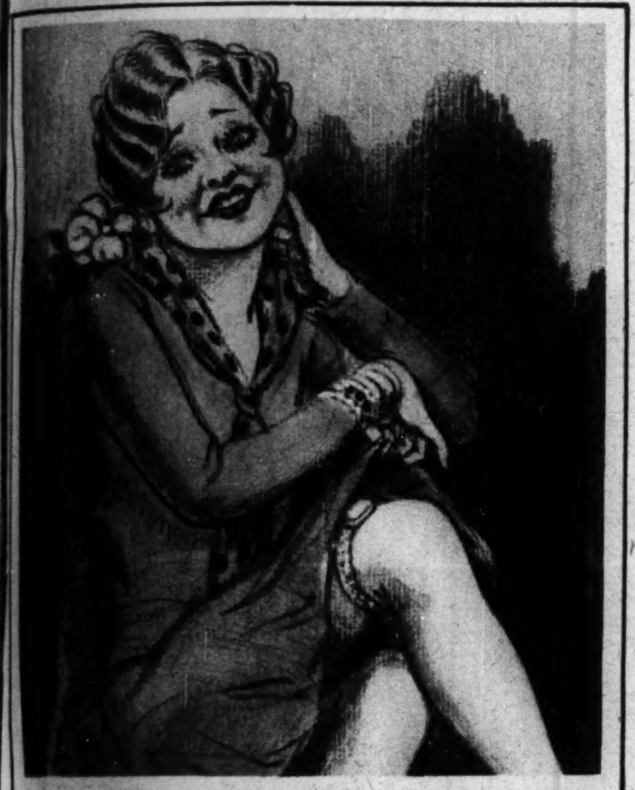
Patent Medicine. This is what Mrs. Minnie G. Teeter of Springsteen, Idaho, has to say of Dr. Growl's Patent Nerve Enlivener and Kennel Ration: "When my little girl, Hazel, was six months old she used to be subject to twitchings and convulsions and was very unattractive, so that people hated to have her around. This made her self-conscious and sullen. The doctors just seemed to aggravate her. There seemed nothing to do but take her out and lose her, when my husband brought home a sample bottle of Dr. Growl's Nerve Enlivener and Kennel Ration. Right away Hazel seemed to improve, and that night she said, 'I don't believe I shall need a pill to make me sleep tonight.' Now, at the age of three years and four months, Hazel is strong and well, has no more dizzy-spells, and can help me with the wash and the housework, thanks to Dr. Growl's Nerve Enlivener and Kennel Ration."



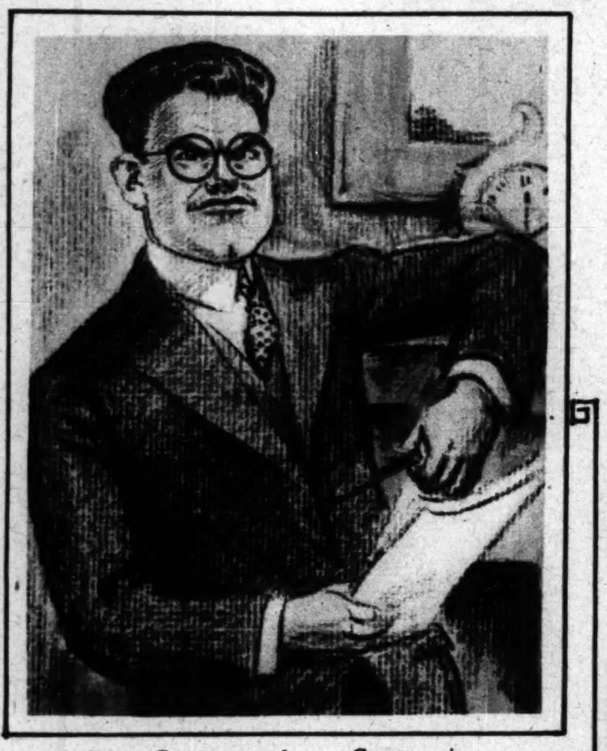
The Bi-Weekly Book Lovers' Guild. "I don't know," writes Mrs. Lizzie R. Snuffle of Tudor City, Oklahoma, "what I would do without the Bi-Weekly Book Lovers Guild. We can hardly wait for each book to come. There are six in our family and, honestly, not one of us slept a wink we were all so excited the night before the guild book was to arrive. Indeed, the last selection of the guild, 'Indecent Daisy; the story of a repressed adolescent,' should be in every parlor."



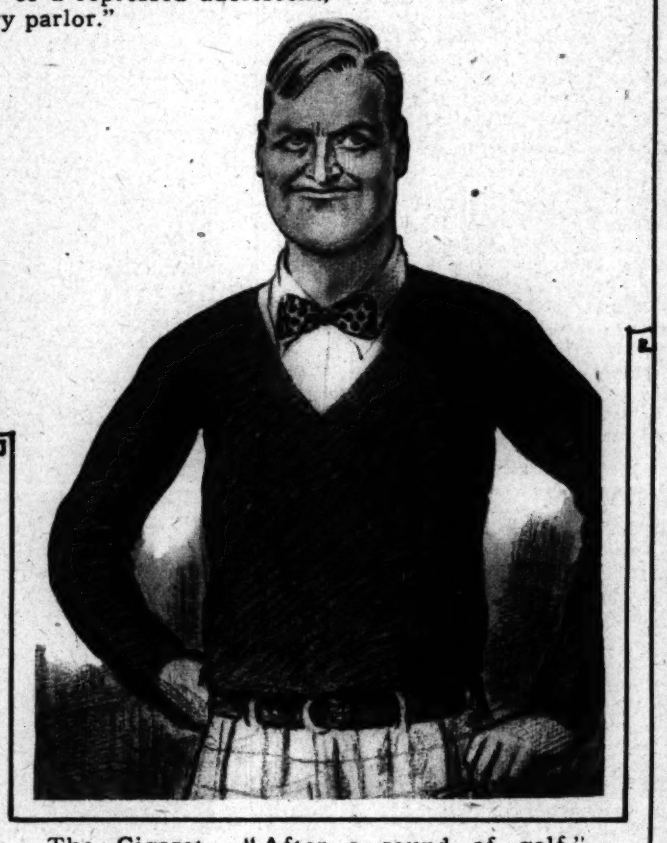
The Rival Indorsers. Princess Xenia Flaherity, the social leader, who indorses only the most luxuriant in beauty creams and the grandest baby grands, giving a direct cut to Mrs. Howard De Moosey Hiss, who only indorsed a wringer. After all, noblesse oblige demands something of social leadership, now doesn't it?



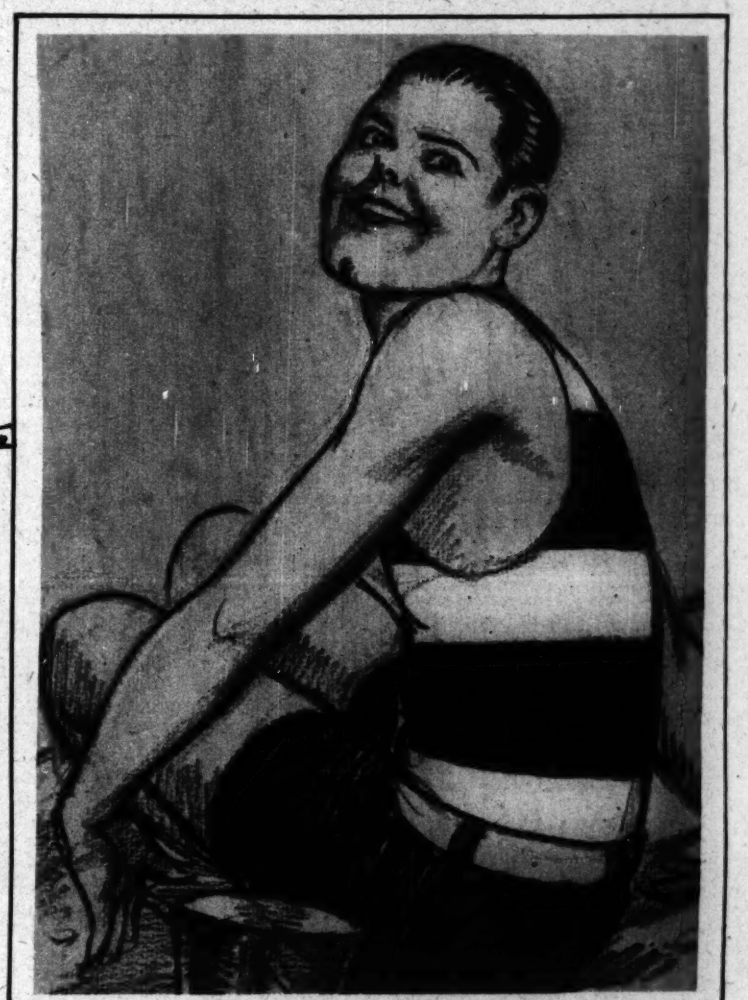
A baby Wampas star, as they are known out Hollywood way, will indorse anything gladly and will even have big stills made for publicity purposes, showing Gladys with her Whosis bed spring, her bottle of moth or flea exterminator, or her electric dish scraper. Here's little Miss Lethal Del Broun, star of Winklewurst Pictures, showing magazine readers her new garter watch, named for her. "I just love my new garter watch," writes Miss Del Broun, "and so does everybody else, because it has all the charm of the Rue de la Paix, with the durability of the rugged west."



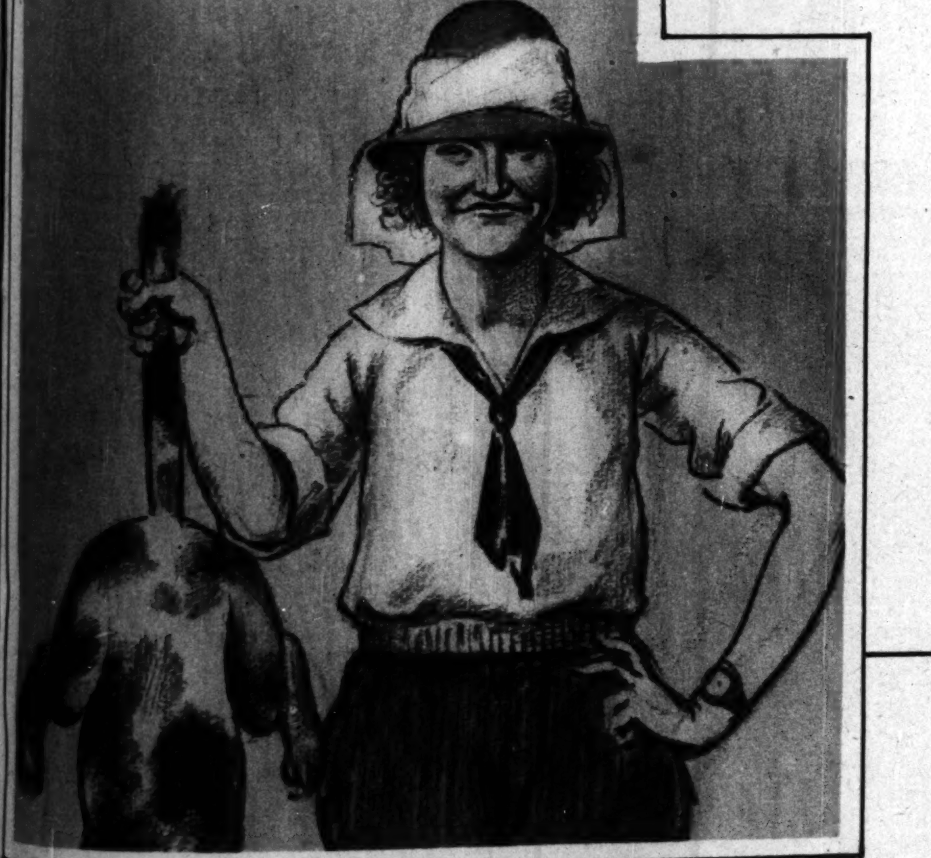
The Correspondence Course, indorsed into great aplomb by Fred Lumpe of Devils Lake, S. D., who writes: "Dear Crobar Institute: Almost the very day I enrolled in your correspondence course for film writing, short story writing, use of capitals and spelling, and scenario constructing I sold my first article, and I was so pleased I just wanted to hug Crobar Institute and give it a big kiss."



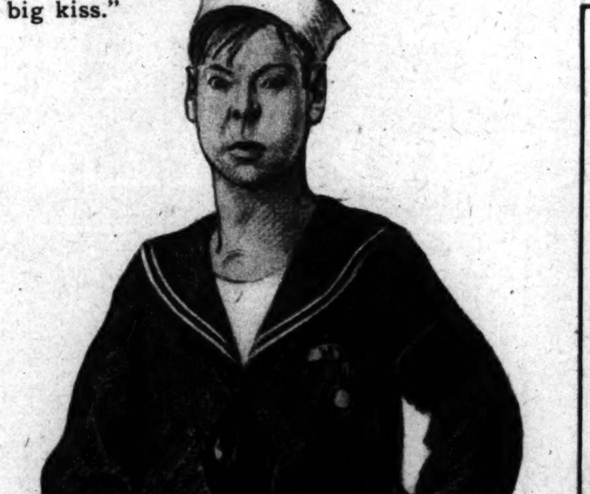
The Cigaret. "After a round of golf," states Barry Porterhouse Van Splash, "a canter through the woods, a soar in the plane, or even a good old-fashioned game of puss in the corner, I find nothing so soothing as an 'Exclusive' cigarette, mellowed and weathered in the wood and combining the exotic softness of the orient with the brisk tang of smart country club exclusiveness."



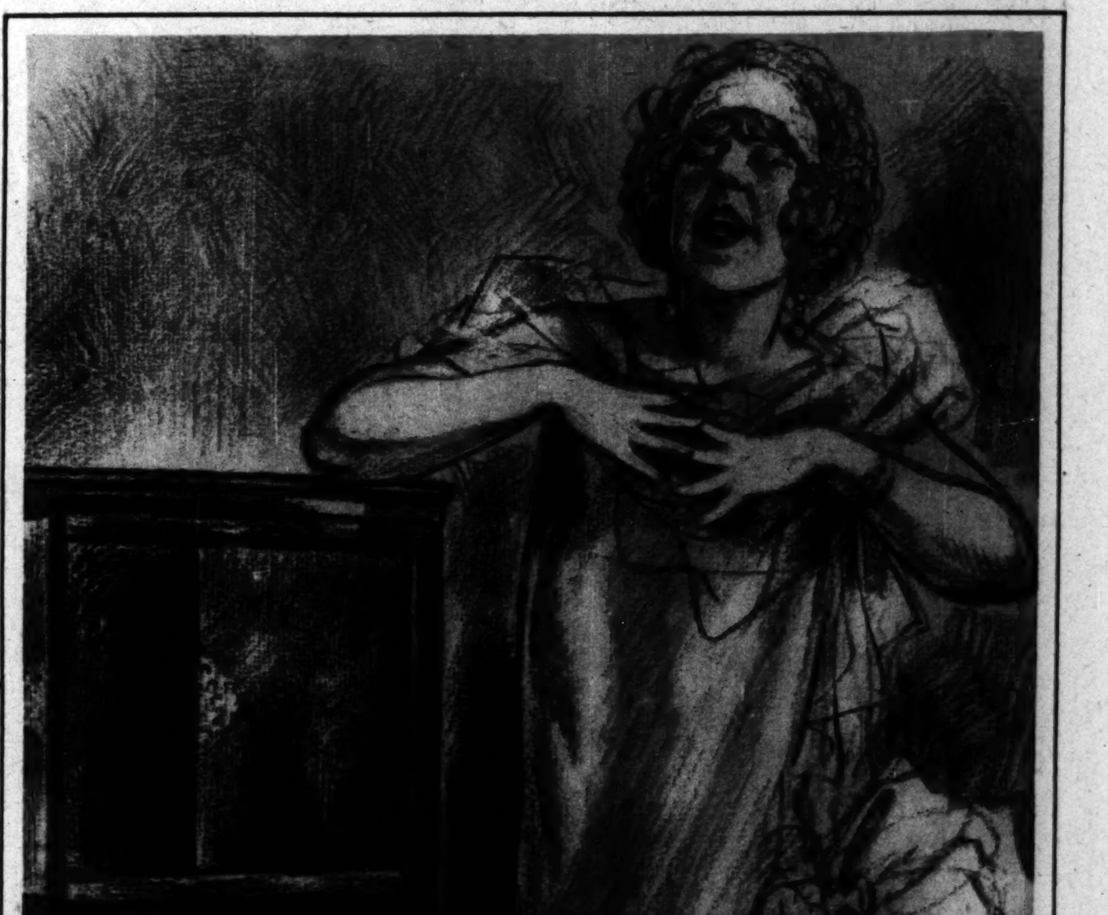
The Men's Wear. "Dear Marveline Knit Goods," pens Mel Avacado, the handsome movie star, "I am entranced with my Marveline swimming suit. I am never without it for long whether on the beach at Pleya del Ray or at home in my new Grecian shower!"



The Household Deodorant. "While hunting in Africa," indorses Mrs. Stanley Granite, wife of the famous explorer, "we were fortunate in bagging a wama, a three-toed ignoramus, a glue cat, and a couple of man-eating short haired wheezers. All these animals are notoriously lazy and slothful and untidy generally. What we would have done without our can of Jupp's Smell Chaser I don't know, because even the natives hate to touch a short haired wheezer, smelling as it does of garlic and onions and cheap scent."



The Tonic. Writes Ralph Opal of Endocrine, North Dakota: "While in the navy I was afflicted with boils, many of them as large as a good sized hen's egg, or a ripe tomato. Sometimes there would be as many as a couple of dozen on my face and neck alone and I used to scream with the pain of them in the dead of night. One day our admiral came to me with a dozen bottles of your tonic. 'Try it, Ralph,' he said to me, 'it may bring you the happiness you so richly deserve.' Although skeptical, I did as he suggested and in three days' time all my boils had disappeared. Today my skin is as clear as a babe's."



The Phonograph Records. Says Mme. Villanova Disiree Bloomer, world-famous coloratura and lieder singer: "I am charmed and astounded at hearing my voice by way of your new recording process. The record of 'Oh, that my songs hadst the wings of a pale dove, beloved,' was so soaring in its lyric quality that I could not realize that," etc., etc., etc.

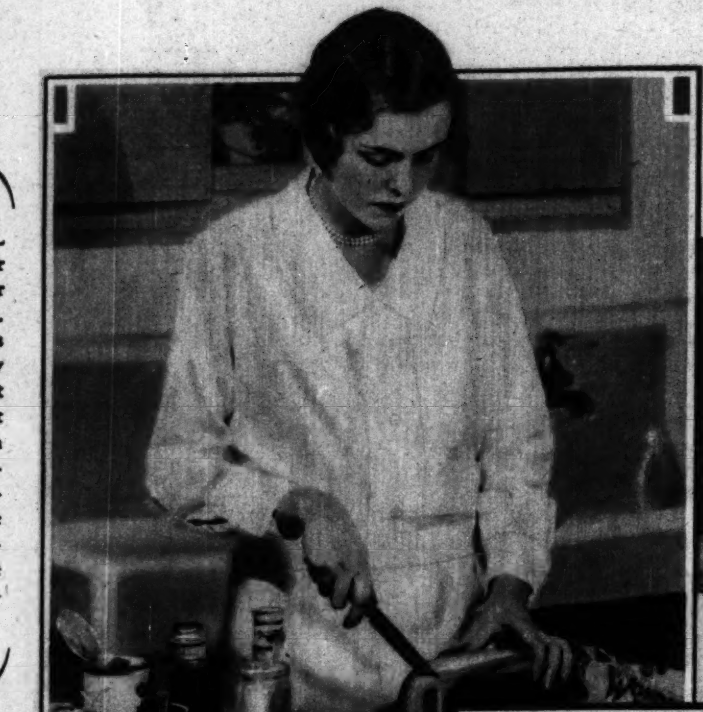
• • Make a Sandwich for You • •



FIRST OF ALL use only Wonder Bread for your sandwiches. These recipes demand it. My friends now use it exclusively. It slices so much easier, toasts better, and its unusually delicate flavor adds immeasurably to the taste of the sandwich itself.

IN SPREADING on the filling, use a flat knife. Spread evenly to extreme edges. Except in special mixture recipes be sure to apply the ingredients separately. In this way only can you maintain the separate characteristic flavor of each ingredient.

CUT YOUR sandwich from point to point, dividing it into four portions. Then, as you eat towards the crust, you taste filling at every bite. Remove every bit of crust from delicate canape sandwiches. But not from the hearty, full-meal variety.

A LESSON IN SANDWICH MAKING! Young housewives receiving instruction in how the modern sandwich should be made. Toasted sandwiches, topless sandwiches, hearty or dainty sandwiches . . . there's a secret to every one!

An exposition of the do's and don'ts of sandwich making by the famous domestic scientist

Why she considers the exclusive use of Wonder Bread of utmost importance

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

The old-fashioned sandwich has come into its own! And it's here, I believe, to stay.

Today you see sandwiches everywhere. At luncheons, at teas, even at formal dinners!

But still sandwich making, as practiced by our foremost chefs, remains a little known art. There are so few really authentic recipes to follow! Even our cleverest hostesses are often frankly at a loss.

Sensing here an important need, I have spent the past year experimenting with sandwiches in endless variety. My friends have found my discoveries most helpful.

Through the courtesy of the Continental Baking Company I am printing here for the first time my discoveries, together with three of my original recipes.

Do read them over and then try the recipes. The results, I believe, will delight you.

My Most Important Secret

Without question, much of the success of the sandwiches I make is due to the bread I use.

Under no circumstances will I consider any bread but Wonder Bread. There are several excellent reasons for this.

First of all, I find it so easy to slice, even when extremely fresh. No matter how thin I may cut it, it never crumbles. This is due, I suppose, to its remarkably fine texture.

Second, the delightful way it toasts. There are never any burned edges to cut off. Nor any scorched, uneven spots. Every slice is the same even, golden brown. With toasted sandwiches so popular today, these superior toasting qualities cannot be overlooked.

Third, and in many ways the most important, is the flavor. I have tasted practically every loaf of bread you can buy and many others that you can't, but never have I found the same delicacy of flavor that I find in Wonder Bread. I believe you will be quick to agree to this.

About My Ingredients

Next in importance to the use of Wonder Bread are the fillings I use and the ways I prepare them.

Before slicing the bread I see that all necessary tools and ingredients are close at hand. It is highly important, you see, to combine the filling and the bread quickly.

I see that my lettuce is washed and dried, salad dressings mixed, my fillings completely prepared, ingredients in cans, ready opened.

Under no circumstances do I mix my ingredients. Except in special mixture recipes, always keep them completely separate. This allows each individual ingredient to maintain its own characteristic flavor.

How to Spread on Filling

To spread on the filling I use a flat knife. I am careful to spread to even thickness and to the extreme edges.

In making exceptionally thin sandwiches I advise a rather unusual procedure even with Wonder Bread. Spread the filling on the open surface of the loaf before slicing. This eliminates all possibility of breaking the bread while applying the filling.

Cutting a Sandwich

There is but one really correct way to cut a sandwich. This is from corner to corner, dividing the sandwich into four parts.

Thus in eating you taste filling at every bite. You eat towards the crust. The crust itself may then be discarded.

Remove the crusts from dainty appetizer sandwiches. But not from the hearty "full meal" variety. The men, you'll find, want them on!

My Sandwich Booklet

Through many, many experiments I have personally developed several delightful new sandwich creations. These, together with several old standbys prepared in unusual ways, I have included in my new "Wonder Sandwich Booklet." Three of these recipes are reprinted on this page.

Won't you let me mail you a copy with my personal compliments? Do not even send a stamped envelope. Just mail the coupon below.

Do Try Wonder Bread

By all means give Wonder Bread a trial. You will find it delightful in every way. Above all, do not overlook its dietetic advantages.

Won't You Try It Toasted?

Many, many women sceptical of what I claim have been won by toasting this remarkable Wonder Bread in direct comparison with other brands. This I earnestly urge you to do, knowing from past experience exactly what you will find.

With the new knowledge of balanced diet, Wonder Bread is becoming increasingly important for children.

It offers an abundance of calories to replenish energy burned up at work or play. Also valuable proteins to foster rich blood and sturdy muscles.

Go ask your grocer for a loaf today. Take it home and try it in your own home.

In ordering please remember this: Ordinary breads in spite of their claims cannot give Wonder Bread advantages.

Wonder Bread is in every way a unique product. It cost the Continental Baking Company $6,000,000 to put it on the market. And yet the price to you is the same as the price of ordinary brands.

May I suggest keeping this advertisement after sending coupon? You may wish to refer to it.

WONDER CORNUCOPIA SANDWICH . . . Cut very thin pieces of Wonder Bread, with all crusts removed, into fan-shaped pieces. Spread with creamed butter and cover with a thin piece of smoked sturgeon cut the shape of, but a trifle smaller than, the bread. Roll like a cornucopia and seal with butter along the lapping edge. Small sprigs of parsley stuck in the top of each cornucopia add to the appearance.

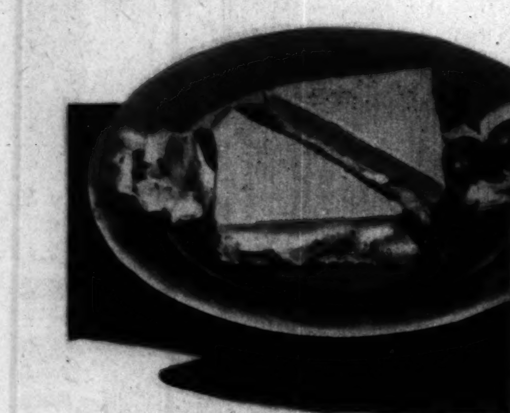
Creamed mushrooms, olive and cheese, creamed chicken or lobster—in fact, any tasteful moist filling, makes the cornucopia sandwich a delight.



WONDER PINEAPPLE CREAM CHEESE SANDWICH . . . Butter two slices of Wonder Bread. Spread one slice generously with cream cheese. On top of the cheese place a layer of drained crushed pineapple. Do not mix cheese and pineapple. Cover with second buttered slice of bread. Trim off crusts and cut diagonally into four pieces. Now garnish your completed sandwich with tiny lettuce leaves and olives as shown above.

WONDER FISH CLUB SPECIAL . . . Ingredients: Kippered herring drained and fried quickly in butter, 3 Wonder Bread slices ½ inch thick, mayonnaise. Two crisp leaves of lettuce and two slices of tomato soaked for a few minutes in French dressing. Directions: Toast bread golden brown. Spread one piece on two sides for center, two pieces on one side for top and bottom. Between the first and second pieces arrange lettuce, tomato and mayonnaise. Between second and third pieces place piping hot kippered herring. Serve at once with a bit of celery and an olive. This sandwich is popular with men!

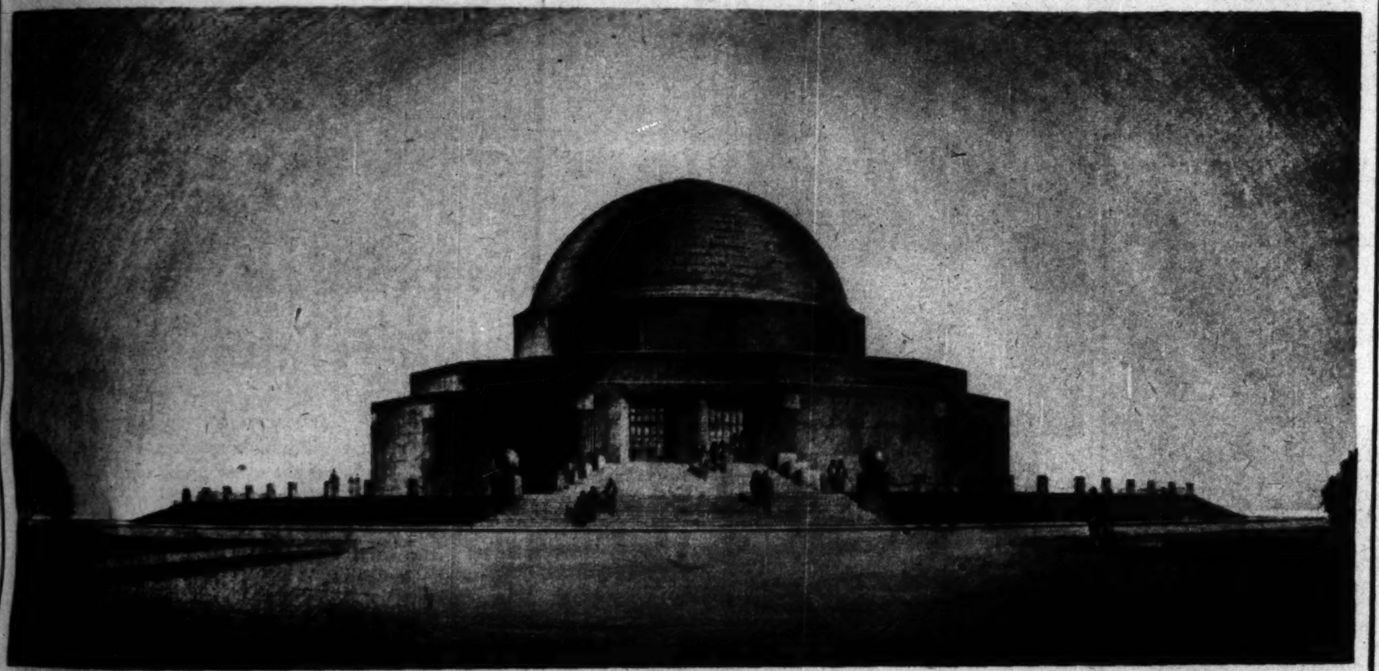
THE BROADCAST—A visualization of the scene that comes to stay-at-home baseball fans as Quin Ryan, W-G-N announcer, reports the great American pastime—for it's Quin at the microphone in the stand at Sox park. Clip this picture and save it; it will add to your enjoyment of the game via radio. Race results likewise are broadcast every weekday by W-G-N.



THE ADLER PLANETARIUM, which is to expound for Chicagoans the wonders of the heavens, and which is now under construction in its Grant park island setting off Roosevelt road, will look like this when complete. In addition to the planetarium proper, the $600,000 gift of Max Adler will contain an astronomical museum and library. Designed by Ernest A. Grunsfeld Jr., the building will be of dark granite, as to walls, and the dome is to be of copper.

A BIRTHDAY SHOW FOR THE KING which the king didn't attend—the impressive trooping of the colors, at London, on Horse Guards parade. The convalescent king was kept away by his recent relapse. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, and the Duke of Connaught here lead the inspection.

HOSPITALITY OF FEUDAL DAYS was revived in a four-day celebration at hoary Arundel castle, in Sussex, when the duke of Norfolk, first peer of England, came of age, and there was feasting for all who appeared. The ducal flag waves from a tower built more than 800 years ago.

MISS ROSITA MORENO, who, it is told, is called when at home "The Darling of Spain." This would indicate that she, too, is at home in Spain. But the point of interest now is that she also is dancing in Chicago, in "Pleasure-Bound" in the Grand opera house.

POUDRE

FOR LIGHT COMPLEXIONS:

"Pearl"—for the fair skin with color.

"Pearl with glow"—a warm tone for the fair skin with little color.

"Naturelle"—to match the medium-toned skin.

FOR BRUNETTES:

"Rachel"—for the brunette with color.

"Rachel with glow"—a warm tone for the brunette with little color.

New subtle tones to bring out more perfectly your own natural coloring. Yet this unusual range of tone is only one of the things that brings this strikingly new, vitally different face powder so definitely in step with modern Fashion and outdoor living.

For instance, the texture. It's completely different—smoother, more velvety perhaps than you have ever known. Poudre le Début spreads with a delicate translucence so that it blends exquisitely with the tone and texture of your skin . . . so nearly invisible that it becomes no mere mask to "cover up" but a very part of your face.

It contains several newly discovered ingredients never before used in face powder that protect the skin from the ravages of sun, wind, dust, city grime . . . If you burn or freckle easily it will prove a real discovery.

Poudre le Début is a safe powder—that's a matter of ingredients, too . . . it never cakes, dusts off, or smears. And it adheres indefinitely.

A PRODUCT OF MODERN SCIENCE, OUTDOOR LIVING, AND FASHION

Indeed, here is a face powder that for the fi time gives to the modern woman what she real needs — and what so many women have bee instinctively searching for.

It is an achievement which required tw years of intensive scientific research and con stant consultation with authorities on Fashio and modern style . . . It will bring out all you own natural coloring and give to your skin fine-textured loveliness that no powder has ev given you before. And it will protect.

And then the fragrance of Poudre le Déb . . . superbly delicate! Rarely does one fi such restraint of essence with such true, fre flower character — that's one of the first thing that women of taste like about it . . . It may be had at any of the better shops.

Prints Are the Thing for Evening Wear

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Can't be smart this summer unless you're in prints at least part of the time. Paris particularly likes her evening editions of fashions to be put in very large prints. The thinner, the more delicate the fabric, the bigger the print, and the more important story of summer chic it has to tell. Everybody who is anybody in the feminine world of fashion over here is wearing a printed evening gown at least every third appearance after dark.

Smart printed materials, however huge their designs, do not scream in the manner of pink headlines, for no matter how bold the pattern, the colors are soft and shadowy. There is a definite turn to the floral designs which Nature arranges so prettily in old fashioned gardens. We all know that such prints cannot be anything but ladylike. You might go out in the most exclusive Parisian society for a month straight, night after night, and you'd never set eyes on anything like the bold black and white prints we saw a short while ago.

The thing in prints for the evening gowns this summer is chiffon, or georgette, or moire, or taffeta, in as many muted colors as can be found in a twilight garden, the flowers being life size or a little better and bigger. The effect of these prints, girls, is simply enchanting. Makes all the bold colors and garish designs look like what they are, which is so much the worse for them.

All of the large prints seen during a Paris evening are so blurred and gentle in effect that they may be worn by the largest lady—width and height considered—without in the slightest way emphasizing her excess avoirdupois. They are just as kind to the girl who is no more than a handful in size.

Modernism of design plays a small and unflattering rôle in the summer printed materials for evening. Designs are frankly old fashioned, although their arrangement and coloring are new enough to be thrilling.

The silhouette of the printed evening dress is such as to suggest all that is romantic and feminine. If you insist on being jazzy or tailored in your evening clothes, stay away from the omnipresent print. The printed dress doesn't come that way. The way in which Paris is curving and billowing printed evening frocks recalls forcibly the rumor that we are headed straight back to such restricting devices as corsets and hoops. It is not the opinion of this observer that anything so drastic will be forced upon us. Paris has too much sense to try. However, the printed evening frock does put a ban on sloppiness of figure or carriage.

The slaziest of chiffon is cut to emphasize the delicate curves of the upper silhouette which Nature has given to woman, and the shirred and floating fullness of the skirt demands a Diana-like deportment of the legs. Some suffering may be required to conform to the lines of the printed frocks which Paris is wearing, but the returns in added beauty and chic make it more than justifiable.

You have only to look at the printed evening gowns sketched here to see immediately what this is all about and how much worth while it is. These frocks are, each and every one of them, designed to flatter the faulty figure, if the owner of that figure is willing to do her part to help out.

The long, unbloused waist, which is fitted about the hips like that of the first model shown in our sketch, is one of the smartest upper silhouettes for the printed evening frock. Any woman who will carry her shoulders well and avoid all semblance of that new despised "debutante slouch" of other days can wear such a frock. The skirt, which is shirred very full, is floor length at the sides, and the back is placed low enough on the hips so that even the woman with large hips can wear it. This very long skirt is unusually good for those who need to increase their height in effect, and their slenderness also.

Worth, who created this clever model, made it of one of the new fabrics of the season, which is a printed crêpe georgette with a gold thread in the pattern. The colors are soft greens, reds, yellows, and beiges, and the result of them all together isn't loud in the least.

The second frock shown is one which has real Parisian chic, but its fitted and draped silhouette line makes it something to be reserved exclusively for the slender. If you are slim you can go to it and gain distinction a-plenty. Redfern makes this frock of black flowered taffeta, the design being in green, yellow, and mauve tones.

I like particularly the rounded décolletage that isn't too low. It is becoming to most shoulders, even the difficult and defective ones. You will notice that all of the dresses illustrated have this same type of neckline. It's extra smart in Paris this summer.

The necklaces you see most over here for evening are either rather long choker collars of large stones, or several kilometers of pearls or crystals wound round and round according to your own fancy.

Flowers are blooming, too, on the shoulders or hips of the printed evening frock. They are not printed flowers made of the same material as the dress, but one flower in the predominating tone of the frock, or maybe two or three. The bigger the flower, the greater the chic.

The third frock shown in our sketch is from Drecoll-Beer. It's made of cream colored chiffon patterned all over with pretty old fashioned pink roses and green leaves. This dress has a long tunic, just to the knees, which is bloused at a normal waistline and fitted around the hips. The tunic is bordered with rose petals cut out of the pattern in the chiffon. There is a hem of these petals, and at the left side is a wide flaring panel with a narrow ruffle at the top. This is also edged all around with the petals cut out of the roses that bloom on the chiffon, and each petal is edged with picot.

A wide scarf, likewise petal edged, is worn, and on warm evenings this scarf serves as a wrap. A pink silk rose is placed on the left hip of this stunning frock. The lines of this model are such as to make it wearable by almost any woman who can carry herself gracefully erect throughout the evening.

One of the most distinguished printed chiffon dresses I have seen around Paris this summer is the final model shown here. It's in gray and blue and mauve, and signed by Douillet-Doucet. However, you'd better be sort of mannequin in figure if you think of wearing this dress with its different flaring front panel on the skirt and the ruffles under the arms.

The unusual trimming of this Drecoll-Beer printed chiffon dress consists of rose petals cut out of the roses that grow on the chiffon itself. Sketched third.

Last, Douillet-Doucet sign this gray and blue printed evening gown which has an unusual drapery on blouse and skirt.

Tables, Tables—For Every Purse and Purpose

With Myriads on Display It's a Simple Matter to Procure the Kind You Like—Ornate or Simple, Frivolous or Practical, Antique or Ultra-Modern.

By Edith Weigle.

I THINK there are as many tables on the market as there are grains of sand on Cape Cod. A survey of the hundreds at the American Furniture Mart convinced me that it is a simple matter for any one to procure exactly the type he likes at the price he wants to pay. No matter how large or how small, how ornate or simple, how practical or frivolous, there is a table for every demand. One concern alone carries 300 different styles, believe it or not. Apparently tables are to a room what pockets are to a small boy's jeans—absolutely necessary for holding miscellaneous objects.

The small end table is exceedingly popular, nowadays, because it fits in so nicely at the end of a sofa, or beside one's favorite reading chair. The most common varieties are those that contain a book trough below the top surface and those that, made in the shape of a semi-circle, may be pushed against the wall and used as consoles, or at the side of chair or divan. They are made in almost any wood you can mention.

Ones That Surprise You.

Let's pass on to the more unusual ones. Here is an adorable little four legged oak table, just the right height for coffee or smoking things. In the center of the top, which measures 15 by 15 inches, is a decorative tile inlay of brilliant orange which gives it the unique touch that sets it apart from the others. And here is another, also oak, that has surprise extension ends. You press a spring, and voila, two leaves appear and fit into place, thus making the surface twice as large. Chestnut and oak, they tell me, are increasingly popular woods, especially when they are antiqued.

Nearby is a book trough end table with a concealed drawer for smoker's delights. And just across the aisle is a charming little table with a top like a three-leaf clover.

For the summer porch or terrace are colorful iron tables in brilliant yellow, orange, blue, or green. They are built low and may be pushed up against a swinging sofa to hold iced drinks and sandwiches. Some of them have glass tops and wrought iron crossbars underneath that form a receptacle for a trailing ivy plant. Others are made of wicker and stick reed, but the gay little painted iron ones are the smartest, I think.

The word "occasional" covers a multitude of tables. When you don't know what else to call them, occasional is a pretty safe bet. Under this head come the fascinating drum tops, so much in vogue for the last year or so. They are mostly copies of beautiful Georgian styles. Some have drawers for cards and score pads, etc., and others have compartments for books. Some are even so obliging as to revolve, so that you can select your favorite tome without budging. A particularly lovely one I saw was of a wood called Sheraton mahogany, a red mahogany of beautiful grain.

About Modern Woods.

In a group of modern furniture was a most extraordinary and practical table that filled a number of uses. Its slanting open sides hold magazines and papers, its two top drawers may be used for cards, and an open space beneath them might be used for smoking things. The colors of the woods were a gorgeous henna and a soft, satiny silver. The latter is harewood, a medium so much favored by the modernists that I asked exactly what it was and was shown a large book, containing samples of all the woods, new and old, used in furniture manufacture. Opposite each piece of wood was a description of it and the place where it is found. Such a book is certainly a rare treasure and the only one of its kind I have ever seen.

Well, harewood is dyed English curly maple or sycamore. And sebra wood, also beloved by the makers of modern pieces, comes from a tree called zebrano, which is native to the west coast of Africa. This wood is used as a veneer on tables and cabinets. The South Sea islands, India, Ceylon, Africa, and other tropical countries produce the rare and exotic woods that make art moderne so distinctive and so different from everything else.

One extremely interesting example was a table combining Marseilles mahogany, walnut burl, sebra wood, and ebony. Its top was as intricate and perfect as a mosaic, and its slender, fluted, tapering legs were the only touches that tied it to conventional design, reminiscent as they were of the Louis XVI. period.

Refectory Tables Popular.

In this same collection were some artistic large tables of the refectory type. They are designed for what the Germans call "the one room home"—the small apartment without dining room. They look like living room pieces, being long and rather narrow with two rounded legs connected by a stretcher and may be placed at the back of a couch, or against the wall to hold books, a lamp, etc., when not being used as a dining table. When serving the latter purpose, however, all one has to do is to press a hidden spring and two leaves appear, parallel with the longer sides of the table. These snap in place and with this larger surface six or eight people can be accommodated.

These tables have velvet lined compartment drawers for silver. The woods are walnut, mahogany, and combinations of more elaborate woods. Some have beautiful inlaid tops with marquetry, matched burls, etc.

Coffee tables are quite fascinating. The one pictured today is 26 inches long, 17 inches wide, and 18 inches high. It is of maple with an oval floral decoration inlaid in the top. The rim is curved and very graceful.

Another intriguing model, made for a famous New York house that is noted for its smart and clever things, is a mahogany folding tray-table. When the legs are folded beneath it it looks exactly like a handsome mahogany tray; when they are supporting it, which they will do if a spring at the side is pressed, it turns into a regular coffee table. Thus the complete service may be arranged in the kitchen, cups and all, and brought into the drawing or living room with the coffee steaming hot, to be poured by the hostess. Or for summer afternoon tea, iced drinks and little cakes and sandwiches may be brought out on the porch or terrace on this obliging little tray-table and served from it, also.

English Muffin Stands.

And English muffin stands—the real thing—may be had in solid mahogany. Six little shelves, three on each side, hold all the delicious trifles that make tea time a delightful ceremony, and they fold up, like the proverbial Arab tent when not in use. A comfortable handle at the top permits you to pass the muffin stand to your guests.

On this same order are two decorative trays that swing between rods and take up very little room, and that may be turned so that one comes above the other, snapped into place, and carried by a handle. These come in a variety of enamels with antique finish, and have floral panels in the center. They would make an unusual and lovely wedding gift.

Card tables, too, may be anything but prosaic. One that would surely appeal to the person of taste is a mahogany Duncan Phyffe that may be converted into a square table by opening and twisting the top, which is composed of two parts. When opened a green baize surface is revealed, which, of course, is ideal for cards, and quite appropriate to the period that this table occupied, for England and colonial America played its whist and écarté on tables with green baize tops. And, by the way, the Chicago Woman's Athletic club has some perfect examples of these tables, with an added touch by Miss Gheen, an open space, like a space for a drawer, beneath the edges for the bags and powder boxes of the women players. So much nicer than having them slide off one's lap a dozen times in an afternoon.

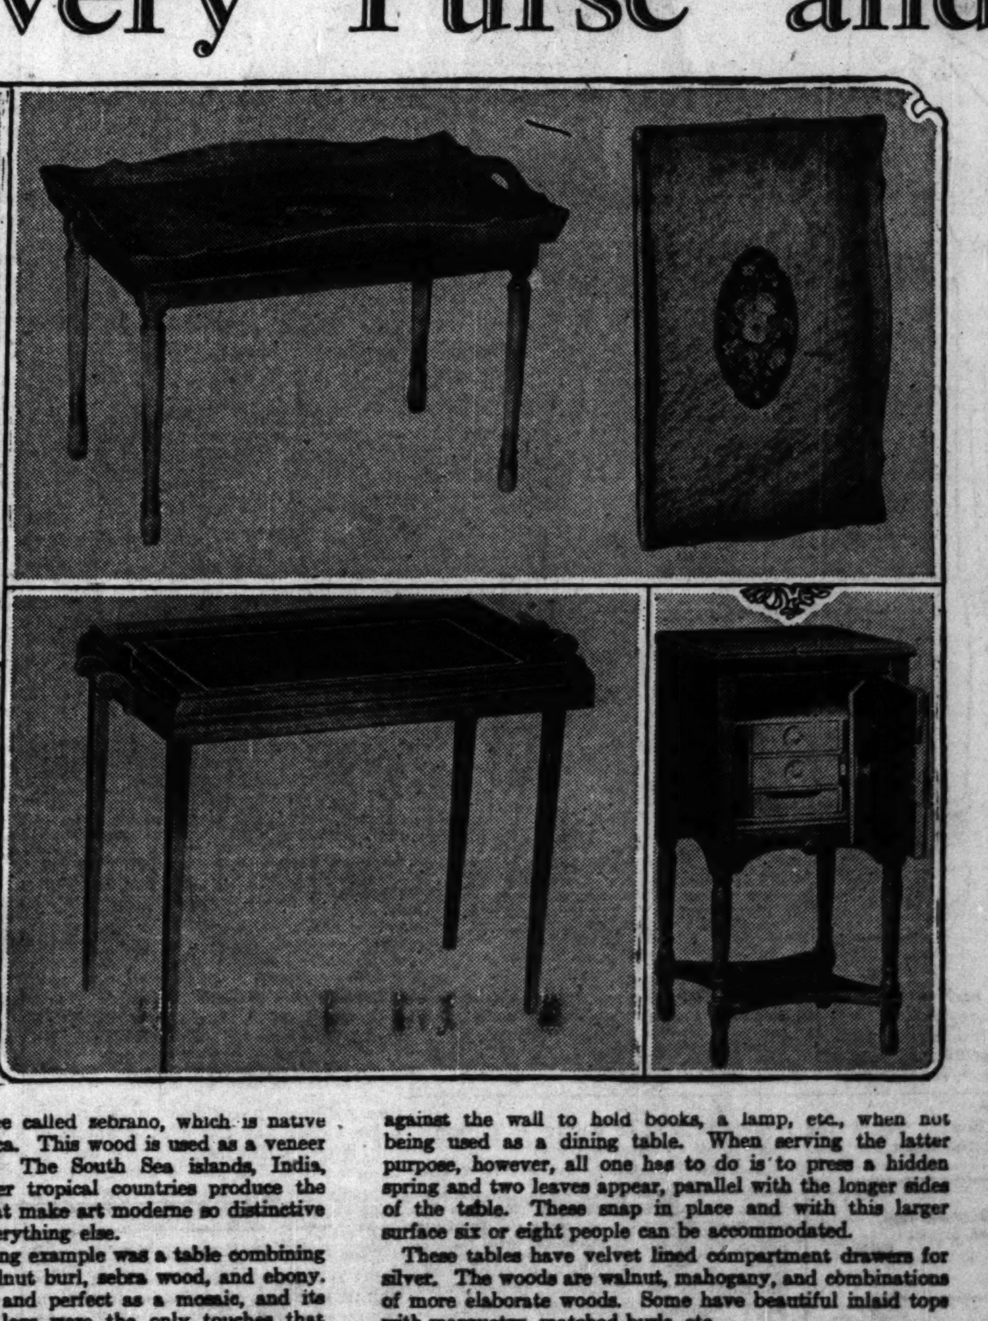
It Holds Your Valuables.

Speaking of unique touches, I think a bedside table which conceals a small but very adequate safe in its innards is about the trickiest thing I ever saw. A picture of it accompanies this article. The wood is mahogany or American walnut, the height is 30½ inches and the top measures 15 by 15 inches. It has the innocent appearance of a table with a small cabinet under its top, but when you pull open the door there is the combination safe of steel, which, when opened reveals numerous drawers and compartments for jewels and valuables.

There are gayly decorative French bedside tables that hold nothing more weighty than a few detective stories in their open bookshelf, and there are the ubiquitous regulation bedside tables that are about as unusual as a bump on a log and about as pretty. There is no excuse for them when others, like the French and attractive American may be so easily had.

One could go on, like the brook, forever about tables. I have not mentioned the smoking tables, porcelain lined, that I saw, or the table-cabinets containing all the fixings for a decidedly moist evening behind a guileless exterior. I haven't spoken of the lovely array of tiptop tables with pie crust edges and marquetry inlay, nor the nests of small mahogany tables with glass and marbelized tops—in fact, I've merely skimmed the surface. Sometime, when you have a year off, you can go into the subject thoroughly for yourself.



A set of maple trays for afternoon tea is shown above. They are 11 inches wide, 22½ inches long and 32½ inches high. When not in use they make a decorative fire screen.

At the lower right are the folding tray-table described in the article, and the little bedside table that opens to reveal a steel safe. This latter comes in mahogany and American walnut.

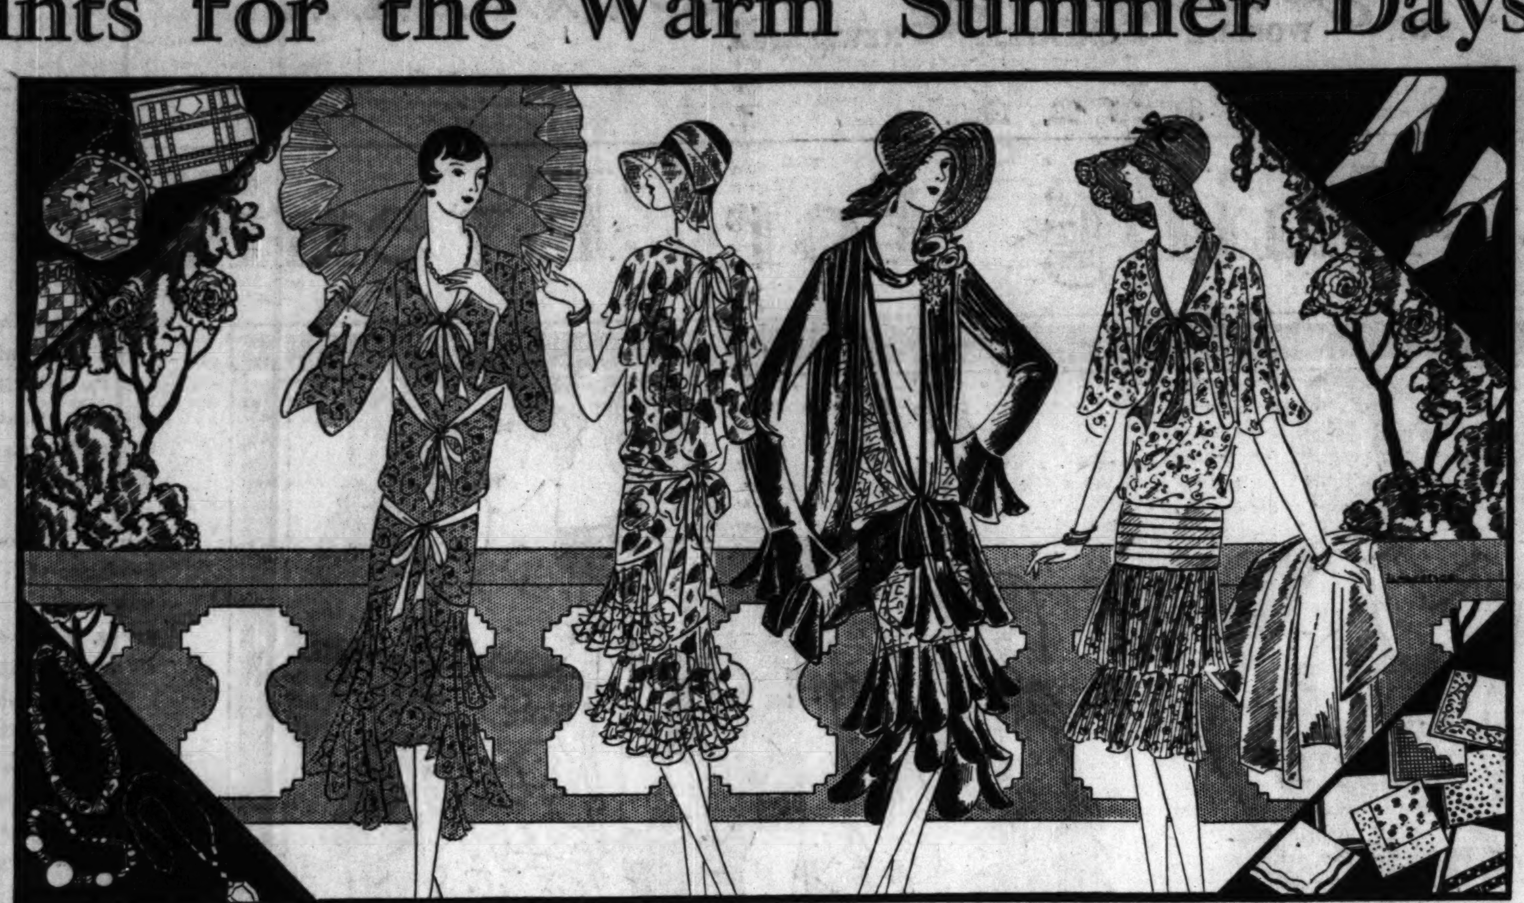
Cool Prints for the Warm Summer Days

Figured Chiffon Is as Refreshing as the Little Breeze That Plays in the Linden Tree.

By Lolita.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—One is inclined to disagree with a certain widely known authority. It is not custom, but costume, which makes cowards of us all. Nowadays the most lion hearted woman, she who would brave an in-law or an outlaw with equal courage shrinks before the edict, "Thou must wear a costume—not any mere hat and frock and shoes."

Yes, we all have to conform to that costly and harmonious ensemble which has supplanted the haphazard assemblage of other days. Suppose, for example, that we have chosen as the basis of our summer afternoon toilette the printed chiffon frock which has become alomst the uniform of smart society during its formal daytime hours. Suppose, further, that this frock exploits the modish tones of brown, beige, yellow and green. May we wear with this the black crêpe or satin coat we bought last year? As everybody knows, we may not any more than we may combine black shoes and hat and bag with the same tones. The wrap, as well as all accessories, has got to sustain some of the tints of the foundation.



ACCESSORIES LEFT—Even in bags plaid effects are registering, as is indicated by a top model of brown ribbon plaided in gold. Mountings are of gilt and the popular back strap is employed. Next, antique brocade mounted in gold for afternoon wear. Last, a pouch of brown and yellow wooden beads arranged in squares. In the corner below the vogue of coral is witnessed in a choker of branch coral. Next, chalcedony alternates with small crystals in a charming necklace. Last, one of the many pendant effects occurs in jade on a chain of silver.

CENTER—A delightful gray and rose printed chiffon set with touches of plain pink chiffon is followed by another chiffon showing the 1880 influence of flounces lifted upward. Third, a charming ensemble of black chiffon and figured chiffon, and last, an ensemble combining plain yellow chiffon with chiffon frock printed in small yellow flowers.

ACCESSORIES RIGHT—The chic of the plain opera pump is applied to afternoon wear in first, black crepe slippers with rhinestone buckle, and next, a beige kidskin with scalloped insets of brown kid and gold pipings. Below, an indication of the range of up to date handkerchiefs.

Jewelry, too, has its place in this acute matching game. Silver necklace and bracelets, for example, would not look well with these browns, beiges, yellows and greens. Massive gold ornaments, on the contrary, set off the frock, and so do combinations embodying the vivid colors of green and yellow. As for pearls, perhaps the reason why we decline to throw away the pearl of both great price and small is found in a general adaptability to all types of costume. Just at present multiple strands of small pearls are engrossing the attention in this province and these necklaces may be worn morning, noon and night.

We used to talk about jewel caskets. But now—well, jewel baskets would fit better in to the whim of the day. For what diminutive box would accommodate the massive pieces that are now so much emphasized in fashionable costume jewelry? We are today often manacle handed. Great heavy necklaces, just sent over from Paris, recall something worn by an old Italian prelate of medieval times. And everywhere one sees the same notes of elaboration registered in the clothes of this summer.

Prices Aren't Trivial.

One pays for this elaboration. I realized this the other day when looking about among some new costume jewelry just sent to us by Paris. Here, for example, was a set comprising necklace and bracelet. No real stones were used. Melon shaped beads of either green or ruby were mingled here with links of brilliants and black rondelles. Yet the price was $295! Likewise eloquent of the fact that one can't approach costume jewelry in any spirit of levity was another set associating bracelet and ring. In this case chalcedony and brilliants were the chosen elements and the cost was $75. Incidentally, the fancy for Siamese twin effects was revived here by a narrow gold chain connecting ring and bracelet.

For sports wear we continue to rap on wood. In fact, so great is the vogue for these wooden bracelets and necklaces that we may be described as regular woodpeckers. Inlaid in brilliant colorings and sometimes fashioned with barbaric massiveness, these wooden pieces are in the same wood as the nugget shapes still emphasized in semi-precious stones, as, for example, in one model where nuggets of lapis lazuli unite with various kinds of crystal.

Silver Jewelry for Daytime.

For smart daytime wear there is still nothing in better taste than the silver jewelry worn so enthusiastically all winter long. To set off the black crêpe or satin frock in which the well dressed woman takes her hotel luncheon we may go far without finding anything nearly so satisfying as some massive design in silver necklace sustained by bracelet and perhaps even earrings.

And what are the wild waves saying about jewelry? Well, as broadcast on the shore by Mary Nowitzky, we hear a great deal of driftwood, so to speak. For it was this Paris creator, this master hand at the beach pajama, who designed one of the novelties with which we may grace this same beach pajama. And the novelties are of wood.

They consist of bugles arranged in numerous strands and various colors to make a long necklace. Side by side with these we find cork necklaces, also painted in brilliant hues, which are to be considered in the same moment as are those great wide bracelets of natural cork studded with brass which are just the thing to set off a good toasted wrist.

Now, to go back to the afternoon chiffon models which are illustrated on the page. First let us repeat the fact that printed models for every occasion of day and evening were never more emphasized than in the midsummer collection. So unrestrained is our affection for this type of wear that often today one finds the entire ensemble, both coat and dress, electing the same figured material. A notable instance of this fact was afforded by the Belmont races in May when a number of smartly gowned women topped off their simple one piece frocks of small printed crêpe with seven-eighths coats of the frock material. In similar mood the afternoon or evening chiffon may be accompanied by wrap of matching fabric.

Plain Trimming in Vogue.

Although so much indulgence is granted in this respect, although we are so consistent in our admiration of the printed costume, the rule of the afternoon chiffon continues to be —frock of the chiffon completed by wrap of harmonizing material. Also be it noted that the old convention of plain trimming from printed frocks is still widely observed. For example, one of the smarest dinner gowns come from abroad graces its decolletage with a triangle scarf of coral chiffon enunciated again in the side godets of the skirt. Against the black and white background of the printed chiffon this touch of color is of inestimable value.

At the extreme left of the page we indicate the age-old merit of a touch of montone fabric on these printed creations in a model of gray chiffon printed in rose. Here the trimming is in plain rose chiffon and it is used to carry out the familiar message of bow and flounce. The sleeves with their bell-shaped frill recall to us the fact that Vionnet's new sleeves all show graceful width at the wrist. It is but one more indication of the feminization of our entire mode.

Gray, which has made such a definite impress upon the general mode of sports and street wear—witness the gray flannel sports suits and the gray woolen tailleurs—has corresponding triumphs in chiffon. Nevertheless, in view of the brown and beige range, it represents a minority choice. These browns and beiges are omnipresent and in the afternoon chiffons they mingle delightfully with those two autocrats among the season's high tones, yellow and green.

In our second model green is elected for the motivation of a charming rose beige background. This frock demonstrates once more the esthetic value of the graceful little shoulder cape on models of this character. A bow of self-material finishes the back, which is otherwise made significant by that 1880 pull of the draperies toward the waistline.

Waist Line Normal.

This waist line in some of the newest models is distinctly at the normal position. Indeed, whether we like it or not, the logical waist is enjoying a rennaissance. It is promised that by fall the revival will be even more impressive. In the daytime models already designed for early autumn this normalcy is defined by a line. In the evening the greater swing toward fitted princess effects allows us to guess rather than be informed of the old heights regained by our waist.

With the model we have just described is the large hat now, as always, prescribed for these summery afternoon chiffons. It combines green horsehair with brown satin ribbon and repeats the latter tone in opera pumps of brown satin. Incidentally, do not forget that the opera pump in formal material is perhaps the smartest type of footwear that may be selected to complete this type of gown.

Delightful, indeed, is the ensemble which is sketched next. This provides a loose, graceful jacket of black chiffon for wear with a frock combining the same black chiffon with printed self-material. White motivated in pink and gray is the color scheme of the latter and it is further relieved by a vestee of plain white chiffon. A flower of white and black chiffon, together with a scarf collar which may be either thrown back or adjusted in front, supply the final details of a costume set off with a black hair hat and opera pumps of black satin.

Last, a yellow and green printed chiffon set off with touches of plain yellow is supplemented by a coat also of the plain yellow. A natural leghorn with a lace edge is the finishing detail.

Child Must Learn Group Living

Parents Should Expect Enough, and Still Not Too Much, from Youngsters.

A book on the care of babies, by Miss Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, an internationally known authority on the subject, can be had at the Chicago Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents. By mail the price is 60 cents.

By Gladys Huntington Bevans

"MAR-R-MIE! Mar-r-mie! Come!"

"I can't, dear, right now. What is it?"

"O, plee-uz, marmie. See what I've done."

Dropping the lettuce back into the colander, the small girl's mother went into the living room, where, just a few minutes before, the blocks had been scattered all over the rug.

"Look, marmie—see what I've done."

Her mother looked down at the big box with one layer already in.

"Why, honey, did you do that all yourself? And you even found the right place for that long, thin one that we had to leave out yesterday." She poked a finger in the corner. "And it fits perfectly."

"I'm going to do all the rest, marmie."

Before the box was filled two more encouraging trips from the kitchen were needed, because interest lagged at the end. But it was all right—not too much to expect of the child, since it was early and she'd had her nap and was fresh and rested.

A Sudden Slump.

But another day the building with blocks was so fascinating that it lasted until nearly supper time. Then Mary's young friend Bill was called for and suddenly the little girl was very tired. Mother, preparing the supper, noticed the sudden slump, remembered that her small daughter had had an unusually strenuous day, and blamed herself for not stopping the play sooner. Mary was in the habit of putting away her toys, but tonight, her mother saw, was no time to be rigid about such things.

"I'll put your blocks away myself tonight, Mary. Come, let's make some big snowy suds in the wash bowl and scrub those grubby little paws with the new brush, and then have some—well, what do you think we have for supper?"

Refreshed by the change of thought and already rested by the sense of security that comes from having a knowing mother, Mary trotted along to the bathroom for her scrub.

Here are two examples of, in one case, expecting enough, and in another case, not expecting too much of a small child.

So often when we mention freedom for children, or discuss letting them follow their desires or natural activities, people jump at extreme conclusions and say, "But how can you let a child do everything he wants to? He doesn't know what he wants half the time, anyhow. He doesn't know what's good for him." Of course [1] you can't, [2] he does, and [3] he doesn't. Just match up the answers with the criticism.

Don't Expect Too Much.

But because people do draw extreme conclusions I don't like to leave open to misconstruction this subject we've been on all the week—the subject of not expecting too much of little children. I don't like to leave it without emphasizing as well the need of expecting enough and the value of authority in the lives of little children and their recognition of it.

Small children have natural desires—intense ones, important ones, that must be gratified for their good and their happiness. But because they live and will continue to live among people they must learn to conform to those rules that are a necessary part of group living and learn that they cannot always do everything they want to just when they want to. And also they must learn to recognize the authority which has the superior wisdom and experience to know what is necessary for their well-being.

Usually this authority is vested in their mother—as mothers are the ones most often closely concerned with the lives of little children.

Authority Necessary.

A certain authority is necessary to establish the routine of healthful living at the beginning—regular eating of the right food, regular sleep, bathing, etc. Small children will soon fall into the habit of complying comfortably, even happily, with these requirements if they are handled with a confident and friendly touch.

It is important for a mother or any one else who has the care of children to imbue them with the quite unconscious feeling that mother is kind and wise and loving and understanding, and so her word goes. Children can't run their own lives. We must be to them guidance and security. We can't be those things unless we possess authority and exercise it.

Not the kind of authority that gives orders, and commands, and expects instant obedience. But the kind of authority that governs conditions so the child may be as free as possible, but not wild or uncontrolled. The kind of authority that helps him to sense not only what he may do but what he may not do. The kind of authority that gives as few directions as possible, makes them as reasonable as possible, but once having given them, expects a response within a reasonable time.

This kind of authority accommodates itself to the growth of the child, explaining where possible, asking not—commanding not—except in emergencies, being tactful, leading—not driving, gradually giving a child more independence, but seeing that things go as they should for the child's good.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

WHITE silk broadcloth was used for this tennis frock [Pattern 3478], and nothing could be more practical or smarter, for it washes well and will always retain its lovely new appearance. The skirt and waist are cut separately and joined. The waist is in two pieces, and is cut with drop shoulders. These form short sleeves, so popular and comfortable for summer wear. The waist in the front is cut in a deep enough V to make it easy to get into and out of, and a prettily shaped collar finishes the neck.

The skirt simulates a panel in the front and back, having cluster plaits on either side. These should always be well pressed so they will stay in place. The front and back of the skirt are joined after the plaits are laid and basted. Then join the waist and skirt, carefully matching notches and perforations. Three and three-eighths inches are allowed for a hem on the skirt, but before cutting the dress out, your own length measures must be applied and any necessary changes allowed for. Two patch pockets are set on at the tops of the plaits, and openings are left through which the narrow belt is to be slipped.

Nothing could be much easier to make than this sort of dress, and if you are inclined to put a little extra work on it, why not do some cross stitch embroidery on the front of the belt, and around the edges of the short sleeves? The skirt for size 36, measures about 1⅞ yards at the bottom.

Men's silk shirting, plain or striped, figured madras, pique, linen and washable flat silk crêpe are interesting suggestions for general sports occasions.

Here is a dress for a junior girl that is as practical as it is dainty and pretty. Pattern No. 3,010 consists of a two piece skirt shirred at the top and attached to a long waisted bodice that is closed in the center back. The cunning little bolero has short kimono sleeves and a flat, round collar. Both the sleeve edges and the bottom of the bolero are shown with scalloped edges, but if you prefer, they may be made straight. There is something so pretty, though, about the scallops, that I imagine most mothers will be willing to do the extra work that binding them will entail.

A straight, wide hem finishes the bottom of the skirt, and if one of the wash materials is used, this may be stitched on the machine. Printed crêpe de chine with plan silk crêpe bodice, collar and piping; printed challis, English prints, dimity, printed and plain linen, chambray, shantung, printed rajah and tiny checked tissue gingham with plain gingham are all smart and serviceable materials.

The graceful lines of the dress made by pattern No. 3,412 will surely attract many women who make their own clothes. Upper and lower sections of the dress are cut separately and joined at a low waistline, the bodice blousing slightly about the top of the skirt. The bodice has an applied two piece yoke, with a chic pointed neckline made of a contrasting fabric or color. And the left side draping of the skirt, with the circular section inserted below to give a fluttering appearance to the hemline, finishes with a large, loose bow, made of the dress material.

The pattern provides for long or short sleeves, but the full length, close fitting sleeves are, in most instances, smarter than the short. Short sleeves, however, are popular now, and you may prefer that length.

The way in which the bodice yoke is cut is decidedly unusual and adds much to the attractiveness of the dress. Buttons set on as shown in the sketch will finish well and no other trimming is needed. Leaf green silk crêpe, blonde lustrous crêpe satin, printed silk crêpe, figured georgette crêpe, navy blue Canton-faille crêpe, polka dotted voile and flowered chiffon are appropriate materials.

You Can Make a Charming Cape for Summer Evening Frocks, and the Cost Is Not High.

ONE of the loveliest capes to wear over evening frocks between dances, or in fact to wear cool afternoons or evenings during the summer for any occasion when you feel that a slight extra warmth is necessary, can quite easily be made at home for a comparatively small cost. At the shops they cost from $20 to $35. These capes are copies of some shown by one of the most famous of the Paris houses where lovely clothes are made.

Crêpe de Chine, crêpe satin, and moire are the materials from which the capes are made, and in the thirty-nine or forty inch wide materials you will want about 3 1-3 yards.

> What is your sewing problem? Do you have trouble in following a pattern? Do you find difficulty in making a skirt hang evenly or making a sleeve that doesn't twist? If there is anything you would like to know about these or other problems of needlework, write to Clotilde, The Tribune, Chicago, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope if a personal reply is desired.

Take an old sheet and lay on your dining table and draw a perfect circle, making the diameter sixty inches. Cut this out and fold across so that the inside or longest part measures 33 inches and the outer part 27 inches. Leaving the cape folded across, lay it on the table again, having the shorter length underneath.

Measure down from this fold, straight across the cape, four inches and draw a line straight across. This line gives you the place where your material must be pieced. Now you have to mark the place for the armholes. These should be about 22 inches apart, 11 each side of a center, lengthwise fold. The top of each armhole should be about six inches below the fold made across the cape. Cut these armholes circular, making them nine or ten inches in diameter. Try the cape on, slipping your arms through the places made for them, and not disturbing the fold across the cape.

You can easily see what a pretty thing the finished garment will be, especially when you realize that it is made with a picoted scalloped edge, the scallops measuring three and one-half inches deep, and the same measure across at the top. The only sewing will be to finish the armholes with a narrow bias binding of the cape material. If you wish a deeper cape simply have the diameter measure more, and the cape should be cut at least one inch more than the diameter given, to allow for the hemstitching. When you piece the crêpe do the work by hand and make an evenly felled seam.

If satin crêpe is used the surface must be reversed in the piecing, so that when finished the crêpe will be on the outside of both upper and lower lengths.

These capes are seen made of black and all shades of every color, and are the prettiest imaginable things.

Bobbed or Long, Hair Must Be Lovely

Antoinette Gives Causes for Lusterless Locks and Tells How to Make Them Glisten Again.

by Antoinette Donnelly

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—In the appraisal of a woman at a first meeting her figure, ankles, and hair register above other features. You check off her smartness or dowdiness by the three named dimensions. Later, of course, you may discover greater beauty features, but the quick turnover of the eye takes in these three things first.

If she is hatted, of course, hair may escape for the time being. But it is still one of the Big Three. And more and more beauty is asked of your locks as time goes on.

The great question is whether long or bobbed hair is smarter now. As one fashion authority concedes: "If long hair is awfully smartly arranged it is the smartest. But if you can make your bob look just as smart, it, too, is the smartest."

However, I am more convinced at this moment than I was a few months back of a strong long haired influence afoot. Of recent theater nights the long haired count mounts up, although one cannot say, either, that any funeral dirge is being prepared for the bob. The question still sits astride the fence a bit. But perhaps the "L. A." phrase coined by a flapper convert to the long haired sisterhood may be wielding more influence than we know. L. A. is "Lorelei appeal," if you do not happen to be initiated. If not familiar with the rockbound vamp, Lorelei is the German luress with the famous golden tresses of Godiva plentitude.

But rather of quality than quantity we'd speak today. Because it is the "polish" that is the moment's great hair feature. A point we ran across the other day from the pen of a medical authority is the close connection that there is between hair and the nervous system. An attempt was being made in the article to check up the increasing prevalence of hair troubles—falling hair, dandruff, and the like—with the high tension on which nervous systems are run. The endless excitement demanded, the continual pounding on brick and stone streets of city dwellers (a nerve irritation), the hectic late houred night life, and all that sort of thing, were up on trial before this medical judge as likely factors of offense.

Nervous System Responsible.

So, between purchases of hair lotions, it might be just as well to give the nervous system a thought. "Whatever affects the nervous system and the general circulation," our medical authority insists, "affects the hair." We know ourselves from sickness experiences the truth of this.

It is claimed that country dwellers have less trouble preserving their hair than city ones. In face of the fact that country dwellers are now known not to consume as much nourishing food as their city sisters, the claim might be doubted. But where the country dwellers' hair has the advantage is in the freedom from nervous orgies and shocks, regular habits, especially sleeping hours.

It's no new story for us that cleanliness is the basis of healthy as well as beautiful hair. In spite of this general knowledge, however, too often hair is given cleaning attention only when a wave is due it. I have a definite theory that it isn't all nerves that may be connected with increasing hair troubles such as dandruff and so on. I think an investigation would prove that the intervals between marcels, when a brush is never permitted to go through and free the scalp and hair from dust and grime and give it the mechanical massage the hair brush only will provide it, is just as often the fault.

There's simply no tonic or lotion that will beat for scalp stimulation and imparting new life to the hair the purposeful daily brushing. Not haphazard brushing, nor superficial nor perfunctory, but brushing with the object of getting a brilliant luster.

It is now officially recognized by our best hair specialists that the only danger in frequent shampooing is the use of harmful ingredients, as strong ammonia, salts of tartar, cheap soaps containing lye or products that dry out or rot the hair, and not drying the hair thoroughly afterward. Short haired women, who have acquired the male habit of wetting the hair frequently, are warned that this is a bad procedure for the hair.

Light Hair Has Problems.

Light hair, after one is out of her 'teens, may become a serious shampoo question. It should be, too, if one wants to preserve the beautiful fair tones. Tar soaps and sage tea are not for this type of hair. They are for dark hair only. Oily lotions are bad, too.

Castile soap jelly, or something just as pure, is the best precaution to take. And blonde hair should be dried quickly. The luster of light, golden tinged hair is dimmed by exposure in a damp state to strong sunlight.

White haired women have to exercise the same caution about shampoo ingredients and drying measures. White hair has come into its own of recent years. Its beauty is recognized. Beautifully kept white hair arranged in a becoming coiffure is striking. The least grease or dust hurts this hair's appearance badly. The luster must be preserved, and to help, no alkalis, no dark substances, such as tar or green soap and so forth, ever should be used. A suds of pure castile soap is best and the occasional use of whites of eggs.

The French blue usually added to the last rinsing water for the pure white effect may be used likewise on gray hair.

Weak Spots in Parental Training

Juvenile "Wildness" Due to Lack of Proper Discipline and Control at Home.

by Doris Blake

Reg. U S Pat. Off

APROPOS the new censorious trend of putting up to parents responsibility for much that is charged against modern young people, little is to be gained by simply registering a wholesale charge against them. Mothers and fathers want to know, or perhaps need to know, exactly wherein their err. The basis of all good reforms is a familiarity with the circumstances that call for correction.

A university parent points out some of the weak spots in parental training.

"My work brings me," the parent discloses, "in contact with large numbers of young people, mostly boys but some girls, and I want to say emphatically that my experience does not lead me to consider modern youth hopelessly wrong—but quite the contrary. In many respects, I think the young people of our day are superior physically, mentally and morally to any previous generation of young people.

"There are weak spots, of course. But I am inclined to think that most of these are due to faulty parental training, rather than to inferior material. In other words, it is largely up to the parents. Permit me to mention a few faults that I have noticed and to suggest what I think is the probable cause.

Tendency to Give Up.

"I notice, for instance, in a surprisingly large number of cases, when a problem involving some difficulty in solving is assigned, a tendency to give up and 'lie down on the job' rather than make the necessary effort to work it out. There is also obvious a great want of reliability, and a great lack of obedience to even the most reasonable and necessary regulations. Many seem to expect to be petted and cajoled into doing what is required, and to have all the hard parts smoothed out for them. If the lack of obedience arose from a great independence of spirit then it might not be an unmixed evil. But one of the most discouraging things about the situation is the lack of originality and independent thought very commonly, if not quite universally, observable.

"Now a large part of this is due, in my opinion, to defective home training. And this defective home training is, of course, the fault of the parents, though some of the blame ought, in my opinion, to be shared by many writers of articles and books on how to bring up children. I have read quite a number of them and they contain, naturally, much excellent and useful material. But they nearly all seem to consider that the main object is to avoid, under any and all circumstances, any form of coercion or punishment, particularly corporal punishment.

Bad Effects Noted.

"One author claims to be able to obtain any result that could be obtained by spanking by reasoning and persuasion instead. Another expressed the opinion that children do not owe obedience to parents. If the main idea was simply to get a certain thing done by a child, then I quite agree that this can be done by petting, coaxing, and cajoling. But what is the training effect on the child? Do we not see the natural results of this around us on all sides? When a child so brought up attains maturity and goes out into the world, does he find every one petting, coaxing and cajoling him to do things? Why train him to expect it?

"I thoroughly believe in getting along without punishment, particularly corporal punishment, as far as possible, but I also believe that there are times in the life of every normal and healthy child when in the interests of all concerned authority must be enforced by such means.

"I believe that any parent who is worthy of his job ought to require and insist upon reasonable obedience to reasonable commands, even if it involves the occasional infliction of punishment. I do not believe that just and deserved punishment, even a spanking, ever led a child to hate its parents. Unjust or cruel treatment, of course, might be expected to have such an effect. But the fear of the loss of the child's confidence or love, which seems to deter some parents from properly enforcing obedience, is, I am quite sure, groundless.

"A child does not respect a parent who fails to exercise proper control, and there can be no real love without respect. I have never known any one who was brought up to render reasonable respect and obedience to their parents who failed to love such parents devotedly. I have run across instances of boys and girls brought up under modern anti-spanking, anti-coercion' methods who not only cared nothing for their parents, but actually verbally expressed a thorough contempt for them.

"If proper control is not established when the child is young it is difficult to establish it or exercise it when he or she comes to high school age. And therein lies the reason, in my opinion, for much of the 'flaming youth' stuff that is so much in evidence at the present time.

Parents Set Bad Example.

"A good deal of the trouble also arises from parents being too weak-kneed and fearful to properly enforce needed discipline. I believe that a 16 or 17 year old girl or boy may, under conditions which unfortunately exist today, return home once in the small hours of the morning drunk or half drunk without any particular blame on the parent or the parents—but I think the parents are to blame if it happens a second time. I do not believe in 'uncontrollable' children. The means that may be necessary to handle a situation of the kind may be very unpleasant and distasteful, but a real parent will not shirk the job.

"When parents themselves set a bad example the case is sad, indeed, and such parents certainly do carry an awful responsibility. But I think far more cases of juvenile 'wildness' are due to lack of proper discipline and control on the part of parents whose own lives are morally excellent. To obtain the best results this control should be established when the child is young, but if this unfortunately has not been done and bad results are evident in the high school age, there is no reason for giving up then and letting one's son or daughter run entirely wild in the matter of hours and drink. If stern methods are necessary they should be employed.

"Undoubtedly the matter of child training should be handled with gloves, using soft and gentle methods as far as possible, but there should be also a steel lining to the glove for use when occasion demands."

Mercolized Wax Keeps Skin Young

DO you know that just beneath that soiled, discolored, faded or aged complexion is one fair to look upon? Nature causes the normal skin to peel off in tiny, unseen, flour-like particles, a little each day, renewing the complexion of youth naturally, but there comes a time when this skin shedding slows up. Worry, overwork, sickness, inactivity are reasons that cause the face to be blotchy, discolored, pimply and old looking. The thing to do, if you wish to look your prettiest at all times, is to assist nature in the process of absorption by using pure Mercolized Wax. Get an ounce at any drug store or beauty counter and use as directed. It gently but surely peels away the outer scarf skin, removing freckles, pimples, blackheads or a muddy complexion. The underneath skin, now in evidence, is clear, pink, fresh and velvety, and the entire face looks years younger. Mercolized Wax brings out the hidden beauty.

To quickly remove wrinkles and other age lines we recommend a face lotion of unusual merit. One ounce powdered saxolite and one-half pint witch hazel.

Keeps Wax Paper.

As we were leaving the office of a friend who is a successful professional woman, she reached into the drawer of her desk and brought forth a piece of wax paper which she folded carefully and put into her purse, saying, "see how economical I am, I carry home my lunch paper to use again tomorrow."

I have never heard of anyone going to such extremes. H. L.

Asks for Coffee Grounds.

A friend of ours who has more wealth than she knows what to do with would always ask if she could not have the coffee grounds that were left after making coffee at our church suppers. She said there was enough strength left in the grounds to make coffee for several mornings for her husband's breakfast. It would be such a shame to throw them away. J. D. V.

Use for Umbrella Ribs.

My pet economy in the summer time is making use of old shoe laces and umbrella ribs to hold up small plants that need support. The laces are strong enough to last all summer and do not cut the most delicate stems. The steel ribs are almost invisible and their uses are innumerable. For years I have found them convenient to stick in the ground for strings to guide vines to a trellis. They are also ideal stakes for slender plants. They do not catch the wind and can be placed close to a plant without injuring the root system. E. M. H.

Save your CLOTHES ...and you Save MONEY

CLOTHING lost, torn and damaged in the wash makes a big hole in the family budget. Thousands of particular and thrifty women in every community have found this out, and have learned that it pays to have washings done at home in the Maytag.

They have seen the result of strenuous methods and harmful bleaching agents in the frayed edges of cuffs and collars, in worn spots on fine linen, in buttons "torn out by the roots."

Over a million and a half women have found that the Maytag washes as carefully as human hands, yet so thoroughly that the grimiest pieces are washed clean without hand-rubbing.

Then, too, the sanitary question is important. When the washing is done at home, you know that the conditions are clean and free from contagion.

No artful disguise of facts is necessary to prove the advantages of the Maytag over any other method of washing clothes. And the first cost is the only cost. The Maytag is built for a lifetime of service.

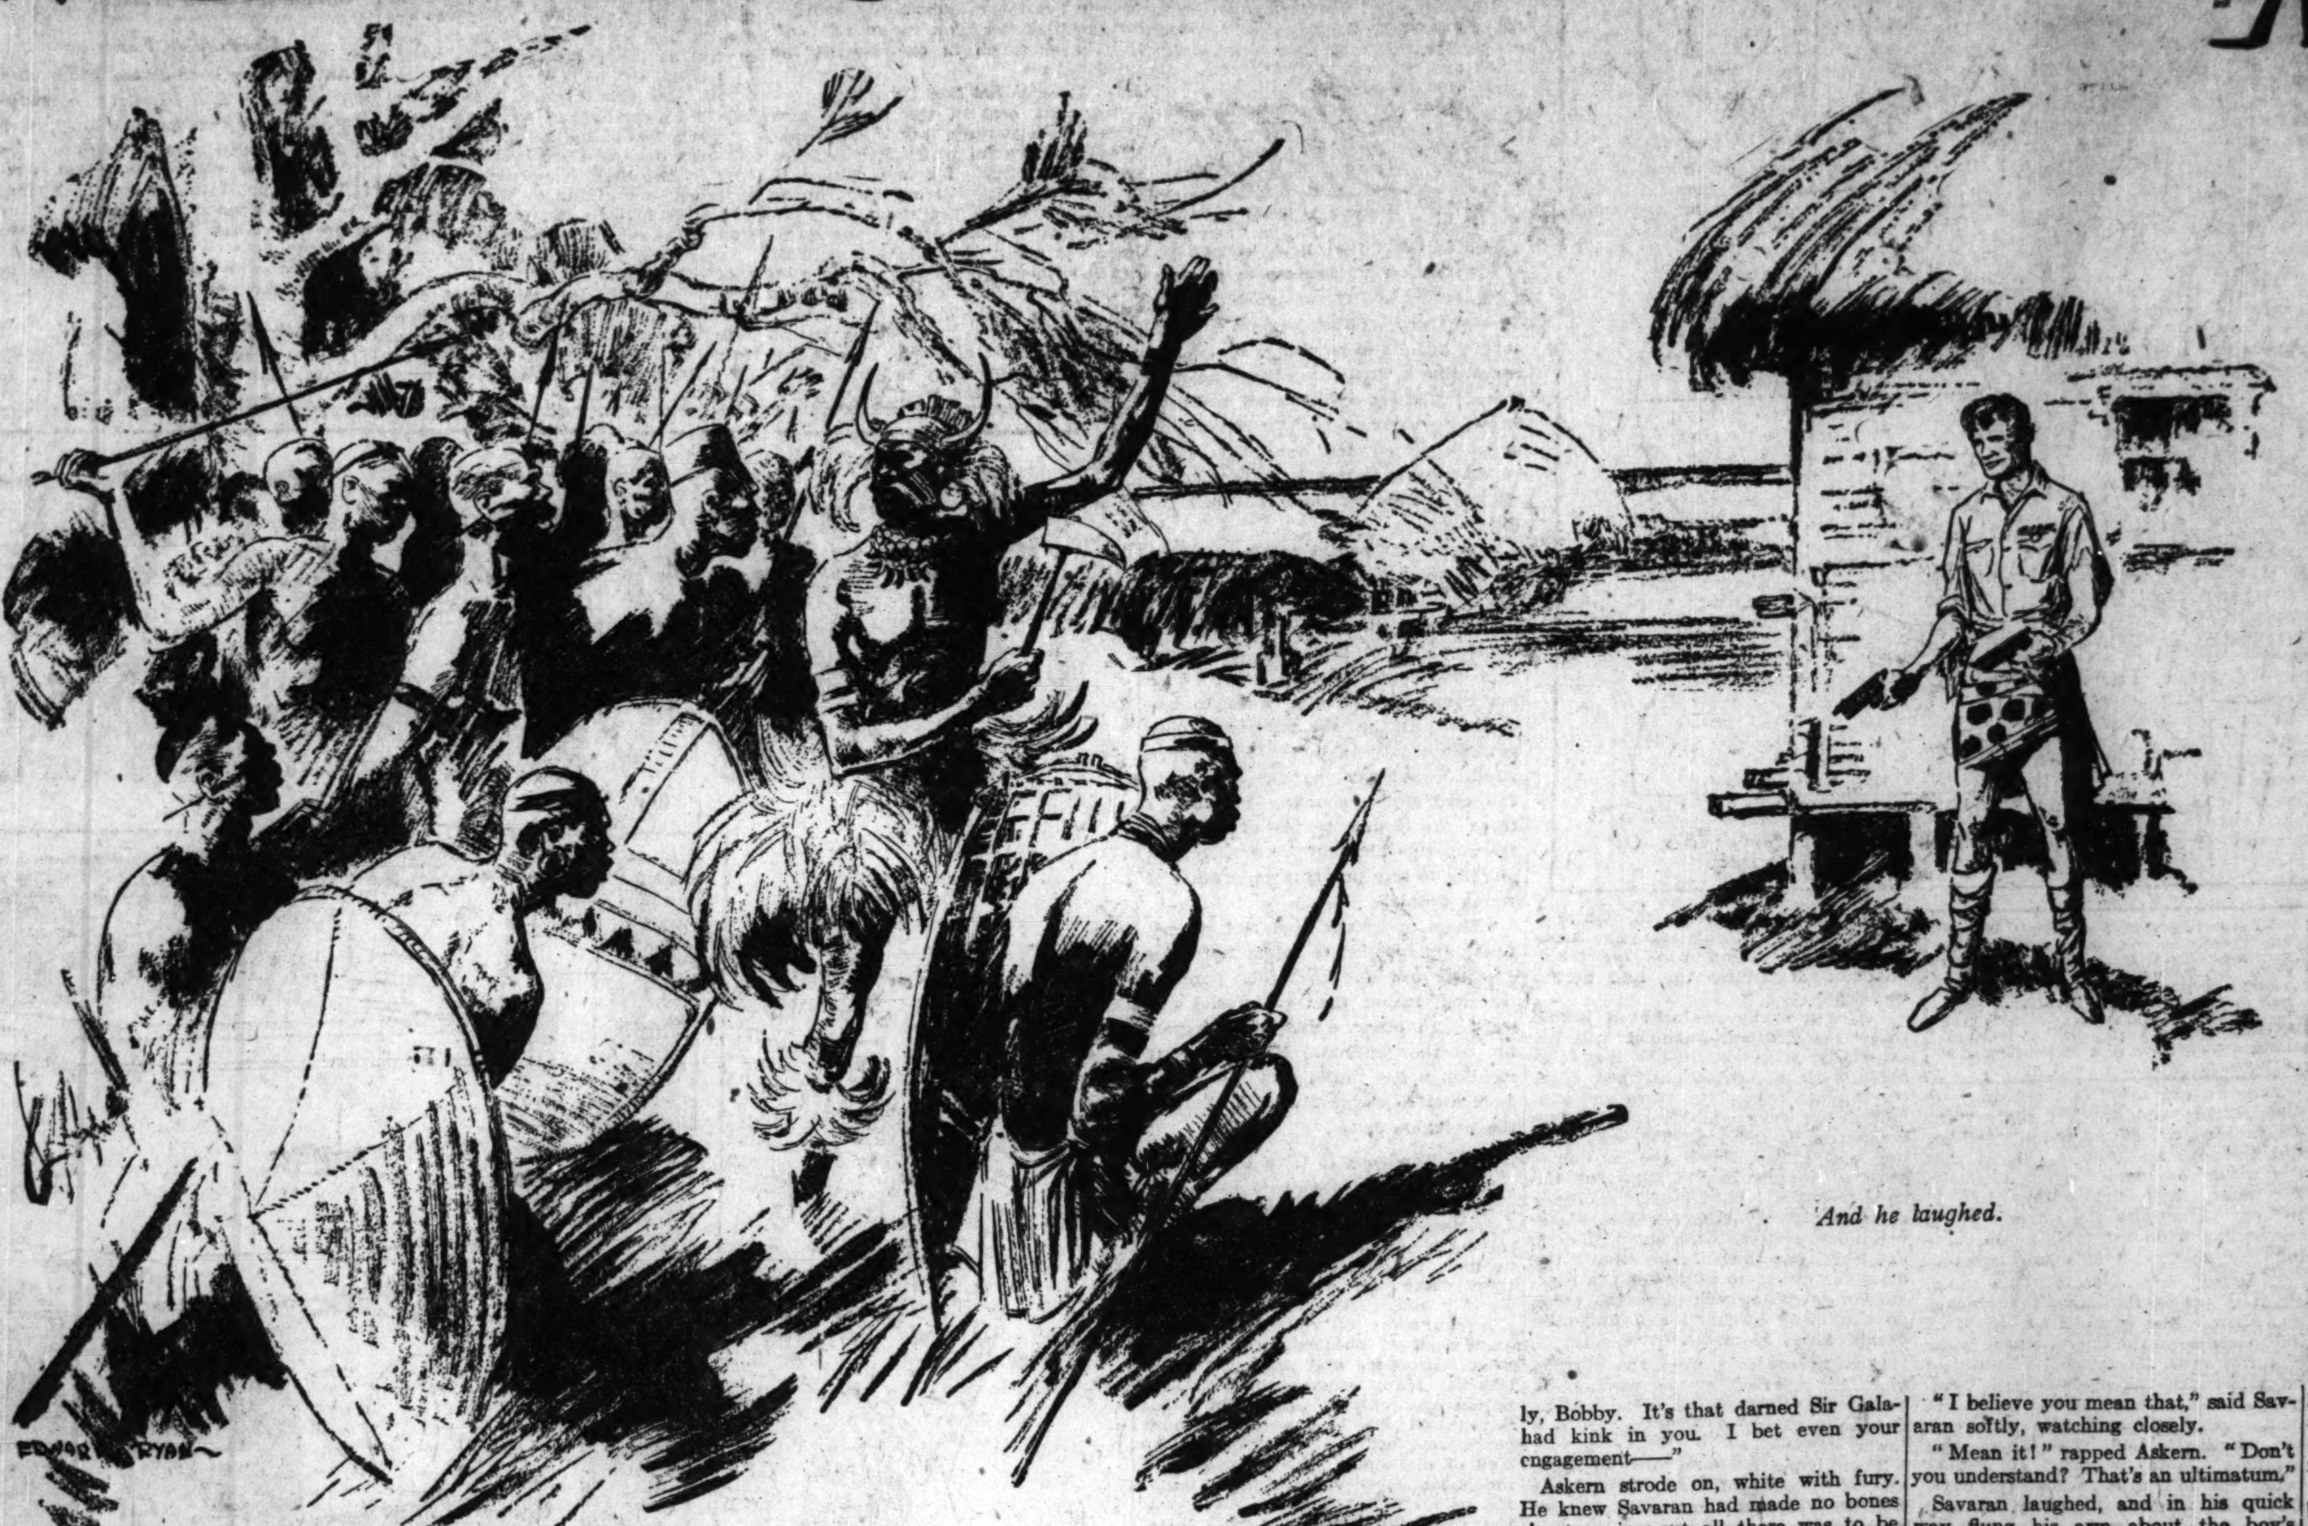
The Wandering Gentile

a Savaran Story

By Douglas Newton

Young Bobby Askern Stood Waiting for an Unescapable Death at the Hands of Jungle Spearmen—When on the Scene Came That Gallant Braggart, Savaran.



And he laughed.

ASKERN stood on the tiny veranda of his "residency," waiting for death. Far across the clearing, against the deep mystery of the dark and brooding jungle, a body of Sharti spearmen danced about a blood-red fire to the howled chant of a witch doctor. They were working themselves into the right frenzy for slaughtering him.

He could do nothing. His bearers and his Askari guard had bolted; it was hopeless to think of fighting these picked warriors singlehanded. Let him even attack them across the clearing and he would be killed with ignominy before he could near the black warriors. If he tried to escape into the jungle, those bushmen would easily catch one so unskilled as he and spear him on the run like a hunted animal. There was nothing for it but to stand ready to meet death with a white man's dignity—and to think.

He thought of many things, but mainly he wondered if Flemalle had really been as kind as he had seemed. Louis Flemalle, secretary of the interior to the mandatory government that had taken control of the vast Malaria coast protectorate after the war, had given Askern his chance by sending him as the first envoy to the Sharti. Only now, in the bitter-clear moments between life and death, Askern could not help remembering that Flemalle had never given him a thought until Blanche had come to Paronga, the capital, to marry him.

An ugly idea; he fought it. But Blanche's corn fair beauty undoubtedly did appeal to Flemalle's semi-eastern darkness, and Flemalle had shown that it appealed. Wasn't it because Flemalle liked Blanche that he had given Askern this opportunity? Why else had he singled out an unconsidered subordinate for so tremendous a task?

Wasn't that it? A man of Flemalle's acuteness must have known that the task was too big for a mere untried young office "walla." Again, could a man with Flemalle's sources of information have been so astonishingly ignorant of the truculent hostility of the Sharti and the dangers and difficulties of the jungle trek to their distant territory? Only ignorance could explain his sending Askern out so ill equipped, with so weak a force, and with such inadequate instructions—only ignorance or something Askern's mind winced away from.

Beastly thoughts. Askern beat them back. Flemalle had been so generous and so frank. He had never overstepped the bounds of social propriety in his calls on Blanche during her long—too long—stay at Government house. He had never hidden the fact that he liked Blanche so well, as an uncle likes a nice niece, that he wanted her to start her married life auspiciously, in a residency instead of in a small bungalow in Paronga's cheaper white quarter, with a pro-consular status instead of at the social level of a mere senior clerk.

He had said this quite frankly to Blanche and Askern in the presence of both. For that reason he had given Askern this chance, and to make the most of this chance the wedding had been postponed. But had there been something behind it. Askern lashed himself for being an ugly minded brute at the mere thought. His mood was only the result of frustration and failure—failure! He stared across at the dancing figures, looking so like devils in the flickering wood flames, and his hands, reeking with tropic heat, clenched in an effort of self-control. How long now before he was hacked down and life and ambition—and Blanche—ceased to be for him?

"Come inside!" it said in English.

Askern jerked nervously. Were his wits cracking? Was he hearing imaginary voices? "Stir yourself, my gallant Gen. Gordon," said the voice. "They'll be ripe for murder in about three minutes."

Askern was inside the hut, gazing with shaky astonishment at the strangest looking scarecrow that had ever uttered words in English. It was a man, tall and incredibly tattered. He was a spider-spare fellow, all iron sinews and fierce resolution. There was an unmistakable if cheerful ferocity in his dark aquiline face; a mocking ruthlessness that was also a charm. His filthy, wasp-waisted but tattered tunic bore three rows of medal ribbons, while a diamond of startling quality gleamed amid the greasy wreckage of a degenerate tie. Below his tunic, however, he had ceased to be European, for a native loin petticoat of blazing design and grimy cloth wrappings about legs and feet completed his bewildering get-up. Askern realized him as a sort of shock.

"Who the blazes are you?" he gasped.

"Damn," said the other, "are you the complete working model of a resigned and noble death? Don't you even carry a gun?"

"Not on me," stammered Askern. "Don't want to parade force. No use, anyhow, against a whole mob. Best meet what's coming with dignity."

"Glorious!" said the stranger with a flash of splendid teeth. "But I'm not. I want a gun."

Askern lifted the lid of a carrier's box, dropped it again. "It's no good," he said. "We'll only stir up bad blood for generations to come. My orders are particular about avoiding that sort of thing."

"I thought your type died with Casabianca," the stranger said, and, smiling pleasantly, he dropped Askern with as wicked a left to the jaw as a man could give.

"No time to argue with great white souls," he said, and grabbed pistols from the box, loaded each with a full magazine, and crammed extra clips into his tattered pockets.

ASKERN, with a "You swine, I'll stop your game!" managed to lurch to his feet as the other made for the door. The stranger did not even check. His right foot took the boy in the stomach and he was over his sprawled body and outside the hut in a stride.

He had, as a matter of fact, no time for niceness. The Sharti spearmen were already advancing on the hut, led by the gibbering and howling witch doctor. They did not halt as the stranger appeared; just brandished their spears with blood curdling yells. The big scarecrow stood and looked at them—and laughed!

He stood, a tall, almost eerie figure, wrists on ragged hips, automatic pistols dangling behind—and he laughed. And the clear, cutting mockery of that laugh halted the line of buck warriors like a brake. He gave them plenty of time to look at him, then said cheerfully in the Sharti tongue:

"My brothers, my belly has not been so moved to joy since the day I shaved the beard of your chief, the Sharti-kor. Prance on. It amuses me!"

They did not prance. They sucked back. Hoarse murmurs came from them. The man was dirty and a scarecrow, but they feared him like death. And Askern, on his hands and knees, saw that the man enjoyed the effect of that fear.

"My shadow still makes you tremble, eh?" came the mocking voice. "Good! Now you will take your ju-ju man and hang him on that baobab tree for daring to threaten a white lord."

The witch man loosed a frenzied torrent of words. The spear line showed confusion. A big Negro sank from the hip to heave his spear. He died even as he moved, though the spitting pistol did not rise above the stranger's hip.

"So, you only half remember," he cried. "I will take one in three of you, then, to refresh your minds."

The automatics in both hands rapped and flamed. The braves hurled a harmless spear or two and died even as the stranger had promised. A regular one in three went down before that extraordinary pistol play.

The scarecrow actually strutted as he saw the terror his shooting had created. He roared:

"You know me. You know I am lord over your lives. Throw down your spears. Now, the witch man to the tree or do I take one in two?"

The fetich doctor leaped forward, screaming, an ax whirling in his hand. The stranger fired once and dropped him with a bullet in his leg. Then, with a flambuoyant gesture, he waved the blacks to their task. They nearly fell over each other in their haste to obey.

As they carried the yelling ju-ju man to the tree Askern fainted.

IT was days later that Askern came to himself. He knew this by the state of his surroundings. He was in a clean-sheeted camp bed. The room was spic and span. He heard the laughing voices of house boys and, more startling, the stamp and rattle of an Askari sentry halting at the end of his beat outside.

He thought he was dreaming. He was not. As he sat up a man put a pretty native girl from his knee and came cheerfully to his side. It was the lean and dashing stranger, but he was no longer a scarecrow. He was in a silk twill tropic uniform that made him almost extravagantly dapper—a beautiful suit. Askern glared stupefied at it. It was the one really good suit of his own that he had preserved through all adventures to grace the "king palaver" that was to be the great triumph of his residency. As he glared at it, at the row of medal ribbons the stranger had had the cheek to sew to the breast, the cheerful hawk face flashed in a smile.

"Made a first rate job of it, eh?" he said calmly. "Tailoring is one of my minor gifts. Made a first rate job of you, too. You've had a bad bout of fever. You'll be yourself in no time; medicine is also one of my accomplishments."

"Anything else?" Askern asked feebly.

"Everything else," the big man grinned, and something in his smile made Askern feel he was right. The fellow had a curious force.

"What has happened?" he groaned.

"The government has resumed control," said the man with his fierce cheeriness. "Law runs in Sharti. I brought your boys back from the bush, shot the sergeant of Askari for desertion in face of the enemy, and you now have men you can rely on. The Sharti-kor——"

"Has called his tribe to arms," croaked Askern, trying to rise.

"The Sharti-kor has called on me," grinned the stranger pushing him back into his bed.

"Nonsense!" snapped Askern. "He wouldn't let me even call on him—sent me the head of a Portuguese trader to show what happened to white men who tried to force themselves into his land."

"The Sharti-kor called," said the stranger enjoying every moment of his own wonder, "clad in penitential sackcloth with dirt on his head. He crawled from the edge of the clearing to this hut on his tummy, rising only to make the five grovelings his ritual of abasement demand——"

"The Sharti-kor!" gasped Askern. "Impossible!"

"You think so?" grinned the other. "Well, we'll make him do it all over again when you're up and about."

Askern stared. But he knew this curious man was speaking the truth. He, too, felt the something in him that must have cowed the fierce old chief. There was not only power in this bazarre man, but also an extravagant joy in exercising it.

"And what next?" he asked feebly.

"O, I started bringing the Sharti under the beneficences of white rule, reported same to the capital——"

"You've reported—blast your impudence! I'm resident here."

"You've been on your back for three weeks and the white man's burden had to be shouldered. Besides we needed supplies, support and so forth, and your little portable typewriter made correspondence a temptation. I like to talk largely to government mandarins. And I do this sort of thing so much better than you ever will."

He brought a mass of carbon duplicates to Askern. "Look those over. You'll find they are models of what a district officer's communiques should be. Paronga will be startled at your brilliance."

"My brilliance!" Askern turned feverishly to the final page, saw the carbon duplicate of a signature and gasped. "My name—my signature! But, by heaven, this is forgery!"

"One of my lesser gifts," smiled the other. "There were reasons why I could not take the credit I deserved. But you'll get it, Bobby Askern. When those reports are read in Paronga you'll be a made man."

AND that was likely to be true. Askern realized when he read those reports. They were masterly. Then, however, he could only rage at this stranger out of nowhere's infernal impudence.

"Who are you?" he snapped.

"The Wandering Gentile," grinned the other as he produced Askern's cigaret case, full of Askern's cigarets, selected one and lit up.

"I was told," said Askern slowly, "that there was no white man in this belt save a ruffian dodging the law."

"That's me, naturally," said the stranger.

"I see! And that's why you're ashamed of your name."

"This is where the ruffian winces and hangs his head," grinned the stranger. "Ashamed of it? Lord no. I'm proud of 'em—all. I've made history with most of them and must have at least twenty by now."

"Twenty aliases—?"

"Nomme des guerres," said the other puffing luxuriously. "Apart from their legal convenience, I have a taste for them. Which of them do you know—Le Geyt? no! Jorgensen? no! Voysey——?"

Voysey!" cried Askern his fists clenching," or rather Savaran, who calls himself Voysey."

"Yes, I prefer Savaran to most of the others," the man mused. "I've done all my best things in that name, and it has a sound."

"You've a price on your head!" Askern raged.

"On most heads under most names," said Savaran indifferently. O, I see, a sense of duty gnaws at your vitals. You are ready to arrest me, bare handed but strong in the might of the law, eh?"

He stood up, leaned across the bed and patted Askern's shoulder. "You're a nice child, Bobby," he said. "But you've a lot to learn about Africa—and me! Being arrested single handed is one of the few sensations denied to a nature like mine."

"That was a bad break," said Askern hoarsely. "See— I took this from your holster."

He held a wicked looking automatic pointed at Savaran's chest.

"That's one of the guns I saved your life with," smiled Savaran, flicking the ash off his cigaret.

"God—! You make use of that to serve your own ends?" cried Askern.

"That or anything," Savaran's eyes crinkled up in amusement. The pistol in Askern's hand began to wobble as he tried to master the lean man's glance. Then he flung it down.

"I though it would act," said Savaran in a sort of intoxicated glee as he picked the weapon up. "Its the force in me, Bobby. I enjoy testing it. O, yes, I let you get hold of that gun purposely—I've got that extra power—the superman force that makes you and other men do my will."

He sat on the foot of the bed playing with the pistol, his queer aquiline good looks, his queer bright eyes strangely exalted.

"I'm different from other men, Bobby, above them!" he said. "I'm the conqueror type. I've broken nations. Kings have bowed before me. I've been the lord over souls by the million. Armies, courts, fair women have acknowledged my sway. Sultans have begged favors of me. My sword and my genius have freed tribes. Power—that is my essence! I am a man made for immensities!"

Bobby Askern stared at the ecstatic face before him, half inclined to laugh. But he did not laugh. What Savaran said was true.

He was recalling the stories he had heard about this man, almost fabulous legends. It was a fact that he wandered the length and breadth of Africa, a fiery, brilliant freelance soldier, an adventurer who took service with kings or made himself king, or won fortunes out of contraband, as the fancy pleased him. Savaran boasted; always he boasted. But his boasts were true.

SAVARAN had certainly done wonders, Askern saw, when he could get out and about. Where there had been merely the lonely residency hut cowering under the threat of the jungle a busy village had sprung up, with the once sullen Sharti active as traders, house builders, road makers, and couriers carrying trade and reports along the six weeks' jungle trail to Paronga.

All this was due entirely to the power and genius—his king instinct, he called it—of Savaran. Askern, lost in admiration, could only find one flaw. That was the presence of too many women and Savaran's too evident interest in them.

"Hang it all, haven't you any dignity, man?" Askern rapped as, in response to a languishing glance from a superb pair of native eyes, Savaran chucked the lithe, red-brown owner under her chin.

"Dignity!" Savaran's eyes gleamed dangerously as his strange, overweening egoism was touched. Then he laughed. "That sort of condescension is the privilege of princes, as history will show you. You take the romance of sex, like everything else, too seriously, Bobby. It's that darned Sir Galahad kink in you. I bet even your engagement——"

Askern strode on, white with fury. He knew Savaran had made no bones about prying out all there was to be known about his engagement while he was unconscious.

"Pretty girl—Blanche," mused Savaran, who really knew no more about her than her photo, signed with that single name, told.

"Damn you!" cried Askern, swinging on him. "You go too far! I won't have you mention that lady's name."

"She waits in England for you?" asked Savaran, unmoved.

"No!" snapped Askern. "In Paronga."

"Here—and you didn't marry her before coming to the Sharti?" Savaran's eyes showed surprise. Askern said nothing, just faced him, ready to dash a fist in his face. And Savaran went on with his disarming charm.

"I'm really interested, Bobby. You left this lady unmarried to come here? Ambition?"

"Yes," admitted Askern gruffly. "You can see yourself it was a big chance and what it'd mean to us." Anger choked him. "But what's it got to do with you, anyway?"

He expected mockery, was ready to spring at the other's throat. Savaran, the eternally unexpected, ran his arm through his, said warmly: "That was fine of you both. A brave gesture! That appeals to Savaran! So, the sooner we make this a fitting home for that splendid girl the better, eh? Come along and see the rich Sharti trade already pouring into your godowns."

SAVARAN certainly had a magic, not merely in winning Askern but in winning the difficult Sharti. They were already bringing their palm oil, kernels, ivory, gold dust, hides, and the like into the store sheds, and in such quantities as to promise that this territory was going to be what Flemalle had said it would be, the richest under Malaria coast rule.

And he was resident. That is he was, thanks to the astonishing way Savaran had mastered the Sharti; through the Sharti-kor, their redoubtable chief.

"He knew better than to set himself against Savaran," Savaran said indifferently. "I taught him what such folly meant some months ago."

"I seem to recall something about shaving off his beard," said Askern, not really believing anybody could have dared that supreme insult to a fighting Moslem.

"That was it," said Savaran.

"But—Where were his warriors?" demanded the astonished Askern.

"Drawn up in a hollow square round him in his own palaver place in his own capital, of course," said Savaran, enjoying the boy's awe. "Don't you realize yet that when I make gestures I make 'em big?"

"But—why?" Askern gasped.

"He tried to raid an ivory caravan I was taking through his land to the Zeb Arabs."

"Ivory! But that's illegal."

"I mostly am," grinned Savaran. Then his eyes narrowed. "This land is a paradise for the smuggler, anyhow. Take hashish running, for example. An immense field with an immense fortune in it."

He looked at Askern with such a curious light in his eyes that the boy felt he was feeling him out in the hope that he would abuse his position and join him in the trade. Askern's face became as stone.

"Try any of that sort of vileness in my distret, Savaran, and in spite of all I owe you, I'll hunt you down like a dog."

"I believe you mean that," said Savaran softly, watching closely.

"Mean it!" rapped Askern. "Don't you understand? That's an ultimatum."

Savaran laughed, and in his quick way flung his arm about the boy's shoulder.

"I shouldn't have doubted the Galahad strain, eh?" he said. "There's not much to you, Bobby, but what there is is pretty good."

"I notice you don't express any opinion on this filthy dope traffic yourself," said the boy stiffly.

"On hashish smuggling!" There was a sudden cruel rasp in Savaran's voice; his arm slid from Askern's shoulder, and for the moment he looked like a gypsy-skinned Lucifer. "My opinion on that, Bobby? You saw me when I first came to you! I was filth and tatters. Me! Savaran! Hashish had done that to me, Bobby!"

"To you? Do you dope?"

"Dope—me? Never. His own egoism is all the stimulant Savaran needs. No; a swine peddled the stuff to my bearers and gunmen."

His face became as harsh as death. "And one day," he said slowly, "that swine will know what it means to cross Savaran." His quick mood changed. "It cost me seventy thousand dollars gold, Bobby; the profits of five months' danger and sweat getting that ivory to the Zeb Arabs. O, I wouldn't have minded losing it in fair scrapping with one of you government 'wallas,' or even to old Sharti-kor—those are the chances of the game. But to lose it by foulness." He paused, scowling.

"I was coming back from the Zeb with the cash. I was going to lay it out on more ivory—and treble it. I had a good lot of men, wild and dangerous, of course; they have to be for that game, but Savaran could handle 'em, or could until we got to a dirty little ford village, Tchik on the Tiboru."

"That's on our ground," said Askern. "I came through Tchik on my way up here."

"Yes," said Savaran grimly, "and, as a Malaria coast official, you'll be overjoyed to learn that Tchik on the Tiboru was packed with hashish."

"I saw nothing," frowned Askern. "It is a fact that there's a traffic in the accursed stuff we don't seem able to stamp out. But I saw no trace at Tchik."

"It was there after you had gone through," said Savaran. "Yes, I heard of you there. Well, this stuff was sold to my boys and it made them killer-mad, of course. It was me they decided to kill—for my seventy thousand dollars in coin. They didn't kill me, but even Savaran couldn't fight one hundred and thirty doped bucks running amuck. So, after I had shot a few, I had to run for it. Me, Savaran, had to bolt from a swarm of mangy blacks. Pretty, hey? And that explains me as you first saw me."

"Why follow me—into the wilds?" frowned Askern, and Savaran answered with a strange twist to his lips.

"O, to join forces with a bold pioneer was very much to my fancy."

Askern did not think that was the true explanation, and the queerness of Savaran's behavior in the next few weeks strengthened his doubt. Savaran not only helped to build up the power of white rule with really uncanny administrative genius, but he also seemed to spend a great deal of time hunting information of some sort. It was only after their first caravan got through from the capital with fresh forces and supplies that the reason for this came out.

He said abruptly one day across the tiffin table: "Who hates you at Government house, Bobby?"

"Hates me?" Askern felt a little sick. "Why?"

"Felt it yourself, too, I see," said Savaran.

"Never mind me. What do you mean?"

"I mean I still can't see why you were sent up here alone—as ground bait."

"Ground bait—for what?"

"War!" said Savaran softly. "It's usually a too venturesome missionary who is allowed to wander to certain death at the hands of a tribe needing subduing, or maybe a trader whom nobody will miss. You're a puzzle. Government officials aren't usually wasted that way."

"You seem to me to be talking nonsense," said Askern, sweating and trying not to think of Flemalle.

"Is that innocence or entire trust in your superiors?" asked Savaran with a shrug. "I haven't either virtue. To me the sending of an untried man into a new and dangerous territory, to palaver with a tribe notoriously hostile, points to one thing only; that is, that some one in office wants a nice war of conquest that will bring him honors, promotion, a larger command, and a good cash grant for his triumph. You, of course, were to be the casus belli; your murder was to stir the government into sending a punitive expedition against the Sharti."

ASKERN made as though to protest. "Man, it's plain," snapped Savaran. "There's your inexperience of jungle diplomacy, there's your caravan, as ill equipped as any might be; there's your Askari, Urubi coastmen, no use in bush fighting and known for their habit of bolting at the first hint of danger. Whoever sent you meant you to die!"

Askern choked and sweated; it was horrible, this proving of his own suspicions against Flemalle. Savaran went on: "There's another item I haven't quite got the hang of yet, though I think it fits in somewhere. You left a little rat of a coast Kru at Tchik on your way up. He went sick, I understand, but got well quickly enough to come up here in the next caravan. His name is Yaunde."

His hard eyes on Askern, saw the boy wince. "You remember Yaunde, Askern?"

"Yes, he was left behind at Tchik," the boy said hoarsely. What did it mean? he wondered. Yaunde was Flemalle's pet agent.

"You don't see how he fits in—or don't want to," said Savaran harshly. "But you do see the general idea. You were to die to bring war on the Sharti and glory for some one. That's the real puzzler. The glory would naturally go to the governor general and, whatever his faults, Clem Newington is white. One simply can't think of him doing that sort of thing."

"No, you can't," said Askern hoarsely. "And he didn't. Sir Clement Newington isn't at Paronga. His health's cracked. He's been on leave for over a year."

"Then who sent you up here?" Savaran snapped.

"The mandatory secretary, Louis Flemalle!" said Askern.

"Flemalle!" Savaran was on his feet, his eyes blazing. "Did you say Flemalle?" Askern, startled by Savaran's manner, nodded. "A dark, slinking, sad-eyed Levantine."

"Cretan! He says he was born in Crete," Askern said.

"O, Cretan as well, Syrian and Armenian, too, and several other races thrown in. He's the crowning vice of all the mixed blood of the little east." He glared at Askern. "Flemalle! A tall, smooth, pretty fellow, head like a mustached Apollo, heart like a Port Said rat's. Handsome, dark, magnetic, deadly and dirty of soul—is that your Flemalle?"

"AS far as externals go, you seem to have got him well," said Askern with a wintry smile.

"There aren't two Flemalles, anyhow," cried Savaran. "But how in the name of all the gods of decency did he get into the company of honest men?"

"He was mixed up in the peace crowds at Versailles and Geneva," said Askern. "He's clever. He attracted attention. When a mandatory board was being formed to take over the running of the Malaria coast it seemed natural to include him. His knowledge of Africa is immense."

"By Mahomet, it is!" Savaran cried. "He's thieved and grafted and done dirty work over every foot of it." He sat back and laughed. "Why didn't I get into the peace game. Flemalle saw where easy loot was."

"You mean Flemalle isn't straight?" Askern gasped.

"Straight!" Savaran exploded. "Why, a corkscrew would look like a plumb line beside Flemalle." His eyes became ferocious. "Don't I know the pariah! He's the meanest, slimiest, vilest human creature Africa's ever known. He's robbed me—Savaran—twice already—and now he's done it again. And you—I see where you come in. Now I know Flemalle's on the job."

"Is Flemalle pleased at your triumph over the Sharti?" Savaran countered.

Askern frowned, became nervous. "No—that is, he's queer about it. His comments are strangely ambiguous and there are no congratulations."

"You robbed him of glory, a row of orders, promotion, and a money grant from the authorities," said Savaran. "I know Flemalle. He'd rather you poisoned him than that."

"There's something even queerer," said Askern. "There are hints in his letters. I can't make head or tail of them, but it's as though I had

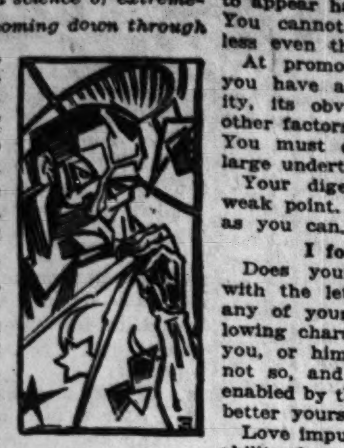
What's in Your Name? Numerology Tells



Numerology is a science of extremely ancient origin,coming down through Greek, Chinese, and Jewish sources. Pythagoras made use of it. According to it, each letter in the alphabet has a number, each number a special meaning. A person's character, talents, and history can be read from his original name and birthdate. One's name should be harmonious to one's birthdate. If not, it should be changed to bring about better self-expression.

Numerology is based on the theory of the effect upon the owner that a chord of music would, freeing and stimulating. If in another vibration than the person whose type of vibration is shown by the birthdate, then hearing his name called constantly is like hearing a discord—one may become used to it so that it is not felt consciously; but it has a jarring, constricting effect on the owner's nerves just the same. In such a case the name — the first name — should be changed to something in the right rate. This has a beneficent effect upon the person.

If your first name begins with one of the letters of the alphabet whose numerological significance is analyzed below you will possess the qualities revealed for that letter. If that letter appears anywhere in your first or middle name these characteristics will be yours, in some degree, their strength varying with the distance of the letter from the beginning of the name and, of course, modified by certain other characteristics in the name.

By Yvonne D

HAVE you, or has any friend of yours, a first name commencing with the letter H? Then the following will be characteristic traits:

You live under a sense of constant stress and strain. You possess an easy flow of speech—at times you may talk too much. You are an interesting letter writer—have literary gifts; words come to you easily, though it is hard for you to express your own feelings. Outdoors you have a great feeling for, especially country life and action out of doors—you like long walks, mountain climbing, etc., as a rule. You keep thin by constant action.

You may be involved in lawsuits—there is a large likelihood of this. The gift of drawing people and things to you is strong. You usually choose virtuous associations. You do not as a rule quarrel, so are seldom quarreled with. To your friends you are very loyal, and are generally benevolent. Your nature is sunny and hopeful by inheritance. You may at times be very heavy-hearted, but you try to appear happy even at these times. You cannot thrive under censure—less even than most people.

At promoting you are good, and you have a certain autocratic quality, its obviousness depending upon other factors of your name and birth. You must deal with large ideas or large undertakings to be successful.

Your digestive apparatus is your weak point. Live as close to nature as you can.

I for Critical Ability.

Does your first name commence with the letter I? Or does that of any of your friends? Then the following characteristics will be true of you, or him, or her. See if this is not so, and if you perhaps are not enabled by this analysis to understand better yourself and the other person:

Love impulses are strong. There is ability for organizing and for lecturing. Success can only be had when you or your friend are in control, or at the center of whatever is being pursued. You or he or she like to be alone. There are very definite musical gifts. Ability as a critic—a forceful and critical nature, somewhat prone to see faults before virtues. Keen insight into life and people, and a strong imagination, a literary gift as well as a love for music are yours. You or your friend forgive more easily than you forget. In music you like dreamy compositions. While you see and feel tragedy deeply, you can always see the ridiculous side of things also.

There is a deep love of home and home life; but your home is often broken up or rendered unpleasant in some way. People with this letter first in their name suffer deeply from this. Prudence and caution are characteristic of them. Sometimes overtimidity and fear. But there is much intuition and sympathy always. Several I's in a name show oversensitiveness. Beware with an I for the first letter also of brooding over difficulties and of being quickly saddened by mental wounds.

The physical difficulties are chiefly digestive ones. The professional or artistic world is better for you than the business one.

J Spells Leadership.

Have you, or has any friend of yours, a first name commencing with the letter J?

Then you—or he, or she—have the qualities of good leadership. You have generally good health and clear mental vision. Strong brilliant action is yours, activity, and a witty and happy disposition. You are a pioneer in everything you undertake, and have strong powers of concentration and originality. Will and force and hope are evident in you. And you may have a strong temper.

Beware at times of being so concerned with you own affairs that you forget those of others. How much this is modified depends upon the other letters of your name.

Over your emotions you have little control—you are easily elated and easily depressed. When a friendship is once broken for you it is extremely difficult for you to reëstablish the person in your affections. It is through your affections that you suffer, and you must be handled carefully—"with gloves." You are very clean minded, a good organizer, and general manager, with a vivid and large imagination. Many preachers come under this letter.

There are gifts for business, law, and architecture. Or for engineering. With proper caution you will have good fortune. Your solar plexus and heart are tender spots. Be careful to be out of doors, in close touch with nature, sufficiently.

K Means Generosity.

Does your name commence with the letter K? Are you familiar with the following characteristics in yourself or in any one of your friends whose first name also commences with this letter?

Generosity—it is hard for you to hold on to money, and you are apt to be extravagant. You love travel and do—or will do—a good deal of it. You are successful in business pursuits, especially in those connected with many people or with different countries. You are somewhat in danger of feeling nerve strain, though your vitality is good.

Also you are very adaptable and can fit into any circumstance for the moment. You love humanity and do much for people, but are disappointed if there is not a good deal of appreciation also. There are apt to be tragedies in your life, perhaps deep ones; but they are for your development, and from them you learn very much. You are strong in your likes and dislikes and something of an extremist in many ways. You like to have your own way and do not like to be crossed.

Dreaming is characteristic of you. You are rather difficult for others to understand and have much difficulty, perhaps more than most people, in understanding yourself. At times you show much tact; at other times you say things—speak home truths—too frankly, too bluntly, and so offend. And yet you can also exercise great forbearance.

You must be alone at times to recuperate. This is very necessary for you. City life you prefer to country life. Beware of recklessness and arrogance.

L for Sweetness.

Does your first name commence with the letter L? Or does the name of any of your friends?

Then you or he or she possess sweetness of manner, discretion, and spirituality. You or he or she are intuitive and self-sacrificing. A love of mystery is evident and some tendency to day dream. And the ability to be a good mimic or actor. Your voice is a tenor or a soprano. It is of good quality, but there is some weakness of the throat—it tires easily or is easily affected.

Your love for justice and fair dealing is strong. You are constructive, full of energy and drive. You like credit for what you do—though this, like other things, may be modified by the other letters in your name. Feasting or drinking you enjoy. Doing things for others is characteristic of you, and the taking of responsibilities upon yourself. What you do you do well. And you have a gift for dealing with real estate and farms, or ground of any kind.

You often have presentments, or even prophetic dreams. And you are very fond of children and animals.

M Indicates Loyalty.

Does your first name commence with the letter M? Or does that of any of your friends? Then examine closely and see how many of the following traits you recognize in them or in yourself. It may give you a better understanding of or tolerance for both yourself and them.

Faithfulness to friends and to undertakings, and conjugal fidelity. A good manner is yours. There will be many and varied experiences in your life. Your nature is both a social and an affectionate one. Excitement is very bad for you—it seems to poison your system for the time.

You are apt to distinguish according to classes, to regard a low position as something of a disgrace. You have good mechanical ability, and often excel as a painter. Your capacity is large, and you possess good executive ability. Generous and kind, fearless, restless, creative, and positive. Somewhat inclined to celibacy, and it is very difficult to get your full confidence.

To be positive, set, and inventive; to be able to do things wonderfully well with your hands; and to succeed as a producer in a business way—these qualities all belong to you. As a rule you bear your crosses silently.

N Brings Magic.

Is the first letter of your first name an N? Or is it that of any of your friends?

Then you are careful in details and brilliant mentally. Something of a magician and an extremist also. Very psychic and apt to magnify everything. You should talk as little as possible of your private affairs, of your business affairs in particular; for you are very sensitive to opposition.

Your love of justice and truth is strong, and you have a talent for law; are versatile, but also practical. You are a clever speaker and writer, and with an especial gift for teaching. You are very analytical, and this sometimes prevents in these people marriage, or postpones it until later in life, though they—you—are inclined to marry young.

Your nerves, liver, and intestines are weak points. Your body—though you are nervous, with nervous impulses; there may be periods of ill health—at the same time tends to size and health.

The flyer's wife!
She stays upon the ground
To watch him soar above the

He is a hero since he "stakes his

For glory, conquest, cash reward and thrill.
(One moment's horror
Is the penalty
He faces in a smash. . . .
One moment's terror, pain—

She stands
There white and silent
With no bribe of fame.
She, too, puts on the counter all her life,
Not just a moment or a plunge
    to death,
When quick disaster drives the plane to earth.
But long, laborious days,
And endless lifetime all alone,
Alone to raise the children fame bereft.
The flyer's wife! To her who

No touch of fame, no thrill,
And very little cash.

Hooray, Boys and Girls, Sally's First Party Soon!

By Sally Joy Brown.

SCHOOL days over—vacation days here—nothing to do but have fun for two entire months! Don't you feel like celebrating, children, with a grand party to start the summer?

I've decided on the party, too, and want to tell you all about it. First, I'm going to have as guests 100 girls and boys. Isn't that fine? It will be just the kind of party, I think, you'd all pick to start the season.

The White City management, under the direction of Herbert A. Byfield, president, has invited me to bring my guests on July 5, a week from next Friday, the day after the Fourth, to spend the afternoon at White City!

I don't need to tell you what fun that has in store, do I? And White City promises to open up everything for us on that day.

The Hey-dey ride, for one—it's big enough to take our whole party at once—the Dodgem, with new, individual little automobiles, enough so every one of us can drive—the Mysterious Sensation—but I can't begin to tell you everything today about the new surprises awaiting us. So I'll tell instead how we'll choose the hundred boys and girls who'll be with me to start our summer's fun.

I'm asking every girl and boy who wants to come to write a letter telling why they'd like to come, and adding their names and street address. Also, do not forget to tell me how old you are, for that is important. Then have your letters in the mail by Wednesday afternoon, and I'll print the names of my hundred guests who've written the best letters in next Sunday's TRIBUNE!

And remember this: If you have a brother or sister or little friend who wants to come, he or she must write a letter, too. Do not include their names with yours.

The party is at White City, July 5, a week from next Friday—and your letters must be in the mail by next Wednesday afternoon, June 26, at the latest.

Send your letter to Sally Joy Brown, Tribune Tower, Tribune Square, Chicago.

Can't Afford New Furniture.

"I am a mother with two children dependent upon me for support. I have been able to buy most of the things we needed until now, but the question of new furniture has me baffled. My living room things are in terrible condition and will not last much longer, and if you know where I can get some furniture for it, I will be most grateful. MRS. E. R."

When the role of breadwinner falls upon the shoulders of a woman, alone, a little help given her is well directed. Here the need is furniture and more than one housewife who replaces things in her home from time to time will be able to supply it, I know.

Family in Great Need.

"Will it be possible for you to obtain furniture for a family we are interested in? The father was operated on about a year ago and until a few weeks ago was not able to work. He has secured employment now, but can do nothing strenuous. During this illness the family, consisting of Mr. T., his wife, and six children, have been living with two beds, a table, chair, and stove. They need more beds, two or three chests of drawers and more chairs. Anything you can do for them will be greatly appreciated.

"MRS. E. P."

> I want to be the medium through which the friends in deed and the friends in need may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.
> When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send article to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Living in such bare and uncomfortable quarters this family must be having a difficult time maintaining any kind of homelike or happy atmosphere. Won't you help a little by donating the pieces of furniture which you discard from time to time?

Use for Old Bed Linen.

"I am writing to ask if you can get me some discarded bed linens. I have just had a severe operation and will have to remain in bed for some time and I haven't enough sheets or pillow cases. My husband has been ill all winter and with four children and doctor bills we are having a difficult time getting along. MRS. E. B."

On warm, summer days the bed ridden patient finds some relief in cool, fresh linen and without it a great deal of discomfort must be endured. The sheets and pillow cases which have become worn could no doubt be mended and patched to provide a comfortable bed for this ailing mother.

Offers Electric Fan.

"I have a small electric fan to give away. Perhaps you know of someone who would like to have it.

"MRS. A. M."

What a comfort this fan will be on a warm, sultry afternoon to the invalid who must lie abed all day, to the mother spending hours over her housework, or to any one else unable to get in the path of a cooling breeze. If you'd like to have it, write me; please do not telephone.

Needs Window Shades.

"I am badly in need of window shades and I cannot afford to buy them. If you know of some one who is getting new ones, perhaps I could have the old ones. My windows are old fashioned and require seven foot length and two of them need to be three feet eight inches wide. The others are two feet six inches wide. I also need an 8x10 rug.

"MRS. F. K."

When one has devolved into the business of housecleaing the question of new shades is no small item. Perhaps the ones you are discarding could be cleaned and put in condition for Mrs. F. K. to help improve the appearance of her home.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

When mother replied that she did not believe she would care to have so many, he returned, "I saw a woman going down the street with that many. Two were riding in the buggy and three were walking. They were all sizes, just like tinker toys."

The Dancers.

By Eleanor Jewett.

Who dance on the grass?
  The wind, perhaps,
And fairies who cuddle
  Clover in laps.

Soft, wee and silken.
  The honeybees fly
Where the grass ripples

Who dance on the grass?
  The sun and the rain
And the wind and the fairies,

In Foregoing Installments:

WILLIAM CHANDOS and George Hanbury, attended by their servants, Bell and Rowley, all of England, are spending a summer on the continent. They rescue Duke Paul of Reichtenburg from a kidnaper, Major Grieg. The duke is heir to the throne of the dying Prince Nicholas. Grieg is a henchman of Duke Johann, cousin of Paul, who covets the throne. The kidnaping had been engineered by Johann to clear the way for a coup d'état. Accompanied by the Grand Duchess Leonie, Paul's fiancée, the Englishmen journeyed to Vigil, capital of Reichtenburg, to match wits with Johann. Their forces are strengthened there by the Countess Dresden of Salm and Baron Sully, lord president of the council. Grieg is rendered hors de combat when, having led a band of thugs in an assault on Chandos and Hanbury, he is thrown over a balcony by Chandos, with the result that both his legs are broken. Anger, Leonie's castle, is burned to the ground by underlings of Johann. By this time Chandos is in love with the grand duchess, and she with him. Johann's guards are stationed within the palace. The Englishmen gain entrance by way of a secret passage and replace footmen discharged by Grimm, the sergeant-footman.

INSTALLMENT XII.

A Test of Nerves.

I DO not know whether it is generally known that if you can change the color of a man's hair his own mother may be forgiven for passing him by. I certainly never knew it, and when I came suddenly face to face with George Hanbury, powdered, for an instant I thought him a stranger, and that is the plain truth. What is more to the point, he made a splendid footman and, indeed, I think that no one would ever have suspected that he and Bell and I were not in fact royal servants in all their state.

We were fortunate in our livery, for the sergeant-footman had by him nearly a dozen suits which had been made at one time or another for different men and, being in perfect condition, had been kept against the enlistment of footmen whom they might fit. From these we three were equipped and, though the set of my breeches would, perhaps, have been questioned in Saville row, the coats we chose might have been stitched upon us and no one but we could have told that they were uncomfortably tight.

It will be remembered that we had our food with us; we had, therefore, no need to call upon the kitchens for rations, and, since there was nothing to take us beyond the private suite, none of the staff would suspect that the footmen whom Grimm had dismissed had been replaced. The physicians would see us and so would the lords-in-waiting; and these would know that there were still four footmen, while the staff were equally sure that there was but one, but, I judged that with any luck some time would elapse before these two beliefs came into conflict and that, ere the resultant rumor had won to Johann's ears, the prince would be dead.

I therefore made up my mind that, provided we bore ourselves as lackeys, kept our mouths shut and took our cue from Grimm, we had little to fear, but we spent a broken half-hour rehearsing the manner we should use on entering and leaving a chamber, on opening and shutting a door and other such petty occasions for, though Grimm and his son were to shoulder as much of our duty as they could, there was watching and waiting to be done by night as by day and, as I shall show, the service now demanded could not possibly be rendered by only two men.

The prince's apartments lay upon the first floor and, as Sully had said, they took the form of a flat. This flat was cut from the rest of the palace by a broad corridor or hall, which ran the width of the building and was laid with a heavy carpet so that no footfalls might be heard. Immediately beyond this hall lay the grand staircase with a spacious ante-chamber on either side. The hall could be reached from either of the ante-chambers or from the staircase itself, and I learned that double sentries were guarding each of these doors. (Myself I heard the guard changed at 9 o'clock.) When I asked if such precaution was usual, Grimm said that in all his service it had never been taken before. The back stairs were similarly guarded, and since access to the private apartments—always an important question—had now become a matter of the gravest concern, I will deal with it here and now.

IN the ordinary way two footmen were always on duty in the broad corridor, one at the door from the staircase and the other at the door of the room in which the prince happened to be. The others would be in their quarters or about some other business, while the sergeant-footman himself was always at hand.

There was an unwritten law that no one should ever be admitted to the corridor without reference to the prince. To this rule there were four exceptions—the two lords-in-waiting on duty, the heir apparent and the lord president of the council. Every one else, however exalted his position or urgent his case, must wait in an ante-chamber until the prince's pleasure was known.

In view of the prince's sickness, this rule had been relaxed so far as the physicians were concerned, and these had immediate access by night or day.

Five days ago, with the connivance of Brooch, the second lord-in-waiting, Johann had been permitted to break this rule and Grimm had come upon them pacing the corridor. At once he had apprised the prince, who was much annoyed. Johann had been conducted to an ante-chamber and Brooch had been summoned and rated as he deserved.

I think this will show what manner of man Grimm was—strong, fearless and resolute to stand upon his rights. He was answerable to no man, except the prince, and the question of access lay with the prince and with him. The lords-in-waiting could give him no orders, and the question of access lay with the prince and with him. If the prince's pleasure could not be ascertained, the matter rested with Grimm. His personality was compelling. Men were as afraid of him as of the prince. There was no doubt about it—the old sergeant-footman was a true tower of strength.

FOR all that, Grimm was a servant and, if Johann chose to crush him, it was within his power. Both of them knew this. But to touch so stout hearted a man required a purpose which Johann could not summon, and I fancy he waived the matter as one which would lose its importance the moment the prince was dead. If I am right in this, I think his decision was sound, for with the prince's death Grimm's authority must plainly fall into abeyance, if not come to an end.

When I asked him whose orders he would take when the prince had breathed his last, he hesitated a moment and then replied, "Those of Duke Paul," but I think he saw that, on the death of a monarch there must be goings and comings which no one man could control and that, the circumstances being extraordinary, rules and regulations would have to be honored in the breach.

Grimm's invaluable loyalty had been bred in the bone. He was deeply attached to his master, but he worshiped the latter's office as his father's father had worshiped it seventy years before. In his eyes the succession was sacred. To tamper with the royal tradition was the unpardonable sin. For better or for worse, Duke Paul had been born to the purple, and there was an end of that.

The sergeant-footman was, of course, perfectly right. Maybe his simple outlook was out of date, but so are many honest ways of thinking and the world would be the richer if there were more spirits of his sort. The man was faithful, cared not at all for himself and, keeping his eyes upon his duty, looked neither to right nor left.

The doctors were lodged in a room which lay directly beneath the royal suite and, in the event of a crisis, one of the nuns had only to touch a bell to summon them up.

Now, as is the way of an old, commanding nature that has never known a day's sickness for fifty years, the prince detested the doctors and looked askance at the nuns. He suffered them because he was helpless, but Grimm was his rod and his staff and the presence of his old servant comforted him more than all the ministrations of the strangers about his bed. By skillfully exploiting this preference, Grimm had taught the nuns to look upon him as their chief and I think they told him more than they told the doctors, who were less content to listen than to judge for themselves; since one of the nuns had had much experience of sickness, it follows that Grimm was constantly well informed and knew better than any one else the actual condition of the patient and the course which his illness was shaping from hour to hour.

Such knowledge was, of course, above price for, unless the prince were to be taken off by another seizure, the nuns were sure to be able to discern the approach of the end and so to give us that notice of which we had so much need.

At a quarter to nine that evening I took my stand in the hall. My post was at the door of the bedchamber. On the opposite side of the hall young Grimm, half-dead with fatigue, stood to the door from the staircase, with his eyes on the red glass telltale which served as a bell. In an easy chair some twenty paces away one of the lords-in-waiting was slumbering peacefully.

I have said that I had made up my mind that we had little to fear. So, I think, had we all. But, looking back, I know that this was a fiction by which we sought to cheat our understanding and steady our nerves.

To be perfectly honest, if I had known the nature of the duties which we should have to perform I should no more have engaged us to undertake them than I would have engaged us to scale the cathedral towers. In my ignorance of the state which royalty keeps I had imagined that George and Bell and I could watch by night, clean the rooms at cockcrow and hover in the background throughout the day. I had actually wondered what four footmen could find to do. And now, within two hours of my arrival, I was upon parade, at the beck and call of the sleepy lord-in-waiting, who might any moment awake, waiting to usher three doctors into the prince's room. More. But for the fact that I did not know them by sight, George would have been where I was and I should have been standing at the door which led to the stairs for, as I have said, young Grimm was at the end of his tether and moved like a man in a dream.

It was, indeed, only the physical exhaustion of himself and his son that had induced the sergeant-footman to consent to adopt my plan. He had done so in desperation and verily believing that, unless he did so, the two would fall asleep standing before six hours were out. "And there," said he, "would have been a nice state of affairs. Not a door in the place I can lock or so much as bolt. The holy women lied to—told I was out of the suite; no one to tell you to send for Lord Sully, and the corridor full of soldiers before we knew where we were. It's a dreadful thing, sir, to lean on a treacherous crutch."

I had agreed thoughtfully, for I was inwardly wondering what was the difference between a treacherous crutch and a broken reed.

THE telltale glowed suddenly, turning its wine red glass to the color of fire.

Instantly young Grimm stiffened, and I realized with a shock that the palms of my hands were wet.

I pulled myself together and took a deep breath.

The door was ajar, and young Grimm was looking to see who it was that had "rung." Then he stepped back and swung the mahogany wide.

As the physicians entered I knocked upon the bedchamber's door.

A moment, and this was opened by one of the nuns.

"The doctors?" she whispered.

I nodded and she let the door go. I set it open at once and stood to one side.

As the three physicians passed in I regarded them carefully. The impulse to look elsewhere or at least to lower my head was most insistent, but it was all important that I should know them again. Two passed me by as though I did not exist, but the third looked me up and down, frowning, till the hair rose upon my head. The truth is, I think that he mistrusted himself and so sought to allay my suspicion that he found the ways of the mighty in any way strange, but I could have spared his endeavor which seemed to me but the prelude to my denouncement.

Then at last he was gone and I shut the door.

The visit lasted five minutes, but before they left the sickroom the lord-in-waiting awoke and strolled up to young Grimm.

"Did I hear the doctors?" he said.

"Yes, my lord."

He was not wearing uniform and I made up my mind that it was Brooch. It was, of course, mere chance that he had not accosted me.

With the tail of my eye I watched him take out his watch and start to pace up and down.

My door was suddenly opened and the doctors emerged.

Brooch came to meet them at once. For a moment or two they stood talking. Then they passed to the door to the staircase and the janitor opened it wide.

To my inexpressible relief, Brooch followed the doctors out.

"As usual," he said to young Grimm, "if the doctors should have to be summoned, ring also for me."

"Very good, my lord."

The next moment the door was shut.

BY one concent, young Grimm and I met together in the midst of the hall.

"Well done, sir," said he. "You see, it is easy enough. Will you know the physicians again?"

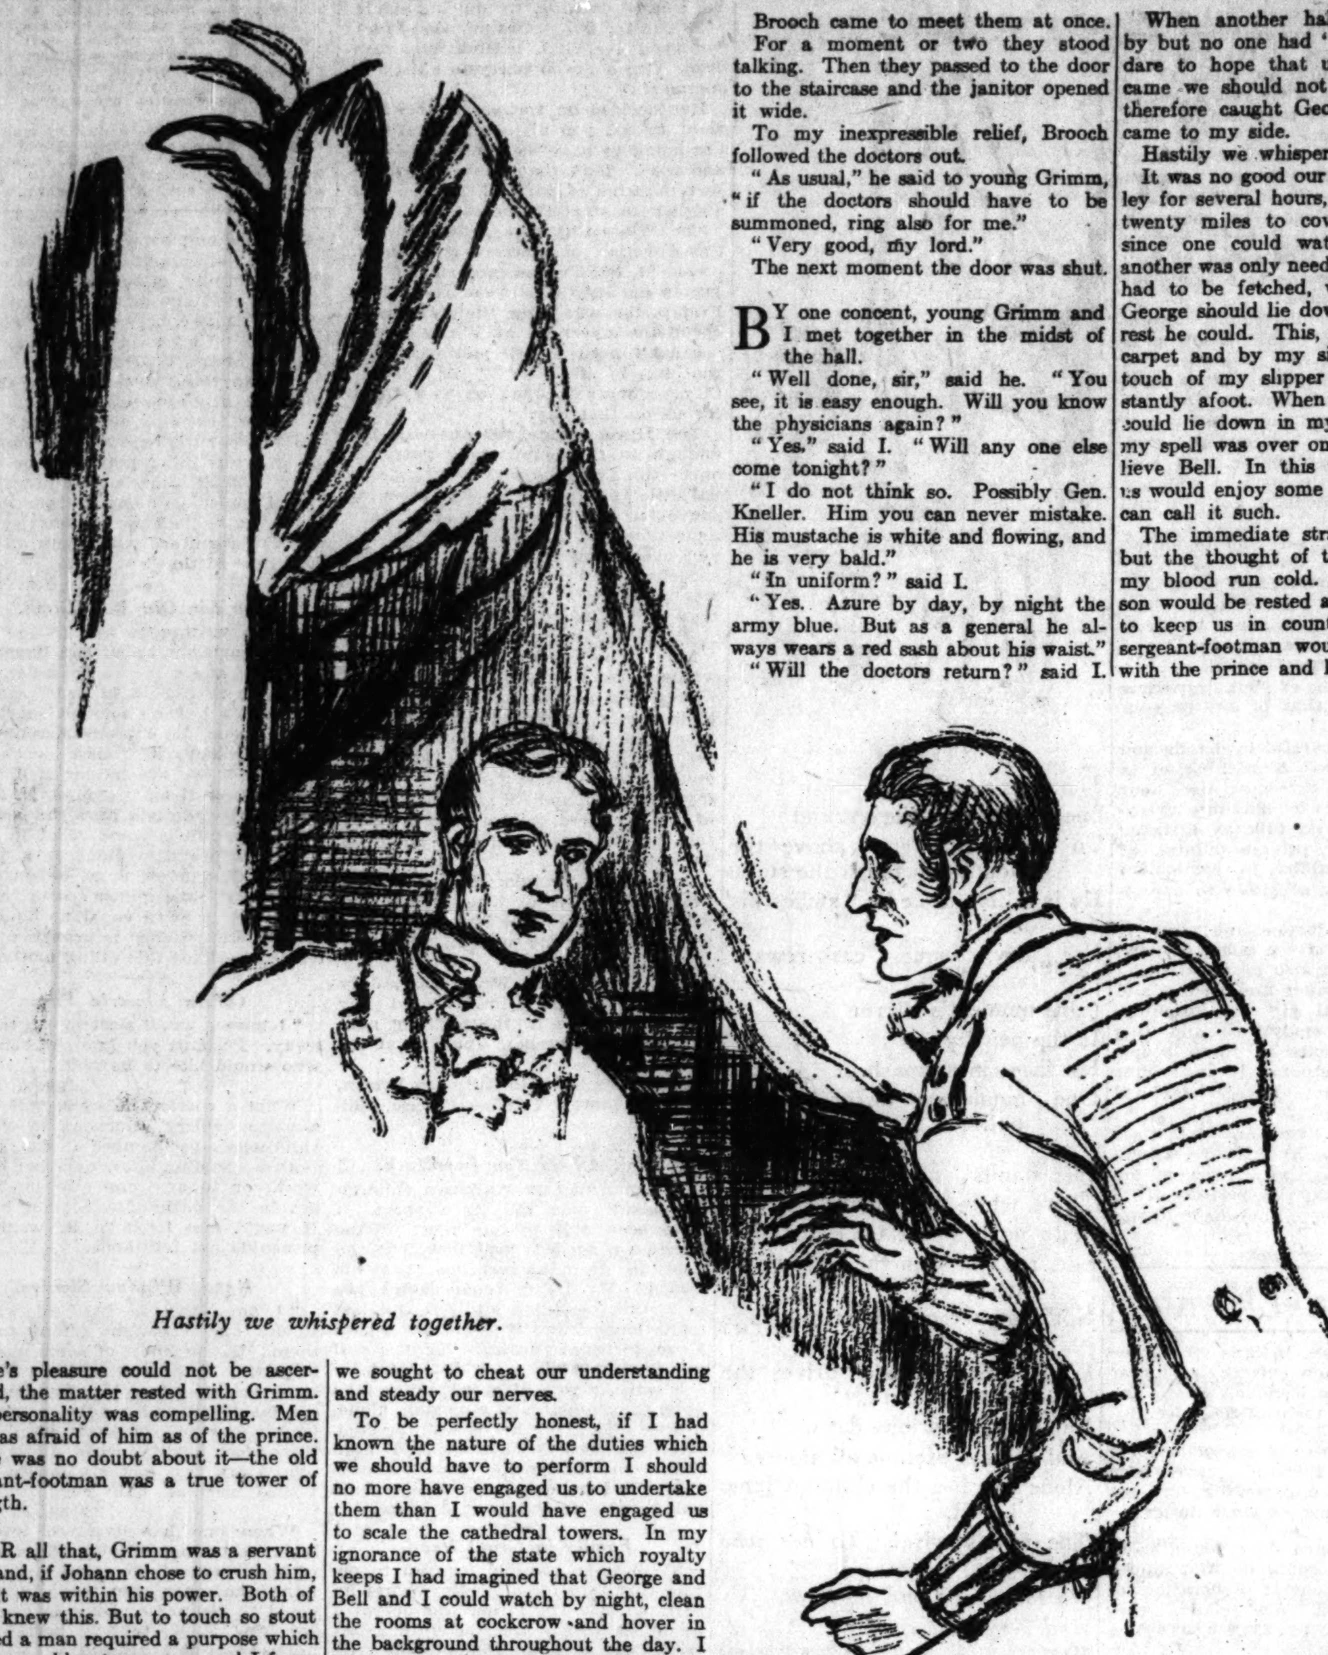
"Yes," said I. "Will any one else come tonight?"

"I do not think so. Possibly Gen. Kneller. Him you can never mistake. His mustache is white and flowing, and he is very bald."

"In uniform?" said I.

"Yes. Azure by day, by night the army blue. But as a general he always wears a red sash about his waist."

"Will the doctors return?" said I.



Hastily we whispered together.

"Not until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock."

If only to keep him beside me I could have questioned the lad for another hour, but to prime me as I should have liked would have taken a week, so he left to fetch George Hanbury, and I took his place by the door that led to the stairs.

When George came Grimm came with him.

"The Grimms," said George, "are going to take their rest. They won't undress, of course. Bell will be round the corner." He nodded in the direction from which he had come. "From where he stands he can watch the back door as well as the second door of the prince's room. When the nuns want the sergeant-footman they always go to that door—not this. If we're in trouble one of us will have to fetch Grimm."

He spoke in English, but that Grimm understood his last sentence was plain enough.

"No trouble will arise, sir," he said. "I am there, of course, if you need me, but no one will seek admission for another ten hours."

The next moment he was gone.

With my eyes fixed upon the telltale, I took my seat upon a bench while George fell to pacing the hall.

I fear I should make a bad servant, for I might have viewed disorder a hundred times and never conceivd the notion of setting it straight, but George knew better. The chair which Brooch had been using caught his critical eye.

At once he ordered its cushions and folded up the papers which sprawled by its side. As he did so a pair of spectacles fell to the floor.

Then he came to my side and set them upon a salver which lay on a little table beside my bench.

"Did you see who was there?" he said.

"Brooch," said I.

"Forewarned is forearmed," said he. "He'll be glad of those back."

HALF an hour, perhaps, had gone by when, to my indescribable horror, the telltale glowed.

I think the sight of that signal—silent, angry, inexorable—took a month from my life.

As George whipped back to his post I moistened my lips. Then I took a deep breath and opened the door.

Brooch came in, peering.

In a flash I had the salver and was proffering what he had lost.

For a moment he stared at the glasses, then, with a grunt of satisfaction, he picked them up.

"That's right," he said agreeably, blinking up into my face. "It was you that found them last time, wasn't it?"

I dared not reply, but bowed, but he seemed to expect no answer and left at once.

I shut the door behind him and wiped the sweat from my face.

When another half-hour had gone by but no one had 'rung,' I began to dare to hope that until the morning came we should not be disturbed. I therefore caught George's eye and he came to my side.

Hastily we whispered together.

It was no good our looking for Rowley for several hours, for he had some twenty miles to cover on foot and, since one could watch the hall and another was only needed in case Grimm had to be fetched, we arranged that George should lie down and take what rest he could. This, of course, on the carpet and by my side so that, at a touch of my slipper he could be instantly afoot. When he had rested I could lie down in my turn and, when my spell was over one of us could relieve Bell. In this way all three of us would enjoy some relaxation, if you can call it such.

The immediate strain had lessened, but the thought of the morrow made my blood run cold. Grimm and his son would be rested and so better able to keep us in countenance, but the sergeant-footman would be frequently with the prince and his son could not be expected never to leave the hall. Even if he stood at the door for twelve hours on end, any moment some crisis might arise which he could not control. The lad was pleasant and was by no means a fool, but he had not the ready wit of Rowley or Bell; what was worse, he would see no danger and smiled at our apprehension that anything might go wrong—anything . . .

For one thing only, one or other of the lords-in-waiting was on duty from 9 in the morning till 9 at night. And that in the corridor. If he happened to ask us a question, in case our speech should betray us, neither George nor I could reply, while Bell, who knew no German, could not so much as obey the simplest command.

For another, from 10 o'clock to midday, distinguished subjects and personal friends of the prince would be brought to an ante-chamber, there to learn from the lips of the lord-in-waiting the latest news. For those two hours, therefore, another door would have to be manned.

Three doors, not counting the back door, where orderlies would render "parade states" and copies of the "orders of the day," and messengers and postmen would deliver dispatches and mails. Four doors between four footmen, three of whom were play acting and had never rehearsed their parts.

These things considered, I think I may be forgiven for, as the saying is, seeing a robber behind every bush.

Over all lowered, as ever, the cloud of time. How many hours would go by before Johann discovered that the footmen that he had been using had been replaced?

I wrenched my thoughts from the future and turned to the past, and, while I remembered the mountains and the cow bells and the brush of the grand duchess' lips, I tried to pretend that the telltale was a tail lamp which had gone out.

THE next day stands out in my memory as high hills stand out at sundown after the rain.

I think any one of us three could set down the whole of its burden, quarter by quarter of an hour, and never make one mistake.

To say that time seemed to drag conveys nothing at all. There were moments when I could have sworn that the clock in the sober hall was standing still. Ten minutes seemed an hour; an hour, eternity; and this unkind illusion far more than doubled the strain which was fretting our nerves.

This was continuously heavy.

We could not take counsel together—each had to act for himself when the moment came. While he sought to foresee some crisis and settle the line he must take, another would spring upon him, demanding immediate action, so that the brain boggled at the issues with which it was faced; yet the demeanor of a statue must be deliberately preserved.

For myself, I lived and moved as a man in some frightful dream in which nothing seemed to happen which did not set the nerves tingling or fill the heart with dismay; and, while I am properly ashamed of this disorder, I sinned in good company, for George Hanbury always declares that twice in that day he made up his mind to tell me that he could not go on and that Rowley must be brought from the passage to take his place. This, I think, shows that our plight—which was really more delicate than dangerous—was made to appear more horrid by some malignant means, and I am inclined to lay the blame upon the telltales, for their sudden, noiseless illumination smacked of the supernatural and their sinister likeness to signals of danger was most importunate.

Since, however, the tale of our troubles would fill up a book, I will pass over most of the duty we tried to do and only relate such events as bear upon our endeavor to bring Duke Paul to the throne.

The apartments were swept and garnished by seven o'clock. At that hour, by my request, Grimm opened the door to the passage, and there was Rowley, asleep.

He reported that all was well, so I told him to stay where he was and take his ease, holding himself ever ready to seek the grand duchess and Sully according to the plan we had laid.

This plan was not at all to my liking, but the devil was driving and we could think of no better, try as we would.

When the prince was seen to be sinking, Rowley would run to the Lessing strasse and give the alarm. At once the grand duchess would telephone to Duke Paul. Rowley would run on to Sully's and give him his news and would then repair to Duke Paul's. There he would await the grand duchess and Mme. Dresden, who, sure to be the first ready, would call for the duke. Rowley would escort the three to the passage and up to the suite, where Sully would be ready, for he had less distance to go.

Such was our miserable scheme. And there I will leave it, for its faults need no pointing out and cannot be diminished by any argument.

AT a quarter to nine came Kneller, and at nine the three physicians visited the prince. They had been gone some ten minutes when Sully arrived.

The lord president entered quickly, and I saw that his nerves were on edge. Young Grimm admitted him, and I was standing beside the bedchamber's door.

At once Kneller came to meet him and seemed very anxious to please, but Sully, though courteous as ever, was very grave and, while he listened to Kneller, made little or no reply.

So soon as he decently could he turned to the door upon which I was waiting to knock, but the lord in waiting turned with him and the two approached me together, side by side.

This was the last thing I wanted. In Sully's philosophy sensation had no part, and I feared very much that my appearance would discompose my old tutor and that Kneller would remark not only his discomposure but the source from which it sprang.

I had knocked and was standing, waiting, when I noticed the beads of sweat upon Sully's brow.

My summons was not answered at once, because, I suppose, the nurses were somehow engaged, and the three of us stood together for the longest minute that I have ever known.

Sully stared upon the carpet, I strained my ears for the sound of the nurses' approach, and Kneller put up an eyeglass and surveyed me from head to foot.

I suppose this was natural. The man had held many inspections and had an eye for precision in matters of dress. But his scrutiny was very trying, and I was mortally afraid that he would find something about me which belied the lackey.

At last the door was opened and Sully passed in.

Now, it was most important that Sully should be put in possession of the plan I have already set out. It had been arranged, therefore, that when he had seen the prince, Grimm should conduct him from the sickroom by way of the service door, that he might speak with George before returning to the hall by the way he had come. It follows that Sully's reappearance was something delayed, and Kneller, who was waiting to waylay him, more than once glanced at the clock.

At last the door was opened and Sully emerged.

"Is he speaking?" said Kneller. "I mean——"

"With difficulty," said Sully slowly. "He—he wishes you sworn of the council as soon as may be."

Kneller started, and I saw his hand fumble for his glass.

"But surely he knows——"

"O, yes," said Sully. "He knows that he will not be there. He wishes you sworn at the first council held by Duke Paul."

What more was said I did not hear, but Kneller's ears were crimson and his hands were very busy behind his back. Withers were wrung, for the rest of the day he never sat down but constantly paced the corridor, frowning and blowing through his nose and pulling his heavy mustache. I began to have hope that Kneller might be reclaimed.

LITTLE more than half an hour later George came to say that the door of the south ante-chamber must now be manned and that young Grimm must mind the back door, because the sergeant footman had been called to the prince.

Argument was not to be thought of, but the hall might have been a scaffold upon which we three poor wretches were going to strut.

Two minutes later Bell had taken my place, George was at the door from the staircase, and I stood to that of the ante-chamber, salver in hand.

It was the practice of visitors to present their cards; these the footman accepted and took to the lord in waiting, who immediately repaired to the ante-chamber and spoke with whoever was there.

Thirty-four visitors paid their respects that day.

I do not know why I had not expected Mme. Dresden. As the grand duchess' lady in waiting, she called at the palace daily. I never knew this nor had given the matter a thought, but at half past ten that morning I was looking into her eyes.

The sentries were watching us, and I was greatly afraid that either she or I had shown some sign of surprise, and, to tell the truth, I can remember no more until I heard her greet Kneller and ask for news.

It was approaching midday when I heard a sound in the ante-chamber which even the massive mahogany could not shut out—the sharp smack and jingle of heavy spurred heels.

The sentries had sprung to attention.

Now, they had not saluted Kneller and though several officers had called, they had paid them no compliments. This, no doubt, was in order, for the men's manner was very punctilious, and, so far as I had seen, they never moved a muscle, but only their eyes.

For an instant my brain faltered. Then the truth leaped into my mind.

It was the Duke Johann.

Smoothing Small Points of Weddings

Solving Some of the Problems Which Etiquette Books Appear to Take for Granted

By Helen Bartlett.

VOLUMES have been written about the correct procedure at weddings, but few volumes seem to cover the many small points that may be, perhaps, peculiar to one wedding under one set of circumstances, or those countless other small points which etiquette books appear to take for granted. The editor of a column with a cosmopolitan following is asked to arbitrate on every conceivable situation concerning weddings of all sorts and sizes, and is, therefore, probably in a better position than some authors of books on the subject to present and deal with the problems which confront those persons whose solutions must be practical.

Weddings have it, this month, and today we will conclude this series with some questions of general interest submitted by readers. As always, the services of the conductor of this column may be obtained if you will send a stamped, addressed envelope with any request you care to make; these questions and answers are published merely because we know they will be of interest to a number of persons.

"I have read so much about what the bride should wear. Now, won't you please tell me what a guest should wear at a formal church wedding at 12 o'clock, followed by a breakfast? V. S."

The guest should wear smart clothes that would be suitable for afternoon wear on the street. An afternoon dress with matching hat, shoes and bag would be the safe choice.

"Will you please advise me on the following: When dark business suits are worn at a quiet, informal wedding, do groom, best man and bride's father wear boutonnieres? Should the ties of men be alike? F. B."

Boutonnieres are not necessary under those circumstances. The ties should be somewhat alike, however. Perhaps the groom selects a black and white stripe or figure, in which case the other men might have black and gray.

"Does the initial of a girl's maiden name become her middle initial after marriage? Is this change permanent or only for the first few years? If my name is Mildred Marvin and I marry a man named Brown what initials would I have on my personal stationery die? A. D."

Yes, the initial of your maiden name becomes your middle initial after marriage and is that for the duration of your married life. When Mildred Marvin marries Mr. Brown her personal stationery die is composed of the letters M. M. B. Her title, however, is Mrs. John Brown, not Mrs. Mildred Brown.

"What is the proper seating arrangement at the bride's table and at the table of the bride's and groom's parents? H. B."

"I am to be married in August. How soon before the date should my invitations be sent out? Is it necessary for the groom to remember the best man and ushers with a gift? I. G."

Invitations are usually sent not earlier than four nor later than two weeks before the wedding. It is customary for the groom to present the best man and ushers with the ties and gloves they wear at the wedding. This is a wise gift; it insures against their appearances in choices of their own, which might be unfortunate.

"On the invitation list of my future husband appears the name of a married friend of his, Mr. Smith, whom I do not know. Neither do I know Mrs. Smith. How do I address their invitation? V. H."

The invitation is sent to Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, even though Mrs. Smith is a stranger to both of you.

"Will you please tell me whether stiff bosom shirts are worn at a small wedding where the men wear business suits? Must they wear wing collars and bow ties? L. D."

The men dress just as they do every day, with perhaps more careful attention to grooming. They can wear white shirts with soft collars and four-in-hand ties.

The socially sophisticated girl would not choose any unusual way. She would feel, of course, that her family and her close friends would want to be informed, and she would simply tell them. Those relatives far away who are interested in her would be informed by a note. But for acquaintances and the general public she would make little effort. Such news gets about quickly by word of mouth among one's acquaintances, and the engagement announcement columns of the newspapers provide a dignified way of informing any others who might be interested.

"What is the proper dress for men at a formal evening wedding in a hotel ballroom? What sort of hats do the men wear? I. M."

Full evening dress is worn, with top hats. In smart society weddings do not take place in the evening.

The TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Berries and Pineapples Provide Delectable Dishes During Month of June.

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

JUNE is a lyric month, say what you will, and we would like to exclaim about the wonders in foods, as well as roses and deep grasses, that it brings forth. At the roots of the latter we may find what has aforetime seemed to us the sunniest food in the whole world, the marvelously dainty field strawberry. And what the brambles can do in ripening berries before the month ends is also a marvel. They do it so quickly and eagerly, and then the milder shrubbery bears for us the currant and the gooseberry, on a very tiptoe of production, during this month. Last, but not least, there is the cherry tree with all its marvel of color.

If we could put ourselves a hundred years back we might begin our eulogy of June foods as a writer of that time would, who began a dissertation on the products of June as follows: "That far-famed West Indian luxury, turtle, generally arrives about the latter end of May or the beginning of June, though from the uncertainties of a sea voyage no exact period for its first appearance can be fixed. In the year 1814 it was so unusually late that at the magnificent banquet given in Guildhall to the emperor of Russia and the king of Prussia on the 18th of June there was no turtle to be had. A supply was announced at Portsmouth on that very day, but as this civic dignitary, like other great personages, requires much time to dress, he could not possibly be present on the occasion."

A Modern Luxury.

This sounds very dramatic to us, knowing how much the London alderman has doted on his turtle! Following this passage there is a quotation from Shakespeare, used to indicate how an alderman would have apostrophized this great banquet necessity.

Then follows a description of a great emporium for live turtle, and how epicures have liked turtle steaks with melted butter, cayenne pepper and juice of a Seville orange, better than they like the famous callipash and callipee.

But the far-famed West Indian luxury we prize in our part of the world today is not the turtle but the pineapple. It fairly burgeons in June, when we get our "pines" at the smallest price and in the greatest abundance. We used to think that then was the time for all good women to get out their canning outfits or preserving outfits and preserve the pineapple. But nowadays, with so many sorts of canned pineapple on the market, we have given up that urge because while home canned pineapple under the best circumstances may give us something to use as a candy or in ices or in ice creams that seems to have a little more of the aroma than the commercial product, much in this case depends upon the character of the fruit that was available in the market. When we are in the tropics the fresh pineapple we get there seems to dissolve in the mouth, or the fibrous texture is hardly perceptible, but the fruit that we get in our market rarely has any comparable perfection.

Nowadays we urge that when the pineapple is at its best we make the best possible use of the fresh product. Now is the time when fruit beverages can be served in what we might call the most vivid condition, perked up, as it were, with the strawberry, with fresh raspberry juice, or with currant juice, and then for a garnish there is the marvelously beautiful cherry, so much more beautiful while it is fresh for this use and for the fruit appetizer, the fruit salad, the fruit punch, the whipped creams and ices, than any preserved cherry ever can be. The latter gives no fillip of flavor, while a perfectly ripened cherry is worthy of the endless praise it has received from epicures and artists.

Minted Pineapple.

One-half of a large, juicy pineapple, one pint of strawberries sugared to taste and a sprinkling of mint. Shred the pineapple and sprinkle a little sugar over it. Wash, drain and hull the strawberries and either mash perfectly—stringy ones cannot be mashed to perfection—and beat them up to a cream, or press them through a strainer. Pour this strawberry purée thus made over the pineapple. The mint should be washed, dried and chopped. Two leaves per serving will make a good proportion. If this is served for a dessert it can be served either with walnuts instead of cake or the cake can be used with it, although some people object to pineapple with cake. Have the mixture cold and serve it in well chilled glasses.

A little mint with fruit is not a new idea, but it is an idea that has become increasingly popular. It gives a cool loveliness of the sort that made the mint julep so famous, and this combination of pineapple, mint and strawberry can be surprisingly fine. It will be all the better if, like the mint julep, it is served in a "frozen glass."

Cutting Up Pineapple.

In the regions where pineapple is consumed in the greatest quantity, one may never see it sliced straight across, because that leaves the hard center, which, however, may be cut out and put through the food chopper and so crushed for its juices. Instead of the slices across which can be attractive when cut almost as thin as papers, lengthwise bars or fingers can be made and these are sometimes eaten out of hand like an apple. At any rate, they are so eaten by the common people of Cuba. Also we can buy cans of the pineapple fingers nowadays.

In preparing pineapple for salad use we can cut a thick slice, then slice this in thin little bits or in dice, and get it, perhaps, in the most attractive shape for this use. Pineapple served as an appetizer is frequently cut in little cones, or what are sometimes called bracts, which can be arranged variously on an attractive plate with a pyramid of sugar in the center of the plate. These pieces in the shape of a pyramid are easy to get from the pineapple because they can be broken out with a fork, beginning at the bottom of the fruit and taking an eye at a time. One discovers in doing this that the pineapple is really made up of pyramidal sections, each extending to the heart of the fruit. These with the sugar are considered a very pretty and delicious introduction for a dainty or "ladies' luncheon."

The finest June strawberries in the hulls are often served in this same fashion as a beginner for a dainty luncheon, and these may be used alternately with the pineapple. In order to get a cone of sugar for the center of the plate, in either case, we can pack confectioner's sugar into a small glass or paper cone, invert it on the plate and it will hold its shape. Instead of using a fork in cutting a pineapple into bracts, perhaps we will be more successful if we use a sharp and rather long knife, slanting the knife in to make the point. If we like the old fashioned paper thin slices of pineapple, we can use those in the same way around a cone of sugar. To some of us they will seem prettier than the bracts.

Shredding Pineapple.

It is easy to get a little pineapple just by shredding a single slice, or we may shred the whole of a pine. An old fashioned way to do this is to first wash the pineapple and wipe it dry, then to hold the top firmly in the left hand and peel the fruit by slicing from the top to the bottom. The "plume" is left in as a handle. At this point we could, instead of shredding the pineapple, cut it into the bars and fingers, but first in any case we would remove the eyes, since the peeling rarely takes them out entirely. In peeling the pineapple it is best to have the fruit in a platter or dish so that none of the juice will be lost. When ready to shred hold it firmly by the top, and pull a silver fork through the flesh, inserting it to the core before pulling out and down.

To shred a single slice, hold it firmly on a plate with one fork and shred it with another.

Pineapple juice can sometimes be diluted a half with cold water and really improved if it is sweetened as so diluted. After shredding the pineapple and adding water and sugar to taste, it is then best to chill it for at least two hours.

Pineapple Shells.

Some people like to serve a fruit salad in a pineapple shell. Tastes differ as far as this is concerned. In preparing the shell, cut the pineapple in half lengthwise, plume and all, then cut out the core and shred the fruit out with a fork. That is only one of the ways it can be prepared.

Pineapple Ice for Two.

One of the popular recipes that has been printed in this column at least once a year, because of the various commendations it has received, is the following: Shred or cut fine one-fourth cup of a juicy pineapple. Cook one-half cup of sugar with one-fourth cup of water until it spins a thread at 238 degrees. Pour this over the pineapple and let it stand until it cools. Add to it lemon juice to taste. This is to strengthen the flavor, but not enough should be used to take away the agreeable wetness and the different pineapple quality. Beat the white of one egg until stiff, then fold the pineapple and sugar mixture into it. Chill a pint glass jar, pour this preparation into it, put a buttered paper over the top and clamp on the cover. Pack in half ice and half salt, well mixed, for one hour and a half, or to bring this to real sherbet stage it need be only half frozen. This mixture can be doubled easily, or multiplied to suit, and a freezer can be used instead of the convenient glass. If the freezer is used, add the egg white or whites when the mixture begins to stiffen. When it is put into the glass and packed only, a good deal of expedition must be used in combining the egg white and the rest or there may be a separation between the sirup and the egg.

A June Menu.

An old time cook in writing of June dinners emphasizes the fact that we need hot things instead of all cold, because the stomach is a delicate organ. And her menu for a June day is as follows: "Cream tomato soup without meat stock, hot and spicy; broiled halibut steak; mashed potatoes whipped as light as a meringue; cream peas picked today; radishes; crisp lettuce heart salad with French dressing, eaten with buttered slices of brown bread cut thin; strawberries and cream; light cake. For drink, from the fish course on down, ginger ale and mineral water punch; black coffee for the elder members of the party."

Mineral Water Punch.

And here is the description she gives for the punch made of mineral water: "The punch is worthy of a special notice. Put into the chilled punch bowl a cup of granulated sugar and the juice of six lemons. Stir to dissolve the sugar, and leave in the ice until dinner time. Then add three peeled lemons sliced very thin; stir hard for a minute and take into the dining room. When the fish has been brought in add to the lemonade in the bowl a quart of cracked ice and pour from the height upon the ice a bottle or two of mineral water and the same amount of ginger ale. Stir and pour into the glasses, or you may leave out the mineral water and drop into the bowl a handful of fresh mint sprays, washed and cold. Then pour in the ginger ale, holding the bottle high and letting the sparkling stream fall directly on the cracked ice."

The person who wrote out this menu next quotes in an exclamatory way: "And I'll not ask for wine!" It seems that a boy in tossing down a goblet of this punch had said this, and this writer believed that "the ginger takes hold of the stomach in fine style and insures it against the risks of chill—a peril too little regarded by bibulous Americans."

THE WANDERING GENTILE - - - - By Douglas Newton

something wrong. As though, presently, I might have to face some grave charge. He says he's my friend and will stand by me."

He looked up and was startled to see Savaran grinning. "What is it, Savaran?"

"I know the working of that rat's mind like a book," said Savaran. "You had a letter from Blanche. Did she say disturbing things, too?"

"Well, she's worried, too, about this mysterious something wrong. She's heard whispers about me—overheard talk about ugly charges. She can get nothing definite; wants me to make a clean breast of it to her."

"And Flemalle is her only comfort in this hour of stress, eh?" Savaran asked.

"I know Flemalle, that's all," said Savaran.

"He's an artist. Plays the noble-hearted friend so that when the crash comes she'll recoil from you into his arms."

ASKERN was standing up, eyes blazing, pistol out. "You foul-mouthed dog," he roared. "Come outside. I'll kill you for that."

"You couldn't kill Savaran," said the man evenly. "And, in any case, I wouldn't if I were you. You'll need me to save you from that charge—that grave charge, Bobby, meant to wreck you, your triumph over the Sharti, and your engagement to Blanche."

"What charge?" Askern cried hoarsely. "I've done nothing I'm ashamed of in my life. There can't be a charge." He saw a gleam of mockery, or was it pity, in Savaran's eye. "You—you know what that charge is?"

Savaran—he never could forego the dramatic—threw a little round tin box on to the table.

"There's the evidence!" he said.

Askern picked it up, frowned over the writing on the top. "Robert Askern, Personal Stores only!" Askern said, "I don't know what this is. Nothing I've ordered."

"Open it," said Savaran.

Askern tore off the paper wrapper, forced open the tin, stared down at the unmistakable contents.

"Hashish!" he cried in horror.

"Hashish!" said Savaran grimly. "The charge against you will be smuggling hashish to the natives."

"Sit down!" snapped Savaran as Askern reeled. "Give me that gun? No, I'm not afraid of you shooting me, but shooting yourself. Now answer my questions without flaring up. I only want to know what Flemalle's up to. First, as he isn't the kind to marry a girl for beauty alone. Has your Blanche money?"

"No. Not now, that is. But when her father, Lord Balcomb, dies——"

"O, Lord, she has a title, too—and influence?"

"She's Lady Blanche Buryon. I thought you knew—and, of course, that family has immense influence."

"The riddle's solved," said Savaran with one of his extravagant gestures and a flash of his fine teeth. "Flemalle's out to snatch his great chance. At a stroke he means to gather all the glory and rewards for subduing the Sharti and, while the world rings with his name, marry into the rich and influential family of Balcomb, when any heights in world politics or aristocracy will be his for the snatching."

"But—but haven't I spoiled that by remaining alive?" Askern faltered.

"You've taken the edge off it, but the main glory's still there. It's plain he hasn't let the world know how well you have done. It is also plain that he intends to belittle even what he has told by ascribing such success to your evil trick of winning the worst side of the Sharti with smuggled hashish. When you're broken for that, he'll come up and collect the glory."

"It's unbelievable," cried Askern. "No man——"

"No decent man," said Savaran. "But Flemalle isn't decent. He's smuggled drugs before. He put dry rot into half a tribe I was ruling with opium once. That's why I'd sworn to get Flemalle even before I knew he had a hand in the Tchik business. O, the hashish there was his, all right. He's been making big profit in that line ever since he came to the Malaria coast. He's the traffic you could not stamp out—of course you couldn't, with Flemalle both policeman and smuggler."

Quest . . . the quest of a will-o'-the-wisp, an illusive, spiritual thing that had touched the hearts of Lieut. Jack McKim and Jean with subtle magic. It had come . . . and gone . . .

Lieut. Jack tucked $50 in his inside pocket, all that he had, and set out in his dilapidated car. His goal lay a thousand miles to the north. Quest!

Read this unusual story of matrimony, the military, and monotony in this section next Sunday: FIFTY-FIFTY, by Robert R. Presnell.

"How do you know all this?" asked Askern.

"Yaunde! You wouldn't tell me who Yaunde was—too loyal, eh? So I found out for myself. I've been nosing about a good deal—and I've had some interviews with Yaunde—and Savaran knows how to deal with such vermin.

"Yaunde, as you wouldn't tell, is Flemalle's particular agent, used by him for all matter of dirty work, from spying to dope smuggling. He wouldn't tell me Flemalle's name, just called him the big boss in the government; that's how I didn't know—but he told almost everything else. He's been helping in the smuggling and disposal for years. It was he who planted the stuff at Tchik when you left him behind, the stuff that lost me seventy thousand dollars. But he did that for a purpose as well as for profit; that is, to put the blame on you.

"Flemalle, no doubt, thought you might be turned back, and as he meant to oust you anyhow, he laid this second trap. He did it well, too. That's why I came after you wanting your blood. The villagers at Tchik told me they'd got the stuff from the white boss who marched towards the Sharti. Yaunde's been spreading the evidence against you. He's been spreading it here. He's got a case full of tins like the one I gave you, all consigned to you. And I bet Flemalle's got some sort of agent coming up here now, ready to find the goods on the spot."

"My God!" cried Askern, springing up. "We must do something."

"It's done," grinned Savaran. "Am I the sort to wait about? I've dealt with that consignment of dope—and Yaunde."

Askern hid his face in his hands. "But what does even that matter? If Flemalle's framed a case against me, what can I do?"

"Not a thing," said Savaran cheerfully. "You're just a baby in a matter like this. Fortunately, you have me. And I'm Savaran! Just carry on until Blanche sends you good news."

"You're going to deal with Flemalle?"

"I'm going to break Flemalle, and in the way it hurts him most—through his greed, his ambition, and his black pride in intrigue," his face alight with exultance. "I'm going to teach Flemalle what it means to cross Savaran."

And yet Savaran had a strange method of keeping this promise. He was captured a few weeks later at the head of a smuggling caravan.

FLEMALLE made a point of going to the guard room in Paronga where Savaran had been taken. He remembered Savaran well, and his threats. Flemalle never missed a chance of gloating over an enemy.

He swaggered in, sleek, handsome, just beginning to be bloated with good living and overweening pride. He did not notice that the British major in charge showed decidedly less respect than usual to a mandatory secretary, but then, he knew few of the British did like him, save, perhaps, Lady Blanche, who was beginning to come under his spell.

He swaggered up to Savaran, who stood indifferent amid the litter of his carrier bags, which had been searched, and jeered, "Well, Savaran, so they nabbed you at your old tricks, eh? What was it, gun or ivory running?"

Savaran merely muttered as though not wanting to be overheard: "Shut up, you fool; get out of here quick!"

Flemalle's fine eyes opened wider, his thin hand reached for his neat mustache. Savaran was caught, a trapped lion, but the jackal always fears the might of the lion. What was Savaran's game? He became a little nervous, especially as he saw the major nod an Askari sergeant to the door.

"What bluff are you trying to put up now, Savaran?" he jeered. He turned to the major. "Let me warn you, this man is as clever as a cat; he'll attempt any tricks, lies, or bluff."

He stopped because the chill glance of the major froze him. Savaran said hoarsely in his ear.

"You fool, Flemalle! It's you who've tried an impossible bluff. They know, man!"

Savaran gave a little shrug of disgust at the other's foolishness. He said with a meaning look, "The charge against me, Flemalle, is smuggling—hashish!"

"Hashish!" gasped Flemalle, and his already shaken nerve so cracked that every evidence of guilt appeared on his face. And the major was staring at him as he mopped his brow, and the major was saying frigidly, "As you are here, Mr. Flemalle, we'd better go straight ahead. The stuff is addressed to you. The prisoner tried to cover you, but it's no good. The evidence is too strong."

"Addressed to me! Preposterous!" shrilled Flemalle. "I am mandatory secretary. The mere idea——"

"Shut up!" snapped Savaran. "Wait until you hear all the evidence." Flemalle began to speak again. "Shut up, you fool; Yaunde bungled it. Understand? Yaunde let the cat out of the bag."

"Yaunde!" gasped Flemalle, and sat down heavily. "Yaunde, that double-crossing swine!"

THE major's lip curled in disgust—the man had actually given himself away. He sat down at his desk.

"I'm sending a chit to the law officer, Flemalle," he said. "You'll be detained here until he decides on your case."

Flemalle sat panting, his fine eyes glazed as he looked at Savaran. He was a clever man, yes—but he was remembering that Savaran was Savaran.

Savaran was Savaran. When he did things he did them with a big gesture. He had left Flemalle no chance. He had, apparently, been caught by a white lieutenant and a file of Askari heading into the Malaria coast from the [illegible] border—incidentally at a point two hundred miles from Bobby Askern and the Sharti lands. Savaran's caravan was full of hashish—all the tins that had been addressed to Bobby Askern—which, obviously, he meant to deliver to some one near the Malaria coast capital.

And there was no doubt who that "some one" was. There were many indications that the delivery was to be to Flemalle. But, above all, the authorities had captured on Savaran a long letter in Yaunde's unmistakable handwriting and that gave the game away.

Yaunde, it appeared, had been taken with his last illness at the place where he was to meet Savaran, bringing the hashish to him. Yaunde, knowing he was about to die, gave Savaran full instructions for the delivery of the hashish to Flemalle in secrecy and safety. It was a complete exposure, for Yaunde, being Flemalle's confidential agent, knew all the details of Flemalle's actual traffic in the drug, and those details were easily provable, once known. How Savaran had forced that letter out of Yaunde, only Savaran ever knew, for Yaunde had in truth died; but whether of disease or otherwise, again only Savaran could say.

But the facts were there and they were damning! Flemalle had not a chance. He was smashed; honors, wealth, ambition—and Blanche—were all swept away. He did make a feeble effort to incriminate Askern, but it worse than failed. It hardened public opinion against him. In a month he was proclaimed to the world as the criminal he was. He was condemned—with Savaran—to a long term of imprisonment, a longer term than Savaran both in sentence and fact.

For though Flemalle was a clever man and went to jail, Savaran was Savaran and did not! On the night before both were to be marched away to a grim inland penal settlement, Savaran escaped from his prison.

He broke out with such ease that most people in the colony wondered why he had not done it on the very first day of his arrest.

But Bobby Askern did not wonder. He knew, when the news of Savaran's capture came to him, that, not even for the sake of smashing Flemalle, would Savaran have allowed himself to be arrested if he had not been sure of escaping.

He, too, knew Savaran was Savaran!

Floors Comprise an Important Detail in the Decorative Picture

By WillElla de Campi.

FLOORS, as well as furnishings, should be considered in the decorative scheme of every room. Too often we completely forget about our floors in our enthusiasm over the other furnishings and decorations. As a result, the neglected floor does not fit in with the finished picture which should be presented by every successful interior.

The decoration of floors is by no means a new idea. As far back as in the days of Pompeii, ornamental floors were among the foremost features. In many old American colonial houses there were interestingly painted floors, delightfully appropriate for use with hooked rugs and maple or painted furniture of simple lines.

Then came the complicated and affected styles of the Victorian era. Floors were completely covered with atrocious carpets, poisonous greens, with realistically shaded roses seeming to fill the rooms like stumbling blocks. As a reaction to this overdecorated period, plain floors were resorted to—light tan and muddy brown which in no way harmonized with the interiors of which they were a part.

Nowadays the ensemble idea prevails in decoration as well as in the matter of clothing. No well dressed woman neglects any one of the features which go to make up an attractive costume. So it is in the decoration of her home—every detail is carefully attended to. The color of the floor enters into the general scheme and there are many departures from the drab brown and yellows of yesterday. Character and color are expressed through many mediums—tiles, carpets and rugs, linoleums and, last, but not least, floor paint.

Soft wood floors and badly marred ones show to the very best advantage when painted. A painted finish covers up all imperfections in wood and furnishes a surface which is durable and which can be scrubbed and cleaned frequently. Especially prepared floor paint is used for this purpose. On new floors or old ones which have not previously been painted, three coats of floor paint should be used. On old floors which have been painted before two coats are usually sufficient. Plenty of time for thorough drying must be allowed between each coat.

Before painting, if the floors are old, and if the boards have shrunk apart, or if they are cracked and do not come together completely, it is advisable to have the cracks thoroughly cleaned out and then filled with a prepared filler. In this way a smooth and uniformly even surface is secured. After the painting is done some sort of finish should be applied for protection. The floors may be either waxed and softly polished, or they may be covered with a final coat of good varnish.

There are many ways of decorating a painted floor, which should be done before the final finish is applied. One of the simplest and most effective is the spatter method. This is best when carried out in several shades of soft harmonizing colors. On a taupe ground spattering might be done in soft green, mauve, and blue. After the floor has been painted taupe in the usual manner, and is thoroughly dry, the first spatter coat is applied. This is done by dipping an ordinary stiff scrubbing brush into the paint and scraping the bristles with a table knife or ruler while the brush is held a few inches above the floor. The remaining spatter colors are applied in the same way, without waiting for the first to dry, so that all blend nicely. This method makes a soft finish which, in dull colors, is suitable for living or dining rooms, and in gayer shades is appropriate for the less formal rooms.

Another delightful manner is that of decorating with stencil borders. There are many attractive designs to choose from: Persian scrolls, geometric lines, conventionalized floral patterns, Grecian and many other designs may be bought already cut out and ready for application. However, those who wish to carry out their own conceptions may buy plain stencil paper and cut out the designs themselves.

Stencil borders are usually placed from eight to eighteen inches from the wall, depending on the size of the room and the width of the border. The dominating lines should be horizontal and the design should be conventionalized. If the ground color is dark, the stenciling should be done in light colors, so that the design will show up well. If the ground color is in one of the lighter shades, both light and dark colors may be used in the stencil.

When it comes to applying the stencil the process is quite simple, though it requires some care and planning in order that the design may be rightly spaced and matched. Sections may be marked off with a light chalk line in order to determine the proper spacing before painting. It is advisable to start the work at the center of each side of the floor so that any necessary lengthening or shortening of the pattern may be made at the corners.

The stencil may be held in place by means of thumb tacks. Then the paint is applied through the cutouts. Best results are obtained by tapping or pouncing the brush on, at right angles, rather than by stroking across the cutouts. Each time the pattern is transferred the back of the stencil should be cleaned with benzine or turpentine in order to remove any particles of paint which might have seeped through to the under side. Frequent cleaning assures a neater effect.

Besides stencils, spattering and plain painting, there are several other decorative treatments for making a floor both colorful and interesting. Large checks or diamonds in two tones of one color or in contrasting colors are always pleasing. The size of the squares or diamonds may be determined by the dimensions of the room. The easiest method of "checking" a floor is to have the whole floor painted first in the lighter of the two colors to be used. When it has thoroughly dried the divisions are marked off by chalk lines and the darker shade is then applied over the lighter in every other square.

In deciding upon floor decoration it must be remembered that the floor is not only a background but a foundation as well, and as such it should present an effect of stability. As a general rule, the floor should be darker in color than the walls and ceiling, especially in a room of formal character. However, in gay little breakfast rooms, sun rooms, or bedrooms, light colored floors are permissible if they fit in with the rest of the decorations. Where richly colored, deep toned furnishings and rugs are to be used, the floor should be in some harmonizing, dark tone. Rugs and furnishings of this type on light floors stand out against them like blots of ink on a white tablecloth, distracting attention in an unpleasant manner. Where light toned furnishings are used a light floor is often preferable to a dark one.

The first illustration today shows a spattered floor in an informal American colonial living room. The floor was first painted deep peacock blue, and then spattered with leaf green, mauve, turquoise, and a little lemon yellow. The finished floor gives a soft, uneven appearance which blends happily with several small hooked rugs. The floor's color scheme is carried out in the rest of the decorations. Walls are painted pale yellow and the woodwork is peacock blue in a lighter tone than the floor. At the windows are draperies of flowered cretonne with the design in tones of mauve and leaf green and yellow on a turquoise ground. The same material is used for slip covers on a comfortable sofa and on the large wing chair illustrated.

Mrs. T. R. Harris of 1607 South Pasfield street, Springfield, Ill., is announced today as the $1,000 grand prize winner in THE TRIBUNE'S "Game of State Capitals," for which prizes totaling $10,000 are being distributed among 673 contest winners.

Two hundred and twenty-six additional prize winners are also presented today in the third and final list. Included among these is a $250 prize winner, Josephine E. Dossat of 2733 Northwood avenue, Toledo, O., and four $100 winners, Mrs. C. B. Reddelien, 1701 South Wisconsin street, Racine, Wis.; Alice Lapsley, 1316 State street, Milwaukee, Wis.; Lenore Marie Johnson, 210 Columbia avenue, Park Ridge, Ill., and Thomas Prince, 733 Lawton place, Fort Wayne, Ind.

For sixteen weeks THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE printed a series of three pictures, each a puzzle illustrating the name of some state capital. Simple rules of the game required only that the contestant clip the pictures, identify the capitals, and write a fifty word letter naming his or her favorite state and giving reasons for the choice. Accuracy, first, and neatness were taken into consideration in choosing the winners.

The simplicity of the game, its educational value, and opportunity afforded for ingenious and artistic arrangement of the pictures drew thousands of entries from every state of the Union, Canada, Mexico, and many other foreign countries. The host of entries and the skill displayed in them made the work of the judges a colossal task.

A Winter Picnic.

Have you ever been on a winter picnic? When I was still in my teens a crowd of us from the high school went on a picnic and had the time of our lives.

Dressed in heavy knickers and jerseys we skated far down the frozen river [this was in Missouri], while a small cart on runners tagged along, heaped high with the "eats."

About two miles down stream we came to our destination, an old deserted cabin that had once belonged to a lumberman. The boys lit a roaring fire in the old brick fireplace, while we swept a bit and fixed up the lunch. We discovered some horse blankets in a tiny storeroom and they served admirably well as seats on the floor while we devoured the bacon, roasted potatoes, gingerbread and hot cocoa. We talked and played "before the fireplace" games that lasted until dark.

Putting on our skates again we set out for home, with lanterns lighting our way in the darkness.

Although practically frozen in the bitter cold, we were the happiest youngsters that ever came home from a "party." G. E.

A Bandit Party.

While visiting at a friend's summer home this most unusual party was given in my honor. We had been admiring the beautiful red sunset from the veranda when we noticed a number of boats filled with boys and girls rowing toward our pier. We went down to receive them and on close inspection they proved to be a most picturesque band of cowboys, bandits and gypsies, a colorful group climbing the bank.

The large living room had been converted into a ballroom and by the light of lanterns and tuneful music we enjoyed the dancing. Hot dogs and coffee, which were most appropriate refreshments, were enjoyed while the party gathered around a bonfire at the edge of the woods. With the silvery moon shining through the trees, it was romantic. Every one seemed to think the party was a novel one and the hostess was complimented on her originality. I. B.

My Bleach for Tan and Freckles

"I continue my photographic posing all through the summer," says Miss Emily Boyle, noted New York camera model, "and being inclined to tan and freckle, I have to have a bleach that will keep my skin white and flawless and at the same time is harmless.

"For my bleach I use no ready-made preparation, but simply get three ounces of Orchard White at the drug store and mix it with the juice of two lemons. This makes a quarter pint of a perfectly marvelous bleach for a few cents. Rubbed into the face, neck and arms, it bleaches away tan and freckles and makes any dark, sallow or discolored skin beautifully clear and white. This is the bleach all the studio models learn about soon after they begin posing. No ready-to-use preparation can equal it, because, for one reason, you use it while it is still fresh."

Funny Film Makes Critic Take to Verse

It's Pleasing Summer Fare, She Says.

"DIVORCE MADE EASY."
Produced by Paramount.
Presented at the Chicago Theater.

THE CAST:

The Friend	Douglas MacLean
His Fiancée	Frances Lee
The Bridegroom	Johnny Arthur
The Bride	Marie Prevost
Auntie	Dot Farley

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!
List to the tale of a Helpful Friend
Who piles up Trouble without End!
Whose Willingness to do a Favor
Leads him to naught but Grief and Labor.
When we meet him his Feet are Lead
And there's a Wet Towel 'round his Head.
Ice Water down his Throat he Pours
As he his Fate loudly Deplores.
"Never, aGAIN!" says this young Man.
"Will I do Everything I can
To aid a Comrade in Distress
And Extricate him from a Mess!
No! I his Flounderings will Deride
And pass By on the other Side!"
He from the Pitcher then doth Quaff,
While Lady Luck lets out a laugh—
Ha ha! Heh heh! Also Ho ho!
She's run into his Kind befo'.
Across the Hall a Bride and Groom
Are coo-coo-cooing in a Room.
For Them the World seems Bright and Fair.
[The Groom thinks he's Aunt Emma's heir.]
Comes Telegram with Awful News—
Aunt Emmy wires, Nephew will Lose
Her Money—lest he quick Decide
To tie a Can to his sweet Bride.
For this Girl's Dad [his courage wilted!]
Had Auntie up and gone and jilted.
[About twenty years before.]
"Get rid of her, unhappy Man!"
Wires Auntie, "As soon as you Can!
I'm coming posthaste to Assist you
In case the Creature dares Resist you."
There comes a Knock upon the Door
'Tis the Young Man we've met Before.
He's coming to Congratulate
The Happy Pair. You see, his Fate
WOULD bring him there at Just that Time—
That moment coated thick with Rime.
[That IS a good word and it DOES MAKE sense.]
"Help us!" cry both the Bride and Groom,
"Our Joy will be Nipped in its Bloom—
Unless the Aunt we can Outwit.
We need a Helping Hand. You're IT . . .!"
Forgetting all that Great Resolve
He'd made to Kindliness Dissolve
Our Hero right away Agrees
To do Something that shall Release
This Pair from their Predicament.
[He feels Himself from Heaven Sent!"]
While Lady Luck off in the Offing
Laughs so darn Hard it sets her Coughing.
Our Hero Has a Fiancée,
Who doesn't Trust him, Anyway.
She doesn't really think him Vicious
But he keeps Her most tres Suspicious.
With reason [illegible] Fans, will see,
When you view "Di-vorce made Eas-y."
I Could tell much more of the Plot,
But have Decided I will Not.
Because this Comedy of Errors
So Full of Idiotic Terrors—
For one who Only Yearns to Be
A Helpful Friend, should really
Be Viewed in Ign'rance if it's to be EN-joyed by you thorough-ly.
The Picture's pleasing Summer Fare
It's lively, rowdy, Light as Air
Young Johnny Arthur sure is funny,
He makes the fillum worth your money.

Bits aBOUTem.

LLOYD LEWIS, author of "Myths After Lincoln," is back from a leisurely vacation in Europe with his pretty wife. He had lots to say about movies over there, and I said to him, "Why don't you write it? I think it would look interesting in the Sunday column." As he said he would and he did, and here's what he wrote:

"Paris, like all of Europe, is torn between two emotions when American talking pictures are faced. It is elated over the entertainment to be derived, but it is depressed when it realizes that there may be a shortage in photos of beautiful girls. And Paris has enjoyed few things more than the never ending flood of pretty girls who filled American made 'silent' pictures. What was to American critics the weakness of silent films—their habit of relying upon the good looks rather than the good acting of players—was to Europe a great virtue, for their own pictures and stages held no such wealth of female beauty as American films presented. Hollywood could be relied upon to send over moving pictures of a fresh supply of lovely young things each year.

"'Still' photographs of these Hollywood beauties sell progidiously in Europe, particularly in Paris. Cheaply printed 'fan' magazines, little more than collections of screen actresses' photographs, sell there by the tens of thousands.

End Is Dawning

"Now, however, Europeans realize that the end of all that is dawning. Hollywood, they understand clearly enough, is displacing pretty faces with trained emotional players. The voice is now quite as important as the curved figure. Stars of the future are, in the main, to be transplanted from the stage. An Al Jolson who was not worth a dime in silent pictures is worth limitless gold on the talking screen. Ruth Chatterton, unconsidered by the soundless screen, is sought by all producers for voice-photos. The type is familiar.

Weird Fatality Mars Lives of Valentino Heirs

Tragedy Stalks Trail of Name and Fame.

By Rosalind Shaffer.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 22.—[Special Correspondence.]—It has not been a lucky thing for people to be heir to Valentino's possessions. A strange fatality seems to follow those concerned with the man. This was again brought to public notice last week when Allerton Johnstone, owner of a car which had belonged to Valentino, leaped to his death from a fifth story of a downtown Los Angeles hotel. Johnstone, Chicago and California millionaire sportsman, was an athlete of great strength and agility, and occasionally had played minor film rôles just for the fun of it.

Taking up a record of what happened to others acquiring Valentino's possessions, Valentino's pet dogs died for their new masters; S. George Ullman, Valentino's business manager and executor, reaped law suits and liens from his position in charge of the estate. Alberto Guglielmi, brother of Rudy, changed his name to Valentino and even changed his profile, but his intended film career never materialized and he went broke in trying to achieve screen success.

The Tragedy of June Mathis.

June Mathis, discoverer and promoter of the sheik, who was Rudy's great friend during his lifetime and who cherished many keepsakes from him after his death—and who even gave her family tomb for Rudy's interment—herself died in pathetic circumstances shortly after Rudy's death.

Sylvano Balboni, a movie director from abroad, was husband of June Mathis, and he in turn succeeded to her Valentino mementos. Balboni got lawsuits from his position as Miss Mathis' heir, and his film career waned.

Even the name of Valentino attached to another man—Ricardo Cortez—whom Paramount presented to the public as "the successor to Rudolph Valentino," with the slogan, "Say 'the Spaniard,' girls, not 'the sheik,'" has had plenty ill luck. Cortez's wife, Alma Rubens, is in a California insane hospital, and he himself gets a rôle only now and then, once occupying the spotlight and enjoying immense popularity.

Parrot Goes on Strike.

Fred Newmeyer, who gagged and directed many of Harold Lloyd's successes and recently did the same for Eddie Dowling in "The Rainbow Man," broadened his scope of film work during direction of "A Sailor's Holiday," at Pathé. In the picture Alan Hale carries a cussing parrot. The parrot got tired of talking into a microphone that passed out no sun flower seeds and pulled a strike of silence. Director Newmeyer's solution of the matter finally was to impersonate the parrot himself.

Prize Fighting a Mania.

Prize fighting is one of Hollywood's manias. There are several arenas about town and in the suburbs, so that a real fight devotee can see a match practically every night, if he so wishes.

Jack Perry, who played the rôle of a prize fighter with Bob Armstrong in Jimmy Gleason's play, "Is Zat So?" is the proud owner of an arena on the Long Beach road. Tom Kennedy, who played rôles in the Beery-Hatton comedies for Paramount, is enthusiastically backing a big imported Irish boy, 22 years of age, whom he thinks will make a champion. The Irish boy opines that one of his opponents that he knocked cold was stronger than he, but he needed a bit of divil in him to make him a real fighter.

Chamlee and Yvonne Gall in "Marouf" at Ravinia Tonight

By Edward Moore.

RAVINIA has started and the event of the summer is now under way. What happened last night will be found on another page of this newspaper; pictures of some of the notables of the company will be found in the roto section this morning; what's to come can accordingly take a bit of your kind attention just now.

"Marouf," by Henri Rabaud, is up for tonight, a magnetic, charming comedy of opera, based on one of the Arabian Nights' stories, set to music of a kind that sticks to the ear. The phrase, "O Marouf, o pauvre," recurring every time the hero gets into trouble, which is most of the time, is as clear in memory now as it was when Mario Chamlee first sang it last summer. Mr. Chamlee, by the way, has been singing it in France and Belgium during the winter, and as soon as the Ravinia season closes he has an appointment to take an early boat across the Atlantic and sing it some more, to be exact, forty-eight times, and these as a result of what he did here and there during the last year.

And there will be the lovely Yvonne Gall as the princess in tonight's cast, also such notables as Julia Claussen, Leon Rothier, George Cehanovsky, José Mojica, Louis D'Angelo, Vittorio Trevisan, and others, with Louis Hasselmans conducting.

Symphony This Afternoon.

Tomorrow night there will be a concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra with Eric DeLamarter at the baton. In fact there will also be one this afternoon, a program of music by the American composers, Chadwick, Hadley, Borowski, Deems Taylor, and Frederick Stock, Alfred Wallenstein, the first cellist of the orchestra, being the soloist. Tomorrow night's program will bring out Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony as principal number, and Jacques Gordon, first violinist and concertmaster, and Joseph Vito, harpist, as soloists. The Mendelssohn Concerto and Dubois' "Fantasie" will be the respective numbers. Then back to opera for the rest of the week.

So turn on Tuesday to "Louise," with Mme. Gall in the name part, Edward Johnson making his first appearance of the summer as Julien, Mme. Claussen, Mr. Rothier, a long list of secondary parts, and Mr. Hasselmans conducting. On the following night another comic opera, "Fra Diavolo," wonderfully well cast, with Mr. Chamlee as the Fra, Florence Macbeth making her first appearance as Zerlina, and an uproar of comedy from Virgilio Lazzari and Giordano Paltrinieri, Mr. Trevisan and Mme. Bourskaya, and various others. Here Gennaro Papi will do the conducting.

The first of the children's concerts, due to continue throughout the season, is scheduled for Thursday afternoon. Here Mr. DeLamarter has prepared a program intended to interest youthful listeners in good music which he will accompany with explanatory talks in which he is expert. The orchestral program will be followed by an entertainment especially designed for juvenile consumption. Children twelve years of age and under are admitted free to these Thursday afternoon concerts, and seats in the pavilion, ordinarily reserved, are free to everyone, as they are for all concerts.

"Samson" on Thursday.

"Samson and Delilah," the work founded upon a biblical subject by Saint-Saëns, is the Thursday evening bill, and it will be sung by Mme. Claussen, Giovanni Martinelli, who has already helped to open the season, Giuseppe Danise, and others. Then on Friday night comes one of the finest works in the repertoire, Montemezzi's "L'Amore dei Tre Re," with a cast that stands alone among "L'Amore" casts, Lucrezia Bori, Edward Johnson, Mr. Danise, Mr. Lazzari, and Conductor Papi.

With such a list of works and casts it may not be entirely correct to say that Saturday night's bill is a climax, but it is equally far from being anticlimactic. For on this occasion Elisabeth Rethberg will make her first appearance, joining with Mr. Martinelli, Mme. Bourskaya, Mr. Basiola, Mr. Rothier, and Mr. D'Angelo in "Aïda."

Here the list stops, but it is something to contemplate. Works of all kinds and styles alternate with each other, the comic with the tragic, the grave with the gay, the reasonably modern with the reasonably ancient, though with no excessive desire to be extreme in either age. As for the casts, this department simply declines to make comments. The names of the artists themselves are a sufficient guaranty, and any one dissatisfied with that order of singing will remain dissatisfied in any opera house of any land during the present era.

Mme. Rethberg and Mr. Martinelli have been doing quite a bit of appearing in other opera houses since last they appeared here. Prominent among their achievements has been Ottorino Respighi's "La Carpana Sommersa," in which they will both appear later in the summer at Ravinia. They did it together at the Metropolitan in New York; they journeyed to Rome to present it there by special invitation of Mussolini; they conferred with Gerhardt Hauptmann, the veteran dramatist, who wrote the play from which the operatic libretto was drawn. A picture of the last mentioned incident appeared in the roto section of this newspaper a few weeks ago. Incidentally they both took a series of ratings on the performance indicating that their rôles were high spots in their respective artistic careers.

Rudolph Ganz Coming.

That all the music of the next five weeks may not be operatic, the Chicago Musical college desires publicity for the announcement that there will be a series of concerts of that length at the Central theater, mostly by members of the faculty of the institution, taking place on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons at 4 o'clock and Saturday mornings at 11. For the coming week the Tuesday event will be a piano recital by Rudolph Ganz, the Thursday another by Moissaye Boguslawski, that of Saturday a program by artist students. On the following week the list includes a play, a piano recital by Edward Collins, and a recital for violin, cello, and piano by Leon Sametini, Alfred Wallenstein, and Richard Hageman.

Mr. Ganz plans to play a Chopin group, the sonata in A flat by Beethoven, opus 26, a group by himself, and other numbers by Schubert, Weber, Debussy, and Wagner-Liszt. Mr. Boguslawski's program will be entirely of the works of Chopin. It includes four preludes, four waltzes, one nocturne, four études, the "Fantasie Impromptu," four mazurkas, the "Berceuse," the Scotch dances, the B minor scherzo, the B flat minor sonata, and the A flat polonaise, which from this distance looks like a fairly comprehensive view of the piano works of Frederic Chopin.

Who Is Who in Music.

"Who Is Who in Music" for the year 1929, edited in New York and published at 190 North State street, Chicago, has just come off the press, containing quite a bit of information of a kind that it is sometimes convenient to have at hand.

Its principal value is as a directory of American musicians with biographical data attached, but it has more than this. Its editor-in-chief is Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, with a board of associate editors, consisting of George Gartlan, Lawrence Gilman, Glenn Dillard Gunn, W. J. Henderson, Leonard Liebling, Maurice Rosenfeld. This means that each has written an article on a musical subject and there are two more by the "contributing editors," Walter Damrosch and Hugo Riesenfeld.

Grew's "Nice Women" Are Not Properly Classified

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Your correspondent, having been brought to bed with a fever, has been forced to depend for his news this last week upon such scouts, runners, and interested friends as frequent the theater district. They have come bearing tidings of no great import, most of them. They have remained to announce the conviction in their own minds that what has laid me low is this very same theater and its late offerings. It is enough, they are free to confess, to make a man sick.

This one new play they have told me about with any enthusiasm is a comedy written by William A. Grew and called "Nice Women." Mr. Grew, you may recall, is the gentleman who wrote a comedy entitled "My Girl Friday," once raided by the police and later released for production by the court after its producers had agreed to turn the bed the other way of the room, or put a sash of ribbon around the one-piece, one-passion bathing girls who are its most startling exhibit, or perform some other such act of what is legally and professionally known as "cleaning up" the offending drama.

Mr. Grew in Strange Fields.

It is a commonplace of the theater that the perversity of playwrights prompts them invariably to choose as their subjects those with which they are least familiar. Hence, I gather, Mr. Grew's "Nice Women."

He aims to be snappy and wise in the discussion of a millionaire's settling down problems. He wants to marry and he wants to marry a nice woman, this millionaire. He has had his affairs and he has broken with his latest mistress. Now he is prepared to go in for home making in a nice way.

The young woman he chooses is the daughter of an employé. She is also the fiancée of another employé, and is excessively unhappy at thought of marrying the millionaire.

Made aware of the opposition the millionaire withdraws his suit and is about to return to the mistress, when the younger sister of the fiancée arrives with her trousseau in a traveling bag and convinces him that he really loves her, also that she really knows so much more about life than he suspects that life with her is certain to be exciting if not jolly. So they are married.

The opening night a near panic was threatened, not by the play, but by the burning insulation connected with a balcony lighting fixture. Immediately several noble gentlemen began to crawl over their seat mates in an effort to get to the head of the aisle where, I assume, they hoped to be in a better position to help the women and children die first. Robert Warwick, playing the lead, stepped out of character long enough to assure the Broadway heroes that they really had nothing to fear and after a time they sneaked back to their seats.

Mr. Warwick is assisted competently, my reporters say, by Hope Drown as the fiancée and Sylvia Sidney as the brash young compendium of sex theories. The lines, they say, are unblushing and sometimes smart.

Al Jolson Revives an Aged Gag.

Another caller brought me a story of Mr. Al Jolson's attending a performance of "A Night in Venice" which may already have been relayed to you.

During the performance, as is customary, Mr. Ted Healy, the chief burlesquer, stepped to the front of the stage and informed the audience of the Jolson presence. He also asked Mr. Jolson, in compliment to the reception that followed, to kindly stand and bow to the ladies and gentlemen, which Mr. Jolson did.

Then the audience, like all audiences, tried to get something for nothing by insisting that Mr. Jolson sing for them. They refused, in fact, to let the "Venice" show proceed until he did.

Finally Mr. Healy was compelled to beg them to desist. "Mr. Jolson," he

This and That Thing About the Theater

And This Means About the Actors, Also.

BAYARD VEILLER, who restored himself to celebrity and added greatly to his standing with the banks by writing "The Trial of Mary Dugan," is gone to London with a new play which he expects to have staged there in August by Gerald Du Maurier. This is the play about pirates which has been referred to in THE TRIBUNE as taking the dramatist's time and attention. . . . One of the reasons for taking the play to London for its première is, doubtless, that Gilbert Miller is to put up the money for the venture; and Mr. Miller has told far and wide that he will put on his plays there because of the lower costs, and then, if successful, he will exhibit them in the States.

John Halliday, recently here in "Jealousy" with Miss Fay Bainter, and Miss Katherine Wilson are to be in "Among the Married," which is something new by Vincent Lawrence, who hasn't yet quite clicked as a writer for the stage, although he has nearly done so at least twice since, in 1921, his piece known here as "The Twist" was shown in New-York. He is otherwise known in Chicago for "Two Fellows and a Girl," "In Love with Love," and "Kelly's Vacation."

Miss Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw, who were here last Autumn in "The Five-O'Clock Girl," are to be together again in a new song-and-dance piece by Maxwell Anderson, author of "Saturday's Children" and part-author of "What Price Glory!"; Otto Harbach, who has written or helped to write numberless things since he assisted in turning the old farce of "Incog" into "Three Twins"; Lorenz Hart, who writes rimes; and Richard Rodgers, who makes tunes. Bobby Clark, of Clark and McCullagh, is expected to be with Miss Eaton and Mr. Shaw; and there will be dancers trained in the Donahue-Boyle school, some of whose pupils may be observed these nights in "Pleasure-Bound."

And the Saturday matinée is dropped from the schedule of "Pleasure-Bound"—a bit of dropping which is good in the Summertime, especially when a show involves a high weekly wage-roll.

"The Victorious Virgin" is the title of a comedy, described as "collegiate," by William DuBois, who is identified as a student in a school of journalism.

One of New-York's theaters, patriotically called the Mayfair, is being made over into a barber-shop. It is just as well, perhaps. The last time I passed it, it bore on its façade a sign stating that it might be rented by the night, the week, or the season. One of the minor objections made to it by ticket-buyers was that the law required certain doors to be open, and that these doors gave upon the kitchen of a cheap restaurant.

Most of the other seventy-odd theaters in New-York are closed, although they are not being made over into barber-shops. Report is that the ticket-buyers are confining their attention to six or seven of the shows now on view there. . . . This week is marked by two new pieces—"Keep It Clean!" a revue postponed from last week, and "Bomboola," a Negro song-and-dance show.

Negro shows in kind have been numerous since the New-York success, last year, of "Blackbirds"; but none of the others have really caught on. . . . And Bill Robinson, who made the outstanding success of "Blackbirds" with his matchless tap-dancing, did not go to Paris with his associates of the long run, but took bookings in the two-a-day. He was, ere his success in "Blackbirds," a familiar and frequent contributor to the bills in the Palace.

Raymond Hitchcock, who has been in St.-Luke's Hospital since illness compelled him to withdraw from "Your Uncle Dudley," is to go out to Colorado Springs for recuperation; and he expects to resume in the play in September here in Chicago.

Mr. Tyler, Mr. Hitchcock's manager, is Mrs. Fiske's, also; and he plans to provide her with a répertoire of old and new plays of a comic nature. So far listed are "Mrs. Bumpstead-Leigh," in which she recently acted in New-York, and "Erstwhile Susan," which was her conveyance about thirteen years ago.

Jack Donahue's conveyance, as a star under Mr. Ziegfeld, will, it is said, be a song-and-dance version of "Six-Cylinder Love," in which Ernest Truex and Miss June Walker were together in 1922 in the Harris. Miss Bobbé Arnst, here in the run of "Rosalie," is mentioned for Miss Walker's old rôle.

Miss Miriam Hopkins, who hasn't acted in Chicago since "The Home-Towners," is to have in London the rôle in "The Bachelor Father" acted last Winter in the Blackstone by the same Miss Walker.

Irish Drama Is Ably Treated in New Volume

Andrew E. Malone's Work Praised by Critics.

By Hugh Curran.

DUBLIN, Ireland.—[Special Correspondence.] — American readers will soon have an opportunity of seeing Andrew E. Malone's able work on the Irish drama which is to be published by Scribner's within the next few weeks. This book, entitled "The Irish Drama: 1896-1928," has been in the hands of the critics on this side of the Atlantic for some time, and their verdict has been uniformly favorable. Malone is historical, appreciative, critical, where in his opinion criticism belongs; but he is beyond all else fair, taking always the large view, eschewing petty issues and stating the facts as he sees them without fear and without malice.

The Irish drama is unlike many other things in this country, which have their roots deep in the mystic or historic past. It is barely thirty years old, and its story is largely the story of the Abbey theater, or rather of the events which ultimately resulted in the Abbey theater as we know it today.

As probably no country has so warmly appreciated Ireland's contribution to drama as the United States, Malone's book on the subject will meet with a cordial reception from the great numbers of people who are interested in drama generally, and in the Irish drama particularly. And as this year will be the twenty-fifth of the Abbey theater's career the book may be regarded as in the nature of a jubilee survey.

Beginnings Traced.

In a series of informative chapters Malone traces the genesis and growth of the drama in Ireland. In the opening chapter is illustrated the tardy development of the theater in Ireland, and showing the very marked external influence upon that development. Gaelic Ireland had no drama until 1901, while in the Irish language is to be found some of the finest dramatic poetry in the world. Ireland knew practically nothing of the "tropes" and "mystery" plays which were the beginnings of drama in every other part of Europe. The "mystery" plays were staged in Irish towns by the Craft guilds, but as these were largely English in personnel, linguistic and religious barriers were set against their development into definitely Irish forms.

Later the bards and shanachies, with their recitations and stories in the homes of the people, brought all the drama that was desired to the hearthstone. Then came the silvery tongued political orator, who dramatized in impassioned speech the woes of Ireland, and it was only at the downfall of Parnell that young Ireland turned to the theater as a national refuge.

A Magnificent Line.

When Ireland's great contribution to British drama is borne in mind this late development is significant. From Farquhar to Shaw most of the best comedy in the English language was contributed by Irishmen, or men of Irish training. The line is magnificent: Farquhar, Congreve, Goldsmith, Sheridan, Wilde, Shaw! And in addition there were many who, though distinguished and significant in their own days, are now known to have been of comparatively little worth.

But in Ireland itself the drama languished until the "wind blowing from Norway," as W. B. Yeats put it, fanned it into bright flame. From Norway came the plays of Ibsen; from Ibsen's drama came the series of independent theaters which were such a feature of the European drama towards the end of the nineteenth century; and it was from these "little theaters" that the inspiration for an Irish national theater came in the beginning.

Backgrounds of Today.

In his London home W. B. Yeats had the idea that he would like "a little theater somewhere in the suburbs" where "fine words might be spoken finely." He and George Moore had been interested in the independent theater in London, and had plays staged by that important organization, but neither was entirely satisfied. Yeats spoke of his ideal to Lady Gregory, and it was these three, with Edward Martyn, who formed the Irish Literary theater from which the Irish drama, and the Abbey theater have developed.

It is now nearly thirty years since the first performances of the Irish Literary theater were given in a small hall in Dublin, and during these thirty years the world has been forced to recognize in the work of Irish playwrights and Irish actors a new contribution to the theater. The Irish actors were said to "have come like a summer breeze to jaded London," and their visits to America have been equally inspiring. Both in Britain and America Little theaters and a new "folk" drama owe their inspiration mainly to Ireland.

Erin's Contributions.

Ireland has given the contemporary theater the plays of Yeats, Synge, Lady Gregory, Murray, Lennox, Robinson, Ervine, Clum, Fitzmaurice, Lord Dunsany, Sean O'Casey, and a whole host of others. It has brought the one act play back to the modern stage, and it has made the verse play one of the theater's commonplace events.

The entire story is delightfully set forth in Malone's book. There is set out the generosity of Miss A. E. F. Horniman, the foresight of Lady Gregory, the patriotism of W. B. Yeats, the self-sacrifice of Edward Martyn, and the waywardness of George Moore. Such are the names of the founders of the Irish drama. And there is also a series of critical appreciations of the numerous dramatists whose work may not yet be familiar to the American public. To American readers as to those of Britain, as the Times literary supplement said in its review of the book, Mr. Malone's book will be "very welcome to those who can remember the early visits of the players from Dublin, the enchantment of those words spoken by those voices . . . all the fun and excitement that now seem so very long ago." To those who do not know anything of the Irish drama the book will be a revelation.

In Walked the Boss.

One afternoon, almost closing time, my employer left the office, apparently for the day. While going around, locking the files, I discovered in my purse, some jacks and a ball which I had purchased that noon for my small sister, and, thinking of childhood days, I took them out and proceeded to play —and on top of my employer's desk! Imagine my embarrassment, when in walked the boss, and with him a client! If only the floor had opened, I would have been happy. H. G.

Disappoints Son.

I have been the cause of many embarrassing moments in my long life, but one stands out particularly distinct.

We were around the Christmas tree, opening our packages amid exclamations of delight, when some one handed me a tiny long package which looked as if it might contain a fountain pen box. But as she handed it to me, she said, "Don't be disappointed, for it isn't what it looks to be."

Hoping to be very tactful, I said, "Don't worry, not getting a fountain pen would never disappoint me! I hate them."

Well, it wasn't—it was a string of beads, so I congratulated myself privately for what I had said, but alas! Just then my son handed be a large square package and when I opened it there was a beautiful cream onyx fountain pen desk set! And although I did my best to explain that it was the kind one carries around that I hated, I'm sure the pleasure he had taken in selecting my expensive gift was pretty well wrecked. And I never use the pen without being reminded to hold hold my tongue once in a while. S. V. B.

An Eavesdropper.

The most embarrassing moment of my life occurred when I was a senior in college. I was taking it upon myself to give advice to a freshman woman who was selecting courses for the next quarter as we sat on a bench on the campus.

"How about Prof. B——?" she asked.

"Heavens, no!" I replied. "His lectures are a pain and he grades like a fiend."

"——but he has an awfully nice disposition," said a voice beside us, and I looked squarely up into the eyes of Prof. B——. M. L.

American Women's Club Will Fete Gen. Dawes July 1

LONDON.—(AP)—The annual summer crop of American visitors to England is changing the tone of the American Women's club of London from that of serious cultural pursuits to the more frivolous activities of receptions, tea parties and luncheons. The educational program on general world affairs has been abandoned, not to be resumed until October, and preparations were made for the entertainment of American callers.

The grandest affair on the calendar of the club will be the reception given in honor of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, newly appointed American ambassador to Great Britain, and his wife. A tentative date has been set for July 1.

The reception will be one of the most colorful of the year, with every important American in London present, to tender greetings and good wishes to the new ambassador.

Attracts American Women.

The club officers and the few members who remain in London during the summer will keep themselves comparatively free of engagements, in readiness to meet any emergency in the unexpected arrival of some fellow-American who must be entertained at and by the club.

Every summer the spacious old house on Grosvenor street is the scene of social gatherings of hundreds of world travelers. Many American women hold memberships in order to enjoy the privileges of the club while they are in London, and many women, though not members, are given courtesy cards during their stay.

Helen Wills, the young tennis star; Ruth Morgan, one of the founders of the League of Women Voters; Alice Paul, a leading figure in the American National Woman's party; Mrs. Alfred J. Brosseau, former president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who organized the conference on the cause and cure of war, always make the club their headquarters when in London.

Courtesy to Delegation.

The club recently extended courtesy to the American delegation to the international council of women, which has just concluded its annual meeting, and again for the entire delegate body of the American Garden club.

The constant growth of the club—its total membership now is 1,400, of whom 800 are in London and 600 in the United States—is soon going to make it necessary to establish a waiting list.

Mrs. Curtis Brown, president of the club, believes that the waiting list will be introduced in January, after all 1929 membership applications have been received.

"I think the increasing number of women who want to become members is indicative of the popularity of the club," said Mrs. Brown. "And our work is not all social. We have a definite program of international problems that we sponsor through our prepared weekly programs in the winter months. These meetings are crowded, not only with American members, but also with visiting English women who find they do not have such opportunities in their own clubs."

pictures; Mr. Liebling has something about the concert situation in New York and Mr. Rosenfeld about Chicago's music; Mr. Gunn administers some hearty knocks at the educators in their dealings with the fine arts; and Mr. Gartlan tells of progress in school music.

Then come the biographies, 261 pages of them, beginning with Nathan Aaron, violinist, of Milwaukee and ending with Olga Zundel, cellist, of New York. These are followed by a classified picture section. The book is wholly in rotogravure, and its proponents say that it is the first of its kind in that respect. The price is $5.

The International College of Music, Expression, and Dancing will hold its commencement and concert on Friday evening at Kimball hall. Brig. Gen. James E. Stuart will confer the honors, Eleanor Everest Freer will address the graduates, and the Rev. William Russell Collins, D. D., will pronounce the invocation.

There will be a commencement concert and operatic performance by the Gunn School of Music at the Studebaker this afternoon. The Gunn School Symphony orchestra will play under the direction of Jascha Selwitz, and there will be solos by Mollie Opper, Bernice Jacobson, Dorothy Ford, and Dorothy Crost, pianists, Evan Evans, tenor, and Fay Cusac, mezzo-soprano. Following the concert program, "Il Trovatore" is announced to be sung by Bal de Rosa, Dwight Edrus Cook, Bula Berke, J. Monroe Langlo, and Jack Roberts, conducted by Frank L. Waller and with Daniel Protheroe as chorus master.

Emanuel Balaban, executive director of the opera department of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, N. Y., will hold an audition for young singers who may wish to be candidates for scholarships during the coming year at Lyon & Healy hall tomorrow afternoon at 4:30 o'clock.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

AT RAVINIA.

Tonight "Marouf," that delightful tale from the Arabian Nights, will be sung and those of you who were once enchanted by the story may be charmed anew by the music and the colorful stage setting of one of Ravinia's most popular operas.

In act I. Marouf, one of the first henpecked husbands in history, is seen having a pretty hard time of it. When he is ordered publicly whipped because of a fib told about him by his wife, he decides to emulate the well known worm and turn. He runs away. Then his adventures begin.

He reaches Khaitan, a mythical city "somewhere between China and Morocco," and is introduced as the richest merchant in the world. The sultan bestows his daughter's hand upon him, but the wily grand vizier becomes suspicious of Marouf and so once more the latter takes to his heels, this time accompanied by the beautiful princess.

He finds a miraculous ring which, when rubbed, conjures up a genie. A hidden treasure is disclosed and a great caravan of goods suddenly appears out of the thin air of the desert. Then along comes the sultan in hot pursuit, but at sight of the caravan he is convinced of Marouf's wealth and apologizes to him.

All those who say operas always have a tragic ending should see this jolly one.

On Thursday "Samson and Delilah" will be given. This familiar Bible story was recently revamped and modernized by Robert Collyer Washburn in a book called "Samson," published by Sears. While it, of course, does not follow the story of the opera identically, it gives a decidedly new and vigorous portrait of this strong man of Gaza and furnishes much material for lively debate. The opera, however, does hew to the line laid down by the Bible, and is one of the most popular works of Camille Saint-Saëns.

"Four Sons" Wins Praise.

My husband and I do not always agree, but we are of one opinion concerning "Four Sons." We thought it a perfectly wonderful picture.

First of all, there was pathos. The sight of the poor old mother, thanking God for "all her blessings," in spite of the fact that she had lost three sons on the battlefield, was enough to wring one's heart.

But there was joy, too, in the birthday party, the dancing on the green, and in the happy ending, when the mother, who has suffered so much, is to be "happy ever after" with her youngest son in America.

The scenery, too, was wonderful. I have never seen a picture that made me feel so transported to a foreign land. The Bavarian "atmosphere" added greatly to the film's realism. L. R.

Deeply Stirred.

Never in my life, have my emotions been so deeply stirred as when I saw the picture, "The Mailman." I distinctly remember my eyes continually filling up with tears, so that I could not see the picture before me, and that night I again wept my ol' eyes out,—I just couldn't help it.

The plot, although ordinary, was made engrossing through superb acting and settings, together with excellent photography. Ralph Lewis as the mailman was perfect, and he has idealized the mailman forever, at least to me. Johnny Walker [what has become of him?] as the mailman's son, was equally as good. The wife of the mailman, although I have forgotten her name, I cannot leave out as making this movie a great success. I never expect to see such an outstanding photoplay again! R. L.

Puccini Sleeps Beside Piano in Tower by Lake

By Mary Howell.

TORRE DEL LAGO, Italy.—[Special Correspondence.]—Torre del Lago, that is, Tower of the Lake, was the life-long home of Giacomo Puccini, creator of tender melodies, of little Madame Butterfly, of Mima and La Tosca. The great master is lying behind his piano, where he composed his operas, in the living room of his villa here beside Lake Massacuccioli. As one enters the door Caruso smiles from his place on the lamp-shade, David Belasco and Gatti-Casazza look down from the walls.

The room is as the master went out and closed the door—to return borne by his friends. Upon the table are his glasses, the last parcel of letters the postman brought, a copy of Vogue of 1924, a book of Indian music and songs. The piano is an upright placed against the wall, candles in the frame, whereon the famed melodies issued from the long fingers now stilled, fingers clasped upon his breast in the casket placed in the wall against which leans the old piano. A muse in Carrara marble, carved by Maraini, weeps beside the tomb. The other side of the wall is a chapel, with the lovely Maraini figures in marble of the muses, with "Butterfly," "The Girl of the Golden West," "Manon" inscribed; the walls are inlaid by mosaics of De Carolyis.

When he composed the villagers gathered silently outside the walls to listen, and now they come silently the 29th of each month for the memorial mass held here by the village priest.

Throughout the rooms remains the strong impression of his American days, and of American friends, in books, photographs and souvenirs gathered about him.

"Turandot, Atto I, I Agosto, 1921," the manuscript lies on the table, the unfinished score that the master left behind him. In the adjoining room are the trophies of the hunt, his hat upon the nail, his hunting boots in rows. The chair is drawn up to the open fireplace. The house is filled with roses from the garden.

"Max," the Scotch wire haired terrier, waits at the door for his master to return. The house is always open to visitors. A half hour drive by horse cab from Viareggio through the magnificent pine groves of the Bourbon kings, bears the traveler here to the shrine of the great melodist, Giacomo Puccini.

Art, Music, Sport Festivals Mark Season at Lido

By Mary Howell.

THE LIDO, VENICE.—[Special Correspondence.]—In these ten years in its subtle manner the world's improvements for broader existence have bloomed forth in bizarre fantasy on the Lido shores of Venice.

This season at the Lido promises radical changes in social customs. Here are staged not pagan orgies of the Romans but esthetic festivals of Venice, planned with art and in classic style, wherein nothing offends good taste, however startling. The program is announced with a flourish of trumpets as the grand march of "Aida."

Magnificent Balls Planned.

The magic palaces of the City of the Lagoons, the golden shores of the Lido this year offer a program of the commune of Venice. Traditional and novel balls, as "The Night of the Redeemer" and the "Fresco" of the Grand canal, will be magnificent.

A series of concerts of Venetian songs, open air performances, will be staged on St. Mark's square. In July will be given the "Resurrection of Christ" of Perosi, now maestro of the Sistine chapel of Rome, and formerly maestro of St. Mark's. Orchestral concerts, directed by Italy's great masters, and chamber music will be held in the Zenobio palace.

Art Exhibition Also.

Planned by Prince Humbert, and by his brother-in-law, Prince Philip of Hesse, the Settecento exposition of all arts, painting, statuary, furniture, costumes, personal collections of fans, and jewels will be thrown open to the public. Art collections of all Italian museums and private palaces of the period will be loaned for the exhibit.

Cia Fornaroli, the first ballet dancer of the Scala opera house of Milan, will direct the balls. At the Chez-Vous of the Lido, with its illuminated fountains, will be all night balls and gala dinners. Antonio Rovescalli and Frotti of the Scala, masters of choregraphy, will direct the scenes and ballets. The Italian orchestra will alternate with the Meyer Davis jazz of Newport.

A Lace Festival.

The Italian Fascist federation of costumers will present the lace festival, the shawl festival, the Venetian bead festival, and the brocade and damask festival at the Excelsior.

The bragozzi, the picturesque sailboats of Chioggia, with colored sails and half moon prow, will be anchored here upon the Excelsior shores, for fishing and sailing, night and day.

International tennis tournaments will be held for the cup of the king of Sweden and for the prince of Piedmont cup. Baron de Morpurgo, Cochet, Brugnon, Lacoste, Koseluh, Von Kehrling, Kleinschroth, "Louis" Hughes, Ohta, Spence, Miss Betty Nuthall, Miss Eileen Bennett, Miss Ryan, Miss Joan Fry, Fraulein Aussem, and Mrs. Satterthwait are enlisted.

The international motor boat races will be held Sept. 7-15 under the patronage of the prince of Piedmont. Maj. Segrave, holder of the velocity record; the sportsmen Jalla, Etschgoin, and Bugatti will take part. Premiums are offered by the king, Prince Humbert, Mussolini, Count Volpi di Misurata, and the city of Venice.

Dream Brings $250.

One night I dreamed that I saw a figure with finger pointing at the attic, and then I saw a pot of gold. I didn't think much of it in the morning, but the next night I dreamed the same thing, and the next night again. So I went up into the attic and looked around, but there was nothing to be seen. I then noticed an old trunk, which was dirty. I opened it with difficulty. Inside was an old picture, which I took out. I carried it downstairs and cleaned it. It was very attractive, so I hung it up. Then a friend of mine came in and, seeing the picture, asked me where I got it. I told him and he said it was valuable. I took it to an art dealer and sold it for $250. E. H.

Perfect Bliss.

"For forty years have my good wife and I traveled hand in hand down life's thorny path," he said. "In all these years not one single harsh, hasty, unkind word has passed our lips. Isn't that true, Mother?"

Mother had quietly fallen asleep on the sofa, and as he laid his hand caressingly on her shoulder she snorted defiantly, and said sharply: "Get up yourself and light the fire, John. I lit it last, and I'll see you far enough before I'll do it this morning, you—O, O, —I—I—why, I must have dropped off to sleep!"

"And I think you'd better have stayed asleep, Martha," hissed John in her ear. K. K. G.

Kept Her Company.

Teacher: "If there are any dumbbells in the room, please stand up."

After a slight pause, Jimmie stood up.

"Why Jimmie, do you consider yourself a dumbbell?"

"Well, not exactly, teacher, but I hated to see you standing up all alone." M. O.

Mother's Advice.

A mother said to her little son: "Why can't you be a good little boy, dear?"

He replied: "Well, mother, I'll be good for a nickel."

Mother: "For shame, son, you ought to be like your father—good for nothing." M. O.

Plays and Such of Ten Year's Ago in Chicago Theaters

SUBJOINED are news of and comments on plays and shows printed in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of June 22, 1919—the date most nearly corresponding to today. The excerpts are verbatim, and not rewrites or summarizations.

Mr. Howard, the funny-man of the Passing Show, ponders a further dignity, and asks that he be no more known by the affectionate diminutive "Willie." He has put it up to the Messrs. Shubert to call him "Bill" or "William" on the billboards hereafter; and, following the deliberation customary to such matters of the drama, "William," it is believed, will be the favored title.

The Mr. Howard referred to above continues, ten years afterward, to be known as Willie by the public and in the ads.

Albert Jolson has closed a prosperous season in Boston in "Sinbad," and is now exhilarating his spirit with rural sights and sounds, riding far from the gay cities and the ways of man in his automobile.

And Albert Jolson continues, ten years later, to be known as Al.

One by one, the farces of yesteryear are succumbing to the musical-comedy craze. The latest to fall under the hammer is "Never Say Die!" which William Collier played some seven or eight seasons ago. It will blossom forth next season as an Arthur Hammerstein production. Even the films, for that matter, are being combed for musical comedy material. A year or more ago, Marguerite Clark appeared in a picture called "Miss George Washington"; and now "The Little Whopper" is being fashioned. The Messrs. Harbach and Friml are doing the fashioning; and New-York is scheduled to see the product some time in October.

"Never Say Die!" eventually became the song-and-dance show, but not in 1919-'20. It was a good farce, and was made into a bad dido. As to finding song-and-dance plots in the films, the rewards have been slight,—owing, doubtless, to the fact that the films have ever been lacking in more than one percent of original material.

Ernest Lawford, who since the death of Nat Goodwin has been playing the rôle of the uncle in "Why Marry?" on tour, will return to New-York in August as one of the principal players in Mr. Woods' production of Somerset Maugham's play, "Too Many Husbands." Mr. Maugham probably will be doubly represented in these parts, incidentally; for Mr. Dillingham has acquired the American rights to his latest play (and in London one of his most successful), "Cæsar's Wife."

"Too many Husbands" added nothing much to the fame of Mr. Maugham nor to that of Mr. Lawford. Nor was "Cæsar's Wife" a thing to list among Mr. Maugham's successes.

Twenty Years Ago

GOING back through the files to twenty years ago, or to the corresponding Sunday of 1909, the interests of theater-goers were catered to in THE TRIBUNE of June 20 by the paragraphs that follow.

Two more theaters were added to the "dark" list last night when "The Servant in the House" departed from the Bush Temple and "The Sins of Society" was given its last performance at McVicker's. No other bookings will be made at either house until the regular season is entered upon in August. The attractions current at the other downtown playhouses remain as they are indefinitely, with the exception of "The Hurdy-Gurdy Girl," at the Colonial, which is to to be followed soon by a revival of the best of the Carle productions, "The Tenderfoot."

"The Candy-Shop," a dainty and choice confection, sufficiently tempting to lure the Summer amusement-seeker, came to the Studebaker last Thursday night. A cast of favorite entertainers—including William Rock, Maude Fulton, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Lucy Weston, Louis Harrison, Jack Hazzard, and Mlle. Rayo—are engaged in its presentation.

"Keegan's Pall,' a detective-drama of unusual interest, admirably played by Emmet Corrigan and his associates, steadily gains in favor at the Chicago Opera-House, where it is in its third week. "The Traveling Salesman," has ten successful weeks to its credit at the Illinois; and its popularity apparently knows no diminution. The snowball-scene in "The Alaskan" continues to divert and amuse the audiences at the Great Northern. The one hundredth performance occurs Wednesday night; and souvenirs in the form of feather-trimmed gauze fans are promised.

Burr McIntosh as the genial and likable Senator Langdon in "A Gentleman from Mississippi" is applauded by large audiences each evening at the Grand. Tomorrow night's performance will be the seventy-fifth in Chicago.

Mabel Barrison and the farceurs appearing in "The Blue Mouse" at the Garrick continue to succeed in satisfying those playgoers who demand farce as their Summer theatrical fare.

"The Servant in the House" was a weak revival; and "The Sins of Society" a disappointment. . . "The Hurdy-Gurdy Girl," too, was a disappointment. "Keegan's Pal" was a third. . The successes of the Summer were "A Gentleman from Mississippi," "The Traveling Salesman," and "The Blue Mouse.". . . "The Alaskan" wasn't much of a show at the dollar-fifty standard of 1909, but better than usual for the prices charged in the Great Northern.

A Doubt.

Film-men in Shanghai have protested to local authorities here against a book published in Chinese and called "Ten Thousand Evils of the Cinema." Startling declarations are made in it that Douglas Fairbanks is an Arabian, and that in 1914 he conspired, with eight chorus-girls, to kill his mother. Another Chinese exposé is that Clara Bow is thirty-nine years old and has been married twelve times. Well, we don't believe it!—From [illegible]

QUITE A HELP IN PLEASING THE EYE

MISS JANE ADAMS

SHE'S in the big and fleet show named "Pleasure-Bound," wherein she has to deliver part of the plot left over from the days before the Messrs. Shubert decided to dispense with most of that sort of thing in the plan of the original author. But Miss Adams is good to look at (as are many others in the numerous troupe); and she submits herself amiably enough to a deal of manhandling by Fred Hillebrand. . . . Here's hoping that the picture comes out in print as pretty as the photograph from which it has been made.

Grew's "Nice Women" Are Not Properly Classified

said, "bought his seats to this performance, the same as you. He is here with a lady and I think you should permit them to enjoy the entertainment."

Thus making the best use of the old gag that has been made in any of the recent revues.

Not Knocking Marion Davies.

Another chap came in with one that, he assured me, had just arrived from Hollywood. It sounds like a revival to me, but inasmuch as I can never remember any of them over twenty-four hours, it may be a variant upon an aging original.

This story features Beatrice Lillie. Taken west to make a talkie, she also was taken into the more active of the social sets and shown a good deal of attention. As Lady Peel she was invited to many functions, and as Bee Lillie she was welcomed at numerous parties.

At one of the largest functions she was entertained by a millionaire of national reputation and stage leanings. With pride he showed her over the grounds, brilliant under the stars and glowing with electrical assists to nature.

Knowing that the conventional expressions of awe and wonder would be expected from her, Miss Lillie kindly released them, but was also constrained to add that there was something about the perfection of the California nights that made such a scene seem just a little like a stage picture. There was something a wee bit artificial about its beauty.

"But it isn't," protested her host. "It isn't in the least artificial. The trees, the flowers, the sky, the stars—they're all real."

"I know it," admitted the comedienne, "but still I can't help thinking that those stars are going to start rolling in a minute and when they quit they will spell 'Marion Davies.'"

The Bennison-Lawrence Tragedy.

Margaret Lawrence is dead and buried in a Quaker graveyard near the simple Germantown home she left to become an actress. Louis Bennison, the actor who shot and killed her, is dead by his own hand and cremated at the expense, I believe, of the Actors' fund.

The usual sermons have been preached on the wages of sin and the customary deductions drawn as to the stage as a tempter and the theater as the devil's greatest playground and aid in keeping the records of hell complete.

Many influences entered into the failure of Margaret Lawrence to meet the tests life put up to her. The stage was but one of them. The fact that at the height of her first success in "Over Night" she was willing to quit the stage, and was proud to boast that thereafter she would devote herself to the career of wife and mother; the fact that she married a socially prominent man, took her place successfully beside him in society, bore him two daughters and for eleven years was happily beyond the lure of the stage, is rather conclusive proof that it was not from the theater alone that the inspirations of her undoing sprung.

No, there was something else. The war came, for one thing, and took her husband away. She became restless and agreed to do a few charity performances. The war over there may have been, probably were, discussions as to the wisdom of what she had done. Then there was the divorce and her side of that story. Then the return to the stage and a second success.

Had Lost a Balance Wheel.

But always back of it a memory of something that had been lost. Then the marriage with Wallace Eddinger who was frivolous and jolly and could keep a person cheered. Then the failure of that marriage. And finally the turning to Bennison and the final slipping into the grip of a sordid affair which both cheaply dramatized and in a spirit of insane bravado brought to a shabby curtain.

There is a logic that keeps pity in its place. The one person responsible for the tragedy of Margaret Lawrence was Margaret Lawrence. None with greater gifts nor greater opportunities than she. None with greater charm or stancher friends. And none more foolish in believing, in some vague way, that it is sometimes possible to cheat and win. Which it isn't.

The fever dies slowly. The thermometer that has been in a conspiracy for ten days never to indicate a normal temperature in this aging frame suddenly went subnormal the day before yesterday. And so, just as we were learning the technique of an alcohol rub that should be cleansing and still leave no rings, we found it unnecessary. O, happy day!

Brilliant Show at Chicago Galleries

Paintings and Sculpture Win High Praise

Water Colors, Sketches Declared Excellent.

By Eleanor Jewett.

There is an unusually fine exhibition current in the Chicago Galleries, 220 North Michigan avenue. The paintings and pieces of sculpture are the work of members of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors, an organization which, if I am not mistaken, is an outgrowth from the original Chicago Society of Artists.

The exhibition is held in the larger of the three rooms. The first gallery is given over to temporary paintings, the second is engaged with the water colors of Roy Collins and the small sketches of Tom Barnett, a St. Louis painter, and the third gallery is the one where the principal exhibition is arranged. The paintings are so excellent and so characteristic of the different artists that it is almost impossible to submit anything in regard to them but appreciation.

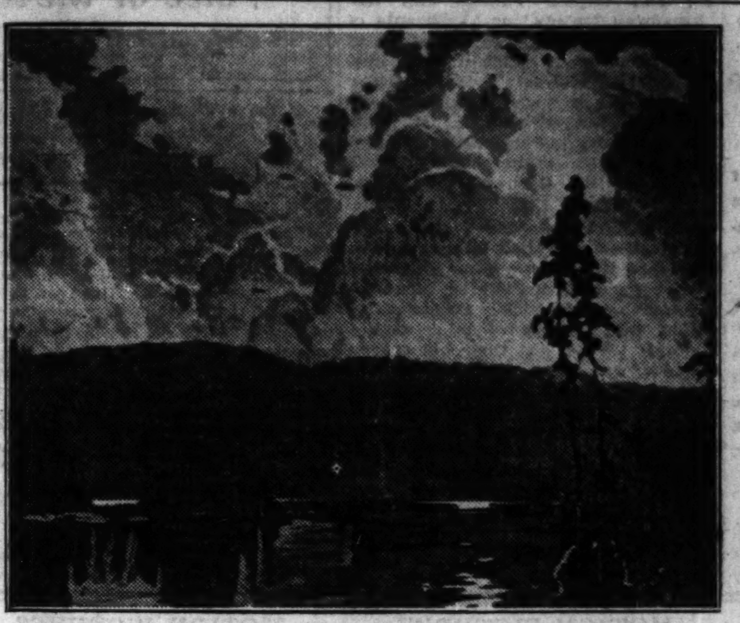
Fine Mountain Paintings.

These hang in practically this sequence along the first wall. There is not one that you would wish to skip. And then at the bend of the room there are the fine mountain paintings by Adolph Heinze and R. F. Ingerle and the delicate shimmering butterfly beauty of Mary H. Wicker's "Brittany Sardine Fleet Drying their Blue Sails." Next a superb still-life by Frank V. Dudley catches the eye. None of these can you miss. Looking up suddenly, "Iris," by Gerald A. Frank, attracts you at once by its great beauty. It is one of the loveliest arrangements Mr. Frank has shown us in some time.



"NORTHERN MOONLIGHT" by John Spelman, awarded the prize of $1,000 in the Chicago Galleries Association Members' show which closed ten days ago. The current exhibit in these galleries is of paintings and sculpture by members of the Chicago Painters and Sculptors association, water colors by Roy Collins and small sketches by Tom Barnett.

Then the reds and golds in the painting of a young girl by Helga Haugen Dean are irresistible and from her the eye slides to Pauline Palmer's exquisite portrait of a girl in white against a blue and green background, and from this again you go to the adorable portrait of a child by Ingeborg Christensen. She calls it "Faith Steps Forth" and it is a fascinating picture. The chubby infant is bravely challenging the world with her family in her arms, two dolls of different colors are held firmly in either hand. The colors are warm and deep and Miss Christensen has captured delightfully the innocent daring and charm of babyhood.

But there are more paintings that are hard to escape. There is Francis Chapin's swift modern "Cederburg Sunday Morning"; there is Dahlgreen's beautiful misty "Autumn Morning"; there is Tellander's intriguing "Book Stalls and Notre Dame"; there is the southwest landscape by Wilimovsky; and there are the boy in a brown suit by A. Loo Matthews, the "Wayside Flowers" by Anna Lee Stacey, the portrait by Antonin Sterba and the New Mexico landscape with Indians by E. Martin Hennings.

A Magnificent Show.

This all makes a magnificent show. But even here it does not end, for the division of sculpture offers several beautiful compositions. Emory P. Seidel shows an exquisitely beautiful "Madonna and Babe," a delightful sun dial and a graceful candle holder. Lorado Taft submits his magnificent "Lincoln"; Ruth Sherwood offers her charming "Nightingale's Song," and there is work by Nellie V. Walker.

The exhibition will continue into July.

The complete list of the prize awards in the preceding artist-member show of the Chicago Galleries association in their galleries, the exhibition closed June 9, but the announcement of the awards was delayed, is as follows: "Northern Moonlight" by John A. Spelman was given the $1,000 prize; "Café Limoux" by J. Theodore Johnson, the $750; "The Council Meeting" by Gerald Cassidy, the first $500; "At Winter's End" by Frank V. Dudley, the second $500; "Portrait" by Fred G. Gray, $400; "In the Doorway" by Pauline Palmer, $400; "Spanish Water Carrier" by E. Martin Hennings, $400.

Prizes of $350 and $300 were awarded to "Portrait" by Claude Buck, "East Shore" by Ellsworth Young, "Phlox-Delphinium" by Anna Lynch, "Portrait" by Paul Trebilcock, "The Winding Street" by J. Jeffery Grant, "Beside the Cider Mill" by G. Ames Aldrich, "Bennington Creek" by Frederic Tellander, "Gulls" by Stark Davis, "Golden October Afternoon" by John F. Stacey, "Rabat, Morocco" by Allen St. John, "March" by Clifton Wheeler, "A Summer's Late Afternoon" by Frank C. Peyraud, "Isola de San Giorgio" by Carl Preussl, "The Village Street" by Pauline Palmer, "Oaks" by Lucie Hartrath, "Portrait" by Oskar Gross, "Glacier Park Flowers" by Adolph Heinze and "Toilers of the Sky" by James Topping.

Sculpture Awards Made.

The sculpture awards, the Mrs. E. Mansfield Jones prize, and the Chicago Galleries association prize were awarded to Viola Norman for her "King of the Yards"; to Emory P. Seidel for "Classic Rhythm"; and to Elizabeth Haseltine for her delightful "Jungle Babies."

At Kroch's Book store there is hanging an exhibit of landscape by O. B. Jacobson of Oklahoma. The landscapes are rugged pictures painted with a suggestion of the manner of Birger Sandzen and their beauty lies more in their constructive appeal than in any softer quality. The effects are blocked out, the contours are massive, even the clouds are handled like roughly cut marble, and a curious stillness lies over them all. So much, you feel, has been given to the mathematics of these paintings the imagination has been left behind; lighter touches are conspicuous only by their absence.

However, there is a sort of solemn beauty about these arrangements. Two or three possess an earnest loveliness that is rather fascinating. One in particular, a rugged mass of mountain with a deep blue pool in the foreground, grows upon one's consciousness. The paintings must be enjoyed at a distance and a few at a time. The stupendous calm that shadows them and the unrelenting severity of the colors make them impossible of swift or easy assimilation.

This exhibit will be followed by the exhibition of "Musicians' Portraits" by James Walsh and that in turn will give way to water colors by C. M. Johnson to be shown about the middle of August.

An innovation in the way of an art museum is the building in New York City for which the corner stone was recently laid. It is a skyscraper called "The Master Building." It will house the Nicolas Roerich collection of paintings and oriental art. Mr. Roerich will be remembered as the celebrated Russian painter who held an exhibition of his work here in the Art institute in 1922. His paintings possessed beautiful color and were mystical in mood. They created something of a sensation, and interest in his work has been sustained by a number of dramatic and operatic settings he devised later.

Einstein Wishes for Success.

When the corner stone for the new museum for his work was laid messages were received from everywhere from people of note. Einstein, from Germany, wrote: "With all my heart I wish the directors of the Roerich museum the greatest success in the realization of the great work they are doing in the interest of world peace." Director Harshe, of the Chicago Art institute, sent a similar message and the movement is finding echoes of cheer from the four quarters of the globe.

Last Friday saw the graduating exercises for the Art institute school. They were held in the Goodman Memorial theater and afterwards the friends and guests of the students thronged the east wing galleries where the student exhibition is current.

Why Konjola Is Making New Friends

THIS new medicine is highly recommended by nearly every one who has taken it. Our customers are strongly endorsing it, thus Konjola is making new friends and keeping old ones.

It contains 32 ingredients—22 of them juices of natural plants. These have a beneficial effect upon the digestive and eliminative organs. Taken immediately after meals, it helps digest the food, thus assisting nature so the body may derive the fullest benefit from every meal.

Konjola sales have been phenomenal, due entirely to merit. Five carloads have been sold in Chicago since February 15th, yet this medicine is not a cure-all—not a chemical—not alcoholic. It is keeping thousands of people feeling like their real selves. Sold at all Walgreen and Economical Drug Stores.

The Konjola representative is explaining the merits of this new medicine to large crowds daily at the Walgreen Store, State and Washington. Other Konjola representatives may be seen at the following stores:

are disconsolate. Connoisseurs of feminine beauty who have been in the habit of sitting at sidewalk tables contemplating, with approval, the shapeliness of a dozen Hollywood actresses, are morose. Nor does it answer their worry to inform them that Hollywood will have plenty of shapely extra girls and chorus girls as backgrounds in talking films of stage life, etc. The despondent beauty-lovers know that a blonde in the background is not like a blonde in a close-up.

They Can't Stay Away

"And yet Europeans cannot stay away from talking pictures. They may object to the American language, still they get more pleasure out of a singing and talking Yankee film like 'Broadway Melody' or 'Innocents of Paris' or 'Singing Fool' than out of their own brands of silent film. Supposing they boycott the American talkies? Their own producers have little to offer them. English films which started out to save Brittania with so much imperial gusto have folded up like Cornwallis at Yorktown.

"Nobody can be sure what the Germans will do with their talking picture developments. Their language is a barrier for it is neither so universal as French or English. French films are at the low ebb of their modest history. 'Waterloo,' their big special for 1929, was about what the weakest of American directors were doing ten years ago and the famous clash of Napoleon's Old Guard with Wellington's squares was as vicious as the Hal Roach bathing beauties playing pushball on the Pacific beaches.

"It looks as though Columbia would rule the sound waves for some time to come."

See you tomorrow!

Voice of the Movie Fan

If you would like your letters printed in this column, please write on ONE SIDE of the paper ONLY. If you want a personal answer send stamped, self-addressed envelope—PLEASE.

A Boomerang.

Dear Miss Tinée: If you are holding the stakes in this "Wild Orchid" controversy, please tell J. S. that he owes me a nickel. I haven't been married "about thirty years"—only twenty-five. And if he "can't imagine what sort of a person Mrs. W. can be like," I'll tell him. I'm the "sort of a person" my husband says he'd marry if he had to do it all over again; and the kids say, "O, you can tell Mom anything. She won't be shocked, and she won't make fun of you." I am nearly fifty years old and weigh not quite 130 pounds. So there!

As to "it's taking some one else to love your wife or husband before you can appreciate him or her," that is the bunk. If my husband were the kind of a poor fish Lewis Stone was portraying in the aforesaid picture, I'd want him to go to bed and to sleep just as early as possible—before the moon arose over the garden; and then I'd sneak out and what I'd do would be nobody's business. No, I'll take that back. What I'd do would be everybody's business. As I have said before, we live in a small town.

My husband was in the city last week. We do not have the talkies here, ever, so he went to hear 'em. He heard Richard Dix in "Nothing But the Truth," and Maurice Chevalier in "Innocents of Paris." He went to see Maurice twice. These shows were, he said, "real entertainment." He was sorry I wasn't "along." I am just as well satisfied that he didn't look up Greta.

MRS. W.

P. S.—Please, please, Miss Tinée, let me have the last word.

Editor's note—I hold no stakes. I am no arbitrator. I'm just an interested bystander—standing by.

Objects to Baclanova.

Dear Miss Tinee: This is my first attempt in writing and this is what I want to say: I have seen the "Wolf of Wall Street," which was a very good picture as far as Baclanova. I wonder if any of the fans will agree with me. I think her dialect was simply disgusting and why should we have foreigners when we have so many capable and intelligent American actors and actresses?

Thank you, May, for printing this letter.

Sincerely yours,
J. L.

Talkers and Talkies.

Mae Tinée: Just a few words in regard to the "Talkies." They are great; I'm in favor of them, but what could be more annoying than to miss half the conversation that is going on on the screen, all through the fault of the "hee-hawers" that sit all around you? It is positively disgusting. Can't people suppress their emotions and laugh quietly when something funny is said? I am not an old prude or anything like that, but only a girl of eighteen with a perfect sense of hearing, and, believe me, when I say that I enjoy the movie just as much as they do, only I do not find it necessary to create a disturbance. I see that they are now putting a notice on the screen reading "Silence." No doubt this means "banish all loud talking and coughing." I am almost sure it also means "suppress all uproarious laughter." If it were not for this, the "talkies" would be faultless. MARIE BALKE.

Singer Explains.

Dear Miss Tinée: In reference to your criticism on THE TIME, PLACE AND GIRL, you state that you were not positive as to whether the story presented in the picture was taken from the original book, and that you had not seen the play when it was presented some twenty-three years ago.

I sold THE TIME, PLACE AND GIRL to Warner Brothers for exclusive picture rights. They had the privilege of using the title only and one song. The story in the picture is not the story in the original play. In fact, I understand it is entirely different. The theme song, "Honeymoon," is the only selection from the original used in the picture.

MORT H. SINGER.

Editor's note — Thank you, Mr. Singer!

Police Outraged by Fake Relics

MOULINS, France.—(AP)—What article in the French penal code covers the faking of prehistoric relics is the problem which has been puzzling the courts here following the report of Prof. Beyle, a Paris expert, that the famous Globel discoveries were spurious. He concluded that most of the "prehistoric" finds had been planted less than ten years ago.

Emile Frandin, owner of the field where the "relics" were located, has been charged with faking the tools and alphabetic tablets with strange hieroglyphics, the Prehistoric Society of Paris laying the charge. The trouble arose when the clerk of the court attempted to draw it up. Nothing in the code covered the "crime."

He is likely to be charged with "outrage to the police" because policemen were on duty at the field for several weeks to guard the "finds."

In Hollywood

Hollywood, C

"Black Narcissus," dealing the adventures of the Wild Lily, the goat from a story by Wiley, is a two reel comedy recently made by Brice. Six of the huge W are being made into talking by Buck and Bubbles, dark ville team, who dance and piano.

H. C. L. Highest in Madrid; Butter at Dollar a Pound

MADRID.—(AP)—The Spanish capital, except for Moscow, is now the most expensive spot in Europe, if not in the world, in which to live, by British or American standards. Bankers, travelers and economists agree on this.

The Anglo-South American bank, a London organization which maintains a large branch here and keeps a big staff of young Englishment constantly in training for the South American field, has until recently allowed its employés 40 per cent of the salaries as an extra living allowance. Because of the rising costs in living this has just been increased to 45 per cent.

The National Telephone Company of Spain, an American firm, allows its American employés a flat $250 a month for subsistence in addition to their salaries.

Butter $1 a Pound.

Some indication of the general cost of living may be gleaned from the price of butter, which sells at around $1 a pound. The cost of good cheese is only slightly lower. Veal costs about 60 cents a pound and steak is higher than veal. Potatoes sell for 3 cents, a pound which for averaged sized spuds makes them cost a fraction more than a cent apiece.

Women's clothing at the most ordinary shop in Madrid commands higher prices than in Bond street or Rue de la Paix. Men's clothing is only slightly cheaper.

Before the war the peseta stood, roughly, at five to the dollar. Taking the cost of living at that time at an index figure of 100, it has increased now to 190, or nearly double. Official figures of the Spanish government show further that meanwhile the peseta has only advanced to, roughly, between six and seven for the dollar. And indications are that this advance is only momentary.

Vegetable Prices Up.

These official index figures of the Spanish government will show how the cost of living in Madrid advanced within a year.

Vegetables went from 139 in March, 1928, to 162 in March, 1929; meats remained stationary at 213. The combined index figures representing all combustibles such as gas, oil and electric lights, showed an advance from 169 to 174. Altogether the general index figure for Madrid showed an advance in cost of living from March, 1928, to March, 1929, of 8 points, that is to say, from 176 to 184.

But the Anglo-American standard of living is considerably higher than that which obtains in the average Spanish home. The native white collar worker is satisfied with a plate of beans cooked in olive oil, a piece of fat pork, a chunk of bread and a glass of cheap wine. A diet of this kind may be obtained comparatively cheaply and he can eat it day after day without satiety.

MY GREATEST THRILL

Write and tell us about the greatest thrill you ever experienced, and if we print your letter we'll pay you $1. Make your letters short and snappy. Address them to "Greatest Thrill" Editor, The Chicago Tribune.

Winning the Prize.

It was my first adventure into the literary world. I had written an essay with a prize of fifty dollars as my object. The returns were to be announced in two days. During that time I could hardly contain myself.

At last the day arrived. At two o'clock the train came in with the news. I rushed down to the postoffice to receive the mail, especially my letter. I opened the letter, and lo and behold, out tumbled a certified check for FIFTY DOLLARS! My heart stood still for fully five beats.

D. R. B.

On a Dare.

I had a great thrill at the rate of 640 vibrations a second for a period of 33 seconds, which was about 30 minutes long, as judged by my feelings. It was this way. I took a dare to ride down a steep hill on the old-fashioned bicycle [front wheel 52 inches high, rear about 14 inches]. The hill was about 30 rods from top to bottom, and curved so one could not see from end to end.

Soon after starting I lost the pedals and so had no braking power; so with my feet in the air and the wheel going as fast as it could down hill, I had to turn out on rain gutted gravel to pass a team coming up hill around the curve.

I was scared nearly dumb for fear of taking a header that would split me in two. I finished the descent and got the wheel under control at the bottom of the hill, but $100 would not tempt me to try the ride again.

NEW low prices on genuine no-wringer EASY WASHERS

The no-wringer principle developed by EASY has revolutionized the washing machine business!

Hundreds of thousands of women the country over have given their enthusiastic endorsement to the no-wringer EASY Washer. And now we are able to announce even greater achievements—two new and improved EASY Washers at the lowest prices ever asked for any no-wringer EASY. Take your choice of

A new agitator type washer

An improved suction type washer

Both have the famous centrifugal Damp-Dryer in place of the old-fashioned wringer. Both are safe—wonderfully efficient—more compact—shorter and lower than any previous no-wringer EASY Washer. Both sell for the same low price—the lowest ever asked for any no-wringer EASY.

Safer—faster—easier—gentler

Hand feeding the old-fashioned wringer—piece-by-piece—is slow and tedious in comparison with the safe, new EASY method of whirling the water out of a tubful of clothes in less than two minutes. The famous EASY Damp-Dryer handles clothes more gently than any wringer. It puts no strain on fabrics—does not crack silks, break buttons nor stretch blankets and woolens.

And it takes out more water than wringing. Sun-drying on the line is made faster.

Line-dry indoors in bad weather

The EASY Damp-Dryer leaves clothes evenly damp. The hems do not drip. In bad weather, clothes can be line-dried indoors for ironing the same day.

Bulky things like blankets and pillows which will not go through a wringer are easily handled. Ironing also is easier because the clothes are free from deep, hard creases. Rinsing can be done in the Damp-Dryer without handling the clothes until ready for sun-drying.

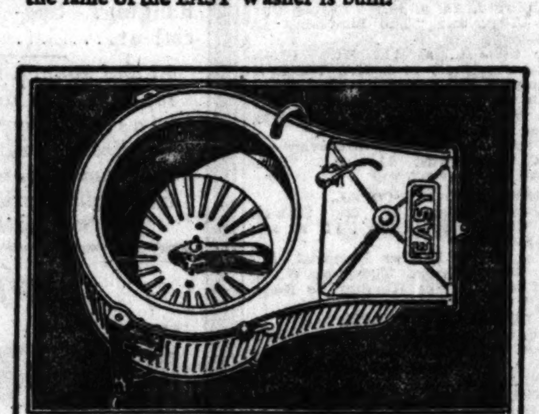
Wash tub and Damp-Dryer operate independently—hence the EASY handles two batches of clothes at one time. A power pump empties all water for you.

Free trial offer

Try the new EASY—free—in your own home—on your own clothes. You can pay for it on easy terms. Your nearest dealer will gladly place one in your home on free trial.

Suction Type No-wringer EASY

Handsomer—more compact—many inches shorter and lower than any previous no-wringer EASY. Fits into smallest kitchen. Safety controls even simpler than before. An 8-pound capacity as compared with 6 pounds for most washers. Three suction cups move up and down and around—66 times a minute—flushing air, soap and water through the clothes. Entire texture thoroughly cleaned in a few minutes. This is the vacuum principle of washing on which the fame of the EASY Washer is built.



Agitator Type No-wringer EASY

A startling new washing machine principle in agitator type washer, developed by EASY engineers. Bottom has washboard corrugations. As clothes pass over them in a spiral movement, suction is created. This action flushes soap and water through the clothes. Mesh of the cloth thoroughly cleaned while agitator fin washes surface. Amazing speed obtained by this new EASY method without harmful short-cuts. An 8-pound washing capacity—2 pounds more than the average washer. Controls simpler and fewer than those of any wringer washer.

An EASY Wringer-Type Washer May Be Purchased for as Little as $99.50 F. O. B. Factory

Also supplied with 4-cycle gasoline motor for homes without electricity

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Lutherans Hold a Massmeeting in City Today

THE 34th triennial convention of the Evangelical Lutheran synod of Missouri, Ohio, and other states is in session at Concordia Teachers seminary, River Forest, Ill., and will close next Sunday evening with the Lutheran exposition at the Hotel Sherman. This afternoon at 3 o'clock at Soldiers' field will be held one of the greatest meetings on the program of the convention. It will be a grand massmeeting to commemorate the 400th anniversary of the publication of Luther's small catechism. A mixed chorus of 3,000 voices and a children's chorus of 1,000 accompanied by the Concordia Teachers college band, will give the musical part of the program.

Prof. Walter A. Maier, Concordia seminary, St. Louis, Mo., will make the principal address. One of the impressive features will be the confession of faith of 150,000 Lutherans when they unite in repeating the apostles' creed. A huge pageant and flag drill will be given by 4,000 children from the Chicago Lutheran schools.

More than a thousand delegates representing over a million members are in attendance and are being entertained by the 200 Lutheran churches of Greater Chicago. On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the convention hall of Concordia college there will be a special service in commemoration of the presentation of the Augsburg confession and the publication of the Book of Concord at which the sermon will be preached by Prof. Otto C. A. Boecler of St. Louis, Mo. The Chicago Bach chorus will sing.

Saturday and next Sunday at the Hotel Sherman there will be a Lutheran exposition exhibiting world-wide activities of the Missouri synod by means of word, picture, and motion picture. VIEW AT VILLA TURICUM, MRS. ROCKEFELLER M'CORMICK'S LAKE FOREST ESTATE.

MRS. ALBERT BLAKE DICK JR. and MRS. CYRUS H. ADAMS.

THE Lake Forest Garden club held a most successful flower show, their third annual one, at Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick's estate, Villa Turicum, in Lake Forest last week-end. Mrs. Albert B. Dick Jr., and Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams were members of the committee that engineered the affair.

Mrs. William McCormick Blair opened her Lake Bluff residence for a sale for the Eli Bates settlement recently, and had assisting her Mrs. Farwell Winston, Mrs. William H. Mitchell, Mrs. T. Clifford Rodman, and Mrs. Jay Morse Ely, who was here for a few days on her way to California. The sale was held in the Blairs' indoor tennis court.

MRS. WILLIAM M'CORMICK BLAIR and MRS. T. CLIFFORD RODMAN.

Earl, Countess of Portsmouth Once Residents

Mrs. Mina Van Winkle Is C. N. Goodwin's Guest.

Mme. X.

THE brief visit here last week-end of the earl and countess of Portsmouth, who were the house guests of the Samuel J. Walkers III, was a real event to their many friends here. Their marriage was a romance of thirty odd years ago. At that time the present peer was a younger brother of a hale and hearty earl, with two or three brothers between him and the title, any or all of whom would in all likelihood be married and beget offspring before any chance hove in sight of his being eligible or in line for what is one of the historic peerages of Merrie England. He had come to this country, as did so many younger sons of England's aristocracy at that time, to make his way.

Following the traditions of his kind he sought the wide open spaces of the west, which was then a little known but picturesque region, a country where Indians were extant; where bears roamed the uplands; where Bret Harte's stories were still realities; where fortunes seemed likely for those who discovered rich mines, or raised big herds and flocks on the unfenced wide open spaces. It was a life of adventure, hardships, and uncertainties, but alluring to the aristocratic youth of England, to whom trade and finance had by custom long been taboo. South Africa had not yet become the land of promise to them it became later.

Young Oliver Henry Wallop, as Lord Portsmouth was born, tried many of the various careers possible at that time in the northwest. He was a prospector, an explorer, and other things before he finally settled down to ranching. He endured many trials and real hardships. He didn't mind them; in fact, he liked them. He enjoyed nothing better in those early days than to go off entirely alone in the mountains, with a small pack on his back, killing and cooking his own food, sleeping in his blanket under some tall pines, footing it up and down the steep sides of lofty mountains; and all this quite alone. He was good company for himself and seemed never to know loneliness. It takes a great deal of character to do this with zest.

A Ranch in Wyoming.

Finally, he bought a ranch in Wyoming in a wide and fertile valley at the foot of the Big Horn mountains, near the town of Sheridan. Two English friends of his, William and Malcolm Moncrieffe, acquired a neighboring ranch, and the trio became American citizens.

Fate and business brought Mr. Wallop to Chicago, where he immediately made many real friends. He was much sought after and invited by the social leaders of that day and gained an immediate popularity. He was always what is termed in this country "a good mixer," a charming man, an incipient poet.

Here he met and promptly fell in love with Miss Marguerite Walker, daughter of one of Chicago's best known pioneer citizens, the late Samuel J. Walker. They were married in [illegible] and made their home on his Wyoming ranch, where they have lived ever since, except for winters spent in more balmy climates. When they first set up their lares and penates there, life was still in a simple and crude state. In spite of the fact that she had always dwelt among the many amenities of a city, Mrs. Wallop, who was a "good sport" as well as a delightful young woman, promptly adapted herself to her new environment and became as expert in the many details in which a woman can be of use on a ranch as any of her sex to the western manner born. Her sister, Miss Amy Walker, a couple of years later married Malcolm Moncrieffe, and also has spent the intervening years in that delectable but exacting valley.

Today the land thereabouts is much more thickly settled than it was thirty years ago, and when the Portsmouth's son, the Hon. Oliver Malcolm Wallop and his bride settle there they will find life much easier than did their parents years ago. He is the earl's second son, and recently married Miss Jean Moore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Moore of Long Island, who lived in Chicago not so many years ago. The Moores built the handsome house on Green Bay road in Lake Forest which is now the home of the family of the late John R. Thompson.

A Gentleman Farmer.

Lord Portsmouth's eldest son, Gerald, bears the courtesy title of Lord Lymington. He, too, married an American girl, a Miss Mary Post of New York, and they make their home in England. In the recent elections, and in spite of the fact that the Labor party had an unexpected victory, he was returned to parliament by a majority of 5,000 votes on the Conservative ticket. He makes his home in Suffolk, where he is what the English would call "a gentleman farmer." He takes after his father's family in that he is blue eyed and has red hair, which has been considered a characteristic of the Portsmouths for many generations. His father's eldest brother, the late Earl of Portsmouth, was noted for his ruddy hirsute crop, though the present earl has brown hair and eyes.

Lord Lymington is not only a farmer and a legislator; he is also a poet of quite a rare and unusual distinction, and is an example of that classic culture which English universities impart to their students. An attractive collection of his poems, strongly tinctured with this quality, recently was privately published.

Entitled to Seat in Parliament.

Lord Portsmouth has so long been identified with this country that he has up to now hesitated to take out the necessary papers which would entitle him to a seat in the house of lords. He has served one or two terms in the state legislature of Wyoming, and at the time that he inherited the earldom was considering an invitation made by the people of that part of Wyoming where he lives to run for governor of the state.

It is one of the strong traditions of the English nobility and gentry that to serve their country is the highest privilege. It is to be hoped that in time it may also become the prevailing desire of the educated American to enter public life. It is such disinterested service that secures the best administration for any nation. Up to now the average American has devoted himself so exclusively to business that when one of what elsewhere would be known as the leisure class of this country goes into politics it is

Newcomers at Newport Send Rentals Soaring Sky High

By Nancy Randolph.

NEW YORK, June 22.—[Special.]—There is not the least bit of doubt that the early season this year has been hastened by unusual weather. One can't imagine staying on in town without the greatest of provocation—and society admits of no such bar to escaping heat.

Frankly, there isn't anything going on in town—and little outside it at present, for we have been suffering from a veritable furnace blast which makes golfing almost impossible, motoring a torture, and even the surf far from agreeable.

Thus the notables have departed, very much like the Arabs, and are reappearing at Newport and Southampton, where cool verandas and iced drinks, plus a decent game of contract, gives some excuse for existing. Later on, when more temperate weather puts in an appearance, society will begin to take an interest in the annual activities—the garden fêtes, pageants, horse shows, gymkhanas, and such. But not at present—no indeed.

Rentals Soar at Spas.

I noted long ago that Newport was in for a revival such as it has not had in several decades. More new families have appeared than ever before. Each has heartened the other, until the newcomers are making a decent sized colony for themselves at the most fashionable of resorts.

One result of this, you may be sure, is that rentals have soared at the fashionable resorts, Southampton, Narragansett, and Bar Harbor, as well as at Newport, until they have reached heights that would have seemed fantastic a couple of years ago. It is nothing for a cottage to demand a rental of $5,000 for the three months, where last year $2,500 was considered a lot.

But things have been changing. Europe is so overrun with tourists during the vacation months that society has given up its habit of visiting the Riviera and Paris during the summer and is settling down for all July, August, and September at Newport and kindred spas.

Poor Laura Biddle Stewart! I can't think of any girl of the past half decade who has had so unfortunate a time as the daughter of Craig Biddle and the late Laura Biddle.

That her mother was unfortunate as well is a tale that no one needs be told. As a debutante Laura constantly lived in a shadow. She was unusually sensitive, a tall, quiet girl who made her debut with no fuss and furore and seemed content to let her father take all the fame of the family.

When Laura became engaged to that most elusive of bachelors, William Rhinelander Stewart Jr., brother of Princess Miguel De Braganza and squire of every lovely woman from Connie Talmadge to Lady Diana Manners, society gasped, drew a deep breath, and then sighed happily. Laura had drawn the great prize, and every one vowed that she would take her place among the very leaders of society.

Never Quite Hit It Off.

However, the cloud of ill fortune that seems to overhang the Biddle women, darkened for Laura. She and Willie never quite hit it off. Their marriage was of short duration, and Laura came back from abroad a free woman.

It wasn't "just one of those things." Laura had no other man in sight when she secured her freedom from the genial Willie Jr. That was made clear when she quietly slipped away from all social activities, and completely eschewed Newport, where once she was so noted a post debutante.

Now Laura lives quietly at her estate in the Berkshires. Now and then she goes to visit her father and stepmother at a resort neighboring Narragansett pier, only to return to the quietness of the Berkshire hills. She has little interest in society and

Congress Goes Home; Cabinet Stays Behind

Diplomatic Corps Will Remain Near Capital.

By Maxine Davis.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—Congress has left the capital. . . . But the cabinet lingers on.

President and Mrs. Hoover have indicated that they will be in Washington the major part of the summer, and the members of the cabinet have prepared to hold the fort with their chief. Several wives have left the city, however, but most of them have gone only week-end distance away, and are expecting to entertain their distinguished spouses from Saturday till Monday through the hot weather.

Mrs. Good, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Brown have decided to brave the terrors of Washington's torrid season and stay here with their own cabinet secretaries.

Mrs. James Davis, wife of the secretary of labor, has taken her five "little J's" to Atlantic City, where the healthy youngsters can play in the surf, and where their father might even sneak a day with them in midweek.

Goods Ready for Summer.

The secretary of war and Mrs. Good, preparing for their long summer's sojourn, have rented Mrs. Richard Porter Davidson's charming home on the Rockville pike, about a half hour's drive from the war department and in real country.

The secretary of the navy and Mrs. Adams have moved into a house next door to the one they expect to occupy in the autumn. They are having the place renovated, and Mrs. Adams feels that decorating a house is the most diverting thing imaginable. They hope to slip away to New England for a few brief trips, and to do a little yachting. But Mrs. Adams' chief interest for the summer will be her new home.

The Walter Browns are at Wardman Park hotel, and placidly plan to stay where they are.

Mrs. Stimson, wife of the secretary of state, came to the capital for a few usually the cause for much comment and question.

"What does he think he's going to get out of it?" is the attitude of the rest of his kind.

Policewoman Visits Here.

Another interesting personality who spent last week-end in this part of the country, as the guest of the Clarence N. Goodwins at Lake Forest, was Mrs. Mina Van Winkle. She is the national head of the American Policewomen's alliance, an organization whose work needs a wider knowledge to be appreciated at its true worth. There is an international alliance of policewomen, at whose head is Miss Mary Allen of England, a remarkable personality. Four years ago she visited Chicago, and Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick organized a meeting at which Miss Allen told of the needs and achievements of policewomen. She herself was an interesting, picturesque figure. She wore the coat and cap of the British policeman and had an air of quiet efficiency that much impressed those who met her. What she had to say made a deep impression on her hearers.

The condition of women prisoners under the age old régime of men was, and still is in places where there are no policewomen, a dark blot on our civilization. Many of the stories of what happens under these circumstances cannot be printed here. The movement to install efficient policewomen in all jails is yet in its infancy in this country and should be developed rapidly if we want to clear our skirts of scandal. There are over 600 policewomen in the U. S. A., but comparatively few of them belong to this association, the majority being political appointments and therefore lacking in that disinterested and trained efficiency so necessary to this kind of public service. Not until our police are entirely divorced from politics will they achieve the real usefulness that should be the requisite of this, the most important branch of our executive government.

Mrs. Van Winkle is undertaking a nation-wide campaign to interest men and women in this matter.

The federal government is more active in its development than any local bodies. This branch of our penal system has established a prison just for women in Aldis, W. Va., that is a model of its kind. If there is any chance to redeem those of our unfortunate sisters who are convicted of crimes it is to be found at such an institution, where they are treated like human beings, not like vicious incurables.

Among the Chicago women interested in this movement are Mrs. Joseph Bowen, Mrs. Harold Ickes, and Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick.

Once Owned Treasure Island

Mrs. Van Winkle and her late husband were the owners and founders of Treasure Island, famous in local annals as the home of the John T. McCutcheons. This is a veritable Eden that lies a few miles away from Nassau, in the Bahama islands. It was once the haunt of pirates, whose ghosts are supposed still to appear on moonlit nights. As the island belongs to Great Britain and as Great Britain has not yet gone dry, one can't think that these apparitions are rum runners, so it must be believed that they are the ghosts of ancient sea robbers, a picturesque and violent outfit much like our present smugglers and rum runners. In future days when we have emerged from this unfortunate era we shall look back to it as do the English to the days of the smugglers in the latter part of the eighteenth and early part of the nineteenth centuries. Its grim quality will disappear and legend will endow it with much the same picturesque attributes as those that hang about the traditions of those days a century and more ago.

Mrs. Van Winkle and her husband "created" Treasure Island and made from what was a desolate coral cay a thickly wooded and lovely refuge, where, far from the madding crowd, they found a delicious asylum. They built charming little cottages there and planted a cocoanut grove that is today a feature of the place. They also planted many other things that grow in that tropical climate and made of the island a popular rendezvous for the people who lived on the nearby islands.

When death took Mr. Van Winkle, Mrs. Van Winkle sold it "lock, stock and barrel" to the McCutcheons, both of whom saw it for the first time when they went there on their honeymoon.

Everything in the way of equipment was there and all they needed was their own wardrobes. For night on to twelve years they have made this lovely island their refuge when they wanted change and refreshment, except at such times when the spirit of adventure moved them, as it did last winter, to explore remote and none too safe countries. Their recent trip across the equatorial part of South America from the Pacific to the Atlantic, while it was delightful, was not without serious danger, resembling in this the tour they made of the Gobi desert a few years ago when China was just rousing from its age old torpor and was as dangerous a country as could be found on this globe of ours. The Charles Barney Goodspeeds were their traveling companions on that trip.

The South American excursion they made alone. When the conductor of this column asked them if, on their flight in a one motored airplane across the pathless jungle of the Andes mountains in March, they had not had certain compunctions when they thought of their three children, they said:

"We didn't think about them. We kept ourselves from doing so until we landed safely."

Mild Plumbing.

Apropos of traveling and seeking quiet havens is this advertisement in an English newspaper which for naïveté, as the slangy would express it, "takes the cake." It was brought to my attention by Mr. A. N. Day of Lake Forest. It is headed: "Rest in England." Under this is the following alluring description:

"Medieval moated farm; simple living; mild plumbing; ample conversation, and no sightseeing [unless desired]; $20 weekly inclusive." It is signed "Miss Balfour, New Bells, Haughley, Suffolk, England."

"Mild plumbing; ample conversation," don't you like that? In this country mild plumbing might produce ample conversation, but that is because we look at plumbing differently. We invented it; the British have merely been forced to consider it when tempting their profitable American visitors. To them to have it mild is evidently a great asset. Violent plumbing—that is what we have at home, and I think that is the way it might be described by those reluctant to admit its desirability.

"Ample conversation." Isn't that offered as a compensation for the mild plumbing? As the plumbing grows milder, the conversation grows ampler Yes, it would in this country, also.

Events of the Week.

To return to local matters:

The Guernsey cattle show of last Thursday at Wheaton, the Park Ridge school's luncheon and pageant of Friday, the Lake Forest horse show of Friday and Saturday, the opening of Ravinia's open air opera last night, all came too late for this pillar of polite piffle to notice from personal inspection. WE [with capital letters] turn in our copy on Wednesdays, so any one desirous of getting special notices from us should have their parties, performances and presentations on one of the first four days of the week. Many items of news come to us from those desiring publicity which cannot be used because of their tardy arrival. Others come which from their nature do not qualify as material suitable for this col., the X. family and the managing editor being the sole judges of what is suitable.

The aim of this department is to present a fairly comprehensive view of the customs, manners, interests, amusements, occupations, attire, habits, way of living, background, sports, etc., of the so-called privileged classes [if such there be in this unmitigated democracy of ours]. At any rate, the people with whose affairs it deals are of the class whose circumstances are such as to give them education, leisure of a kind, and opportunities for cultivating the amenities of life in an intelligent manner.

In other less enlightened and more caste bound countries this outfit would be called "the upper classes," or some such unmerited title. Here we might term them "the lucky ones," or to use a more flattering one, "the successful." They are successful because many of them have attained their leisure and opportunities for distraction, entertainment and such things largely through their own labors, or, if they be women, through that of their menfolk.

Like a Fairy Tale.

What a fairyland this country seems to be for men and women of all outlooks! Matching the recently published story of the $900,000 unexpectedly left to Bishop Anderson of the Episcopal church and the diocese of Illinois, to be distributed as he sees fit, is another recent legacy about which Morris Johnston told me last week. It was left by a Dr. Thomas to a nurse, Miss Hanan, who had the care of Mr. Johnston's mother, the late Mrs. Johnston, during the last year of the latter's life. Miss Hanan was called up by an official of one of the big trust companies not long ago who asked her if she had ever known this Dr. Thomas. She answered that she had many years ago, but that she hadn't seen him for eighteen years.

"Are you sure that you've not seen him for that length of time?" she was asked. She replied that she was sure.

"Well," said the official, "he's left you and Miss So-and-so" [mentioning another nurse] "the income of five hundred thousand dollars."

"What are you saying?" she exclaimed.

He repeated the unbelievable words.

"Who are you and where can I see you?" she inquired in agitated tones.

He told her and she trotted right down to his office—taking, you may be sure, a taxi, not a street car. When you inherit the half of five hundred thousand dollars quite unexpectedly, you take the swiftest mode of travel to verify the news.

Remembered Good Work.

It seems Dr. Thomas was a well-to-do medico who had come in contact with herself and two other nurses nearly two decades before. He liked their work. His wife, who was rich in her own right, as the story goes, declined to accept some of his suggestions as to the way she should make her will, so he said that he would make his the way he wanted to, so, as his children were amply provided for, he then and there bequeathed the income of his property to three nurses, with the proviso that if one died the other two were to inherit her share. One did pass away, so these two, no longer young, and having led their lives in the pursuit of their arduous profession, now find themselves independent and well provided for. When they no longer need this pleasant income the legacy will be devoted to some specified charities.

If you read this story in a book you would think it fanciful and improbable. But here it is a bit of actual fact. Do you believe in fairies? If not, why not?

Dinner Dance for Charity.

On Thursday next, at Sky Harbor airport, will be held a dinner dance for the benefit of the Druce Lake camp. This is a summer refuge for children established in Michigan. Petrushka, that gay troupe of Russian singers and dancers, will provide a program such as only they can give. Mrs. David Dangler is the source of my information, she being publicity committee for the affair. All of the North Shore's gilded youth promises to be there and it will be a joyous occasion.

In last Tuesday's W-G-N there were a couple of paragraphs describing a meeting at Berlin of the Women's International Suffrage Alliance which was concluded by a troop of young white clad girls marching up to the platform to the strains of martial music and bearing aloft the flags of the forty-three nations where women have the suffrage. These banners were arranged in a frame behind Mrs. Corbett Ashby of England, president of the alliance. The notice concluded with the words: "The flags were presented by Mrs. F. Louis Slade of New York."

Mrs. Slade is by birth a Chicagoan and a member of the Chicago Medicis, her father being William G. McCormick. She was born in a brown stone mansion on Rush street where she and her brothers and sisters were born and reared. There were seven of them. The only one of that numerous family left here today is Chauncey McCormick, a well known and prominent citizen, much identified with the life of the community.

Through an oversight last week in mentioning Kenmore, the home of George Washington's sister, Betty Washington Lewis, whose restoration and preservation has become of great interest to many prominent people, I omitted to give the real crux of the item, which was the indorsement of it and its objects by President Hoover. Here is his letter to Mrs. V. M. Fleming, president of the Kenmore association:

"My dear Mrs. Fleming: Kenmore, like Mount Vernon, should become another national shrine of the gracious domestic life of the many-sided George Washington. Yours faithfully,

"[Signed] HERBERT HOOVER."

Congress Goes Home; Cabinet Stays Behind

Diplomatic Corps Will Remain Near Capital.

days recently, but because of her ill health, retired to the north. Mrs. Mitchell, wife of the attorney general, has departed to White Bear lake, Minn., with her mother, and hopes to be joined by her sons, and possibly her husband for a few days. Mrs. Lamont, wife of the secretary of commerce, has returned to her home in Lake Forest, Ill., and Mrs. Hyde, helpmate of the secretary of agriculture, will not leave Missouri until fall.

All the husbands, however, will stay! The only cabinet member who will be away for any period of time is Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, who is going to Colorado Springs, to an oil conference, which he will follow with an inspection tour of reclamation projects and national parks in that section. Mrs. Wilbur will accompany him.

Diplomatic Corps to Remain.

The diplomatic corps, following the example of the cabinet, will remain within easy distance of Washington. This is a departure, as the official representatives of foreign lands like to take this opportunity for going home.

The Belgian ambassador and the Princess de Ligne have decided to stay near to Washington indeed, and have taken the Symington cottage on Gibson island, a picturesque tract of land with Chesapeake bay on one side and the Magothy river on the other.

The estate was originally purchased by the old Symington family of Baltimore for a simple private summer place where there was good hunting and fishing. However, the more recent Symingtons were not so simply inclined, and permitted it to be developed into a highly fashionable retreat, with all the paraphernalia of a summer resort—golf course, tennis courts, clubhouses, cottages, and similar trappings.

The British ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard will spend the summer close to it, and the minister of Czecho-Slovakia and Mme. Veverka have established themselves nearby with their children. Officially they will all be "out of town" but actually they will be within reach of their offices.

Claudels to Paris.

France called too alluringly to the Claudels, however. Mme. Claudel, wife of the French ambassador, could not resist the Lorelei that is Paris, and is in her home there already. Her daughter, Reine, will join her shortly, as soon as the last of the June brides is led from the altar, and the ambassador will follow.

Other important diplomats, however, will neither go to their homelands nor stay in the vicinity of their labors. The Japanese ambassador and Mme. Dubuchi left today for their new summer home in Alta Vista, Pa. The minister of Hungary and Mme. Szechenyi will spend their summer being smart in Newport. They will occupy the Harry Payne Whitney estate, while the Whitneys will spend most of the season at the Breakers, the Vanderbilt estate. The Countess Szechenyi is one of the Vanderbilt clan.

The minister of Bulgaria and Mme. Radeff have taken a little cottage on the Maine coast for their holiday and the minister of Canada and Mrs. Massey will stay for a little golf before returning to their own homes.

Wedding Bells Sound.

The only sound heard in fashionable Washington this last week has been wedding bells. All the capital has looked festive with bridesmaids in uniform pastel frocks of fluttering chiffon and lace.

One of the most interesting marriages has not yet been solemnized. This will be the wedding of Miss Nancy Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hamilton, who will be married to Victor J. Alvaro, son of the minister of Panama, on June 24. The wedding will be in the Pan-American building, one of the most beautiful places in Washington. All Latin-American envoys are ex-officio members of the governing board of the building and may give parties there whenever they choose.

The secretary of state is a member of this board. Former Secretary and Mrs. Kellogg often entertained there with beautiful functions, and when Charles E. Hughes held this office his daughter, Katherine, had her wedding reception there.

Ailsa Mellon, daughter of the secretary of the treasury, also received her friends here after her marriage ceremony in Washington cathedral. Although the bride's father occupied such an eminent position, it required a great deal of negotiation to secure the building, because the formal consent of every government affiliated with the union had to be obtained.

Follow European Fashion.

Invitations to the wedding of Miss Hamilton and Dr. Alfaro followed the European fashion and were issued in the name of the bridegroom's parents. This was more than a little confusing to Washingtonians, who were not sure whether to respond to the Alfaros, or the Hamiltons, or both.

There was much scurrying about and inquiring of diplomatic friends, questioning that infallible source of social information, the state department, or of consulting official volumes of etiquette. Since there was no R. S. V. P. on the invitations, and since cards of admission to the Pan-American building were inclosed, many avoided the difficulty by not answering at all.

TAKE VOWS IN JUNE WEDDINGS

MRS. GEORGE F. HARTNETT.

THE marriage of Miss Lucille Buechele, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph F. Buechele of 2029 Jarvis avenue, to George F. Hartnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hartnett of La Salle, Ill., was solemnized on June 15 at St. Ita's church and followed by a breakfast at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

End of June Sees Holiday Makers Off to Resorts

By Mildred Jaklon.

IF you go in for travel by imagination, and have a fairly pictorial knowledge of geography, you can embark on a pleasant globe trotting expedition in your mind's eye by picturing various smart Chicagoans in spots they have chosen to inhabit for all or part of the summer months. For example, if you'd like to motor in France, pack yourself imaginatively in the luggage that will go on Mrs. Charles H. Chadwick's smart motor, or that of any of several others who are going to spend the next few months spinning over the ribbonlike roads of that lovely country.

If you like France, but would rather stay put, waft yourself to Normandy where Mrs. Alfred H. Granger, her daughter, Mrs. Thomas H. Cowles, and the adorable Cowles children are to have a cottage for the summer.

Along the Maine Coast.

Suppose the rockbound coast of Maine appeals to you? There are to be several groups of Chicagoans at Bar Harbor, Kennebunkport, and North Haven. None of them would mind your enjoying their lot vicariously. At North Haven, which is on one of those islands that look fringed on the map because they have so many bays and inlets, the Rosecrans Baldwins, the James Weber Linns, the E. Harris Brewers, and the George N. Northrops are to summer.

The Northrops are leaving any day, and their daughter, Miss Jane Northrop, who has been making some visits in the east since her studies at the Hall school finished, will join them. The Brewers don't plan to go until August.

Life at Watch Hill.

The life at Watch Hill, R. I., is more elaborate socially, and there you'll find Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers for part of the summer, those ex-Chicagoans, the C. Bai Lihmes in their show place whose name, Norman Hall, is even impressive, Mrs. George R. Nichols, Mrs. De Koven Phelps, probably winning more honors at golf as she has in the last few years, the Frank Hibbards, and the Vincent Healys.

And so, if you like, you can select almost any place on the globe that enjoys possible weather in July and August, and there discover imaginatively still, some of our townsfolk.

BRIDE

MRS. ARNOLD S. ZANDER.

The marriage of Miss Lola Dynes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Dynes of Mount Carroll, Ill., to Arnold S. Zander, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Zander of Two Rivers, Wis., took place on Saturday, June 15, at the Belmont hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Zander are both graduates of the University of Wisconsin. They will make their home in Madison, Wis.

London Completes Slum Clearance

LONDON.—(AP)—Recent opening by the lord mayor of two blocks of tenements in New street, Aldgate, marked the completion of a slum clearance program initiated by the city ten years ago. The scheme called for the demolition of 151 houses and displacement of 885 persons, 250 of whom were rehoused on the same area. Accommodations for the other 635 were erected in Wenlock road.

At the Stockbridge Golf club visitors included Mr. and Mrs. Ramsey Hoguel, Mr. and Mrs. Loyall A. Osborne, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton Fish Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. Percy D. Morgan Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. McAdoo, who are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Owen Johnson at Ingleside, and Mrs. Robert Underwood Johnson. Mr. and Mrs. John Henry Hammond are the guests of Mrs. Hammond's mother, Mrs. Henry White, at Elmcourt.

Mrs. Whitney Eludes Newport.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney has become so frightfully plunged in work that she is giving Newport the go-by this summer. Gertrude may have taken up sculpture as a pastime, but there is no doubt that it is an all consuming passion for her at present. One hears no end of opinions as to the worth of her "art," but she has most certainly gained international recognition.

The tall and impeccably costumed Mrs. Whitney and her husband, the genial Harry Payne Whitney, were expected to reside this summer at the estate on the cliffs, but a new commission to execute a group of figures decided Mrs. Whitney to remain at Old Westbury, where her studio is one of the sights of the neighborhood. Harry, of course, will not be the lone member of the family at Newport, and as a result, the Bellevue avenue villa is to house Mrs. Whitney's sister, Countess Laszlo Szchenyi, her diplomat husband and the Szchenyi children.

Eleanor Marshall Weds.

June is of course, sacred to brides, and even if they must be moist and somewhat uncomfortable ones, there is no awaiting cooler weather for weddings. At any rate the Madison avenue Presbyterian church was dim and cool this week when Eleanor Marshall became the bride of C. Alfred Capen, son of Mrs. Capen of 1146 Park avenue.

In keeping with several of the late weddings, there was no reception to follow the church ceremony, and the daughter of the L. Winfield Marshalls slipped away with her new husband for a long honeymoon, after the completion of which they will reside in town.

Eleanor wore white satin, with a veil of tulle, and walked to the altar on the arm of her dignified father. A graduate of Miss Chapin's school and of Vassar, she had her college mate, Barbara Hooker, daughter of the E. Huntington Hookers, as one of her bridesmaids, the others being Virginia Marshall, Helen Rice and Anne Halliday of Memphis. Anne Davis Capen was maid of honor for her new sister-in-law.

The Grey Shadow of 35!

Will it mar your beauty in the years ahead ◆ ◆

THE years between 20 and 35—those precious years when a woman's beauty is lost or heightened—what use are you making of them? Are you spending your beauty-time wisely—alloting some minutes each day to the care of your hair; or neglecting it completely—letting the color cells die and the drab shadow of greyness steal upon it?

Ogilvie Sisters have proven time and time again that premature greyness can be prevented. It requires simple, daily care. The scalp must be kept in healthy condition. The roots of the hair must be properly nourished; the millions of color cells thoroughly stimulated; the flow of tiny oil glands regulated. ◆ For over 20 years, Ogilvie Sisters' reputation as Hair Specialists has been famous. Their tonics, shampoos, pomades and brushes have won the confidence of men and women everywhere.

Even if your hair shows signs of greyness, there is still time to check it. If you have dry or oily scalp, dandruff—any of these fore-runners of the grey shadow—there is a scientific Ogilvie Sisters' preparation to correct it.

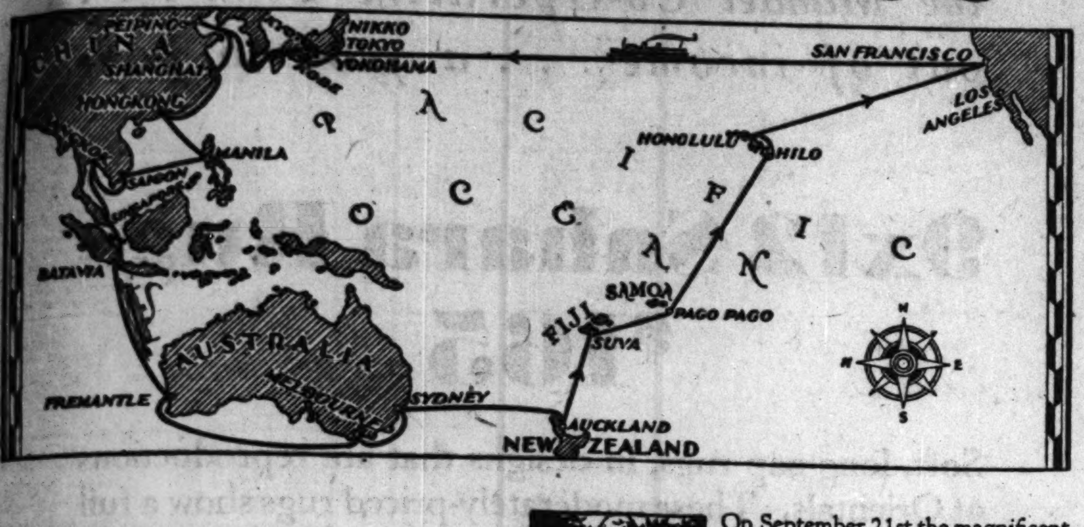
Around Pacific Cruise



On September 21st the magnificent 22,000-ton liner "MALOLO" of the Matson Line will sail from San Francisco on a glorious cruise which circles the Pacific Ocean. Reaching Japan in chrysanthemum time—then to the age-old cities of China—the Philippines—Saigon, the Paris of the Orient—the Temple of the Emerald Buddha in Siam—visiting a thousand-year old shrine in Java—mighty Singapore; down the old seaway to Australia and around to Melbourne and Sydney. Across to New Zealand—to Fiji and Samoa, gorgeous isles resting in the sea like jewels—northwards to delectable Hawaii, returning to San Francisco December 20th. Fourteen countries, twenty-eight cities—a leisurely pageant of colorful lands like maps come alive.

This memorable cruise is under the auspices of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, and the business men of America and their families are cordially invited to participate. In many respects the cruise carries out in the Pacific, the objects of the President's recent trip to South America, and those forming this unique gathering will be looked upon as ambassadors of international good-will.

Never before has it been possible to take such a cruise without a change of steamer. The entire arrangements are under the expert management of the American Express. Rates as low as $1,500 according to accommodations selected.

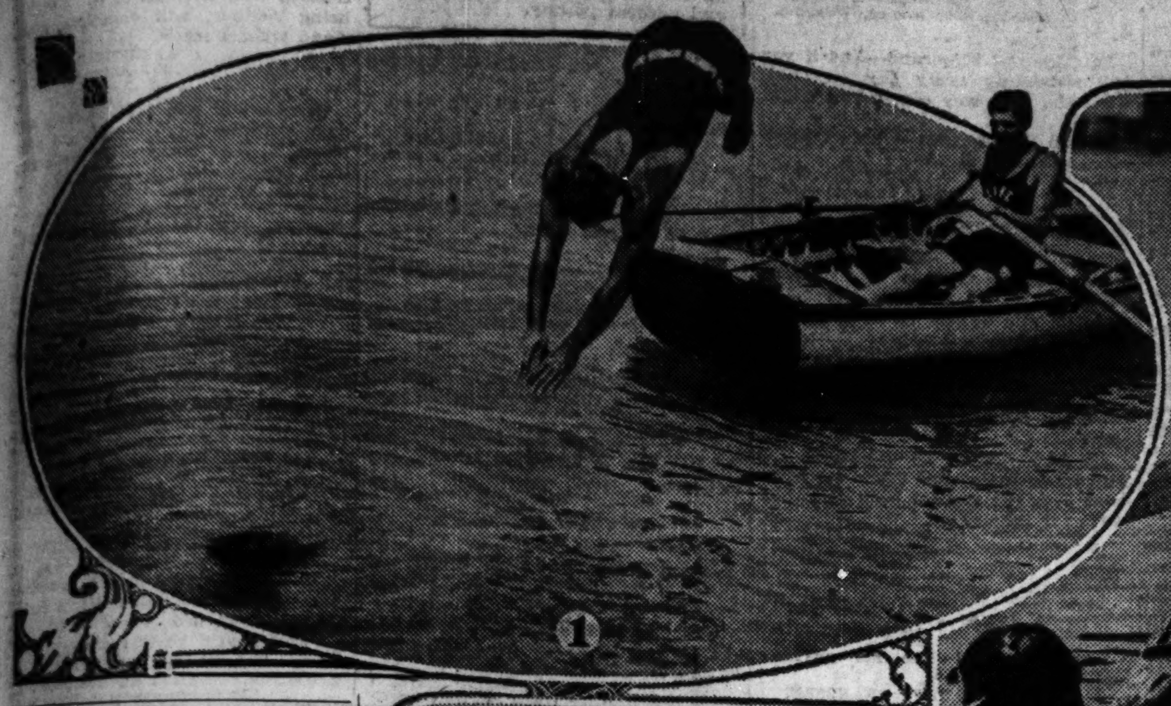
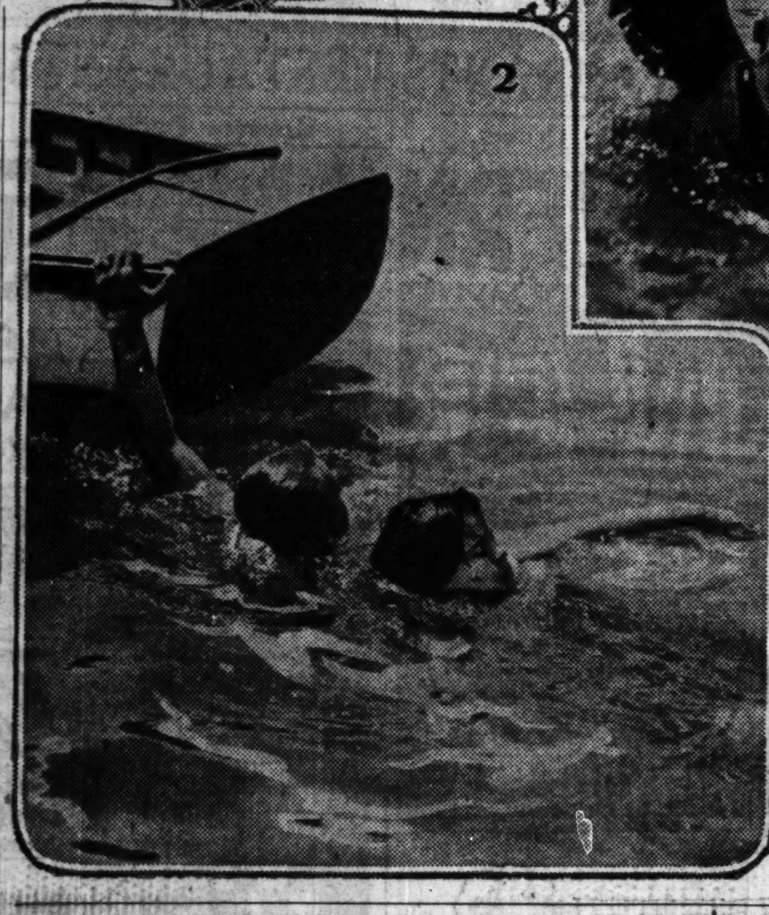
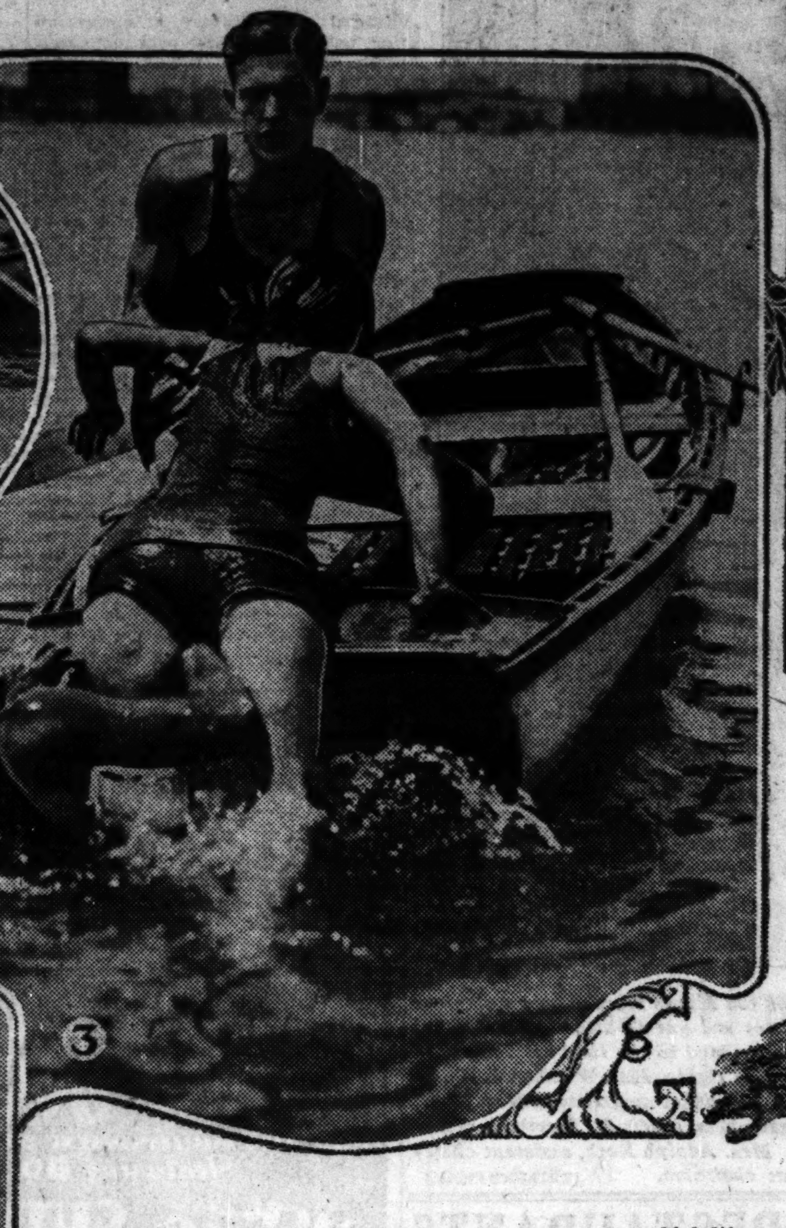
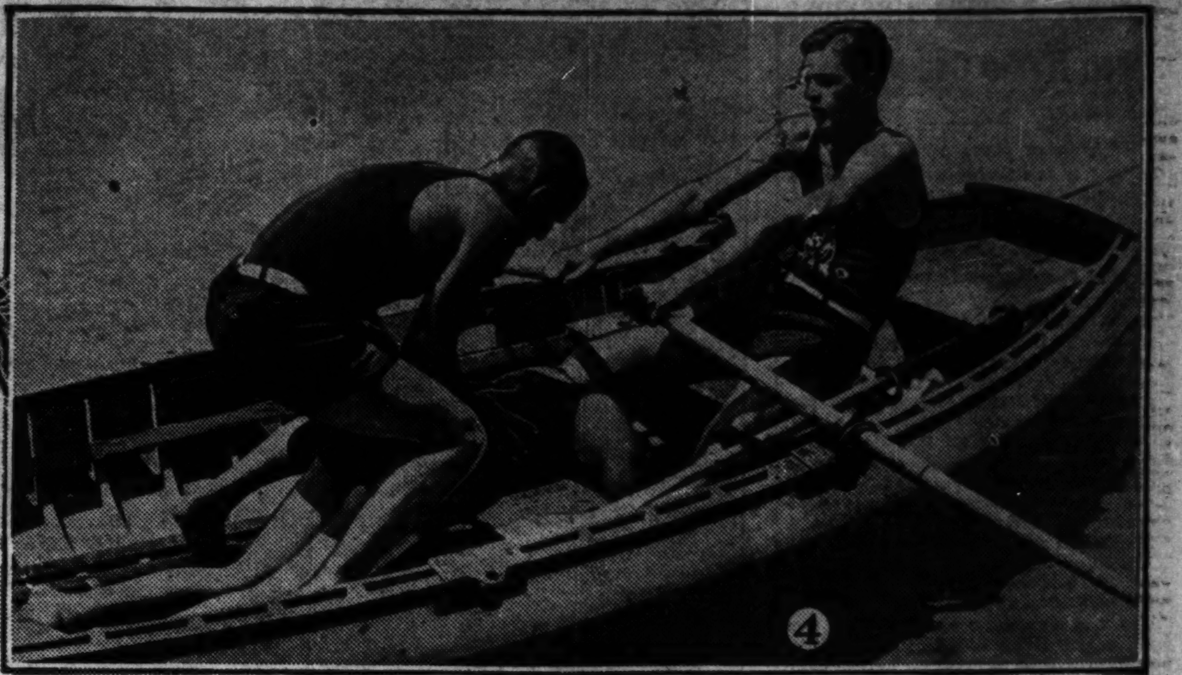
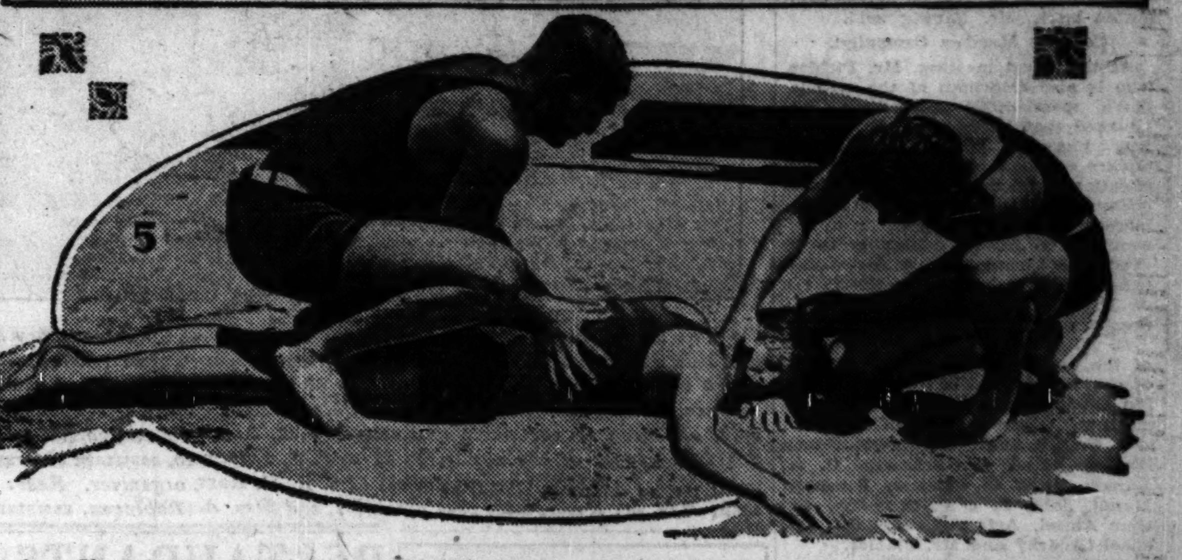
HOW LIFE GUARDS MAINTAIN PERFECT FIVE YEAR RECORD











These pictures make clear the rescue methods by which life guards at Clarendon beach have brought nearly 50,000 swimmers from the lake in the last five years without the loss of a life. 1. Charles Songer, guard, diving for Miss Lorraine Shaw, 4642 Clarendon avenue, while C. J. Magee, another guard, maneuvers the boat. 2. With a firm grip upon Miss Shaw, Songer reaches the boat. 3. BEACH GUARDS START SEASON OF LIFE SAVING Thousands Rescued at Clarendon.

More than 6,000,000 persons have visited the Clarendon municipal bathing beach in the last five years, and not a single life has been lost; more than 7,000 bathers were rescued from drowning last year, and as many as 200 have been pulled out of the water in a single day—that is the record established by the life guards at the north side playground, as revealed yesterday by James E. McGrath, beach director.

The 18 guards under the supervision of Capt. Bruno Le Fever have started another season with a determination to keep their record unmarred. The fact that the beach may be permanently closed in the fall has spurred the life savers in their efforts to make the final season the greatest and safest in its history.

1929 Season Opened.

The bathing season was officially opened yesterday, although the life guards have been on duty for more than a week. The lockers and dressing rooms were opened to the public yesterday morning and will be available to the swimmers until Labor day. The beach house will be open from 9 o'clock in the morning until 10 in the evening, while the guards will patrol the beach from 6 o'clock in the morning until midnight so that the early risers and late workers will be protected.

The corps of life guards employed by the city to watch over the bathers at the beach is composed entirely of expert swimmers and includes several members of former Olympic swimming teams. In addition to the experienced life savers, more than 60 junior life guards are trained at the beach and assist in the patrol.

Expects Record Attendance.

According to McGrath, 1,285,331 persons visited the beach last season between June 21 and Labor day. From the number who have used the beach during the last few weeks he estimates that a record attendance will be established this season. Close to 1,500,000 persons will swim or play at the beach this summer, he said. The greatest attendance for a single day was recorded on July 8 of last year when 166,285 visited the lake shore playground.

The commissioners of Lincoln park have announced that the new beach under construction several hundred yards out in the lake between Montrose and Lawrence avenues will be completed next spring. The municipal beach will then be closed and the lake filled in back of the new beach to make way for the park extension and outer drive. The new beach will be one mile long and will be reached by a roadway extending from Montrose avenue.

Dr. Fox, Planetarium Director, Is Soldier, Scholar and Artist

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

A research astronomer and a teacher of astronomy, an amateur—and a good one—in painting and music, a soldier and a scholar, Prof. Philip Fox, for twenty years head of Dearborn observatory at Northwestern university, will shortly take over his duties as director of the new Max Adler planetarium in Grant park.

Few educators, particularly in such a scientific field as his, have had more varied interests or a more contradictory career than Professor, or Doctor, or Colonel, or, now, Director Fox. He served in the Philippines and in the world war overseas as assistant chief of staff of the 7th division. And, in contrast to that, he has published his "Annals of Dearborn Observatory," two fat volumes containing his independent work in double stars, solar physics, and determinations of stellar distances.

Starts Soon for Europe.

"My duties in the planetarium," he said, "will be a new field to me and a fascinating one. The starry heavens above will be brought down to where people who live in a section like this with smoke and lights obscuring the night skies can see them."

Dr. Fox will depart next week for Europe to tour the planetaria there and study their workings and management since there will be none in the United States until Chicago's is completed.

"The stars, seen from any spot on the earth," he said, "at any time of the day on any day, past, present or future, can be thrown on the dome shaped screen in the planetarium. Plots of the sky are photographed and projected through the huge instrument with rotating disks for the planets, the moon and the sun. Even the names of the constellations can be flashed on the man-made sky."

The instrument that does all these things is a huge dumbell shaped affair with quills striking out all over it like a porcupine's back. In the quills are lenses and behind them a projecting machine which flashes the picture of the heavens on the dome. At one end are the rotating disks for the heavenly bodies with noticeable orbits. It is made by Carl Zeiss of Jena, Germany.

Construction of Building.

The building itself will be of dark Minnesota granite with the dome of copper. It will be 160 feet in diameter with the dome taking 70 feet and the outer parts 12 sided with bronzed plaques representing the signs of the zodiac. There will be space in the halls for an astronomical museum.

"There will be there," he said, "not only pieces of historical interest but many modern instruments. It is planned to have these ready to operate at the press of a button so that the visitor may view their workings."

Dr. Fox is one of the country's leading astronomers. He is well equipped to handle the direction of the technical workings of the planetarium as well as the corps of lecturers, attendants and technicians who will be on his staff.

He took his first work in Kansas State college, enlisting afterwards in the Spanish-American war and emerging a second lieutenant. On his return he took up his studies at Dartmouth, going then to a post at Yerkes observatory. In 1909 he came to Northwestern university where he has been in charge of student courses in astronomy and research work ever since.

Resides Near Conservatory.

With Mrs. Fox he has lived in the Sheridan road home next to the conservatory with their four children for many years. Two of his boys, Steven and Bertram, are graduates of Northwestern. Bert, who took his degree this June, won the conference medal for athletic prowess and scholarship, was elected to Deru, senior honor group, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, national scientific honor society, as well as being voted the most popular man in the class.

Should his new duties prove too heavy for the continuance of his research work, the familiar figure of Prof. Fox at the telescope of a winter night with his heavy boots and coat and his French chasseurs tam to ward off the cold, will be missed by students and townspeople alike.

Honor Law Student

ELIZABETH BUETHE.

Miss Elizabeth Charlotte Buethe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Buethe of 1351 Greenwood avenue, Wilmette, was the only girl to be elected to the Order of the Coif, honor society in law, out of this year's graduating class at Northwestern university Law school. She is the third woman in the state to receive the honor.

800 Take Sunday School Boat Trip to Milwaukee

Members of the Cross class of the Edgewater Presbyterian church, Bryn Mawr and Kenmore avenues, made their annual boat excursion to Milwaukee yesterday on the steamer Theodore Roosevelt. More than 800 members of the class and their guests made the trip.

Wilmette Gets Refined on Its Bathing Beach

While the Chicago city fathers have just about decided that little more than a good coat of fashionable sun tan is all right with them for beach mermaids, the Wilmette park board has decided to regulate what the well undressed man shall wear on the north shore sands.

"For men trunks must not be shorter than four inches above the knee," quoting their edict, which explains that the knee means the top of the patella, "and the skirt must not be shorter than two inches above the bottom of trunks."

Also it insists "men's suits must have skirt effect or shirt worn outside of trunks, except when flannel knee pants with belt are worn."

Flesh Colored Suits Barred.

Rules for both men and women state that "no all white or flesh colored suits may be worn, nor suits that expost the chest lower than a line drawn on a level with the armpits."

Whether this last clause will legislate against the new sunback suits remains yet to be seen.

Women have not been forgotten in the rules, although some one in the committee to draw up must have forgotten that women are not wearing blouses and bloomers any more—and certainly not to the beach. Look at this:

"Rules for women—Blouse and bloomer suits may be worn with or without stockings, providing the blouse has one-quarter arm sleeves or close fitting armholes, and providing that the bloomers are full and not shorter than four inches above the knee [top of patella]."

"Jersey knit suits are allowed, but must have skirts and comply with the other rules, tight armholes, or sleeves and such.

Other Rules for Beach.

Other beach rules announced by the park board include:

"Throwing sand will not be permitted on the beach.

"No smoking permitted in any of the bathhouses.

"Women are warned against strangers offering swimming instructcion.

"Profane language or rough conduct not tolerated.

"Positively no dressing or undressing allowed on the beach or in the shrubbery.

"Dogs are not allowed on the beach, either chained, carried, or running loose."

Wilmette's main beach at the foot of Lake avenue opened last week with a crew of guards and attendants under James A. Wrenshaw. It has lost several feet of frontage because of the rise in the lake level, but is otherwise undamaged.

EVANSTON CLUB'S JUNIORS ARRANGE FIRST OF PARTIES

The junior auxiliary of the Evanston Woman's club will be in charge of the first of a series of summer parties to be held at the clubhouse next Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Kenneth L. Wilson is chairman of the party.

Mrs. Robert L. Elliott, new president of the club, will have as her guests members of the new board at a luncheon in the Georgian hotel, preceding the bridge.

Other affairs of the summer series will be held on July 2, 9 and 16, enabling then to allow work on repairs and remodeling in the clubhouse.

MOVES TO PAVE DEVON THROUGH COUNTY FOREST

Busse Orders Plans Completed.

In order to speed the completion of Devon avenue as a through highway from the lake shore to the county line the county highway department reported yesterday that plans are being prepared for the actual paving of the street across forest preserve property east of Milwaukee avenue. This announcement was preceded by a report from the Chicago Plan commission that the last legal hurdle is about to be cleared in the completion of the city's share of the work immediately west of this street.

The board of local improvements is preparing data for a public hearing on opening Devon avenue west of Milwaukee avenue. If the project is approved at the hearing, which is probable since property owners of the district report that there is a strong sentiment in favor of it, legal procedure will have been cleared for every section of the street.

Orders Completion of Plans.

With this in view, County Commissioner William E. Busse, who has fostered the improvement, last week ordered the highway department to complete its plans for paving Devon avenue between Caldwell and Milwaukee avenues. Although there has been nothing to interfere with improving this section, the county board held back until the section in the city was approved.

Officials of the highway department announced plans will probably be completed within a month, after which the board will advertise for bids to construct a bridge and approaches across the north branch of the river which bisects the improvement. After the bridge is completed the actual paving will be done. The entire improvement will probably require a year, according to engineers of the department.

Fulfills Old Agreement.

In paving Devon avenue the county will be fulfilling the terms of an agreement made when the forest preserve property was purchased. Fred W. Brummel, who sold the property to the county a few years ago, insisted that the records of the board meeting at which the sale was completed show the county's promise to pave Devon avenue.

By the same agreement the county recently paved the street across forest preserve property between East River road and the western city limits of Park Ridge.

The fight to obtain the improvement of Devon avenue has been sponsored by the Northwest Real Estate board under the leadership of George J. Eckhoff.

BUSY CLARK ST. ONCE WINDING INDIAN TRAIL

Given the Name of Great Explorer

This is the second in a series of articles giving the origin of the names of streets, parks, and suburbs of the north side.

Three hundred years ago Indians slipped swiftly through the shadows along a winding pathway; 200 years ago explorers and pioneers had straightened and widened it with their sleds and horses; 100 years ago a soldier who had saved the northwest for the Union was honored by having his name given to a street that today is a busy commercial thoroughfare, lined with office buildings, stores and shops.

Clark street, named for Maj. Gen. George Rogers Clark, was laid out in the first plan of Chicago made by James Thompson in 1830 under the direction of the Illinois-Michigan canal commission, and approximates a part of the way the route of the historic old Green trail beaten out by the Indians centuries ago.

Route of Explorers.

The trail was used by them to go from Chicago to Green Bay and was later the route of the explorers with a stopping off place at Milwaukee and in the early part of the last century soldiers were transferred on it from Fort Dearborn at the mouth of the Chicago river to Fort Howard at Green Bay.

There were two alternative routes leading out of Chicago and merging at a point northwest of Libertyville, according to M. M. Quaife in "Chicago's Highways, Old and New," a copy of which is in the Chicago Historical society library.

One branch started at what is now the Michigan avenue bridge, followed Rush street to Chicago avenue and thence diagonally in an obliterated pathway to North avenue and Clark street. Clark street approximates the trail from then on to about 6000 north where it turns off on to the Ridge road marked by that and West Railroad avenue in Evanston, Wilmette and Kenilworth, until it comes into its own at Tower road in Winnetka. There starts the modern Green Bay road continuing up to Milwaukee and finally to Green Bay.

Other Branch Along Ridge.

The other branch went along the ridge between the north branch of the river and the Des Plaines, crossing the Des Plaines and recrossing to pick up the other trail at the Gurnee ford, north of Libertyville.

Andrew J. Vieau whose father came as a trader to Milwaukee in 1837 writes, according to Quaife, "This path was originally an Indian trail and very crooked, but the whites straightened it by cutting across lots each winter with their jumpers [sleds], wearing bare streaks to be followed in the summer by foot and horseback travel along the shoreland path."

Clark street is one of the Chicago thoroughfares to have withstood attempts to change its name. In 1916 shortly after Evanston avenue was

PLAN FESTIVAL TO DRAW EYES OF ALL CHICAGO

Lincoln Square Business Men Name Committees.

Preliminary plans for a festival to be held in the Lawrence, Lincoln, and Western avenues district during the summer were discussed at a recent meeting of the Lincoln Square Commercial association, Henry G. Fleischhauer, president, announced last week. According to tentative plans the celebration will not be the usual community affair, but will be of proportions great enough to attract the attention of the entire city, Mr. Fleischhauer said.

Charles H. Barwig, Lincoln Square furniture dealer, has been appointed chairman of the committee to plan the festival. Serving on his committee are Harry P. Griffen, James T. Barney, Fred Pichler, C. W. Bainbridge, and John L. Showell. Mr. Griffen was general chairman of the festival sponsored by the business men and merchants of the district two years ago. The date of the 1929 celebration will be announced by the committee later, Mr. Barwig said.

Conduct Member Campaign.

At the latest meeting, Mr. Pichler, who is also chairman of the association's membership committee, announced that letters recently sent to new business houses in Lincoln Square resulted in the voluntary application of twenty new members. He believes that the membership will be increased by more than 100 in a concentrated campaign which is to be conducted during the next few weeks. Other members of the committee are A. E. Erhard, Matt Kannen, D. L. Secord, and D. A. Feldman.

E. H. Heidkamp, former president of the association, has been appointed chairman of the board of directors, Mr. Fleischhauer announced at the meeting. Other members of the board are: Fred B. Snite, Mr. Barwig, Henry Dieden, Frank W. Schauler, C. A. Larson, John C. Friewer, Bernhard Mandl, John P. O'Shaughnessy, Arthur Amsel, Arthur Youngquist, Michael Grodsky and Mr. Pichler.

Two first prizes were won by the first and second year commercial classes in the recent state contest. For excelling in mass typing the classes received a silver engraving and a silver loving cup, which are now on display in the commercial department.

FINDS $35 FURNITURE MATCHING SET SHE PURCHASED FOR $12

Chicago, June 16.—Three years ago, I bought a porcelain covered table with two leaves and four chairs to match it at a sale in the neighborhood for $12. This furniture has been in constant use, but it still looks like new. I saw a similar set in a department store last week for $35. This, without a doubt, is my best bargain.

PROUD OF BOOK BARGAIN.

Chicago, June 18.—It has long been my custom to purchase at least one book each time I go on a shopping expedition, and neighborhood stores have always been my favorite hunting grounds. Recently, I found in one of them a fourteen volume set of "Famous Men in History," and purchased it for $4. The set is a treasure trove of information. It is of a limited edition and the interesting old engravings are alone many times worth the price of the books.

Chicago, June 17.—I bought a gingham house dress for 67 cents at an inventory sale in a neighborhood store about two years ago. The dress has been laundered on an average of once weekly ever since the time it was purchased and it is still in good condition, not even having faded. This, I think, is a well worthwhile bargain.

changed to Broadway a suggestion was made that that part of Clark south of Diversey, where Broadway merges with it, be given the latter name.

The storm of protest which followed was crystallized by the Chicago Historical society and was fought by Broadway interests as well so the matter was dropped. But the campaign brought out some doubts as to whether George Rogers Clark was really meant when the street was named.

On Oct. 18, 1916, in Voice of the People of THE TRIBUNE, Julia A. Wright stated that it was the Rev. John Clark, an early minister in Chicago, who was meant and for whom the Clark Street Methodist church was named. Nelson Thomasson put in a claim also for William Clark of the Lewis-Clark expedition, who he said was once in charge of Fort Dearborn.

The evidence in favor of the war hero lies not only in the fact that he gained Illinois for the colonists in the revolution, but that he won Kaskaskia, Illinois' first capitol, where lived Edmund Roberts, a member of the canal commission who named the first streets. Roberts' son, James H. Roberts, supports the claim for George Rogers Clark.

MEETING CALLED ON OPENING OF ARGYLE STREET

Property owners in the vicinity of Argyle street between Western and Lincoln avenues will meet tomorrow evening at the Bowmanville National bank to discuss the proposed opening of Argyle street. The meeting has been called by the Lincoln Square Commercial association, of which Henry G. Fleischhauer is president.

Considerable opposition to the opening has been made by property owners, who are not affected by the improvement, Mr. Fleischhauer said, due to a misunderstanding of the plan. A recent petition circulated, opposing the opening, was signed by numerous property owners who will not be included in the special assessment to be levied. According to the plans of the board of local improvements, the cost of the project will be between $60,000 and $70,000.

The board ruled that only property within one block of Argyle street between Western and Lincoln avenues would be taxed for the improvement. Property owners living on Argyle street have been reported in favor of the project.

S.A.E. FRATERNITY BREAKS GROUND FOR MEMORIAL

New Building to Rise in Evanston.

As a memorial to the late William Levere of Evanston, former national secretary of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity and an entertainer overseas during the war, as well as to the members of the fraternity who died in service, the new $300,000 national headquarters of S. A. E. will rise at the corner of Hinman avenue and Sheridan road, just across from the Northwestern university campus in Evanston.

Ground was broken yesterday for the building with all national officers of the fraternity assisting in the ceremonies. Eric A. Dawson of Evanston, national secretary, Judge A. K. Nippert of Cincinnati, George D. Kimball of Denver, and Philip H. Senior of New York City were among those present.

Well Known in Evanston.

William Levere, generally known as Billy, is a well remembered figure to Evanstonians as well as to members of his fraternity and the many soldiers whose wartime days he lightened. Members of the fraternity who died in American wars since 1856 will be honored with him.

The building will be constructed of Indiana limestone and will be Gothic in character. Arthur Knox of Evanston and an S. A. E. is the architect. It will be two stories in height with an attic and a basement.

Dedicate Chapel to Veterans.

In the building there will be a chapel dedicated to the war heroes and a library, said to be the largest fraternity library in the world, as well as the office headquarters. Trophies, cups, statues and momentoes housed in the building torn down to make way for the new structure will be transferred.

Strangely enough the street address, 1856, corresponds with the date of the founding of the fraternity, which claims Bobby Jones as one of its present day prominent members.

NORTHMINSTER CORNER STONE SERVICE TODAY

Evanston Church Erecting $102,000 Structure.

Although the new Northminster Presbyterian church, at Central Park avenue and Harrison street in Evanston, is rising to the second story, the keynote will be sounded and the corner stone laid today.

THE REV. W. H. CARVER.
[Sarony Photo.]

Growing out of a Sunday school group formed in 1922 to serve a newly developing north end section, the Northminster church has held its services in Lincolnwood school for six years. The new building is being erected at a cost of $102,000, exclusive of furnishings, with the greater part of the money pledged in a campaign held a year ago and coming in now in weekly and monthly payments.

Four Ministers to Take Part.

Dr. Roy E. Vale, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Oak Park, will be the chief speaker. The Rev. Robert L. Sawyier, former pastor of the church; Dr. David Hugh Jones of the First Presbyterian church of Evanston, and the Rev. Wallace Harper Carver, pastor of Northminster, will take part in the ceremonies.

The corner stone rites have been delayed for more than a month because of the Rev. Mr. Carver's illness. Set definitely for May and then announced for June 2, they were again postponed until today.

Unlike Nearby Buildings.

The church is of Gothic design, with Bedford stone laid at random for the outer walls. The under side of the roof will be wood supported by arched trusses. Mundie & Jensen are the architects. The church will stand alone in the section, with no other such building west or north or south of it, a pioneer in West Lincolnwood.

The building committee is headed by John S. Small, and includes David I. Williams, William C. Eberle, L. J. Petrie, Samuel E. Ross, St. Claire Carver, E. R. Cullison. The name of the late A. E. Yauger, who headed the finance division of the committee, is being retained on the lists.

Ten additional patrolmen were adedd to the force soon after their plea was made.

Now the association is promoting the construction of a new elementary school building for the district. HIGH POWER AND CHAINS CONQUER SUMMER STATIC

Experts Say There Will Be No Slump.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The summer broadcasting bugaboo which up until last year made the most rabid radio fan desert his receiving set for other forms of entertainment during three or four warm months, will definitely disappear this season, broadcasters and radio manufacturers predict, because of the policy of the chain stations to continue their best features the year round.

The increase in power of the larger stations, together with the remarkable improvements in receiving sets, has firmly established radio as a twelve months' mode of entertainment.

Broadcasters have announced that the biggest and most popular radio programs that have been heard weekly during the cold winter evenings will be enhanced rather than deleted this summer and will be found in their accustomed place on the hottest nights.

$23,000,000 to Be Spent.

Officials of the chain systems report that more than $23,000,000 will be spent by advertisers on chain programs alone this year. The National Broadcasting company estimates its receipts at $16,000,000 and the Columbian chain clients will spend close to $7,500,000. And a large portion of this income, it is said, will be used to make radio as popular during the summer as it is in the winter.

Four years ago at this time of the year, the radio was temporarily discarded. Many radio equipment manufacturers closed shop and broadcasters withdrew their best artists. Consequently listeners, discouraged by poor reception and equally as poor programs, packed their sets, so to speak, until about Labor day.

By 1927, however, the summer slack was beginning to disappear as the chain broadcasting companies began to realize the waste of the seasonal slump. This trend was strengthened last summer, partly because of the political conventions, and the broadcasters became firmly convinced that radio was an all year around product.

Credits Fans with Discovery.

For this discovery, experts credit owners, rather than manufacturers of receiving sets. While factories were closed and broadcasters were cutting their programs to the bone, it is said, owners of receiving sets continued to use them during the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow at summer static.

Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, says: "There will be no summer slump in broadcasting this year or any future year. Broadcasting this summer promises to be as good and even better than during the winter. The chain and other broadcasters have improved their transmission methods to a marked degree since last summer. Also there has been a reallocation of station wave lengths by the federal radio commission.

The proximity of stations to the listeners as well as the tremendous increase in power of the stations have contributed much to better summer reception. Almost every city of any size today has at least one station and the larger municipalities have from two to five. Five years ago the power of most transmitters was limited to 500 and 250 watts, while today there are 50,000 watts transmitters.

Portable Sets Help.

Another feature of radio set improvement that has contributed to the popularity of summer tuning-in is the ease with which up-to-date portable sets can be transported. The compact receiver is now an essential part of the modern camping equipment or the household articles taken to summer resorts. The portable radio set today is as easy to set up as the old phonograph and a great deal less trouble after it is put into operation.

The broadcasting of good programs during the day, as well as at night, is also on the increase and has its influence on the disappearance of the summer slump. All day as well as all night radio entertainment is now a reality as advertisers clamor for more time and chain systems expand monthly.

RADIO LAWS PRINTED.

A compilation of radio laws enacted by congress from the Sixty-first to the Seventieth inclusive has just been published by the house of representatives. The first of the laws was enacted in 1910 and the last on March 4, 1929.

Inside the Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

Two days less than two years after he won the world championship from Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey was called upon to make one of the greatest struggles in his career—his fight against Georges Carpentier, the challenger from France.

Out of France came Carpentier, his manager, Francois Deschamps, and a score of fight-mad Frenchmen who asserted that their champion would put this Dempsey away in a jiffy. More was printed about the fight than about the battle of the Marne.

And at last that famous July 2d of 1921 arrived, a close, sweltering day that blistered the fight fans who started jamming the Hoboken ferries between New York and Jersey City as early as the afternoon before the fight. At 8:30 on the morning of the fight, the gates were swung open, and there were thousands of fans waiting to enter. By the middle of the afternoon each one of the 90,000 seats was filled.

A little patch of white canvas, scorching under the summer sun. Dempsey vs. Carpentier. Remember how it sounded through the radio horn on that blistering afternoon? [Gong]

Announcer—There's the bell! The first round has started. Both men are coming out of their corners like twin flashes of lightning. There's no fooling about this fight—it's going to be a fight! They're in the center of the ring—sparring gently, and—O! there's the first punch—Carpentier drove a sweet left to Dempsey's jaw. Jack is weaving and shifting about like a great cat. There's another! Carp landed a right hander that lacked steam in the same spot. Jack is closing in now—he's working on Carpentier's middle. Now they're in a clinch, and Carpentier drives home a stiff uppercut while they're hanging on. Dempsey's got a fight on his hands this time! Now they're boxing and Carp is driving Dempsey back with short left and right arm punches to the head, to the body, any place he can land 'em. Carp is working those two arms like guns.

Jack is still weaving and swaying, working at Carpentier's waist line. Carpentier tries with his right hand, but—they go into a clinch. Socko! Dempsey! Dempsey drives three hard right hand smashes to Carpentier's head! Now they've locked arms. They have broken now, and—Carp just missed with an awful right hand swing to the head, and they've gone into another clinch. Look at Dempsey! He's got his arms free now, and he's punching Carpentier amidships for all he's worth! Look at the Frenchman's face! He can feel those punches! Dempsey is fighting now! O! look at him hit! Dempsey is smashing Carp with everything but the ringposts. He's got the challenger running away—stepping back — one! two! three rights and lefts to head and body for Dempsey! Now George stops his dancing and—Whee! Carpentier tried with his right once more, but Jack made him jump with an awful right hand hook on the chin. Carpentier is taking an awful beating, but he seems to be weathering the gale! O! O! Carpentier almost fell out of the ring that time—a right hand to the head did it. Carp is coming right back; they're dancing, and George tries his right hand again. It's short! [Gong!]

That's the first round of this battle of battles, ladies and gentlemen! Dempsey took the first round by a narrow margin. He started out trying to box Carpentier, and didn't really start fighting until the round was almost over. The Frenchman looks confident, but Dempsey has split his nose, and the claret is running down faster than Deschamps can wipe it away. Jack is practically unmarked, though Carpentier got in some great socks during that first round.

There's the gong! Round two! Both men are coming out of their corners without the speed they showed in the last frame. Dempsey is crouching in much the same way we saw him crouch before Willard in Toledo, two years ago. Carpentier is on his toes, with those huge muscles along the sides of his body tensed. He's going to put all he's got into that first punch. O! Dempsey brought a left hook right up from the floor of the ring! Carpentier came back with a stiff right to the champion's mouth, and—they're in a clinch, and Dempsey is pushing the challenger around the ring. Now they've broken and—Zowie! Carpentier sent that famous right of his straight at Dempsey's ear! Clinch again! They're wrestling all about the ring! Look at Deschamps down in Carp's corner—he's shouting in French and motioning to his boy to stay away from Dempsey. They're breaking again! Now Dempsey is—OHHHH! There it is! Carp smashed Dempsey, and he is staggering away! It was a right hander flush on the jaw! Carp is driving the champion around the ring! It may be all over! The crowd is on its feet yelling and screaming for the knockout! They're smashing home punch after punch and Carp has the champion groggy and holding on! Dempsey is holding on and sending little, vicious jabs at Carpentier's body. Dempsey is blocking that right that's flashing at him every second! Carp is driving right after right against Dempsey's head and body, and he's taking lots in return. They're roughousing it in there now—punch! punch! punch! It's just a pair of brutes hammering, hammering, hammering each other, with rights, lefts, rights, lefts. Carp is pummeling Dempsey's face, and the champ between clinches is after the Frenchman's body! [GONG!]

There's the bell! That's all of round two! And what a round! Carp gave Dempsey everything he had in that round, and he surely had the champion staggering. Both men are in their corners now, and puffing hard. It was a great spell of fighting. Kearns is whispering into Dempsey's ear, and across the way, Deschamps is jabbering excitedly at his French boy. The last one was all Carpentier's round. Dempsey seems content to let the Frenchman do all the leading. He isn't fighting the way we've seen him fight at Toledo and Benton Harbor. And, gosh, it's hot! It must be a hundred in the shade!

There's the bell! Round three! Both men are on their feet with the stroke of the bell and are racing to the center of the ring. Jack leading this time, up on his toes for an opening, and—Ow! There she goes! Dempsey tried with a left hand jab to Carp's head but it was short. They're feeling each other out with their gloves. Wow! Carpentier smashed the champion twice with right hand blows to the head! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. He doesn't seem able to get away from Georges' right hand drives. Now Referee Ertle is breaking them apart, and they're sparring again. Zowie! Dempsey drove a hard uppercut right at Georges' mouth. And it landed! Carp is hurt. He's backing up and Dempsey is right after him, relentless. One! Two! Three! Three in a row!

Jack drove three left hand jabs smack on George's face. There's a cut under the Frenchman's eye, and the blood is running down his cheek. His nose is bleeding again, and the claret is running down his chest and bespattering his fighting trunks. Now Dempsey is crouching and weaving again, and Carp is backing away. Ohh! There it is! Ohh! Three of them! He's slowed up the Frenchman! Dempsey drove three awful socks straight at Carp's stomach. Now—Ohh!—Jack sent a left to Carp's face! Carp is slowing up! Jack is punching now—he's trying everything he's got, and Carp is going at him with his right hand.

The Frenchman is tired! Socko! Dempsey lands a left on Carp's jaw. He's driving the Frenchman to the ropes, and now he's got him cornered with a volley of blows, rights and lefts to the body—to the head—Dempsey is hitting again! He's fighting! Carp is trying vainly to defend himself—the champion has him tired out—Carp tries a right to Dempsey's head but the champion brushes it away, and now—Oohh! He's driving rights and lefts to Carp's middle! There goes—[Gong!]

That's all of round three, ladies and gentlemen. I'm afraid it's only a question of time now. Dempsey, with his hard and swift body blows has slowed up the fast-stepping Frenchman, and taken the steam out of his punches. There's consternation over there in Carp's corner, and Deschamps is wiping the blood off Carp's face and chest, and applying something to that cut under his eye.

Dempsey is blowing and his face is a bit red, but he's unmarked by the battle as yet. There's a world of confidence in the Dempsey corner. It's only a question of time now. Jack Kearns is rubbing the champion's back and talking to him, and Dempsey nods his head. [Gong!]

There's the bell! Here goes round four! Look at Dempsey! Look at him! The man is out of his corner and half way across the ring before the echo of the bell has died away! And he's after Carpentier! With rights and lefts! Oh! Wow! Dempsey drives a straight right for Carp's head, and you can see the pain on the challenger's face! But he doesn't back away! He's standing there and trading punches with Dempsey, snapping out that right hand of his again and again! But Dempsey can't be stopped! He's fighting this time, fighting like the Dempsey who knocked down Willard six times in one round at Toledo. There's a snarl on his face!

Oh, they're punching! We can't even follow them! Georges is slapping Jack with left jabs and then he's winging over right handers to the head. Dempsey is crouching and snarling, and driving rights and lefts into the white body of his opponent! Punch! Punch! Punch! It's just a deadly battle between two men. Dempsey is forcing Carp into a neutral corner, the rain of body blows continues. Jack is swinging up—he's bringing up that left—Carpentier is down! Georges is on the mat! The Frenchman did a nose dive into the canvas.

He's lying there quivering, and Referee Ertle is standing over him counting out the death-knell . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight.

He's on his feet! Plucky Carp is back on his feet! He's groggy, but he's on his feet! And he's wrapped his arms around his head to protect his jaws. And he lurches towards Dempsey. Jack drives an awful right to Carp's heart. You can see the Frenchman's knees sag . . . he's dropping like a sack! He's going down again! No, he's lurching toward Dempsey with his head still covered. Jack steps back and takes careful aim! And—Ohh! It's all over! Jack drives a left hander straight into the pit of Carp's stomach, and the Frenchman is down again!

Referee Ertle motions Dempsey back and begins counting. Two . . . three . . . four . . . five . . . Carp quivers, but he's finished now! Dempsey prowls around the ring like a panther at the kill . . . nine . . . ten!

HUNGRY FIVE IS COMING BACK TO W-G-N TOMORROW

Herr Louie and his German band, the Hungry Five of W-G-N, Chicago, return to the air tomorrow night after two weeks of rest and fishing in the Wisconsin woods.

Except for the distractions caused by the Weasel's frequent falls into the lake, Herr Louie has enjoyed a complete relaxation from the cares of leading the band, and feels fit to begin a new engagement, playing at an amusement park.

Louie, the Weasel, and the band play old fashioned music and entertain with their German dialogue every evening at 10:10 p. m.

"The Four Horsemen," a new dance band, joins W-G-N's staff of orchestras tomorrow night, according to Henry Selinger, program director. They will play a daily program making four bands heard every evening. Mr. Selinger also announced that Carl Friberg, Danish baritone and interpreter of songs, who specializes in the folk music of Sweden, Denmark, and Germany, is a new W-G-N soloist.

RADIO BOARD TO CENSOR FOREIGN PROGRAM RELAYS

A step in controlling relay broadcasting from foreign countries to the United States or vice versa, which is being interpreted as an indirect method for censoring these programs and for preventing the broadcasting of foreign propaganda in America, has been taken in by the federal radio commission in a recent general order.

The order also requires quarterly reports from stations engaged in relay broadcasting; this being intended to keep check on their activities to determine whether or not the assigned channels are being utilized efficiently.

A third effect of the order, the commission expects, will be to put a stop to "bootleg" relay broadcasting. It is understood that some station in this country have been picking up foreign broadcasts and rebroadcasting them in the United States without a license to do so.

The order states that "no station engaged in relay broadcasting shall grant authority to any radio station within the United States to broadcast its programs without first obtaining written consent of the commission."

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have made negotiations with foreign stations whereby they are enabled to rebroadcast foreign programs in this country.

Two other orders issued by the commission require that every broadcasting station shall be given absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress and shall cease broadcasting upon such frequencies when interference may be caused to reception from such ships or aircraft. The order provides further that no two or more broadcasting stations shall maintain a joint or common watch upon such frequencies unless authorized to do so by the commission.

VARIETY STARS TO PERFORM AT VETS' MEETING

Ravenswood Legion to Be Host to District.

The sixteen other American Legion posts of the Sixth district will be guests of Ravenswood post, No. 149, next Tuesday evening at Chase Park auditorium, Leland and Ashland avenues. The district commander, Joseph L. De La Cour, will conduct a short business meeting and a program of speakers and vaudeville stars will follow. All former service men in the community are invited to the meeting. Clarence Lindstrom, chairman of entertainment for the post, is in charge of arrangements.

Evanston post, No. 42, announces its list of delegates to the Illinois convention of the Legion to be held in Rock Island Sept. 16 and 17. They are Commander Richard Chamberlin, Frank C. Betts, H. L. Garwood, George W. Walsh, W. C. Bechtold, H. T. Johnson Newell McCartney and Ray Jackson. At the post's latest meeting Miss Elizabeth Hallam, 2527 Eastwood avenue, was presented with a gold Legion badge for her services in connection with Poppy day for the last four years.

Francis A. Walsh, 6253 Wayne avenue, was unanimously elected president of the Municipal Employés Ex-Service Men's association this week, succeeding Thomas A. P. German. The organization is composed of 500 former service men employed by the city. Mr. Walsh is past commander of North Shore post of the American Legion, a delegate to the Cook county council of the Legion and historian of the Society of the Forty and Eight.

Arrangements are under way for the first annual picnic of Medill-Tribune post, No. 348, which will be held Sunday, July 14, at the Forty and Eight chalet, on Maple Hill.

Van Buren post, No. 410, has invited its Poppy day workers to a dinner party and entertainment to be held at the Canton tea gardens, Wabash avenue at Van Buren street, next Thursday night. Commander Hanna requests that reservations be in the hands of the adjutant not later than tomorrow.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Chicago unit, Women's Overseas Service league, will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in the room of the Alliance Francaise, 410 South Michigan avenue. This will be the last meeting before the national convention to be held in Minneapolis July 6.

The second on its 1929 schedule of golf tournaments conducted by Naval post, No. 372, will be held next Thursday at the Cog Hill Country club, 119th street and Archer avenue. The automobile parade to the club will start at 12:30 from Roosevelt road and Wabash avenue. Teeing off is scheduled for 1:30. Following the game a dinner will be held in the clubhouse, where prizes will be distributed to the winners.

John B. Maling, a student of industrial and governmental affairs and a retired business executive, will talk to members of Advertising Men's post, No. 38 tomorrow noon in Hotel Sherman, on "The Origin and Effect of Class Legislation." Many members of the post are spending the week-end with their families at Genoa City, Wis., at the Ad Post pow-wow.

The next meeting of the 7th district will be held Saturday afternoon, July 13, at Wayside inn, Morton Grove, with Sisterhenn and Niles Township posts as joint hosts. Plans are being made for the Legion jubilee on July 20 when 7th district posts will enter emblamatic floats in the parade which will terminate at Farwell avenue and the lake, where new colors will be given to the district. Jack Morris, commander of the New Marshall Foch post, is service officer for the 7th district.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Du Page county committee of the American Legion held in the Soldiers' and Sailors' room of the Memorial building, Hinsdale, Mrs. Pearl Duncan, state president of the Legion auxiliary, made a plea for immediate action in regard to completion of tennis and baseball facilities at the Elgin state insane asylum. In the absence of County Commander Kime Aspray of Glen Ellyn the meeting was in charge of County Vice Commander Arthur Wilson of Elmhurst. Representatives of Glen Ellyn, Wheaton and Naperville announced that their respective towns were desirous of having the eleventh district convention of the American Legion in 1930. A discussion followed, after which Wheaton and Naperville withdrew in favor of Glen Ellyn. Arrangements for the meeting were handled by Charles D. F. Merrill and Otis R. Cushing.

The annual basket picnic of Roseland post, No. 49, will be held at Volbrecht's farm, 171st street and Stony Island avenue, on the Fourth of July. The auto parade to the picnic grounds will leave 115th and State streets at 9 a. m. and those who come late will be guided by markers. The committee in charge includes Art Hauser as chairman, Steve Van Clay, Emil Kuester, Al Price, John Swanson, Abe Lindell and Walter Pennington.

Asserts Hunt for Romance Keeps the Librarians Busy

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

Life as we should like it to be rather than as it is, love stories that always end happily and tales of the west that never was romance rather than realism are, despite a world changing in so many respects still preferred by patrons of the Rogers Park branch of the Chicago Public library.

So I was told by Miss Dorothy Farrall, assistant librarian, who has been at the Rogers Park branch since it was moved to its present location, 1731 Greenleaf avenue, in 1924.

"Of the 259,095 books circulated by the library during the last year, 137,608 were fiction," explained Miss Farrall. "Of the nonfiction books, "Are of Thinking," by Dimnet, is much in demand right now, but our shelf given over to novels that offer diversion from the routine of life is by far the library's most popular corner."

Requires Staff of Twelve.

Miss Lida M. Pirritte is librarian, and she is assisted by a staff of eleven in caring for the literary desires of a territory that includes the district bounded on the north by Howard street, on the east by the lake, on the south by Granville avenue, and on the west by the drainage canal. The library is open between 9 a. m. and 9 p. m., every day but Sunday.

Miss Pirritte's staff includes Miss Farrall, assistant; Miss Helen Huelsman, Miss Alice McDermott, Mrs. Margaret Skinner, and Miss Laura E. Howe, senior assistants; Miss Edith Fortney, Miss Lucia Adamson, Miss Catherine Miller, Miss Mary Alice Elson, Miss Elaine Hardoin and Miss Naomi Goldblatt, junior assistants.

"Saturdays and Mondays are our busiest days," said Miss Farrall—"patrons borrowing the books for the week-end and returning them. The most active hour is at 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon when the children rush in from the schools for reference books and stories for their entertainment. Books on literature are in much demand by students from Northwestern university, Senn High, Sullivan Junior High, and the numerous grammar schools in the section.

"We are particularly proud of our collection of books in foreign languages. Also we have a splendid collection of bound magazines dating back to 1915.

Facilities Explained in Schools.

"Miss Howe, our junior librarian, visits the schools twice a year and tells of our work. In the juvenile department we have organized a stamp club and an aviation club that meet on alternate Friday afternoons. Every Saturday morning the children come at 10:30 o'clock for a story hour."

"And what is their favorite?" I asked.

"Kipling's 'How the Elephant Got Its Nose,'" assured Miss Farrall.

"Our readers' bureau," she went on, "is for adults who have finished school but wish to continue some particular line of study. Nearly 700 have enrolled in the various courses. Members of the Rogers Park Woman's club and the Bayview club also come here for their study courses and books for them are kept on special shelves.

Miss Farrall said that "The Bridge of San Luis Rey" was still on the library's reserve list.

"Patrons often ask us to recommend books. This isn't so difficult when we are familiar with the type of thing they have liked in the past. If a patron comes in for the first time, however, there's no telling by their appearance what is most apt to interest them," Miss Farrall went on.

"Most of the girls here have taken up their work as librarians for a profession. If we haven't time to read all the books, we try to keep up through the aid of reviews. What is being read all over the country is what is being sought here—such books just now as 'Dodsworth,' 'The Strange Interlude,' 'Magic Isle,' and S. S. Van Dyne's mystery novels.

"We have patrons who refrain from making out cards and taking the books home, but prefer to spend the day here. When closing time comes, they are reluctant to lay aside the volume that has transported them to fields afar, and in which they have perhaps just reached an exciting moment.

"A current movie, taken from a novel, always creates an interest in the book. Often the title has been changed, but we come to learn that when a reader asks for 'Women of Affairs,' for instance, what he really means is 'The Green Hat.'

Choose by Beginning and End.

"Then there are readers who pick out books by browsing about and finding out for themselves what they want. The critics can write what they please, but they take down a volume, glance at its beginning and its ending, and thus form their own opinions."

"With 19,682 volumes of all kinds on the shelves," I ventured, "I suppose no one need be disappointed in his search."

"There was a man in here the other day whose reading urge had us baffled," she confessed. "He was so serious in his quest, too. He'd hunted all along the shelves without success, and finally came to the desk for assistance."

"Romance or realism?" I queried.

"What he wanted," said Miss Farrall, "was a book of recipes for home brew."

LOYOLA DISTRICT WILL DANCE ON STREET REPAIRS

Resurfacing vs. Repaving Controversy Rages.

Members of the Loyola Improvement association intend to celebrate the resurfacing of four streets in the Loyola district with a community street dance on July 4, John Cullinan, president, said last week.

Although the repair work on the four streets, Magnolia, Lakewood and Wayne avenues between Devon and Arthur avenue and Arthur avenue from Sheridan road to Glenwood avenue, has not yet been started, officers of the association are confident that they will be successful in raising the money for the improvement, in order that the pavements will be repaired by the holiday.

Debate Repaving Question.

The discussion of the property owners in the district on the subject of resurfacing versus repaving has been waged for several months. Property owners on the four streets declared that the pavements were the worst on the north side. A majority of the property owners opposed the complete new paving plan proposed by Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements.

These objectors organized the Loyola Improvement association and voted to adopt a plan offered by Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, for resurfacing the street.

The members of the association undertook to make the collections and although the results were encouraging they have not yet been successful in obtaining the unanimous consent of the property holders. Included in the group campaigning for the Wolfe plan are Frank Hansen, Ed Murphy, George Landeck, Thomas Furlong, Frank Engle, John Hartnett, J. W. Kelly, Sidney Crowley and I. T. Long. On Magnolia avenue they have gained the approval of 99 per cent of the residents, Mr. Cullinan said.

Foes Demand Full Pavement.

The property owners opposed to the resurfacing plan declare that the streets have been neglected for years and that only a complete new pavement will correct the loss of property values, falling rents and vacant apartments. They also point out that if a new pavement was laid it would be possible to install new sewers at the same time and eliminate the usual flooded basements that follows heavy rainstorms.

James E. Prendergast, president of the Rogers Park-Loyola Property Owners' association, and E. P. Brennan, secretary of the same association, are leading the forces opposed to the resurface plan.

N. W. SIDE AGAIN FACES BATTLE TO KEEP BUSES

Carlstrom Attacks Lines Tomorrow.

Bus transportation, long the most important issue in northwest side civic affairs, came to the fore last week after an interval of two months, when 20,000 residents of various communities were threatened with removal of their only means of transit.

Forces were mustered for another of a long series of fights for transportation facilities Wednesday when Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom announced that he will act tomorrow to remove from service eight independent bus lines now carrying pasengers for five cents in various communities.

Mr. Carlstrom announced he will file a bill in the court of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher tomorrow morning asking an injunction restraining these buses from operating. Judge Fisher will then set a date for hearing both sides of the case.

Federation Enters Fight.

The Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, desiring to take a leading part in the court battle on behalf of its members, who would lose their only means of transportation by the injunction, Wednesday authorized George F. Scheck, attorney for the bus lines, to enter an order naming the federation as a defendant in the case.

Mr. Carlstrom seeks the injunction on the ground that these bus lines are operating without a certificate of convenience and necessity issued by the Illinois commerce commission, and hence are on the streets illegally. Mr. Scheck plans to admit that the lines are operating illegally, but to argue that they should be kept in service because they furnish the only means of transportation for 20,000 residents. Without buses, Mr. Scheck said, thousands would have to walk more than a mile to other mean of conveyance.

Further, it will be asked that the lines be kept in operation until the Illinois Supreme court renders a decision on the right of the Chicago Motor Coach company to operate on the city streets.

Won Permits from Council.

Last April representatives of the corporation counsel of Chicago arrested drivers of the buses on the ground that they were operating without a permit from the city. Hundreds of northwest side residents marched on the city hall, however, and succeeded in having the council grant temporary permits to operate. Residents charged at that time that the arrests were made in behalf of the Chicago Motor Coach company.

The independent bus companies operate on various lines in the district bounded by Oak Park, Bryn Mawr, Grand and Kimball avenues. A separate bill of complaint will be filed against each of the eight companies by the attorney general.

Clock Belies Adage About 1st 100 Years

An antique grandfather's clock, as regular and faithful today as at the time of the Fort Dearborn massacre in the summer of 1812, recently came into the possession of a resident of the northwest side. Through five great wars of the United States it has stood the test of time, marking the hours while history was made. The old clock is the property of C. E. Lawrence, 4604 North Keating avenue. For more than 115 years it has been in his family.

Starting in Tennessee in the early days of the last century, it journeyed with the family from one place to another, registering time while generation after generation came and went. Last week it was installed and given a permanent place in the home of Mr. Lawrence.

Who built the old clock and where it first ticked away the hours no one knows. Its history, so far as Mr. Lawrence knows it, began with its purchase by William Clark, great-grandfather of the present owner, at a public sale in Knoxville, Tenn., about 1813. Prior to that time it may have stood for years in the cabin of a Tennessee mountaineer or graced the stately home of a gentleman of the old south.

Joins Trek to Indiana.

Following its purchase by Mr. Clark at Knoxville the clock stood for several years in his home there. In the early '30s when the Clark family moved to a farm near Princeton, Ind., the clock was brought along, perhaps in a prairie schooner. Still marking the hours in perfect tranquillity, it stood in its new home, far removed from the hurry and bustle of more thickly populated centers. Upon the death of William Clark, it entered the possession of his son, John. New settlers appeared in Indiana, new farms were started, everywhere there were signs of progress—but the old clock remained in its nook in the Clark home, faithfully marking time.

Another death, and the clock passed into the hands of another owner. This time it became the property of William C. Lawrence, father of the present owner. The years passed, a new century was ushered in, and still the old clock ticked away. Mr. Lawrence died, but his wife stayed on in the Indiana home, and the clock maintained its accustomed place. Then, early in the present year, Mrs. Lawrence passed away, and the heirloom was bequeathed to her son. About ten days ago it was taken from its old location and brought to Chicago.

Weight Same as Alarm Clock.

Except for the weights and pendulum the clock is so light that it could be lifted by a child. Mr. Lawrence estimates its weight as being about the same as that of a large alarm clock. It is wound every twenty-four hours by a system of weights. A curious feature is the fact that it possesses camouflage keyholes, probably inserted by some one years ago who supposed such a ruse would endow the antique with a semblance of modernity.

But old as the clock is, it marks time as regularly as the newest and most up to date timepiece of the day. The mechanism is of wood, as was the case with most clocks a century or more ago. The construction is simple, only a few wheels and pinion bearings being used in the operation. The parts are accurately cut from very hard wood, probably by hand. Despite the years of service it has rendered there is not a sign of wear on any of its operating parts.

On the face of the clock are three indicators, one marking the hours and minutes, another the seconds and the third the days of the month.

Hinsdale to Start Street Widening Work on July 5

Work of widening Washington street, from Hinsdale avenue to First avenue, Hinsdale, will start July 5, according to an announcement made by Hinsdale officials last week. New ornamental lights are also to be installed in the block. New concrete paving is planned for the southeast and the northwest districts.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

CHICAGO'S contributions to the study of still life continue to grow apace. This interesting phenomenon of cultural progress, once flourishing only in the untrammeled mountain fastnesses of the south, far from the madding crowd, caviar to the general, a violet by a mossy stone, is, in fact, becoming of rather common occurrence. Many, indeed, regard it as indigenous, like the dandelion or diabetes. No neighborhood is complete without one, not even the most fastidious or churchly or lawabiding, and our art loving cops are kept on the jump, which is tough. The latest to be reported is at 5200 Northwest highway, in the midst of a community of home-owning citizens in Jefferson Park. It contained a 2,000 gallon vat full of mash and was sniffed by expert sniffers from the Gale street police station. Capt. David Lynch immediately assigned two able bodied patrolmen to guard the treasure from the lawless element.

Neighbor Frank Chladek, highly esteemed Garfieldian and booster, says that while the west side seems to be "the neglected spot in the city insofar as improvements of major nature are concerned, it is with a feeling of shock that we find on investigation that the bus lines seem to be sending the worst buses in the city out this way. The Laramie and Central avenue buses are about as decrepit as any self-propelled vehicle could be and still make any show of running at all."

Drop in some day, Frank, and we'll go roller coasting on one of the better Devon avenue, Ravenswood or Addison street salt and pepper shakers. They are so wonderful that all our stylish stouts have thrown away their electric vibrators to go bus riding, or as the saying is, gildagraying.

THREAT TO HALT TRAINS MADE IN CROSSING FIGHT

Elevation Demanded by Business Group.

If officials of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad continue to refuse to elevate the tracks across 26th street at Kenton avenue, the city will exercise its police power to prevent the operation of freight trains over the line on the ground that they interfere with traffic and are a public nuisance, Ald. John Toman [23d] asserted yesterday.

Business men in the neighborhood of 26th street and Crawford avenue have been fighting for more than a year to obtain elevation of the tracks and say they are now determined, with the aid of Ald. Toman, to take drastic measures in forcing the railroad to make the improvement.

A resolution adopted by the Crawford Business Men's league, outlining reasons for the elevation, is in the hands of the city council committee on track elevation. Edward F. Toepper, secretary of the league, said the grade crossing at Kenton avenue prevents the development of 26th street and interferes with its use as one of the main arteries leading into Chicago from the west.

Cites Delay to Traffic.

"At various hours during the day and night," he said, "traffic is delayed more than half an hour while trains of more than 75 freight cars are temporarily parked on the tracks.

"Twenty-sixth street is an extremely busy thoroughfare and traffic should not be held up for such long periods. The condition is particularly bad when delays are encountered in the morning rush hours, as is often the case.

"Traffic feeds onto 26th street from Cicero and Ogden avenues coming into the city. Twenty-sixth street would be even more desirable as a gateway to the city if the tracks were elevated and traffic were not delayed.

"Another reason for elevation is the fact that until it is completed there can be no extension of the 26th street car line west from Kenton avenue to Cicero avenue," he continued. "This extension would be a boon to business at 26th street and Crawford avenue, and should be obtained as soon as possible."

Delay Slight, Railway Says.

F. E. Marrow, chief terminal development engineer of the Chicago and Western Indiana, declined yesterday to venture an opinion as to what the attitude of the road will be when negotiations are opened. He stated, however, that a check had been made, and it was found that the tracks carried relatively few freight trains and that motor traffic using 26th street was impeded only slightly by trains on Chicago & Western Indiana tracks.

More cars are run over tracks of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, just across the city line in Cicero, he continued, and those charging the grade crossing is a nuisance may be confused as to which railroad actually interferes with traffic.

Ald. Toman said the town of Cicero and the C., B. & Q., are prepared to elevate the latter's tracks whenever the tracks in the Chicago city limits are elevated. That being the case, he explained, the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad is holding up the entire project.

Toman Drafting Ordinance.

Ald. Toman is drafting an contract ordiance providing for the road to elevate the tracks and bear the entire cost, as is done in practically all track elevations in Chicago. Officials of the road will be asked to negotiate, and if they refuse to make the improvment, the alderman promises that the city will exercise its police power to force an agreement.

"The railroad has been asked many times in the last few years to cooperate with the city and make this necessary improvement," Ald. Toman said. "But each time has offered the excuse that no funds were available."

PUSH DRIVE FOR NEW BOULEVARD TO LOGAN AREA

Business Men Undaunted by Strong Opposition.

Almost unanimous opposition of property owners along North Kedzie avenue between North avenue and Palmer square to converting the thoroughfare into a boulevard for fast traffic will not deter the Logan Square Business Men's association from pressing a campaign for the project, Charles V. Falkenberg, president of the association, announced yesterday.

Of 160 property owners who answered a questionnaire circulated by Ald. George Self [35th], fewer than ten favored the proposal, the alderman announced. The property owners explained that they feared increased and speeded traffic in the avenue would make it less desirable as a residential street and expressed opposition to paying the special assessment that would be necessitated, Ald. Self said.

The association's proposal is that increased space for traffic be provided by removing the parkway from the center of the avenue.

At a meeting tomorrow night the association will decide what course to take in an effort to change the sentiment of property owners on the street since the latter must approve the project before the city can do the work.

Believes Plan Misunderstood.

Mr. Falkenberg expressed the belief that many residents of the street declared themselves opposed to the improvement because they are under the impression that the street would be widened and the property line moved back.

Many property owners believe they will have to pay a high special assessment, he said, and oppose the improvement for that reason. The maximum assessment will be only $750, though, he said.

According to Mr. Falkenberg, representatives of his organization will visit each property owner personally and lay the matter before him, or will send a letter to each outlining the proposition in all its details.

In addition a meeting will be held at which the project will be fully discussed, and in that way he hopes to gain their approval and permit Ald. Self to submit the enabling ordinance to the city council.

Cites Need for New Route.

The improvement is desired, Mr. Falkenberg pointed out, to provide another traffic artery leading north from Humboldt park. This is desirable to relieve congestion on Humboldt boulevard and to provide another lane of travel to Logan Square. The improvement is believed to be so desirable that it has been designated as one of the principal objectives of the Logan Square business men.

In its present condition Kedzie avenue is practically useless for automobile traffic, Mr. Falkenberg continued, while if it were improved it would be a valuable adjunct to the west park boulevard system.

The two narrow drives with the parkway in the center permit only one automobile to pass at a time. Removal of the parkway would provide a 100 foot street, he concluded.

RESIDENTS WAR ON SCHOOL SITE IN PARK VIEW

Board Officials Will Hear Protests.

Objections of residents of Park View to the board of education's selection of a junior high school site in the district will be outlined for officials of the board and the city at a meeting at Independence park this week.

This announcement was made yesterday by John Klier, secretary of the Park View Improvement association, who is arranging for the meeting. The exact time has not been set, Mr. Klier said, but all other details have been arranged.

Ald. Ross to Attend.

Those expected to attend are Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], who will act as chairman; Building Commissioner Christian C. Paschen, Don C. Rogers, director of the board of education bureau of building survey, and representatives of the Park View association, the East Park View association, and the Villa league.

The board desires to purchase as a junior high school site the block bounded by Addison street, Waveland, Central Park, and Monticello avenues. The block is 100 per cent improved and occupied by small houses, and property owners of the district declare that it is folly to purchase this piece of ground when other vacant plots are available within a few blocks.

Residents of Park View object to the board's buying this site not only because it would force a score of property owners to move but also because vacant property in the immediate vicinity could be acquired much cheaper. Not only would the cost price be less, Mr. Klier pointed out, but it would be a waste of money because the improved property produces more taxes than the vacant ground, and to build a school would be to destroy the income from a square block of property.

Faces Small Park.

The only reason the board has given for wishing to acquire this site for a school is the fact that it faces a small park. Northwest side residents, however, do not believe this feature is worth the additional cost and the inconvenience to property owners.

The board began proceedings a year ago, according to Mr. Klier, but since so many objections arose during the last few months, he charges, work toward acquiring the property has been going on under cover and without the knowledge of property owners. Meanwhile residents of the block are afraid to do any painting or repairing because they do not know what the board intends to do.

Build School Addition.

Work on the addition to York Community High school, Elmhurst, is rapidly progressing. Building operations were started last October. This is the second addition to be made to the school.

RIVER OF PLAINS GIVEN NAME BY FRENCH PIONEERS

Poetic Explorer Called It Riviere Divine.

This is the second in a series of articles telling how west side suburbs, districts, and thoroughfares, got their names.

The Des Plaines river, which figures in the first definite and reliable information regarding the original proprietors of the soil of Chicago, was first called Riviere Divine by the French missionary explorers. Later, the picturesque stream on the prairie became known as Aux Plaines, or Des Plaines, both signifying "of the plains."

This seems to be the verdict of historians, although one authority says that the river, which rises in the southeastern part of Wisconsin and flows south and southwest until it reaches the Kankakee river to form the Illinois river, was named from a species of maple called plaine by the French.

It is generally believed that Marquette and Joliet, guided to the stream by friendly Indians, were the first of the white race to travel the Des Plaines.

The prairie space that separated the Chicago and the Des Plaines rivers was called by the French Le Portage de Checagou, meaning land over which it was necessary to carry boats and their cargoes when passing from one to the other.

A Crossroad Before Columbus.

"There was probably no other place of like importance on the American continent," say Knight and Zeuch in their history of the Chicago portage route of the seventeenth century, "for there is every reason to believe that it had been a meeting place and a much traveled route of the Indians centuries before the discovery of America. Furs that were purchased for a string of beads or a tomahawk and that later passed to the magnificent courts of Europe passed over the old Chicago portage on their way to Paris."

Marian A. White in her "Book of the Western Suburbs," speaks of Joliet as "somewhat of a poet since he found in the Des Plaines and its environs that which suggested the beautiful name. Was he enraptured by its peaceful, meandrous, yet purposeful flow toward the more important stream, which in patriotic fervor he had named in honor of his king, 'St. Louis,' now known as the Illinois? Or did the glorious hues of the prairie, and the reeds and rushes in autumn garb appeal to his poetic nature, and frame the stream with such pronounced picturesqueness as to bring forth from his darkly bearded lips the exclamation 'Riviere Divine'?"

Visited by La Salle in 1681.

In the winter of 1681-'82, La Salle, journeying along the southern shore of Lake Michigan, reached the Des Plaines. The men under Tonty, who had pushed their way ahead while waiting for their commander, constructed rude sleighs by which the party and its members might be more easily transported to the Illinois.

"By the time the Des Plaines reaches Riverside," says Marian White, "it has meandered almost eighty miles from its course in southeast Wisconsin. Curving into the banks of low lying meadow lands, neighboring with smaller streams which help to swell its flood, the Des Plaines attains its most picturesque development in the vicinity of Riverside, where, doubling on itself among beautifully wooded slopes, like Tennyson's brook, 'it winds about and in and out,' then mades a 'sudden sally and sparkles out among the ferns, to bicker dow[illegible]

The Parkside Lutheran church, Parkside and Barry avenues, will be dedicated at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. O. J. Preus, president of the eastern district of Lutheran churches. Today's ceremony is the culmination of three years' work on the part of the Rev. K. G. Nilsen, pastor, and his parishioners.

On June 20, 1926, the Rev. Mr. Nilsen inaugurated a Sunday school in a store at Belmont and Linder avenues, and for the last two years worship has been held in a small chapel at 5625 Belmont avenue.

A musical program given by the church choir and six soloists will feature the dedication ceremony. Soloists are Miss Gladys Stone and Miss Lillian Stone, Mr. and Mrs. A. Norman, Mrs. Nilsen and Mrs. John Swanson.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning the Rev. Mars Dale will be ordained as pastor, and will immediately take up his duties as assistant pastor of Parkside church.

Thus began a friendship which will shortly result in Dorfman going to Berlin to study with Prof. Arthur Schnabel. Young Dorfman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dorfman. His mother will accompany him abroad.

At present the young pianist is making player piano records. He is a former student of Roosevelt High school.

CLUBS TO FORM CIVIC COUNCIL FOR 40TH WARD

Site to Be Selected for Junior High.

Delegates from civic and business clubs of the 40th ward will be called together next Friday night to form the 40th Ward Civic conference, Ald. Joseph C. Ross announced yesterday. A meeting place for the new group will be selected during the week, the alderman said.

The conference, which Ald. Ross hopes will become an important part of the administration of 40th ward affairs, will act as an advisory board. Its purpose will be to present recommendations to the alderman regarding needed improvements and to aid in drafting legislation for the ward.

All Clubs Eligible.

"All groups will be asked to have representatives at the meetings, which will probably be held once a month," the alderman said. "Any club will have the right to offer suggestions, and, in that manner, if groups from all parts of the ward are represented, an end will be put to the complaint that some sections are neglected in favor of others."

One of the matters to be given consideration at the outset of the new organization will be the selection of a site for a junior high school. The board of education desires to build the school at Addison street and Central Park avenue, but residents of the district differ as to the exact site. The alderman will attempt through discussion at the conference to come to an agreement with property owners.

Will Decide Paving Policy.

Another job of the conference will be to decide whether streets in the ward are to be repaved by the board of local improvements or resurfaced by the department of public works. The relative merits of the two plans from which the alderman can choose will be discussed, and the matter will be decided by a vote of the delgates.

BERWYN POST TO HOLD CARNIVAL STARTING JULY 4

Biggest and Best Ever Is the Promise.

The largest carnival in its history in point of size, variety of merchandise booths and rides, is how members of the Berwyn post, No. 422 describe the affair which the post will sponsor in south Berwyn at Oak Park and Ogden avenues from July 4 to 13. Plans include 25 merchandise booths, merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels, chairaplane rides and refreshments. The advance sale of tickets has been unusually large and the post invites all Legion friends from other posts to come over and " make whoopee with us."

At the regular monthly meeting of the Du Page county committee of the American Legion held in the Soldiers' and Sailors' room of the Memorial building, Hinsdale, Mrs. Pearl Duncan, state president of the Legion auxiliary, made a plea for immediate action in regard to completion of tennis and baseball facilities at the Elgin state insane asylum. In the absence of County Commander Kime Aspray of Glen Ellyn the meeting was in charge of County Vice Commander Arthur Wilson of Elmhurst. Representatives of Glen Ellyn, Wheaton and Naperville announced that their respective towns were desirous of having the eleventh district convention of the American Legion in 1930. A discussion followed, after which Wheaton and Naperville withdrew in favor of Glen Ellyn. Arrangements for the meeting were handled by Charles D. F. Merrill and Otis R. Cushing.

Following the game a dinner will be held in the clubhouse, where prizes will be distributed to the winners.

The next meeting of the 7th district will be held Saturday afternoon, July 13, at Wayside inn, Morton Grove, with Sisternenn and Niles Township posts as joint hosts. ONE BARGAIN GOOD, MANY ARE BETTER, THESE WOMEN FIND

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 17.—In order to clean up stock a neighborhood store was offering houses dresses, slightly out of style, for 25 cents each. I bought five of them. Two could be used as they were while the other three, with slight alterations, were converted into very neat garments of excellent material.

MRS. E. E. RIEGER,
2715 Coyne street.

WHAT 19 CENTS MAY BUY.

Bellwood, June 16.—An "odds and ends" 19 cent table in a Forest Park bargain basement afforded me my best opportunity to demonstrate that there really are such things as bargains. Here are some of the articles I purchased for 19 cents each: Two men's shirts, soiled but otherwise in perfect condition; two boys' blouses; a sweater and cap for the baby, and a beaded handbag imported from Belgium. I have used the purse a year already and it is still as good as new.

MRS. F. MEINKE,

MORE 19 CENT BARGAINS.

Oak Park, June 16.—Two shirts for 19 cents each were my best bargain. They were purchased in the basement of a neighborhood store. My husband requires a 15 inch neck band and these were only 14½, but they were not difficult to alter and he was pleased with them. I saw the same kind of shirts advertised later for $1.49.

Masses at the church will be said every Sunday at 8 and 10 o'clock and on week days at 8 o'clock. Hours of other devotions will be announced later.

MOVES TO PAVE DEVON THROUGH COUNTY FOREST

Busse Orders Engineers to Complete Plans.

In order to speed the completion of Devon avenue as a through highway from the lake shore to the county line the county highway department reported yesterday that plans are being prepared for the actual paving of the street across forest preserve property east of Milwaukee avenue. This announcement was preceded by a report from the Chicago Plan commission that the last legal hurdle is about to be cleared in the completion of the city's share of the work immediately west of this street.

The board of local improvements is preparing data for a public hearing on opening Devon avenue west of Milwaukee avenue. If the project is approved at the hearing, which is probable since property owners of the district report that there is a strong sentiment in favor of it, legal procedure will have been cleared for every section of the street.

Orders Completion of Plans.

With this in view, County Commissioner William E. Busse, who has fostered the improvement, last week ordered the highway department to complete its plans for paving Devon avenue between Caldwell and Milwaukee avenues. Although there has been nothing to interfere with improving this section, the county board held back until the section in the city was approved.

Officials of the highway department announced plans will probably be completed within a month, after which the board will advertise for bids to construct a bridge and approaches across the north branch of the river which bisects the improvement. After the bridge is completed the actual paving will be done. The entire improvement will probably require a year, according to engineers of the department.

Fulfills Old Agreement.

In paving Devon avenue the county will be fulfilling the terms of an agreement made when the forest preserve property was purchased. Fred W. Brummel, who sold the property to the county a few years ago, insisted that the records of the board meeting at which the sale was completed show the county's promise to pave Devon avenue.

By the same agreement the county recently paved the street across forest preserve property between East River road and the western city limits of Park Ridge.

The fight to obtain the improvement of Devon avenue has been sponsored by the Northwest Real Estate board under the leadership of George J. Eckhoff.

SEEK TO ENROLL 30,000 W. SIDERS FOR TAX SLASH

Leaders to Start Drive at Austin Massmeeting.

A massmeeting in the Austin Town hall next Wednesday night will launch the campaign of the Citizens' Tax Reduction association to enlist approximately 30,000 west side taxpayers into that organization, Justus Chancellor, president, announced yesterday.

Ninian H. Welch, Circuit court master in chancery, has promised to speak at the meeting in behalf of the organization. His talk will be followed by further discussion of the movement to obtain reduced taxes by Mr. Chancellor and others seeking to build up the group. Other speakers will include John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, and Mrs. W. H. Wright. Dr. U. H. Windell, 5815 Midway Park avenue, is arranging the meeting, and will represent the organization in enlisting taxpayers of Austin.

The massmeeting will be the first of a series to be held throughout the west and northwest sides. Residents of the west side will be organized into a strong civic body which will join forces in behalf of reform measures with similar groups being formed on the north and south sides of the city, Mr. Chancellor said.

Meeting Planned in Maywood.

Plans are being completed for another meeting in Maywood, which is being arranged with the coöperation of the Maywood Taxpayers' association, under the leadership of William Bauer. The tax problem in Cook county will be outlined for the taxpayers by officials of the organization and by civic leaders of Chicago, and tentative plans for reducing taxes and doing away with alleged irregularities in local government will be discussed.

Subscriptions of $1, the membership fee being solicited by organizers of the association, will be used partly to conduct a reform campaign among governing bodies of the county and partly to aid in the expansion of the group, according to Mr Chancellor.

The group has been organized as a nonprofit corporation, the whole aims of which are to equalize and reduce taxes. The officers are: President, Mr. Chancellor; vice president and secretary, William T. Gridley; treasurer, Earl G. Gubbins; assistant secretary, J. L. Newman; and directors, George W. Dixon, E. E. Grant, F. E. Eerstman, Si Mayer, J. Scott Matthews, and William J. Tomkins.

Four Principal Objectives.

Four principal objectives are included in the association's program:

The elimination by legislation of the 400 tax raising or tax spending bodies in Cook county.

Compulsory restitution of money illegally used by public office holders, to be brought about by suing the bondsmen or bonding companies of these officeholders found guilty of malfeasance in office.

Organizing the members of the association into a political force whose votes [estimated at 300,000, or three to a household] would constitute the balance of power in local elections.

If necessary, enjoin unjust or inequitable tax rates and the levying of taxes without referenda where they are required.

Declares Waste Grows Worse.

Waste of money by public bodies is getting worse daily, Mr. Chancellor said, and the taxpayer is suffering as a consequence. The legislators sent to represent and protect the people do nothing of the kind, he continued, and do nothing to do away with the exorbitant taxes which are constantly piling up.

Daily more tax consuming bodies are being created, he pointed out. At each meeting of these bodies new schemes for spending more money are put into practice.

Through the new organization, Mr. Chancellor believes an amendment to the state constitution can be passed doing away with some of the 400 taxing bodies in Cook county. This can be brought about only if a voting force of 300,000 is obtained, however, he pointed out.

It may look foolhardy to attempt to organize 100,000 persons and unite them on one proposition, he concluded, but he ventured the opinion that it can be done since it has been done at other times.

ROBERTSON SEES BOOM IF ROAD FUND IS GRANTED

$20,000,000 Highway Business Builder.

The $20,000,000 which the west park commissioners wish to spend to build an elevated highway across the west side would be a revolving fund spent repeatedly on the west side, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the park board, told members of the West Side Kiwanis club at a luncheon Tuesday.

"We must create in order to make business," he said, "and by creating a $20,000,000 highway we will create that much business for the west side.

Would Benefit West Side.

"Money spent for building materials would remain on the west side because it would be purchased from west side concerns. West side labor would be employed, and money would be put back into circulation in our section of the city in that way.

"Merchants, bankers, and property owners would all have a share in the use of the added profits and other benefits the highway would create," Dr. Robertson continued.

"These benefits are no myth, but would certainly result if the board is voted bonds with which to finance the superhighway," he said.

Tax Burden Not Heavy.

He expressed the opinion that the slight additional tax created by the bond issue would be of little consequence compared with the benefits to be derived immediately from actual construction of the highway, and later from its use by thousands of motorists.

In conclusion, he put before the Kiwanians the following question: The World's Fair is coming in 1933; do we want to continue to live on the west side without doing anything to better its poor transportatiotn facilities while we watch the north and south sides feed and house the millions of visitors coming to Chicago for the fair, or do we want to enjoy our share of the prosperity it will bring?

HIGH POWER AND CHAINS CONQUER SUMMER STATIC

Experts Say There Will Be No Slump.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The summer broadcasting bugaboo which up until last year made the most rabid radio fan desert his receiving set for other forms of entertainment during three or four warm months, will definitely disappear this season, broadcasters and radio manufacturers predict, because of the policy of the chain stations to continue their best features the year round.

The increase in power of the larger stations, together with the remarkable improvements in receiving sets, has firmly established radio as a twelve months' mode of entertainment.

Broadcasters have announced that the biggest and most popular radio programs that have been heard weekly during the cold winter evenings will be enhanced rather than deleted this summer and will be found in their accustomed place on the hottest nights.

$23,000,000 to Be Spent.

Officials of the chain systems report that more than $23,000,000 will be spent by advertisers on chain programs alone this year. The National Broadcasting company estimates its receipts at $16,000,000 and the Columbian chain clients will spend close to $7,500,000. And a large portion of this income, it is said, will be used to make radio as popular during the summer as it is in the winter.

Four years ago at this time of the year, the radio was temporarily discarded. Many radio equipment manufacturers closed shop and broadcasters withdrew their best artists. Consequently listeners, discouraged by poor reception and equally as poor programs, packed their sets, so to speak, until about Labor day.

By 1927, however, the summer slack was beginning to disappear as the chain broadcasting companies began to realize the waste of the seasonal slump. This trend was strengthened last summer, partly because of the political conventions, and the broadcasters became firmly convinced that radio was an all year around product.

Credits Fans with Discovery.

For this discovery, experts credit owners, rather than manufacturers of receiving sets. While factories were closed and broadcasters were cutting their programs to the bone, it is said, owners of receiving sets continued to use them during the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow at summer static.

Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, says: "There will be no summer slump in broadcasting this year or any future year. Broadcasting this summer promises to be as good and even better than during the winter. The chain and other broadcasters have improved their transmission methods to a marked degree since last summer. Also there has been a reallocation of station wave lengths by the federal radio commission.

Th proximity of stations to th listeners as well as the tremendous increase in power of the stations have contributed much to better summer reception. Almost every city of any size today has at least one station and the larger municipalities have from two to five. Five years ago the power of most transmitters was limited to 500 and 250 watts, while today there are 50,000 watts transmitters.

Portable Sets Help.

Another feature of radio set improvement that has contributed to the popularity of summer tuning-in is the ease with which up-to-date portable sets can be transported. The compact receiver is now an essential part of the modern camping equipment or the household articles taken to summer resorts. The portable radio set today is as easy to set up as the old phonograph and a great deal less trouble after it is put into operation.

The broadcasting of good programs during the day, as well as at night, is also on the increase and has its influence on the disappearance of the summer slump. All day as well as all night radio entertainment is now a reality as advertisers clamor for more time and chain systems expand monthly.

31,589 ATTEND RADIO EXHIBIT AND CONVENTION

All attendance records were broken at the June convention and trade show of the Radio Manufacturers association in Chicago when 31,589 members of the industry were registered. This exceeds by 6,989, the record breaking attendance of 1928 with 24,600 registrations.

BY QUIN RYAN.

Two days less than two years after he won the world championship from Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey was called upon to make one of the greatest struggles in his career—his fight against Georges Carpentier, the challenger from France.

A little patch of white canvas, scorching under the summer sun. Dempsey vs. Carpentier. Remember how it sounded through the radio horn on that blistering afternoon? [Gong]

Announcer—There's the bell! The first round has started. Both men are coming out of their corners like twin flashes of lightning. There's no fooling about this fight—it's going to be a fight! They're in the center of the ring—sparring gently, and—O! there's the first punch—Carpentier drove a sweet left to Dempsey's jaw. Jack is weaving and shifting about like a great cat. There's another! Carp landed a right hander that lacked steam in the same spot. Jack is closing in now—he's working on Carpentier's middle. Now they're in a clinch, and Carpentier drives home a stiff uppercut while they're hanging on. Dempsey's got a fight on his hands this time! Now they're boxing and Carp is driving Dempsey back with short left and right arm punches to the head, to the body, any place he can land 'em. Carp is working those two arms like guns.

Jack is still weaving and swaying, working at Carpentier's waist line. Carpentier tries with his right hand, but—they go into a clinch. Socko! Dempsey! Dempsey drives three hard right hand smashes to Carpentier's head! Now they've locked arms. They have broken now, and—Carp just missed with an awful right hand swing to the head, and they've gone into another clinch. Look at Dempsey! He's got his arms free now, and he's punching Carpentier amidships for all he's worth! Look at the Frenchman's face! He can feel those punches! Dempsey is fighting now! O! look at him hit! Dempsey is smashing Carp with everything but the ringposts. He's got the challenger running away —stepping back — one! two! three. rights and lefts to head and body for Dempsey! Now George stops his dancing and—Whee! Carpentier tried with his right once more, but Jack made him jump with an awful right hand hook on the chin. Carpentier is taking an awful beating, but he seems to be weathering the gale! O! O! Carpentier almost fell out of the ring that time—a right hand to the head did it. Carp is coming right back; they're dancing, and George tries his right hand again. It's short! [Gong!]

There's the gong! Round two! Both men are coming out of their corners without the speed they showed in the last frame. Dempsey is crouching in much the same way we saw him crouch before Willard in Toledo, two years ago. Carpentier is on his toes, with those huge muscles along the sides of his body tensed. He's going to put all he's got into that first punch. O! Dempsey brought a left hook right up from the floor of the ring! Carpentier came back with a stiff right to the champion's mouth. and—they're in a clinch, and Dempsey up and Dempsey is right after him, relentless. One! Two! Three! Three in a row!

Jack drove three left hand jabs smack on George's face. There's a cut under the Frenchman's eye, and the blood is running down his cheek. His nose is bleeding again, and the claret is running down his chest and bespattering his fighting trunks. Now Dempsey is crouching and weaving again, and Carp is backing away. Ohh! There it is! Ohh! Three of them! He's slowed up the Frenchman! Dempsey drove three awful socks straight at Carp's stomach. Now—Ohh!—Jack sent a left to Carp's face!

The Frenchman is tired! Socko! Dempsey lands a left on Carp's jaw. He's driving the Frenchman to the ropes, and now he's got him cornered with a volley of blows, rights and lefts to the body—to the head—Dempsey is hitting again! He's fighting! Carp is trying vainly to defend himself—the champion has him tired out —Carp tries a right to Dempsey's head but the champion brushes it away, and now—Oohh! He's driving rights and lefts to Carp's middle! There goes—[Gong!]

That's all of round three, ladies and gentlemen. I'm afraid it's only a question of time now. Dempsey, with his hard and swift body blows has slowed up the fast-stepping Frenchman, and taken the steam out of his punches. There's consternation over there in Carp's corner, and Deschamps is wiping the blood off Carp's face and chest, and applying something to that cut under his eye.

Dempsey is blowing and his face is a bit red, but he's unmarked by the battle as yet. There's a world of confidence in the Dempsey corner. It's only a question of time now. Jack Kearns is rubbing the champion's back and talking to him, and Dempsey nods his head. [Gong!]

There's the bell! Here goes round four! Look at Dempsey! Look at him! The man is out of his corner and half way across the ring before is pushing the challenger around the ring. Now they've broken and—Zowie! Carpentier sent that famous right of his straight at Dempsey's ear! Clinch again! They're wrestling all about the ring! Look at Deschamps down in Carp's corner—he's shouting in French and motioning to his boy to stay away from Dempsey. They're breaking again! Now Dempsey is—OHHHH! There it is! Carp smashed Dempsey, and he is staggering away! It was a right hander flush on the jaw! Carp is driving the champion around the ring! It may be all over! The crowd is on its feet yelling and screaming for the knockout! They're smashing home punch after punch and Carp has the champion groggy and holding on! Dempsey is holding on and sending little, vicious jabs at Carpentier's body. [GONG!]

There's the bell! That's all of round two! And what a round! Carp gave Dempsey everything he had in that round, and he surely had the champion staggering. Both men are in their corners now, and puffing hard.

There's the bell! Round three! Both men are on their feet with the stroke of the bell and are racing to the center of the ring. Jack leading this time, up on his toes for an opening, and—Ow! There she goes! Dempsey tried with a left hand jab to Carp's head but it was short. They're feeling each other out with their gloves. landed! Carp is hurt. He's backing the echo of the bell has died away! And he's after Carpentier! With rights and lefts! Oh! Wow! Dempsey drives a straight right for Carp's head, and you can see the pain on the challenger's face! But he doesn't back away! He's standing there and trading punches with Dempsey, snapping out that right hand of his again and again! But Dempsey can't be stopped! He's fighting this time, fighting like the Dempsey who knocked down Willard six times in one round at Toledo. There's a snarl on his face!

Oh, they're punching! We can't even follow them! Georges is slapping Jack with left jabs and then he's winging over right handers to the head. Dempsey is crouching and snarling, and driving rights and lefts into the white body of his opponent! Punch! Punch! Punch! It's just a deadly battle between two men. Dempsey is forcing Carp into a neutral corner, the rain of body blows continues. Jack is swinging up—he's bringing up that left—Carpentier is down! Georges is on the mat! The Frenchman did a nose dive into the canvas.

He's lying there quivering, and Referee Ertle is standing over him counting out the death-knell . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight. .

He's on his feet! Plucky Carp is back on his feet! He's groggy, but he's on his feet! And he's wrapped his arms around his head to protect his jaws. And he lurches towards Dempsey. Jack drives an awful right to Carp's heart. You can see the Frenchman's knees sag . . .he's dropping like a sack! He's going down again! No, he's lurching toward Dempsey with his head still covered. Jack steps back and takes careful aim! And—Ohh! It's all over! Jack drives a left hander straight into the pit of Carp's stomach, and the Frenchman is down again!

Referee Ertle motions Dempsey back and begins counting. Two . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . Carp quivers, but he's finished now! Dempsey prowls around the ring like a panther at the kill . . . nine . . . ten!

RADIO BOARD TO CENSOR FOREIGN PROGRAM RELAYS

A step in controlling relay broadcasting from foreign countries to the United States or vice versa, which is being interpreted as an indirect method for censoring these programs and for preventing the broadcasting of foreign propaganda in America, has been taken in by the federal radio commission in a recent general order.

The order also requires quarterly reports from stations engaged in relay broadcasting; this being intended to keep check on their activities to determine whether or not the assigned channels are being utilized efficiently.

A third effect of the order, the commission expects, will be to put a stop to "bootleg" relay broadcasting. It is understood that some station in this country have been picking up foreign broadcasts and rebroadcasting them in the United States without a license to do so.

The order states that "no station engaged in relay broadcasting shall grant authority to any radio station within the United States to broadcast its programs without first obtaining written consent of the commission."

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have made negotiations with foreign stations whereby they are enabled to rebroadcast foreign programs in this country.

Two other orders issued by the commission require that every broadcasting station shall be given absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress and shall cease broadcasting upon such frequencies when interference may be caused to reception from such ships or aircraft. The order provides further that no two or more broadcasting stations shall maintain a joint or common watch upon such frequencies unless authorized to do so by the commission.

WEST SIDE BANK AIDS MERCHANTS' BUILDING PLANS

New Plan Offered in the Madison-Kedzie Area.

In order to facilitate improvement of stores in the Madison-Kedzie district, C. C. Wedding, president of the business men's association, announced Wednesday that the Madison and Kedzie State bank has made an offer to aid in financing remodeling or additional building that any merchant might wish to do.

Ira Krupnick, vice president of the bank and director of the association, explained that the bank desires to cooperate with the individual merchants in making improvements on their own places of business because the entire district will benefit.

Many Need New Fronts.

Members of the Madison-Kedzie association were recently told by a representative of a business promotion firm that only one in five shops on the street has a modern store front, and business in the district suffers because merchants are at a disadvantage in presenting merchandise.

Mr. Wedding outlined at Wednesday's business meeting the projects to benefit the district which committees of the club now have under consideration. A survey is being made by the board of local improvements, he said, preparatory to opening proceedings for the widening of Madison street two east and west of Kedzie avenue.

Committees of the group are also working with public bodies to obtain a new lighting system for the street; to work out a re-zoning plan whereby property in the neighborhood will attain its maximum value, and to obtain provision for limited parking on Warren avenue and Washington boulevard to replace the existing parking ban.

Committees Are Appointed.

The following committees were appointed by Mr. Wedding last week:

Membership: S. M. Russell, chairman, and F. J. Pisternick, S. Silvey, E. Neuman, Theodore Paulos, V. E. Fay, W. Swords, Nathan Ivaz, M. Bobrow, N. G. Rantis, W. Finn, V. Gianfala, I. Saffer, and J. A. Schmich.

N. W. SIDE AGAIN FACES BATTLE TO KEEP BUSES

Carlstrom Attacks Lines Tomorrow.

Bus transportation, long the most important issue in northwest side civic affairs, came to the fore last week after an interval of two months, when 20,000 residents of various communities were threatened with removal of their only means of transit.

Forces were mustered for another of a long series of fights for transportation facilities Wednesday when Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom announced that he will act tomorrow to remove from service eight independent bus lines now carrying pasengers for five cents in various communities.

Mr. Carlstrom announced he will file a bill in the court of Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher tomorrow morning asking an injunction restraining these buses from operating. Judge Fisher will then set a date for hearing both sides of the case.

Federation Enters Fight.

The Northwest Federation of Improvement clubs, desiring to take a leading part in the court battle on behalf of its members, who would lose their only means of transportation by the injunction, Wednesday authorized George E. Scheck, attorney for the bus lines, to enter an order naming the federation as a defendant in the case.

Mr. Carlstrom seeks the injunction on the ground that these bus lines are operating without a certificate of convenience and necessity issued by the Illinois commerce commission, and hence are on the streets illegally. Mr. Scheck plans to admit that the lines are operating illegally, but to argue that they should be kept in service because they furnish the only means of transportation for 20,000 residents. Without buses, Mr. Scheck said, thousands would have to walk more than a mile to other mean of conveyance.

Further, it will be asked that the lines be kept in operation until the Illinois Supreme court renders a decision on the right of the Chicago Motor Coach company to operate on the city streets.

Won Permits from Council.

Last April representatives of the corporation counsel of Chicago arrested drivers of the buses on the ground that they were operating without a permit from the city. Hundreds of northwest side residents marched on the city hall, however, and succeeded in having the council grant temporary permits to operate. Residents charged at that time that the arrests were made in behalf of the Chicago Motor Coach company.

The independent bus companies operate on various lines in the district bounded by Oak Park, Bryn Mawr, Grand and Kimball avenues. A separate bill of complaint will be filed against each of the eight companies by the attorney general.

Clock Belies Adage About 1st 100 Years

An antique grandfather's clock, as regular and faithful today as at the time of the Fort Dearborn massacre in the summer of 1812, recently came into the possession of a resident of the northwest side. Through five great wars of the United States it has stood the test of time, marking the hours while history was made. The old clock is the property of C. E. Lawrence, 4604 North Keating avenue. For more than 115 years it has been in his family.

Starting in Tennessee in the early days of the last century, it journeyed with the family from one place to another, registering time while generation after generation came and went. Last week it was installed and given a permanent place in the home of Mr. Lawrence.

Who built the old clock and where it first ticked away the hours no one knows. Its history, so far as Mr. Lawrence knows it, began with its purchase by William Clark, great-grandfather of the present owner, at a public sale in Knoxville, Tenn., about 1813. Prior to that time it may have stood for years in the cabin of a Tennessee mountaineer or graced the stately home of a gentleman of the old south.

Joins Trek to Indiana.

Following its purchase by Mr. Clark at Knoxville the clock stood for several years in his home there. In the early '30s when the Clark family moved to a farm near Princeton, Ind., the clock was brought along, perhaps in a prairie schooner. Still marking the hours in perfect tranquillity, it stood in its new home, far removed from the hurry and bustle of more thickly populated centers. Upon the death of William Clark, it entered the possession of his son, John. New settlers appeared in Indiana, new farms were started, everywhere there were signs of progress—but the old clock remained in its nook in the Clark home, faithfully marking time.

Another death, and the clock passed into the hands of another owner. This time it became the property of William C. Lawrence, father of the present owner. The years passed, a new century was ushered in, and still the old clock ticked away. Mr. Lawrence died, but his wife stayed on in the Indiana home, and the clock maintained its accustomed place. Then, early in the present year, Mrs. Lawrence passed away, and the heirloom was bequeathed to her son. About ten days ago it was taken from its old location and brought to Chicago.

Weight Same as Alarm Clock.

Except for the weights and pendulum the clock is so light that it could be lifted by a child. Mr. Lawrence estimates its weight as being about the same as that of a large alarm clock. It is wound every twenty-four hours by a system of weights. A curious feature is the fact that it possesses camouflage keyholes, probably inserted by some one years ago who supposed such a ruse would endow the antique with a semblance of modernity.

But old as the clock is, it marks time as regularly as the newest and most up to date timepiece of the day. The mechanism is of wood, as was the case with most clocks a century or more ago. The construction is simple, only a few wheels and pinion bearings being used in the operation. The parts are accurately cut from very hard wood, probably by hand. Despite the years of service it has rendered there is not a sign of wear on any of its operating parts.

On the face of the clock are three indicators, one marking the hours and minutes, another the seconds and the third the days of the month.

Hinsdale to Start Street Widening Work on July 5

New ornamental lights are also to be installed in the block. New concrete paving is planned for the southeast and the northwest districts.

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

CHICAGO'S contributions to the study of still life continue to grow apace. This interesting phenomenon of cultural progress, once flourishing only in the untrammeled mountain fastnesses of the south, far from the madding crowd, caviar to the general, a violet by a mossy stone, is, in fact, becoming of rather common occurrence. Many, indeed, regard it as indigenous, like the dandelion or diabetes. No neighborhood is complete without one, not even the most fastidious or churchly or lawabiding, and our art loving cops are kept on the jump, which is tough. The latest to be reported is at 5200 Northwest highway, in the midst of a community of home-owning citizens in Jefferson Park. It contained a 2,000 gallon vat full of mash and was sniffed by expert sniffers from the Gale street police station. Capt. David Lynch immediately assigned two able bodied patrolmen to guard the treasure from the lawless element.

Neighbor Frank Chladek, highly esteemed Garfieldian and booster, says that while the west side seems to be "the neglected spot in the city insofar as improvements of major nature are concerned, it is with a feeling of shock that we find on investigation that the bus lines seem to be sending the worst buses in the city out this way. The Laramie and Central avenue buses are about as decrepit as any self-propelled vehicle could be and still make any show of running at all."

Drop in some day, Frank, and we'll go roller coasting on one of the better Devon avenue, Ravenswood or Addison street salt and pepper shakers. They are so wonderful that all our stylish stouts have thrown away their electric vibrators to go bus riding, or as the saying is, gildagraying.

THREAT TO HALT TRAINS MADE IN CROSSING FIGHT

Elevation Demanded by Business Group.

If officials of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad continue to refuse to elevate the tracks across 26th street at Kenton avenue, the city will exercise its police power to prevent the operation of freight trains over the line on the ground that they interfere with traffic and are a public nuisance, Ald. John Toman [23d] asserted yesterday.

Business men in the neighborhood of 26th street and Crawford avenue have been fighting for more than a year to obtain elevation of the tracks and say they are now determined, with the aid of Ald. Toman, to take drastic measures in forcing the railroad to make the improvement.

A resolution adopted by the Crawford Business Men's league, outlining reasons for the elevation, is in the hands of the city council committee on track elevation. Edward F. Toepper, secretary of the league, said the grade crossing at Kenton avenue prevents the development of 26th street and interferes with its use as one of the main arteries leading into Chicago from the west.

Cites Delay to Traffic.

"At various hours during the day and night," he said, "traffic is delayed more than half an hour while trains of more than 75 freight cars are temporarily parked on the tracks.

"Twenty-sixth street is an extremely busy thoroughfare and traffic should not be held up for such long periods. The condition is particularly bad when delays are encountered in the morning rush hours, as is often the case.

"Traffic feeds onto 26th street from Cicero and Ogden avenues coming into the city. Twenty-sixth street would be even more desirable as a gateway to the city if the tracks were elevated and traffic were not delayed.

"Another reason for elevation is the fact that until it is completed there can be no extension of the 26th street car line west from Kenton avenue to Cicero avenue," he continued. "This extension would be a boon to business at 26th street and Crawford avenue, and should be obtained as soon as possible."

Delay Slight, Railway Says.

F. E. Marrow, chief terminal development engineer of the Chicago and Western Indiana, declined yesterday to venture an opinion as to what the attitude of the road will be when negotiations are opened. He stated, however, that a check had been made, and it was found that the tracks carried relatively few freight trains and that motor traffic using 26th street was impeded only slightly by trains on Chicago & Western Indiana tracks.

More cars are run over tracks of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, just across the city line in Cicero, he continued, and those charging the grade crossing is a nuisance may be confused as to which railroad actually interferes with traffic.

Ald. Toman said the town of Cicero and the C., B. & Q., are prepared to elevate the latter's tracks whenever the tracks in the Chicago city limits are elevated. That being the case, he explained, the Chicago & Western Indiana railroad is holding up the entire project.

Toman Drafting Ordinance.

Ald. Toman is drafting an contract ordinance providing for the road to elevate the tracks and bear the entire cost, as is done in practically all track elevations in Chicago. Officials of the road will be asked to negotiate, and if they refuse to make the improvement, the alderman promises that the city will exercise its police power to force an agreement.

"The railroad has been asked many times in the last few years to coöperate with the city and make this necessary improvement," Ald. Toman said. "But each time has offered the excuse that no funds were available."

The $20,000,000 which the west park commissioners wish to spend to build an elevated highway across the west side would be a revolving fund spent repeatedly on the west side, Dr. John Dill Robertson, president of the park board, told members of the West Side Kiwanis club at a luncheon Tuesday.

"We must create in order to make business," he said, "and by creating a $20,000,000 highway we will create that much business for the west side.

Would Benefit West Side.

"Money spent for building materials would remain on the west side because it would be purchased from west side concerns. West side labor would be employed, and money would be put back into circulation in our section of the city in that way.

"Merchants, bankers, and property owners would all have a share in the use of the added profits and other benefits the highway would create," Dr. Robertson continued.

"These benefits are no myth, but would certainly result if the board is voted bonds with which to finance the superhighway," he said.

Tax Burden Not Heavy.

He expressed the opinion that the slight additional tax created by the bond issue would be of little consequence compared with the benefits to be derived immediately from actual construction of the highway, and later from its use by thousands of motorists.

In conclusion, he put before the Kiwanians the following question: The World's Fair is coming in 1933; do we want to continue to live on the west side without doing anything to better its poor transportatiotn facilities while we watch the north and south sides feed and house the millions of visitors coming to Chicago for the fair, or do we want to enjoy our share of the prosperity it will bring?

RIVER OF PLAINS GIVEN NAME BY FRENCH PIONEERS

"Riviere Divine," Poetic Explorer Exclaimed.

This is the second in a series of articles telling how west side suburbs, districts, and thoroughfares, got their names.

The Des Plaines river, which figures in the first definite and reliable information regarding the original proprietors of the soil of Chicago, was first called Riviere Divine by the French missionary explorers. Later, the picturesque stream on the prairie became known as Aux Plaines, or Des Plaines, both signifying "of the plains."

This seems to be the verdict of historians, although one authority says that the river, which rises in the southeastern part of Wisconsin and flows south and southwest until it reaches the Kankakee river to form the Illinois river, was named from a species of maple called plaine by the French.

It is generally believed that Marquette and Joliet, guided to the stream by friendly Indians, were the first of the white race to travel the Des Plaines.

The prairie space that separated the Chicago and the Des Plaines rivers was called by the French Le Portage de Chicagou, meaning land over which it was necessary to carry boats and their cargoes when passing from one to the other.

A Crossroad Before Columbus.

"There was probably no other place of like importance on the American continent," say Knight and Zeuch in their history of the Chicago portage route of the seventeenth century, "for there is every reason to believe that it had been a meeting place and a much traveled route of the Indians centuries before the discovery of America. Furs that were purchased for a string of beads or a tomahawk and that later passed to the magnificent courts of Europe passed over the old Chicago portage on their way to Paris."

Marian A. White in her "Book of the Western Suburbs," speaks of Joliet as "somewhat of a poet since he found in the Des Plaines and its environs that which suggested the beautiful name. Was he enraptured by its peaceful, meandrous, yet purposeful flow toward the more important stream, which in patriotic fervor he had named in honor of his king, 'St. Louis,' now known as the Illinois? Or did the glorious hues of the prairie, and the reeds and rushes in autumn garb appeal to his poetic nature, and frame the stream with such pronounced picturesqueness as to bring forth from his darkly bearded lips the exclamation 'Riviere Divine'?"

Visited by La Salle in 1681.

In the winter of 1681-'82, La Salle, journeying along the southern shore of Lake Michigan, reached the Des Plaines. The men under Tonty, who had pushed their way ahead while waiting for their commander, constructed rude sleighs by which the party and its members might be more easily transported to the Illinois.

"By the time the Des Plaines reaches Riverside," says Marian White, "it has meandered almost eighty miles from its course in southeast Wisconsin. Curving into the banks of low lying meadow lands, neighboring with smaller streams which help to swell its flood, the Des Plaines attains its most picturesque development in the vicinity of Riverside, where, doubling on itself among beautifully wooded slopes, like Tennyson's brook, 'it winds about and in and out,' then mades a 'sudden sally and sparkles out among the ferns, to bicker down the valley.'"

RIVER FOREST MAPS SUMMER PLAY PROGRAM

Hikes and outings, occupational activities and tournaments in tennis, horse shoes, putting, chess and checkers will fill vacation time for children of River Forest this summer under the direction of the village recreation board.

Boys and girls with decorated doll buggies, bicycles and lanterns will take part in the lantern parade and entertainment next Friday through the village. The line of march will start at the board headquarters, Park avenue and Lake street, and continue along Lake street ending at Cummings Field, Harlem avenue. A program of tumblers, tap dancers, the harmonica band and a three reel comedy will be given.

Hike Opens Summer Program.

The summer program started last Monday with a hike from Keystone field through Thatcher's Woods to River Grove, conducted by Alvin L. Lyons, assisted by Miss Amy Schneider and George Sencl. Lunches were packed by the 200 children of the party and lemonade was supplied by the board.

Monday also marked the opening of the handicraft classes with girls making paper lanterns and the boys carving wooden toys, animals, and walking men. Girls' classes are held on Monday and Thrusday, and boys' classes on Tuesdays and Fridays.

The special tournaments will be held at various times during the summer, and a track meet is planned for July 26 with boys and girls of all ages participating.

Plan Bus Trips.

The first of the bus trips which are conducted every two weeks during the summer will be on July 10 to the United States Coast Guard station at Jackson park, the Field Museum and the Zoo. Other planned excursions are to the Haeger potteries at Dundee, to Lake Geneva, and the Dunes.

More than 150 members of the Midwest Athletic club, Madison street and Hamlin avenue, will journey to the Glendale golf club next Wednesday morning to take part in the club's annual golf tournament.

WEST SIDE BANK AIDS MERCHANTS' BUILDING PLANS

New Plan Offered in the Madison-Kedzie Area.

In order to facilitate improvement of stores in the Madison-Kedzie district, C. C. Wedding, president of the business men's association, announced Wednesday that the Madison and Kedzie State bank has made an offer to aid in financing remodeling or additional building that any merchant might wish to do.

Ira Krupnick, vice president of the bank and director of the association, explained that the bank desires to cooperate with the individual merchants in making improvements on their own places of business because the entire district will benefit.

Many Need New Fronts.

Members of the Madison-Kedzie association were recently told by a representative of a business promotion firm that only one in five shops on the street has a modern store front, and business in the district suffers because merchants are at a disadvantage in presenting merchandise.

Mr. Wedding outlined at Wednesday's business meeting the projects to benefit the district which committees of the club now have under consideration. A survey is being made by the board of local improvements, he said, preparatory to opening proceedings for the widening of Madison street two east and west of Kedzie avenue.

Committees of the group are also working with public bodies to obtain a new lighting system for the street; to work out a re-zoning plan whereby property in the neighborhood will attain its maximum value, and to obtain provision for limited parking on Warren avenue and Washington boulevard to replace the existing parking ban.

Committees Are Appointed.

The following committees were appointed by Mr. Wedding last week:

Membership: S. M. Russell, chairman, and F. J. Pisternick, S. Silvey, E. Neuman, Theodore Paulos, V. E. Fay, W. Swords, Nathan Ivaz, M. Bobrow, N. G. Rantis, W. Finn, V. Gianfala, I. Saffer, and J. A. Schmich.

ONE BARGAIN GOOD, MANY ARE BETTER, THESE WOMEN FIND

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of the best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store, printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 17.—In order to clean up stock a neighborhood store was offering houses dresses, slightly out of style, for 25 cents each. I bought five of them. Two could be used as they were while the other three, with slight alterations, were converted into very neat garments of excellent material.

MRS. E. E. RIEGER,
2715 Coyne street.

WHAT 19 CENTS MAY BUY.

Bellwood, June 16.—An "odds and ends" 19 cent table in a Forest Park bargain basement afforded me my best opportunity to demonstrate that there really are such things as bargains. Here are some of the articles I purchased for 19 cents each: Two men's shirts, soiled but otherwise in perfect condition; two boys' blouses; a sweater and cap for the baby, and a beaded handbag imported from Belgium. I have used the purse a year already and it is still as good as new.

MRS. F. MEINKE,

MORE 19 CENT BARGAINS.

Oak Park, June 16.—Two shirts for 19 cents each were my best bargain. They were purchased in the basement of a neighborhood store. My husband requires a 15 inch neck band and these were only 14½, but they were not difficult to alter and he was pleased with them. I saw the same kind of shirts advertised later for $1.49.

HONOR ELMHURST BANKER FOR 35 YEARS' SERVICE

Henry C. Schumacher, president of the Elmhurst State bank, was tendered a surprise dinner at the Elmhurst Golf club Tuesday of last week.

The day marked completion of his 35th year of banking service in the Elmhurst institution, and 50 people gathered on this occasion, representing bank officials, bank employés and their families, to honor him.

Starting his career in 1894 when he entered the bank, then a private institution owned by Henry Glos, he was cashier, head bookkeeper and all-around employé. When the present institution succeeded the private bank of Mr. Glos in 1914, Mr. Schumacher was elected a director and also cashier, holding the latter position until 1926. Then he was made president, suceeding Adam Glos.

Mr. Schumacher has also been associated with several other banking institutions, serving simultaenously as cashier of the Lombard State bank from the time of its inception in 1909 until the double duties became too strenuous in 1919. He was elected a director of the Elmhurst Trust and Savings bank in 1926, and is at present treasurer of the Elmhurst library and York township school treasurer, having held the last named position for 22 consecutive years.

Site to Be Selected for Junior High.

Delegates from civic and business clubs of the 40th ward will be called together next Friday night to form the 40th Ward Civic conference, Ald. Joseph C. Ross announced yesterday. A meeting place for the new group will be selected during the week, the alderman said.

The conference, which Ald. Ross hopes will become an important part of the administration of 40th ward affairs, will act as an advisory board. Its purpose will be to present recommendations to the alderman regarding needed improvements and to aid in drafting legislation for the ward.

All Clubs Eligible.

"All groups will be asked to have representatives at the meetings, which will probably be held once a month," the alderman said. "Any club will have the right to offer suggestions, and, in that manner, if groups from all parts of the ward are represented, an end will be put to the complaint 'that some sections are neglected in favor of others.'"

One of the matters to be given consideration at the outset of the new organization will be the selection of a site for a junior high school. The board of education desires to build the school at Addison street and Central Park avenue, but residents of the district differ as to the exact site. The alderman will attempt through discussion at the conference to come to an agreement with property owners.

Will Decide Paving Policy.

Another job of the conference will be to decide whether streets in the ward are to be repaved by the board of local improvements or resurfaced by the department of public works. The relative merits of the two plans from which the alderman can choose will be discussed, and the matter will be decided by a vote of the delgates.

Oakton Club Elects.

New officers were chosen recently by members of the Oakton club of Oak Park. They are: President, Mrs. A. Harner; vice president, Mrs. R. W. Thomas, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. F. P. Schramm.

PARKSIDE LUTHERAN CHURCH TO DEDICATE NEW BUILDING TODAY

THE REV. K. G. NILSEN.

The Parkside Lutheran church, Parkside and Barry avenues, will be dedicated at 2 o'clock this afternoon by the Rev. O. J. Preus, president of the eastern district of Lutheran churches. Today's ceremony is the culmination of three years' work on the part of the Rev. K. G. Nilsen, pastor, and his parishioners.

On June 20, 1926, the Rev. Mr. Nilsen inaugurated a Sunday school in a store at Belmont and Linder avenues, and for the last two years worship has been held in a small chapel at 5625 Belmont avenue.

A musical program given by the church choir and six soloists will feature the dedication ceremony. Soloists are Miss Gladys Stone and Miss Lillian Stone, Mr. and Mrs. A. Norman, Mrs. Nilsen and Mrs. John Swanson.

At 10:30 o'clock this morning the Rev. Mars Dale will be ordained as pastor, and will immediately take up his duties as assistant pastor of Parkside church.

WEST SUBURBAN WOMEN RAISING HOSPITAL FUND

Organizing under the name of the Elmhurst auxiliary of the Elmhurst hospital, a group of 30 women have started to raise a fund to be used in giving medical and surgical aid to those financially unable to obtain it.

The organization has grown until it now numbers 150 members from Itasca, Woodale Bloomington, Villa Park, Glen Ellyn and Elmhurst.

Numerous money making social affairs have been given. Recently Mrs. Caroline Dolle contributed $50 in memory of her husband and the West Elmhurst Men's club has pledged $100, while several small sums have been donated. The goal is $1,000.

BERWYN POST TO HOLD CARNIVAL STARTING JULY 4

Biggest and Best Ever 'Is the Promise.

The largest carnival in its history in point of size, variety of merchandise booths and rides, is how members of the Berwyn post, No. 422 describe the affair which the post will sponsor in south Berwyn at Oak Park and Ogden avenues from July 4 to 13. Plans include 25 merchandise booths, merry-go-rounds, ferris wheels, chairaplane rides and refreshments. The advance sale of tickets has been unusually large and the post invites all Legion friends from other posts to come over and " make whoopee with us."

At the regular monthly meeting of the Du Page county committee of the American Legion held in the Soldiers' and Sailors' room of the Memorial building, Hinsdale, Mrs. Pearl Duncan, state president of the Legion auxiliary, made a plea for immediate action in regard to completion of tennis and baseball facilities at the Elgin state insane asylum. In the absence of County Commander Kime Aspray of Glen Ellyn the meeting was in charge of County Vice Commander Arthur Wilson of Elmhurst. Representatives of Glen Ellyn, Wheaton and Naperville announced that their respective towns were desirous of having the eleventh district convention of the American Legion in 1930. A discussion followed, after which Wheaton and Naperville withdrew in favor of Glen Ellyn. Arrangements for the meeting were handled by Charles D. F. Merrill and Otis R. Cushing.

Van Buren post, No. 410, has invited its Poppy day workers to a dinner party and entertainment to be held at the Canton tea gardens, Wabash avenue at Van Buren street, next Thursday night. Commander Hanna requests that reservations be in the hands of the adjutant not later than tomorrow.

John B. Maling, a student of industrial and governmental affairs and a retired business executive, will talk to members of Advertising Men's post, No. 38 tomorrow noon in Hotel Sherman on "The Origin and Effect of Class Legislation." Many members of the post are spending the week-end with their families at Genoa City, Wis., at the Ad Post pow-wow.

The next regular monthly meeting of the Chicago unit, Women's Overseas Service league, will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in the room of the Alliance Francaise, 410 South Michigan avenue. This will be the last meeting before the national convention to be held in Minneapolis July 6.

SEEK TO ENROLL 30,000 W. SIDERS FOR TAX SLASH

Leaders to Start Drive at Austin Massmeeting.

A massmeeting in the Austin Town hall next Wednesday night will launch the campaign of the Citizens' Tax Reduction association to enlist approximately 30,000 west side taxpayers into that organization, Justus Chancellor, president, announced yesterday.

Ninian H. Welch, Circuit court master in chancery, has promised to speak at the meeting in behalf of the organization. His talk will be followed by further discussion of the movement to obtain reduced taxes by Mr. Chancellor and others seeking to build up the group. Other speakers will include John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney, and Mrs. W. H. Wright. Dr. U. H. Windell, 5815 Midway Park avenue, is arranging the meeting, and will represent the organization in enlisting taxpayers of Austin.

The massmeeting will be the first of a series to be held throughout the west and northwest sides. Residents of the west side will be organized into a strong civic body which will join forces in behalf of reform measures with similar groups being formed on the north and south sides of the city, Mr. Chancellor said.

Meeting Planned in Maywood.

Plans are being completed for another meeting in Maywood, which is being arranged with the coöperation of the Maywood Taxpayers' association, under the leadership of William Bauer. The tax problem in Cook county will be outlined for the taxpayers by officials of the organization and by civic leaders of Chicago, and tentative plans for reducing taxes and doing away with alleged irregularities in local government will be discussed.

Subscriptions of $1, the membership fee being solicited by organizers of the association, will be used partly to conduct a reform campaign among governing bodies of the county and partly to aid in the expansion of the group, according to Mr. Chancellor.

The group has been organized as a nonprofit corporation, the whole aims of which are to equalize and reduce taxes. The officers are: President, Mr. Chancellor; vice president and secretary, William T. Gridley; treasurer, Earl G. Gubbins; assistant secretary, J. L. Newman; and directors, George W. Dixon, E. E. Grant, F. E. Eerstman, Si Mayer, J. Scott Matthews, and William J. Tomkins.

Four Principal Objectives.

Four principal objectives are included in the association's program:

The elimination by legislation of the 400 tax raising or tax spending bodies in Cook county.

Compulsory restitution of money illegally used by public office holders, to be brought about by suing the bondsmen or bonding companies of these officeholders found guilty of malfeasance in office.

Organizing the members of the association into a political force whose votes [estimated at 300,000, or three to a household] would constitute the balance of power in local elections.

If necessary, enjoin unjust or inequitable tax rates and the levying of taxes without referenda where they are required.

Declares Waste Grows Worse.

Waste of money by public bodies is getting worse daily, Mr. Chancellor said, and the taxpayer is suffering as a consequence. The legislators sent to represent and protect the people do nothing of the kind, he continued, and do nothing to do away with the exorbitant taxes which are constantly piling up.

Daily more tax consuming bodies are being created, he pointed out. At each meeting of these bodies new schemes for spending more money are put into practice.

Through the new organization, Mr. Chancellor believes an amendment to the state constitution can be passed doing away with some of the 400 taxing bodies in Cook county. This can be brought about only if a voting force of 300,000 is obtained, however, he pointed out.

It may look foolhardy to attempt to organize 100,000 persons and unite them on one proposition, he concluded, but he ventured the opinion that it can be done since it has been done at other times.

RESIDENTS WAR ON SCHOOL SITE IN PARK VIEW

Plan Meeting with Board Officials.

Objections of residents of Park View to the board of education's selection of a junior high school site in the district will be outlined for officials of the board and the city at a meeting at Independence park this week.

This announcement was made yesterday by John Klier, secretary of the Park View Improvement association, who is arranging for the meeting. The exact time has not been set, Mr. Klier said, but all other details have been arranged.

Ald. Ross to Attend.

Those expected to attend are Ald. Joseph C. Ross [40th], who will act as chairman; Building Commissioner Christian C. Paschen, Don C. Rogers, director of the board of education bureau of building survey, and representatives of the Park View association, the East Park View association, and the Villa league.

The board desires to purchase as a junior high school site the block bounded by Addison street, Waveland, Central Park, and Monticello avenues. The block is 100 per cent improved and occupied by small houses, and property owners of the district declare that it is folly to purchase this piece of ground when other vacant plots are available within a few blocks.

Residents of Park View object to the board's buying this site not only because it would force a score of property owners to move but also because vacant property in the immediate vicinity could be acquired much cheaper. Not only would the cost price be less, Mr. Klier pointed out, but it would be a waste of money because the improved property produces more taxes than the vacant ground, and to build a school would be to destroy the income from a square block of property.

Faces Small Park.

The only reason the board has given for wishing to acquire this site for a school is the fact that it faces a small park. Northwest side residents, however, do not believe this feature is worth the additional cost and the inconvenience to property owners.

The board began proceedings a year ago, according to Mr. Klier, but since so many objections arose during the last few months, he charges, work toward acquiring the property has been going on under cover and without the knowledge of property owners. Meanwhile residents of the block are afraid to do any painting or repairing because they do not know what the board intends to do.

HIGH POWER AND CHAINS CONQUER SUMMER STATIC

Experts Say There Will Be No Slump.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The summer broadcasting bugaboo which up until last year made the most rabid radio fan desert his receiving set for other forms of entertainment during three or four warm months, will definitely disappear this season, broadcasters and radio manufacturers predict, because of the policy of the chain stations to continue their best features the year round.

The increase in power of the larger stations, together with the remarkable improvements in receiving sets, has firmly established radio as a twelve months' mode of entertainment.

Broadcasters have announced that the biggest and most popular radio programs that have been heard weekly during the cold winter evenings will be enhanced rather than deleted this summer and will be found in their accustomed place on the hottest nights.

$23,000,000 to Be Spent.

Officials of the chain systems report that more than $23,000,000 will be spent by advertisers on chain programs alone this year. The National Broadcasting company estimates its receipts at $16,000,000 and the Columbian chain clients will spend close to $7,500,000. And a large portion of this income, it is said, will be used to make radio as popular during the summer as it is in the winter.

Four years ago at this time of the year, the radio was temporarily discarded. Many radio equipment manufacturers closed shop and broadcasters withdrew their best artists. Consequently listeners, discouraged by poor reception and equally as poor programs, packed their sets, so to speak, until about Labor day.

By 1927, however, the summer slack was beginning to disappear as the chain broadcasting companies began to realize the waste of the seasonal slump. This trend was strengthened last summer, partly because of the political conventions, and the broadcasters became firmly convinced that radio was an all year around product.

Credits Fans with Discovery.

For this discovery, experts credit owners, rather than manufacturers of receiving sets. While factories were closed and broadcasters were cutting their programs to the bone, it is said, "owners of receiving sets continued to use them during the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow at summer static.

Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, says: "There will be no summer slump in broadcasting this year or any future year. Broadcasting this summer promises to be as good and even better than during the winter. The chain and other broadcasters have improved their transmission methods to a marked degree since last summer. Also there has been a reallocation of station wave lengths by the federal radio commission.

Th proximity of stations to th listeners as well as the tremendous increase in power of the stations have contributed much to better summer reception. Almost every city of any size today has at least one station and the larger municipalities have from two to five. Five years ago the power of most transmitters was limited to 500 and 250 watts, while today there are 50,000 watts transmitters.

Portable Sets Help.

Another feature of radio set improvement that has contributed to the popularity of summer tuning-in is the ease with which up-to-date portable sets can be transported. The compact receiver is now an essential part of the modern camping equipment or the household articles taken to summer resorts. The portable radio set today is as easy to set up as the old phonograph and a great deal less trouble after it is put into operation.

The broadcasting of good programs during the day, as well as at night, is also on the increase and has its influence on the disappearance of the summer slump. All day as well as all night radio entertainment is now a reality as advertisers clamor for more time and chain systems expand monthly.

31,589 ATTEND RADIO EXHIBIT AND CONVENTION

All attendance records were broken at the June convention and trade show of the Radio Manufacturers association in Chicago when 31,589 members of the industry were registered.

This exceeds by 6,989, the record breaking attendance of 1928 with 24,600 registrations.

Inside the Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

Two days less than two years after he won the world championship from Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey was called upon to make one of the greatest struggles in his career—his fight against Georges Carpentier, the challenger from France.

A little patch of white canvas, scorching under the summer sun. Dempsey vs. Carpentier. Remember how it sounded through the radio horn on that blistering afternoon? [Gong.]

Announcer—There's the bell! The first round has started. Both men are coming out of their corners like twin flashes of lightning. There's no fooling about this fight—it's going to be a fight! They're in the center of the ring—sparring gently, and—O! there's the first punch—Carpentier drove a sweet left to Dempsey's jaw. Jack is weaving and shifting about like a great cat. There's another! Carp landed a right hander that lacked steam in the same spot. Jack is closing in now—he's working on Carpentier's middle. Now they're in a clinch, and Carpentier drives home a stiff uppercut while they're hanging on. Dempsey's got a fight on his hands this time! Now they're boxing and Carp is driving Dempsey back with short left and right arm punches to the head, to the body, any place he can land 'em. Carp is working those two arms like guns.

Jack is still weaving and swaying, working at Carpentier's waist line. Carpentier tries with his right hand, but—they go into a clinch. Socko! Dempsey! Dempsey drives three hard right hand smashes to Carpentier's head! Now they've locked arms. They have broken now, and—Carp just missed with an awful right hand swing to the head, and they've gone into another clinch. Look at Dempsey! He's got his arms free now, and he's punching Carpentier amidships for all he's worth! Look at the Frenchman's face! He can feel those punches! Dempsey is fighting now! O! look at him hit! Dempsey is smashing Carp with everything but the ringposts! He's got the challenger running away —stepping back — one! two! three! rights and lefts to head and body for Dempsey! Now George stops his dancing and—Whee! Carpentier tried with his right once more, but Jack made him jump with an awful right hand hook on the chin. Carpentier is taking an awful beating, but he seems to be weathering the gale! O! O! Carpentier almost fell out of the ring that time—a right hand to the head did it. Carp is coming right back; they're dancing, and George tries his right hand again. It's short! [Gong!]

There's the gong! Round two! Both men are coming out of their corners without the speed they showed in the last frame. Dempsey is crouching in much the same way we saw him crouch before Willard in Toledo, two years ago. Carpentier is on his toes, with those huge muscles along the sides of his body tensed. He's going to put all he's got into that first punch. O! Dempsey brought a left hook right up from the floor of the ring! Carpentier came back with a stiff right to the champion's mouth, and—they're in a clinch, and Dempsey up and Dempsey is right after him, relentless. One! Two! Three! Three in a row!

Jack drove three left hand jabs smack on George's face. There's a cut under the Frenchman's eye, and the blood is running down his cheek. His nose is bleeding again, and the claret is running down his chest and bespattering his fighting trunks. Now Dempsey is crouching and weaving again, and Carp is backing away. Ohh! There it is! Ohh! Three of them! He's slowed up the Frenchman! Dempsey drove three awful socks straight at Carp's stomach. Now—Ohh!—Jack sent a left to Carp's face!

The Frenchman is tired! Socko! Dempsey lands a left on Carp's jaw. He's driving the Frenchman to the ropes, and now he's got him cornered with a volley of blows, rights and lefts to the body—to the head—Dempsey is hitting again! He's fighting! Carp is trying vainly to defend himself—the champion has him tired out —Carp tries a right to Dempsey's head but the champion brushes it away, and now—Oohh! He's driving rights and lefts to Carp's middle! There goes—[Gong!]

That's all of round three, ladies and gentlemen. I'm afraid it's only a question of time now. Dempsey, with his hard and swift body blows has slowed up the fast-stepping Frenchman, and taken the steam out of his punches. There's consternation over there in Carp's corner, and Deschamps is wiping the blood off Carp's face and chest, and applying something to that cut under his eye.

Dempsey is blowing and his face is a bit red, but he's unmarked by the battle as yet. There's a world of confidence in the Dempsey corner. It's only a question of time now. Jack Kearns is rubbing the champion's back and talking to him, and Dempsey nods his head. [Gong!]

There's the bell! Here goes round four! Look at Dempsey! Look at him! The man is out of his corner and half way across the ring before is pushing the challenger around the ring. Now they've broken and—Zowie! Carpentier sent that famous right of his straight at Dempsey's ear! Clinch again! They're wrestling all about the ring! Look at Deschamps down in Carp's corner—he's shouting in French and motioning to his boy to stay away from Dempsey. They're breaking again! Now Dempsey is—OHHHH! There it is! Carp smashed Dempsey, and he is staggering away! It was a right hander flush on the jaw! Carp is driving the champion around the ring! It may be all over! The crowd is on its feet yelling and screaming for the knockout! They're smashing home punch after punch and Carp has the champion groggy and holding on! Dempsey is holding on and sending little, vicious jabs at Carpentier's body. [GONG!]

There's the bell! That's all of round two! And what a round! Carp gave Dempsey everything he had in that round, and he surely had the champion staggering. Both men are in their corners now, and puffing hard.

There's the bell! Round three! Both men are on their feet with the stroke of the bell and are racing to the center of the ring. Jack leading this time, up on his toes for an opening, and—Ow! There she goes! Dempsey tried with a left hand jab to Carp's head but it was short. They're feeling each other out with their gloves. landed! Carp is hurt. He's backing the echo of the bell has died away! And he's after Carpentier! With rights and lefts! Oh! Wow! Dempsey drives a straight right for Carp's head, and you can see the pain on the challenger's face! But he doesn't back away! He's standing there and trading punches with Dempsey, snapping out that right hand of his again and again! But Dempsey can't be stopped! He's fighting this time, fighting like the Dempsey who knocked down Willard six times in one round at Toledo. There's a snarl on his face!

Oh, they're punching! We can't even follow them! Georges is slapping Jack with left jabs and then he's winging over right handers to the head. Dempsey is crouching and snarling, and driving rights and lefts into the white body of his opponent! Punch! Punch! Punch! It's just a deadly battle between two men. Dempsey is forcing Carp into a neutral corner, the rain of body blows continues. Jack is swinging up—he's bringing up that left—Carpentier is down! Georges is on the mat! The Frenchman did a nose dive into the canvas.

He's lying there quivering, and Referee Ertle is standing over him counting out the death-knell . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight.

He's on his feet! Plucky Carp is back on his feet! He's groggy, but he's on his feet! And he's wrapped his arms around his head to protect his jaws. And he lurches towards Dempsey. Jack drives an awful right to Carp's heart. You can see the Frenchman's knees sag . . .he's dropping like a sack! He's going down again! No, he's lurching toward Dempsey with his head still covered. Jack steps back and takes careful aim! And—Ohh! It's all over! Jack drives a left hander straight into the pit of Carp's stomach, and the Frenchman is down again!

Referee Ertle motions Dempsey back and begins counting. Two . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . Carp quivers, but he's finished now! Dempsey prowls around the ring like a panther at the kill . . . nine . . . ten!

RADIO BOARD TO CENSOR FOREIGN PROGRAM RELAYS

A step in controlling relay broadcasting from foreign countries to the United States or vice versa, which is being interpreted as an indirect method for censoring these programs and for preventing the broadcasting of foreign propaganda in America, has been taken in by the federal radio commission in a recent general order.

The order also requires quarterly reports from stations engaged in relay broadcasting; this being intended to keep check on their activities to determine whether or not the assigned channels are being utilized efficiently.

A third effect of the order, the commission expects, will be to put a stop to "bootleg" relay broadcasting. It is understood that some station in this country have been picking up foreign broadcasts and rebroadcasting them in the United States without a license to do so.

The order states that "no station engaged in relay broadcasting shall grant authority to any radio station within the United States to broadcast its programs without first obtaining written consent of the commission."

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have made negotiations with foreign stations whereby they are enabled to rebroadcast foreign programs in this country.

Two other orders issued by the commission require that every broadcasting station shall be given absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress and shall cease broadcasting upon such frequencies when interference may be caused to reception from such ships or aircraft. The order provides further that no two or more broadcasting stations shall maintain a joint or common watch upon such frequencies unless authorized to do so by the commission.

BOAST BIGGEST MEN'S CLASS AT WOODLAWN M. E.

Group of 350 Holds Social Meetings.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

[Walers Photo.]

Woodlawn Park Methodist Episcopal church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, claims the largest men's Bible class on the south side. It has an enrollment of 350 members and is under the leadership of Elmer T. Howson, who has been its teacher for eighteen years. Lessons are taught by the discussion method. In keeping with the motto, "Let us know our class better," each member during the meetings wears a name button after the Rotary club fashion.

Manages Youngsters' Picnic.

On the second Tuesday of each month the class holds a social and business session at which interesting talks are heard. Among the recent speakers have been H. M. Swans, former missionary to India; Fritz Crisler, assistant coach at the University of Chicago; E. T. Hawson, who spoke on his trip to Mexico; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, and A. A. Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago.

Yesterday the class sponsored the annual Sunday school picnic of the church held at Jackson park, looking after the transportation of the young folks, furnishing the prizes and taking charge of the athletic events.

Organized in 1886.

The church was organized as the Methodist Episcopal church of Woodlawn July 2, 1886. Its first trustees were John McElroy, Charles H. Procter, Jason R. Cadwell, W. A. Wilson, John Lavender, and Nelson C. Parker.

The first services were held in the homes of these trustees and then, for a short time, in Christ's Episcopal church of Woodlawn.

The first pastor was the Rev. A. Albertson. He was succeeded by the Rev. G. C. Mars, during whose term a church building was erected on the site at 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. The lot had been acquired by the Chicago City Missionary and Church Extension society for the purpose. The cost of the building and furnishings was less than $5,000.

The society was deeply indebted at the time to Charles Busby, a loyal Methodist and builder, for his aid in the project.

The world's fair pastor—the church was close to the heart of things during that historic event which brought so many visitors to the city—was Dr. W. E. Tilroe, now residing in Los Angeles. The church grew rapidly in this period, and the original building became too small for the congregation. A basement was therefore built under the structure, which increased space until the present building was erected in 1906 at a cost of $60,000. The pastor at that time was the Rev. E. B. Crawford, D. D.

Grows to 800 Under Hyde.

Dr. Crawford was succeeded by the Rev. R. Scott Hyde, D. D., who came to the church in 1916. Dr. Hyde served for ten years, during which the membership increased to 800 and the Sunday school enrollment to about 500.

The Rev. Gilbert S. Cox, D. D., came to the church three years ago after a pastorate of six years at Columbus, O., and a period of eight years, previous to that, at Maryville, Mo.

The Rev. Stanley S. McKee is associate pastor, Mrs. M. T. Eastham is the pastor's assistant, and Mrs. Mabel McKee is the church secretary.

The trustees are Dr. S. A. Wilson, Charles H. Mottier, F. D. Carpenter, Howard H. Wanzer, Dr. C. H. Miller, F. L. Thompson, H. K. Matthews and C. A. Bowman.

The stewards are E. E. Ludwig, W. R. Kemens, A. J. Schafmayer, William C. Deeds, H. G. Spear, Col. W. C. Arn, J. L. Gordon, John F. Neil, J. H. Tinsley, Parks C. Archer, Prof. T. L. Harley, C. A. Donnel, E. T. Howson, George Miller, Prof. George White, J. H. Kelker, C. M. Bell, G. V. Orr, Goodwin Olson, Gordon Wanzer, J. P. Straub, C. D. Turley, L. W. Artley, George E. Haley, E. F. Barger, William B. Pistole, George E. Boyd, George Crowson, L. O. Challman, B. R. Hamilton, E. V. Moorman, H. C. Cheesman, Mrs. Ida Hartford, Bishop O. Lovejoy, E. S. Gilmore and J. E. Smiley.

Members of the Choir.

J. L. Gordon is the church treasurer; J. H. Kelker, assistant treasurer; E. F. Barger, financial secretary; W. G. Arn, secretary of the official board; C. H. Mottier, chairman of finance committee; William B. Pistole, chairman of the church property committee; J. P. Straub, chairman of the house committee; A. J. Schafmayer, chairman of the membership committee; G. V. Orr, chairman of the usher committee; Dr. S. A. Wilson, chairman of the Sunday school committee; L. O. Challman, chairman of the music committee; T. D. Chadwick, superintendent of the Sunday school; Earl Storey, president of the Epworth league; Mrs. E. E. Ludwig, president of the Woman's association; Mrs. H. M. Thomas, president of the W. F. M. S., and Mrs. L. W. Curtis, president of the W. H. M. S.

Etchings Win Bertha Jaques High Honor

Mrs. Bertha E. Jaques, etcher, residing at 4316 Greenwood avenue, has just returned from Appleton, Wis., where she received the honorary degree of doctor of fine arts from Lawrence college at the commencement exercises held there. Mrs. Jaques is the first person to receive the degree at that college and one of the few accorded such honor in this country.

"Don't aim for a definite goal," she declared, in giving the formula for her achievements. "Just do the best you can in the pursuit you love the most. And some day you will awake to find you have arrived."

Finds Solace in Art.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Jaques lost three children. In order to assuage her grief she turned to etching to express the beauty which she still believed an integral part of life.

The works of Lalanne and Hamerton became her textbooks. Her husband, Dr. W. K. Jaques, encouraged and helped her by designing the various tools necessary for carrying out the work.

Her etchings, drypoints and engravings have been exhibited in Europe as well as throughout America. She has given lectures on the art at several colleges in the United States.

Organized Society of Etchers.

She has helped to interest other artists in this type of work through the Chicago Society of Etchers which she organized twenty years ago and of which she has been secretary since its organization.

Mrs. Jaques advised young artists to have patience.

"Look at the great trees," she declared. "They did not grow in a day. The hills, the valleys, the rivers—everything took time. But the modern cry is speed—and that is the great difficulty which we have to fight daily."

In conferring the degree, the college commended her for her "distinction as an etcher" and for her "originality of mind."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

YOU probably don't know Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marks of Harvey, Ill. We didn't. Now we feel we've known them always, although we've never met them personally. It was a letter from Mr. Marks that did it—a letter, we fancy, he never dreamed would get in a big metropolitan Sunday newspaper; we fancy his sole expectation was it might see the light in the boiled down form in which such news usually appears. We're going to publish the letter as is and in full if we don't get another item in today's column:

"Editor of Social News: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marks of Harvey, Ill., are to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 23, at the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue.

"While we may not have any claims to prominence, we feel happy, yes, very happy, that all our children will be with us on that day. Our oldest son, a prominent lawyer of Phoenix, Ariz., Barnett E. Marks, and his wife, a national Republican committeewoman, is to be with us, as is also our son-in-law, who is at the head of the commercial department of the Chicago Bell Telephone company, and we will also have our eight children and 15 grandchildren—all well and happy.

"I have personally expressed my happiness poetically in several languages—a sample of which I enclose. We are not prominent, but exceptionally happy."

Mr. Marks' verse is contained in a small souvenir folder, which also has pictures of himself and Mrs. Marks.

CARL J. ADAMS [everybody knows Carl; all roads lead to his place, as the saying is], the undertaker, at 7350 Cottage Grove avenue, filled the hearts of scores of youngsters in the Eighth ward with joy last Saturday morning by a free distribution of fine large folding kites. Carl says he hasn't forgotten he was a boy himself once, although he ain't saying when.

Anthony Bassi, the game warden, reported he had discovered several bluegills mysteriously killed, and was deluged with letters from local ornithologists lamenting the fate of these beautiful feathered songsters. Anthony rises to remark that the bluegill is a fish, not a bird.

Sir William A. Craigie, formerly of Oxford but now of the faculty of the University of Chicago, who is compiling a dictionary of the American language and current slang, is seen each morning leaving his apartment at 5536 Dorchester avenue with a sheet of folded white paper in one pocket. Neighbor Spencer W. Castle of Hyde Park is intrigued. "Wonder what those new words are Sir William carries with him daily?" wonders he. We promptly asked him about it, Spencer, and Sir William said the new words were merely those of the popular vernacular as expressed by modern playwrights in their opuses at local theaters. Sir William, so as not to forget, just jots them down on the sheet of paper you noticed, which is the best quality of guaranteed asbestos.

Regarding the commencement exercises of the senior class of Lincoln Memorial high school at Crestwood, R. H. Bryant says much credit is due "to the truant officer, who has labored so hard to keep the children in school." Come on, now, folks, let's all give the truant officer a hand.

RIDGE DISTRICT REZONING BILLS ARE DEFEATED

Council Group Keeps Ban on Apartments.

Ordinances rezoning three parts of Beverly Hills and Morgan Park, now restricted almost entirely to one family residences, were voted down by the city council committee on buildings and zoning last Monday morning.

Property owners of the far southwest side who attended the hearing in a body to voice their opposition to the zoning change completely filled the council chambers and galleries. Arguments against rezoning were made by Robert Blackburne, president of the Ridge Civic council; Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th], and residents of the district.

Keep Ban on Apartments.

The ordinances defeated would provide for rezoning for apartments the area bounded by 95th and 99th streets and Western and Oakley avenues; the block bounded by 108th and 109th streets and Artesian and Campbell avenues, and the area bounded by 109th and 111th streets, Western avenue and Rockwell street.

In asking the committee to reject the ordinance, Mr. Blackburne said that the home-owners of the district should be given preferance over real estate operators who would profit financially from rezoning.

"We want to maintain our district as a beautiful residential district," he said. "Because we want to keep Beverly Hills as a section of beautiful homes, we oppose rezoning almost to a man. We have more bungalows and small residences in our district than anywhere in the country. In its present state, our district is a healthy community in which we can raise healthy children."

Judge McKinlay Opposes Bill.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the municipal court, former alderman of the 19th ward, told the committee that the entire district would be blighted if one zoning change were permitted. If the ordinances under consideration are passed, he said, the board will be asked to pass others in a short time, and soon the entire character of Beverly Hills as a residential center will be destroyed.

"We are not against apartment buildings," he concluded, "but we are opposed to anything which will make our district congested."

Joseph K. Britten asked the committee to defeat the ordinances on the ground that the Ridge Planning commission is preparing a comprehensive plan of development of the section as a home center, and rezoning at this time would defeat the aims of the commission.

Urges Rezoning to West.

Barnett Hodes, attorney representing small property owners of the two sections west of Western avenue, took the opposite side in behalf of these two sections. He asked that the committee rezone them on the ground that they are in reality out of the district, and should be zoned for apartments to conform with zoning of neighboring property.

The frontage on Western avenue should not be restricted to one family homes, he argued, because it is a section line street and intended for business. The blocks west of Western avenue are already surrounded by commercial, manufacturing and apartment property, he concluded, and these blocks should be rezoned to permit construction of apartments also.

HEAR APPEALS FOR VOTING OF NEEDED BONDS

The voting of necessary bonds for community improvements, such as street openings and sewers was strongly urged at a meeting of the South Side Federation of Improvement associations held last week in Brooks hall, 71st street and South Park avenue.

According to W. R. Wendlund, 8311 St. Lawrence avenue, president of the organization, this will be the last meeting until September. The executive committee was given full power to act on any matters of importance arising during July and August.

The committee on streets and alleys reported that the bad pavements of which the federation had repeatedly complained are now being repaired with funds for the work coming out of the vehicle tax fund, of which $84,000 is available for the 8th ward alone.

However, the fear was expressed by other members of the organization that the work would not be durable, due to reports of poor work done in other communities toward the south. The streets and alleys committee was therefore authorized to keep a close watch on the work being done.

It was also decided at the meeting to request Police Commissioner Russell to see that the federation territory gets its full quota of the 500 additional police to be assigned July 1.

OAKLAND STARTS DRIVE TO REMOVE ALL "EYESORES"

Plans for clearing Oakland district of "eyesores" in the form if dilapidated buildings are being taken, Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] has announced.

The initial step was taken, he said, with the tearing down of the three story residence at 601 Groveland Park and the clearing away of all debris. This movement has been started in preparation for the World's Fair.

Razing of the Groveland Park residence followed a petition signed by residents and property owners of Groveland and Woodland parks which asked that the building be condemned. The petition was turned over to B. J. Herzberg, precinct captain, who in turn gave it to Ald. Anderson. It was then introduced in the city council and sanctioned.

VINCENNES AVE. PLACED IN GOOD REPAIR BY CITY

Business Men's Crusade Bears Fruit.

Motorists who have been accustomed to complain as they bumped over the large holes and the nearly impassible spots, sang last week as they rode smoothly over the newly repaired Vincennes avenue from 68th street to the city limits.

It was this thoroughfare that received the greatest number of complaints in the recent street survey compiled by the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce and according to H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the organization, the results of the survey were sent to Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, with an attached letter giving a clear picture of what south side residents thought about Vincennes avenue.

In Mr. Wolfe's reply it was stated that he would investigate the complaints of the south side residents and would do all in his power to start immediate repair work on the street.

Mr. Haylett declared that Vincennes avenue was one of the streets most used on the south side and the fact that the street is now in good condition will bring relief to the thousands of motorists who have been compelled to use this street to reach far south side points in the western section of the city and it will also mean that motorists who formerly could use this road, but used others because of greater driving comfort, would now travel over Vincennes avenue.

In a letter to Mr. Wolfe Monday, Mr. Haylett stated, "It is my desire to extend to you on the part of our organization an acknowledgment of our appreciation for the repair work which you have put into effect recently on Vincennes avenue throughout its entire length to the city limits.

Appreciated by Motorists.

"The thoroughness of repairs on this street and the promptness with which the work was carried forward following our earlier advices to you is appreciated, I may assure you, by the entire south side as well as the motorists as a whole of our city."

Mr. Haylett pointed out that Mr. Wolfe had assured him last week that repair work on Union avenue, from Garfield boulevard to Archer avenue, and on Princeton avenue from Garfield boulevard to Archer avenue, would be started early this week.

These streets, too, received many complaints in the chamber street survey and Mr. Haylett is sure that residents of the streets and motorists who use them will be happy to hear that within three or four weeks they will be in almost perfect condition.

Union Avenue Important.

Mr. Haylett pointed out that it was important that Union avenue be in good condition. He said that in view of the fact that it was the first through street east of Ashland avenue, it is used by thousands of motorists every day.

Men and boys interested in radio telegraphy will have an opportunity to perfect their knowledge and experience in classes now being organized under the auspices of the United States navy department. L. F. Megaw is commander of the Chicago unit of the volunteer communication reserve and R. P. Michelis is the instructor.

Headquarters of the unit are located in Lincoln park, where classes meet every Monday night, and Mr. Michelis is establishing a Wednesday night class for south side men, which will meet at Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

The personnel of the reserve consists of amateur radio operators who are interested from a scientific and experimental standpoint. The volunteer communication reserve provides a service in which the officers and men serve without pay except when they are called by their own request for two weeks' training duty, when they draw the regular navy pay.

Has 108 Men Enrolled.

The Chicago unit was organized a year ago and now has a roll of four officers and 108 men. From this unit 24 men are being assigned to two weeks' active training duty, either aboard the naval training ships as radio operators or at the naval radio station at Great Lakes. Fifty men have already signified their interest in the new south side subunit.

The basement of the Gage park fieldhouse is being equipped with telegraph keys and head phones for radio code and procedure instruction. Complete transmitting and receiving apparatus has been installed to establish short wave communication with the other reserve units throughout the entire ninth naval district, which comprises 13 middle western states.

Members of South Side Unit.

South side men who have joined the subunit at Gage park include Harold J. Adler, Lawrence K. Atwood, Forrest L. Barr, Ted Berquist, Ralph E. Brooks, Thomas F. Conroy, William B. Cronican, Bernard D. KLEIN BROS.—20TH AND HALSTED STREETS

GROVE AROUND PIONEER'S HOME NAMED AVENUE

Story of Thoroughfare Is Story of Chicago.

BY ELEANOR GRAFF.

Little less than a century ago one of the early pioneer settlers in Chicago built for himself what for that time was an imposing residence. It was situated amid a grove of trees at what is now 32d street. His home was known to the other early settlers as "The Cottage," and the host was famous for his hospitality. It is not strange, then, that when a trail through the trees to "The Cottage" became worn with much travel, it was known as the Cottage Grove road and later as Cottage Grove avenue.

This pioneer settler and owner of "The Cottage" was Henry Graves, who came here in 1831 when 10 years old and remained in Chicago until his death in 1907. He was born in Norwich, N. Y., in 1821, a son of Dexter Graves, who, the following year, led a colony of thirteen families to Illinois. Dexter Graves built the first frame house in Chicago, the site being near the river on what is now State street.

Built Garden City Race Track.

It is stated by some Chicago historians that the name of Cottage Grove avenue was derived from Graves' cottage. However, other historians write of the heavily wooded land in this section of Chicago which, with the tree lined Michigan and Wabash avenues, caused Chicago to be known in the early days as "The Garden City." Thus it seems more logical that the name was taken from the cottage in the grove rather than from the name of the owner.

It is a far cry from the trail winding through the trees to the present busy, clanging, crowded street on the south side. From a level, commonplace road through the woods, dusty in the summertime and muddy in winter, stretching out and disappearing over the horizon, it changed to a city street, adding first a block of pavement with wooden sidewalks; then a horse car line; later a cable line; then concrete pavement and sidewalks; and finally the electric line which daily carries thousands of passengers past the site of the University of Chicago to the parks on the far south side.

Stirs Derision of Writers.

The change has been so complete that only a few years ago both Dean Stubbs of Ely cathedral, England, and Robert Herrick in his novel, "The Web of Life," have written of Cottage Grove avenue as a typical street in Chicago, holding it up to scorn and derision with such adjectives as: clanging, monotonous, unpicturesque, untidy, dirty, and foul.

However, Henry Justin Smith has taken a more kindly view of this avenue, saying that the fact that people can still retain goodness and thoughtfulness in such a clutter is "thrilling." "These people are fighters, and they will win," he writes. "It is this prospect that makes the process of life in Chicago not only interesting but captivating."

In an essay which she has called "A Study of a Typically Ugly Street in a Typically Ugly City," Mrs. Helen E. Starrett compared the lives of persons residing above and behind the stores and shops on Cottage Grove avenue, with those whose imposing homes were situated on the parallel boulevards of Drexel and Grand. According to her conclusions, the average of human comfort and happiness and ambitions in life were probably quite as high as those of residents on the more beautiful and imposing neighboring boulevards.

She has described their freedom from care, and the real enjoyment they gain from life after working hours, sitting on their doorsteps, calling greetings to other doorstep sitters.

Hold Final Meeting.

The final board meeting of the Shakespeare Parent-Teacher association for the school year was held Monday at the school. An outline for the coming year's program was discussed.

PRIZES SET OF DISHES WITH BORDER OF GOLD, PURCHASED FOR $19.95

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 18.—During the winter season a neighborhood firm advertised a lot of manufacturers' dishes at a remarkable reduction. Each set, consisting of 119 pieces, was already boxed, but we were assured that they were all complete. My purchase proved to be everything that the dealer said it was and I could not have chosen 119 pieces more carefully. The quality of the china was excellent, the pattern—a twenty-two garat gold and black border—charming. My set cost $19.95, surely an extraordinary bargain.

MRS. HAROLD HALLMAN,
6821 Parnell avenue.

TOASTER FOR 10 CENTS.

Chicago, June 16.—Five years ago I bought an electric toaster at a neighborhood sale for 10 cents. It gave long and faithful service and has convinced me that it pays to look for bargains.

MOLLIE WERTHEIMER,
7514 Kingston avenue.

A TRICYCLE FOR $4.95.

Chicago, June 17.—One of my best bargains, a tricycle with a 24 inch front wheel and 1¼ inch tires, was purchased at a nearby shop. It was a $15 value reduced to $4.95.

MRS. GEORGIA JILEK,
5026 South Hermitage avenue.

LUCKY DAY FOR SWEET TOOTH.

Chicago, June 17.—Our neighborhood offers bargains even in candy. About two weeks ago I got a three pound box of chocolate carmels and bonbons that sell regularly for 70 cents a pound for $1. It was the candy store's opening day and, apparently, my lucky day, for they gave me a pound box of chocolates free.

"Meanderings of a Parson" was the subject of an address by Dr. W. Clyde Howard, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, 1936 South Michigan avenue, at a meeting of the combined memberships of the Hyde Park Kiwanis club and the Garfield Kiwanis club in the dining room of the Wanzer's Milk plant, 124 West Garfield boulevard, Wednesday. A military tap dance, with the dancers in red, white, and blue costumes, opened the spring dancing festival given in the auditorium of the Hamilton park field house, 72d street and Normal boulevard, last evening. "Immigration" was the subject of an address by Judge V. H. Stone of Laramie, Wyo., at the meeting of the Marquette Park Lions club Wednesday in the assembly rooms of the Hope Evangelical church, 64th street and Washtenaw avenue.

SPEECHES, SONGS, DRILLS, DANCES DEDICATE SCHOOL

McKay Pupils Stage Varied Program.

The new Francis M. McKay Grammar school, 6801 South Fairfield avenue, which was completed and opened a year ago, was dedicated last week with exercises in the auditorium of the school. Franklin L. Anderson, president of the recently organized Cleer-Mar-Lawn Community council, presided at the dedication and speakers included H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the board of education; William J. Bogan, superintendent of schools; James E. Armstrong, former principal of Englewood High school and friend of Francis M. McKay, for whom the school was named; and Miss Martha V. Bishop, district superintendent.

Pupils Present Program.

The program was opened with a group of songs, dances, and gymnastic drills by pupils of the sixth grade in which ninety children, pupils of Miss Katheryn Ryan and Miss Dorothy Kirby took part. The choruses were coached by Miss Marguerite Flynn and Miss Jene Cohen, athletic director at the school, was in charge of the dances and drills. Mrs. Marjorie James was the accompanist.

Miss Ryan, who is assistant principal, was in charge of the program, assisted by Miss Lillian Griffin.

Formerly Used Portables.

The new school has an enrollment of 860 pupils in the first six grades. Students in the seventh and eighth grades are sent to Harper Junior High school. Miss Mary R. Hanlon is principal of McKay school, which formerly was conducted in a group of portables as a branch of Raster school, at 70th street and Hermitage avenue.

PAVING ISSUE IN CHICAGO LAWN SCHOOL FIGHT

Warm Up in Opposition to Chosen Site.

To pave or not to pave has become the most recent issue on which the fight for and against the proposed site of the new Chicago Lawn High school is based.

It was all a question of mud holes. The board of education apparently believed that if the sections of 60th place and 61st street between Springfield and Crawford avenues remained unpaved, although the other streets in the district were resurfaced, it would strengthen their right to use the site bounded by 60th and 61st streets, Crawford and Springfield avenues.

The school board selected this site more than a year ago as the most centrally located lot for the proposed new school, and if it is used the portions of the streets the board wished to remain unpaved will become part of the school grounds.

Opposed by Civic Groups.

However, members of the South Hamlin Avenue and Vicinity Property Owners' association, one of several organizations which have opposed the choice of the board of education, thought differently. They believed, according to William F. Stelzer, 3755 West 61st street, president of the association, that it is unfair and unlawful for the board of education to authorize two mudholes in the Chicago Lawn district.

Recently the board of local improvements granted the request of the board of education to leave the portions of the two streets unpaved and the paving contractor moved his machinery to another district. As soon as the Hamlin avenue property owners realized what was taking place they authorized Mr. Stelzer to appear before the board of local improvements and state their objections.

Paving Is Resumed.

This he did, explaining that the paving was paid for by the property owners, with the result that the board of local improvements called back its paving contractor and last week both men and machines were at work paving 60th place and 61st street. Mr. Stelzer expressed the opinion that his association could more successfully fight the use of the site for a new school with the surrounding streets completely paved. The objections to the site on the part of his organization are based chiefly on the lowered property values which the members believe will result from the closing of 60th place, 61st street, and part of Crawford avenue.

According to Mr. Stelzer, his organization will continue to fight the chosen site until the ground is actually condemned and construction has been started. Although a committee from the Hamlin Avenue association, as well as the Chicago Lawn Improvement association, has appeared on three occasions to state its opposition to the site before a meeting of the committee on buildings and grounds, the school board elected to build on the originally proposed site in spite of the objections.

Don C. Robers, superintendent of buildings and grounds, has already ordered that condemnation proceedings be started in order that the school may be completed by a year from next fall.

Officers of the South Hamlin Avenue and Vicinity Property Owners' association in addition to Mr. Stelzer, the president, are: Peter Theis, vice president; William A. Steinbrink, secretary; Gottlieb Rebau, financial secretary; Emil Malquist, treasurer; Miss Carrie Krause, librarian; James Potocki, sergeant-at-arms; Robert Stryzek, Joseph Kuehner, and Charles Windish, trustees; John F. Salewski, chairman of the committee on streets and alleys; Albert Weganast, chairman of the publicity committee; Peter Wolf, chairman of the public service committee; and John W. Wallace, chairman of the block captains.

HALSTED-71ST STREET PAVING SOON TO START

Contracts Are Already Let on Former.

Paving of Halsted street from Vincennes avenue to the Calumet river, and 71st street from Cottage Grove avenue to Stony Island avenue, will be started soon, it was announced last week.

John B. Hittell, chief engineer for the bureau of streets, said the paving of five miles of Halsted street south of Vincennes avenue will be started as soon as the underground work on the thoroughfare is completed. This, he said, will take about three weeks.

The Halsted street project is one of the many far south side improvements sponsored by the South End Chamber of Commerce and it was mainly through the efforts of the members of the organization that the property owners and the board of local improvements were convinced the contemplated 70 foot roadway was needed.

Direct Route to Pullman.

The paving of Halsted street will be a more direct route to the Pullman district. Motorists who now wish to reach that far south side community are compelled to travel over Vincennes avenue, which runs southwest from Halsted street, leaving the motorists more than a mile from the heart of the Pullman district.

Another thoroughfare now being used to reach Pullman is South Park avenue, one mile east of Halsted street, and the motorist is just as far from where he wants to go as he would be if he were to take Vincennes avenue.

According to Cecil Smith, who was president of the chamber of commerce when the movement to pave Halsted street was first started, the new road will relieve traffic congestion on South Park avenue and Vincennes avenue and allow residents of the Pullman region to drive to Chicago in a direct route.

Contracts Already Let.

Mr. Hittell pointed out that the contracts for the paving of the five sections of the street already have been awarded, so that when the thoroughfare is ready for paving there will be no delay. The contractors, he said, are prepared to start work immediately.

Specifications call for a street 70 feet wide. It will be paved in two roadways, each 27 feet wide, 16 feet being left open in the center. It is hoped by the residents of the territory that the Chicago Surface lines at sometime in the future will use the open road for tracks.

The pavement will be of concrete, eight inches thick, with two inches of asphalt as a top layer.

Mr. Hittell said the west side of the thoroughfare would be ready for use by next January.

Start on 71st Soon.

After being delayed by construction work of the Illinois Central railroad, which is erecting a new platform at 71st street and Stony Island avenue, paving of 71st street will be started in the next few days, according to William J. Hubrich, president of the Stony Island Business Men's association.

Mr. Hubrich said they were forced to defer the paving of the one mile strip until the six car platform was near completion. He added that officials of the railroad had informed him it would be finished this week.

HIGH POWER AND CHAINS CONQUER SUMMER STATIC

Experts Say There Will Be No Slump.

Washington, D. C., June 15.—The summer broadcasting bugaboo which up until last year made the most rabid radio fan desert his receiving set for other forms of entertainment during three or four warm months, will definitely disappear this season, broadcasters and radio manufacturers predict, because of the policy of the chain stations to continue their best features the year round.

The increase in power of the larger stations, together with the remarkable improvements in receiving sets, has firmly established radio as a twelve months' mode of entertainment.

Broadcasters have announced that the biggest and most popular radio programs that have been heard weekly during the cold winter evenings will be enhanced rather than deleted this summer and will be found in their accustomed place on the hottest nights.

$23,000,000 to Be Spent.

Officials of the chain systems report that more than $23,000,000 will be spent by advertisers on chain programs alone this year. The National Broadcasting company estimates its receipts at $16,000,000 and the Columbia chain clients will spend close to $7,500,000. And a large portion of this income, it is said, will be used to make radio as popular during the summer as it is in the winter.

Four years ago at this time of the year, the radio was temporarily discarded. Many radio equipment manufacturers closed shop and broadcasters withdrew their best artists. Consequently listeners, discouraged by poor reception and equally as poor programs, packed their sets, so to speak, until about Labor day.

By 1927, however, the summer slack was beginning to disappear as the chain broadcasting companies began to realize the waste of the seasonal slump. This trend was strengthened last summer, partly because of the political conventions, and the broadcasters became firmly convinced that radio was an all year around product.

Credits Fans with Discovery.

For this discovery, experts credit owners, rather than manufacturers of receiving sets. While factories were closed and broadcasters were cutting their programs to the bone, it is said, "owners of receiving sets continued to use them during the summer months and in so doing found that better apparatus brought about better summer reception. Listeners also brought about increases in power and thus struck a hard blow at summer static.

Bond P. Geddes, executive vice president of the Radio Manufacturers' association, says: "There will be no summer slump in broadcasting this year or any future year. Broadcasting this summer promises to be as good and even better than during the winter. The chain and other broadcasters have improved their transmission methods to a marked degree since last summer. Also there has been a reallocation of station wave lengths by the federal radio commission.

Th proximity of stations to th listeners as well as the tremendous increase in power of the stations have contributed much to better summer reception. Almost every city of any size today has at least one station and the larger municipalities have from two to five. Five years ago the power of most transmitters was limited to 500 and 250 watts, while today there are 50,000 watts transmitters.

Portable Sets Help.

Another feature of radio set improvement that has contributed to the popularity of summer tuning-in is the ease with which up-to-date portable sets can be transported. The compact receiver is now an essential part of the modern camping equipment or the household articles taken to summer resorts. The portable radio set today is as easy to set up as the old phonograph and a great deal less trouble when it is put into operation.

The broadcasting of good programs during the day, as well as at night, is also on the increase and has its influence on the disappearance of the summer slump. All day as well as all night radio entertainment is now a reality as advertisers clamor for more time and chain systems expand facilities.

HUNGRY FIVE IS COMING BACK TO W-G-N TOMORROW

Herr Louie and his German band, the Hungry Five of W-G-N, Chicago, return to the air tomorrow night after two weeks of rest and fishing in the Wisconsin woods.

Except for the distractions caused by the Weasel's frequent falls into the lake, Herr Louie has enjoyed a complete relaxation from the cares of leading the band, and feels fit to begin a new engagement, playing at an amusement park.

Louie, the Weasel, and the band play old fashioned music and entertain with their German dialogue every night at 10:10 p. m.

"The Four Horsemen," a new dance band, joins W-G-N's staff of orchestras tomorrow night, according to Henry Selinger, program director. They will play a daily program making four bands heard every evening.

Mr. Selinger also announced that Carl Erlberg, Danish baritone and interpreter of songs, who specializes in the folk music of Sweden, Denmark, and Germany, is a new W-G-N soloist.

31,589 ATTEND RADIO EXHIBIT AND CONVENTION

All attendance records were broken at the June convention and trade show of the Radio Manufacturers association in Chicago when 31,589 members of the industry were registered. This exceeds by 6,989, the record breaking attendance of 1928 with 24,600 registrations.

Inside the Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

Two days less than two years after he won the world championship from Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey was called upon to make one of the greatest struggles in his career—his fight against Georges Carpentier, the challenger from France.

Out of France came Carpentier, his manager, Francois Deschamps, and a score of fight-mad Frenchmen who asserted that their champion would put this Dempsey away in a jiffy. More was printed about the fight than about the battle of the Marne.

And at last that famous July 2d of 1921 arrived, a close, sweltering day that blistered the fight fans who started jamming the Hoboken ferries between New York and Jersey City as early as the afternoon before the fight. At 8:30 on the morning of the fight, the gates were swung open, and there were thousands of fans waiting to enter. By the middle of the afternoon each one of the 90,000 seats was filled.

A little patch of white canvas, scorching under the summer sun. Dempsey vs. Carpentier. Remember how it sounded through the radio horn on that blistering afternoon? [Gong.]

Announcer—There's the bell! The first round has started. Both men are coming out of their corners like twin flashes of lightning. There's no fooling about this fight—it's going to be a fight! They're in the center of the ring—sparring gently, and—O! there's the first punch—Carpentier drove a sweet left to Dempsey's jaw. Jack is weaving and shifting about like a great cat. There's another! Carp landed a right hander that lacked steam in the same spot. Jack is closing in now—he's working on Carpentier's middle. Now they're in a clinch, and Carpentier drives home a stiff uppercut while they're hanging on. Dempsey's got a fight on his hands this time! Now they're boxing and Carp is driving Dempsey back with short left and right arm punches to the head, to the body, any place he can land 'em. Carp is working those two arms like guns.

Jack is still weaving and swaying, working at Carpentier's waist line. Carpentier tries with his right hand, but—they go into a clinch. Socko! Dempsey! Dempsey drives three hard right hand smashes to Carpentier's head! Now they've locked arms. They have broken now, and—Carp just missed with an awful right hand swing to the head, and they've gone into another clinch. Look at Dempsey! He's got his arms free now, and he's punching Carpentier amidships for all he's worth! Look at the Frenchman's face! He can feel those punches! Dempsey is fighting now! O! look at him hit! Dempsey is smashing Carp with everything but the ringposts! He's got the challenger running away —stepping back — one! two! three! rights and lefts to head and body for Dempsey! Now George stops his dancing and—Whee! Carpentier tried with his right once more, but Jack made him jump with an awful right hand hook on the chin. Carpentier is taking an awful beating, but he seems to be weathering the gale! O! O! Carpentier almost fell out of the ring that time—a right hand to the head did it. Carp is coming right back; they're dancing, and George tries his right hand again. It's short! [Gong!]

There's the gong! Round two! Both men are coming out of their corners without the speed they showed in the last frame. Dempsey is crouching in much the same way we saw him crouch before Willard in Toledo, two years ago. Carpentier is on his toes, with those huge muscles along the sides of his body tensed. He's going to put all he's got into that first punch. O! Dempsey brought a left hook right up from the floor of the ring! Carpentier came back with a stiff right to the champion's mouth, and—they're in a clinch, and Dempsey up and Dempsey is right after him, relentless. One! Two! Three! Three in a row!

Jack drove three left hand jabs smack on George's face. There's a cut under the Frenchman's eye, and the blood is running down his cheek. His nose is bleeding again, and the claret is running down his chest and bespattering his fighting trunks. Now Dempsey is crouching and weaving again, and Carp is backing away. Ohh! There it is! Ohh! Three of them! He's slowed up the Frenchman! Dempsey drove three awful socks straight at Carp's stomach. Now—Ohh!—Jack sent a left to Carp's face! Carp is slowing up! Jack is punching now—he's trying everything he's got, and Carp is going at him with his right hand.

The Frenchman is tired! Socko! Dempsey lands a left on Carp's jaw. He's driving the Frenchman to the ropes, and now he's got him cornered with a volley of blows, rights and lefts to the body—to the head—Dempsey is hitting again! He's fighting! Carp is trying vainly to defend himself—the champion has him tired out —Carp tries a right to Dempsey's head but the champion brushes it away, and now—Oohh! He's driving rights and lefts to Carp's middle! There goes—[Gong!]

That's all of round three, ladies and gentlemen. I'm afraid it's only a question of time now. Dempsey, with his hard and swift body blows has slowed up the fast-stepping Frenchman, and taken the steam out of his punches. There's consternation over there in Carp's corner, and Deschamps is wiping the blood off Carp's face and chest, and applying something to that cut under his eye.

Dempsey is blowing and his face is a bit red, but he's unmarked by the battle as yet. There's a world of confidence in the Dempsey corner. It's only a question of time now. Jack Kearns is rubbing the champion's back and talking to him, and Dempsey nods his head. [Gong!]

There's the bell! Here goes round four! Look at Dempsey! Look at him! The man is out of his corner and half way across the ring before is pushing the challenger around the ring. Now they've broken and—Zowie! Carpentier sent that famous right of his straight at Dempsey's ear! Clinch again! They're wrestling all about the ring! Look at Deschamps down in Carp's corner—he's shouting in French and motioning to his boy to stay away from Dempsey. They're breaking again! Now Dempsey is—OHHHH! There it is! Carp smashed Dempsey, and he is staggering away! It was a right hander flush on the jaw! Carp is driving the champion around the ring! It may be all over! The crowd is on its feet yelling and screaming for the knockout! They're smashing home punch after punch and Carp has the champion groggy and holding on! Dempsey is holding on and sending little, vicious jabs at Carpentier's body. Dempsey is blocking that right that's flashing at him every second! Carp is driving right after right against Dempsey's head and body, and he's taking lots in return. They're roughousing it in there now—punch! punch! punch! It's just a pair of brutes hammering, hammering, hammering each other, with rights, lefts, rights, lefts. Carp is pummeling Dempsey's face, and the champ between clinches is after the Frenchman's body! [GONG!]

There's the bell! That's all of round two! And what a round! Carp gave Dempsey everything he had in that round, and he surely had the champion staggering. Both men are in their corners now, and puffing hard. It was a great spell of fighting. Kearns is whispering into Dempsey's ear, and across the way, Deschamps is jabbering excitedly at his French boy. The last one was all Carpentier's round.

There's the bell! Round three! Both men are on their feet with the stroke of the bell and are racing to the center of the ring. Jack leading this time, up on his toes for an opening, and—Ow! There she goes! Dempsey tried with a left hand jab to Carp's head but it was short. They're feeling each other out with their gloves. Wow! Carpentier smashed the champion twice with right hand blows to the head! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. He doesn't seem able to get away from Georges' right hand drives. Now Referee Ertle is breaking them apart, and they're sparring again. Zowie! Dempsey drove a hard uppercut right at Georges' mouth. And it landed! Carp is hurt. He's backing the echo of the bell has died away! And he's after Carpentier! With rights and lefts! Oh! Wow! Dempsey drives a straight right for Carp's head, and you can see the pain on the challenger's face! But he doesn't back away! He's standing there and trading punches with Dempsey, snapping out that right hand of his again and again! But Dempsey can't be stopped! He's fighting this time, fighting like the Dempsey who knocked down Willard six times in one round at Toledo. There's a snarl on his face!

Oh, they're punching! We can't even follow them! Georges is slapping Jack with left jabs and then he's winging over right handers to the head. Dempsey is crouching and snarling, and driving rights and lefts into the white body of his opponent! Punch! Punch! Punch! It's just a deadly battle between two men. Dempsey is forcing Carp into a neutral corner, the rain of body blows continues. Jack is swinging up—he's bringing up that left—Carpentier is down! Georges is on the mat! The Frenchman did a nose dive into the canvas.

He's lying there quivering, and Referee Ertle is standing over him counting out the death-knell . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight.

He's on his feet! Plucky Carp is back on his feet! He's groggy, but he's on his feet! And he's wrapped his arms around his head to protect his jaws. And he lurches towards Dempsey. Jack drives an awful right to Carp's heart. You can see the Frenchman's knees sag . . .he's dropping like a sack! He's going down again! No, he's lurching toward Dempsey with his head still covered. Jack steps back and takes careful aim! And—Ohh! It's all over! Jack drives a left hander straight into the pit of Carp's stomach, and the Frenchman is down again!

Referee Ertle motions Dempsey back and begins counting. Two . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . Carp quivers, but he's finished now! Dempsey prowls around the ring like a panther at the kill . . . nine . . . ten!

Dempsey is still the champion of the world!

ENGLAND FEARS EFFECT OF RADIO ADS IN CANADA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—The failure of the royal commission on broadcasting to fix the status of broadcasting in Canada is causing considerable alarm here, now that the news is out that an American firm is planning to do Canada's broadcasting for her. The Trans-Canada Broadcasting company is to send out programs from the different American chains. What is worrying Britain is that these programs will contain advertising of American products, and a chance to advertise British goods will be lost if Americans are allowed to gain control of broadcasting for Canadian audiences.

RADIO LAWS PRINTED.

A compilation of radio laws enacted by congress from the Sixty-first to the Seventieth inclusive has just been published by the house of representatives. The first of the laws was enacted in 1910 and the last on March 4, 1929.

RADIO BOARD TO CENSOR FOREIGN PROGRAM RELAYS

A step in controlling relay broadcasting from foreign countries to the United States or vice versa, which is being interpreted as an indirect method for censoring these programs and for preventing the broadcasting of foreign propaganda in America, has been taken in by the federal radio commission in a recent general order.

The order also requires quarterly reports from stations engaged in relay broadcasting; this being intended to keep check on their activities to determine whether or not the assigned channels are being utilized efficiently.

A third effect of the order, the commission expects, will be to put a stop to "bootleg" relay broadcasting. It is understood that some station in this country have been picking up foreign broadcasts and rebroadcasting them in the United States without a license to do so.

The order states that "no station engaged in relay broadcasting shall grant authority to any radio station within the United States to broadcast its programs without first obtaining written consent of the commission."

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have made negotiations with foreign stations whereby they are enabled to rebroadcast foreign programs in this country.

Two other orders issued by the commission require that every broadcasting station shall be given absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress and shall cease broadcasting upon such frequencies when interference may be caused to reception from such ships or aircraft. The order provides further that no two or more broadcasting stations shall maintain a joint or common watch upon such frequencies unless authorized to do so by the commission.

STOCK REDUCING SALE

A backward spring season, means that we've determined to reduce our stocks three weeks earlier than usual, it means that now before the Fourth of July, we've gathered all the odd lots, ends of lines, broken sizes, remnants, small quantities, and in some cases large quantities, and marked them all for quick selling at savings to you of a quarter, a third and in some instances of a half, on the very merchandise you need this summer. We are going to have our stocks down to normal regardless of how low we must reduce prices, here is a page of the offerings—scores and scores of others that we cannot tell of here—ALL QUANTITIES, WHILE THEY LAST, as lots are sold new ones will be added, an economy event you should plan to attend.

BOAST BIGGEST MEN'S CLASS AT WOODLAWN M. E.

Group of 350 Holds Social Meetings.

BY ONEY FRED SWEET.

THE REV. GILBERT S. COX. [Waters Photo.]

Woodlawn Park Methodist Episcopal church, 64th street and Woodlawn avenue, claims the largest men's Bible class on the south side. It has an enrollment of 350 members and is under the leadership of Elmer T. Howson, who has been its teacher for eighteen years. Lessons are taught by the discussion method. In keeping with the motto, "Let us know our class better," each member during the meetings wears a name button after the Rotary club fashion.

Manages Youngsters' Picnic.

On the second Tuesday of each month the class holds a social and business session at which interesting talks are heard. Among the recent speakers have been H. M. Swans, former missionary to India; Fritz Crisler, assistant coach at the University of Chicago; E. T. Hawson, who spoke on his trip to Mexico; Judge John P. McGoorty of the Superior court, and A. A. Stagg, athletic director at the University of Chicago.

Yesterday the class sponsored the annual Sunday school picnic of the church held at Jackson park, looking after the transportation of the young folks, furnishing the prizes and taking charge of the athletic events.

Organized in 1886.

The church was organized as the Methodist Episcopal church of Woodlawn July 2, 1886. Its first trustees were John McElroy, Charles H. Proctor, Jason R. Cadwell, W. A. Wilson, John Lavender, and Nelson C. Parker. The first services were held in the homes of these trustees and then, for a short time, in Christ's Episcopal church of Woodlawn.

The first pastor was the Rev. A. Albertson. He was succeeded by the Rev. G. C. Mars, during whose term a church building was erected on the site at 64th street and Woodlawn avenue. The lot had been acquired by the Chicago City Missionary and Church Extension society for the purpose. The cost of the building and furnishings was less than $5,000.

The society was deeply indebted at the time to Charles Busby, a loyal Methodist and builder, for his aid in the project.

The world's fair pastor—the church was close to the heart of things during that historic event which brought so many visitors to the city—was Dr. W. E. Tilroe, now residing in Los Angeles. The church grew rapidly in this period, and the original building became too small for the congregation. A basement was therefore built under the structure, which increased space until the present building was erected in 1906 at a cost of $60,000. The pastor at that time was the Rev. E. B. Crawford, D. D.

Grows to 800 Under Hyde.

Dr. Crawford was succeeded by the Rev. R. Scott Hyde, D. D., who came to the church in 1916. Dr. Hyde served for ten years, during which the membership increased to 800 and the Sunday school enrollment to about 500.

The Rev. Gilbert S. Cox, D. D., came to the church three years ago after a pastorate of six years at Columbus, O., and a period of eight years, previous to that, at Maryville, Mo.

The Rev. Stanley S. McKee is associate pastor, Mrs. M. T. Eastham is the pastor's assistant, and Mrs. Mabel McKee is the church secretary.

The trustees are Dr. S. A. Wilson, Charles H. Mottier, F. D. Carpenter, Howard H. Wanzer, Dr. C. H. Miller, F. L. Thompson, H. K. Matthews and C. A. Bowman.

The stewards are E. E. Ludwig, W. B. Kessens, A. J. Schafmayer, William C. Deeds, H. G. Spear, Col. W. C. Arn, J. I. Gordon, John F. Neil, J. H. Tinsley, Parks C. Archer, Prof. T. L. Harley, C. A. Donnel, E. T. Howson, George Miller, Prof. George White, J. H. Kelker, C. M. Bell, G. V. Orr, Goodwin Olson, Gordon Wanzer, J. P. Straub, C. D. Turley, L. W. Artley, George E. Haley, E. F. Barger, William B. Pistole, George E. Boyd, George Crowson, L. O. Challman, B. B. Hamilton, E. V. Moorman, H. C. Cheesman, Mrs. Ida Hartford, Bishop O. Lovejoy, E. S. Gilmore and J. E. Smiley.

Members of the Choir.

J. I. Gordon is the church treasurer; J. H. Kelker, assistant treasurer; E. F. Barger, financial secretary; W. G. Arn, secretary of the official board; C. H. Mottier, chairman of finance committee; William B. Pistole, chairman of the church property committee; J. P. Straub, chairman of the house committee; A. J. Schafmayer, chairman of the membership committee; G. V. Orr, chairman of the usher committee; Dr. S. A. Wilson, chairman of the Sunday school committee; L. O. Challman, chairman of the music committee; T. D. Chadwick, superintendent of the Sunday school; Earl Storey, president of the Epworth league; Mrs. E. E. Ludwig, president of the Woman's association; Mrs. H. M. Thomas, president of the W. F. M. S., and Mrs. L. W. Curtis, president of the W. H. M. S.

"MODES FOR MAIDS" PRESENTED BY GIRLS OF CALUMET HIGH

Etchings Win Bertha Jaques High Honor

Mrs. Bertha E. Jaques, etcher, residing at 4316 Greenwood avenue, has just returned from Appleton, Wis., where she received the honorary degree of doctor of fine arts from Lawrence college at the commencement exercises held there. Mrs. Jaques is the first person to receive the degree at that college and one of the few accorded such honor in this country.

"Don't aim for a definite goal," she declared, in giving the formula for her achievements. "Just do the best you can in the pursuit you love the most. And some day you will awake to find you have arrived."

Finds Solace in Art.

Thirty years ago Mrs. Jaques lost three children. In order to assuage her grief she turned to etching to express the beauty which she still believed an integral part of life.

The works of Lalanne and Hamerton became her textbooks. Her husband, Dr. W. K. Jaques, encouraged and helped her by designing the various tools necessary for carrying out the work.

Her etchings, drypoints and engravings have been exhibited in Europe as well as throughout America. She has given lectures on the art at several colleges in the United States.

Organized Society of Etchers.

She has helped to interest other artists in this type of work through the Chicago Society of Etchers which she organized twenty years ago and of which she has been secretary since its organization.

Mrs. Jaques advised young artists to have patience.

"Look at the great trees," she declared. "They did not grow in a day. The hills, the valleys, the rivers—everything took time. But the modern cry is speed—and that is the great difficulty which we have to fight daily."

In conferring the degree, the college commended her for her "distinction as an etcher" and for her "originality of mind."

OUR TOWN

Paragraphs About Some Folks You Know.

BY FRED PASLEY.

YOU probably don't know Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marks of Harvey, Ill. We didn't. Now we feel we've known them always, although we've never met them personally. It was a letter from Mr. Marks that did it—a letter, we fancy, he never dreamed would get in a big metropolitan Sunday newspaper; we fancy his sole expectation was it might see the light in the boiled down form in which such news usually appears. We're going to publish the letter as is and in full if we don't get another item in today's column:

"Editor of Social News: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Marks of Harvey, Ill., are to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Sunday, June 23, at the South Shore temple, 7215 Jeffery avenue.

"While we may not have any claims to prominence, we feel happy, yes, very happy, that all our children will be with us on that day. Our oldest son, a prominent lawyer of Phoenix, Ariz., Barnett E. Marks, and his wife, a national Republican committeewoman, is to be with us, as is also our son-in-law, who is at the head of the commercial department of the Chicago Bell Telephone company, and we will also have our eight children and 15 grandchildren—all well and happy.

"I have personally expressed my happiness poetically in several languages—a sample of which I enclose. We are not prominent, but exceptionally happy."

Mr. Marks' verse is contained in a small souvenir folder, which also has pictures of himself and Mrs. Marks.

CARL J. ADAMS [everybody knows Carl; all roads lead to his place, as the saying is], the undertaker, at 7350 Cottage Grove avenue, filled the hearts of scores of youngsters in the Eighth ward with joy last Saturday morning by a free distribution of fine large folding kites. Carl says he hasn't forgotten he was a boy himself once, although he ain't saying when.

Anthony Bassi, the game warden, reported he had discovered several bluegills mysteriously killed, and was deluged with letters from local ornithologists lamenting the fate of these beautiful feathered songsters. Anthony rises to remark that the bluegill is a fish, not a bird.

Sir William A. Craigie, formerly of Oxford but now of the faculty of the University of Chicago, who is compiling a dictionary of the American language and current slang, is seen each morning leaving his apartment at 5536 Dorchester avenue with a sheet of folded white paper in one pocket. Neighbor Spencer W. Castle of Hyde Park is intrigued. "Wonder what those new words are Sir William carries with him daily?" wonders he. We promptly asked him about it, Spencer, and Sir William said the new words were merely those of the popular vernacular as expressed by modern playwrights in their opuses at local theaters. Sir William, so as not to forget, just jots them down on the sheet of paper you noticed, which is the best quality of guaranteed asbestos.

Regarding the commencement exercises of the senior class of Lincoln Memorial high school at Crestwood, R. H. Bryant says much credit is due "to the truant officer, who has labored so hard to keep the children in school." Come on, now, folks, let's all give the truant officer a hand.

RIDGE DISTRICT REZONING BILLS ARE DEFEATED

Council Group Keeps Ban on Apartments.

Ordinances rezoning three parts of Beverly Hills and Morgan Park, now restricted almost entirely to one family residences, were voted down by the city council committee on buildings and zoning last Monday morning.

Property owners of the far southwest side who attended the hearing in a body to voice their opposition to the zoning change completely filled the council chambers and galleries. Arguments against rezoning were made by Robert Blackburne, president of the Ridge Civic council; Ald. O. E. Northrup [19th], and residents of the district.

Keep Ban on Apartments.

The ordinances defeated would provide for rezoning for apartments the area bounded by 95th and 99th streets and Western and Oakley avenues; the block bounded by 108th and 109th streets and Artesian and Campbell avenues, and the area bounded by 109th and 111th streets, Western avenue and Rockwell street.

In asking the committee to reject the ordinance, Mr. Blackburne said that the home-owners of the district should be given preferance over real estate operators who would profit financially from rezoning.

"We want to maintain our district as a beautiful residential district," he said. "Because we want to keep Beverly Hills as a section of beautiful homes, we oppose rezoning almost to a man. We have more bungalows and small residences in our district than anywhere in the country. In its present state, our district is a healthy community in which we can raise healthy children."

Judge McKinlay Opposes Bill.

Judge Donald S. McKinlay of the municipal court, former alderman of the 19th ward, told the committee that the entire district would be blighted if one zoning change were permitted. If the ordinances under consideration are passed, he said, the board will be asked to pass others in a short time, and soon the entire character of Beverly Hills as a residential center will be destroyed.

"We are not against apartment buildings," he concluded, "but we are opposed to anything which will make our district congested."

Joseph K. Britten asked the committee to defeat the ordinances on the ground that the Ridge Planning commission is preparing a comprehensive plan of development of the section as a home center, and rezoning at this time would defeat the aims of the commission.

Urges Rezoning to West.

Barnett Hodes, attorney representing small property owners of the two sections west of Western avenue, took the opposite side in behalf of these two sections. He asked that the committee rezone them on the ground that they are in reality out of the district, and should be zoned for apartments to conform with zoning of neighboring property.

The frontage on Western avenue should not be restricted to one family homes, he argued, because it is a section line street and intended for business. The blocks west of Western avenue are already surrounded by commercial, manufacturing and apartment property, he concluded, and these blocks should be rezoned to permit construction of apartments also.

HEAR APPEALS FOR VOTING OF NEEDED BONDS

The voting of necessary bonds for community improvements, such as street openings and sewers was strongly urged at a meeting of the South Side Federation of Improvement associations held last week in Brooks hall, 71st street and South Park avenue.

According to W. R. Wendlund, 8311 St. Lawrence avenue, president of the organization, this will be the last meeting until September. The executive committee was given full power to act on any matters of importance arising during July and August.

The committee on streets and alleys reported that the bad pavements of which the federation had repeatedly complained are now being repaired with funds for the work coming out of the vehicle tax fund, of which $64,000 is available for the 8th ward alone.

However, the fear was expressed by other members of the organization that the work would not be durable, due to reports of poor work done in other communities toward the south. The streets and alleys committee was therefore authorized to keep a close watch on the work being done.

It was also decided at the meeting to request Police Commissioner Russell to see that the federation territory gets its full quota of the 500 additional police to be assigned July 1.

OAKLAND STARTS DRIVE TO REMOVE ALL "EYESORES"

Plans for clearing Oakland district of "eyesores" in the form if dilapidated buildings are being taken, Ald. Louis B. Anderson [2d] has announced.

The initial step was taken, he said, with the tearing down of the three story residence at 601 Groveland Park and the clearing away of all debris. This movement has been started in preparation for the World's Fair.

Razing of the Groveland Park residence followed a petition signed by residents and property owners of Groveland and Woodland parks which asked that the building be condemned. The petition was turned over to B. J. Herzberg, precinct captain, who in turn gave it to Ald. Anderson. It was then introduced in the city council and sanctioned.

NAVY ORGANIZES SOUTH SIDE UNIT OF RADIO RESERVE

To Hold Classes Weekly at Gage Park.

Men and boys interested in radio telegraphy will have an opportunity to perfect their knowledge and experience in classes now being organized under the auspices of the United States navy department. L. F. Megaw is commander of the Chicago unit of the volunteer communication reserve and R. P. Michelis is the instructor.

Headquarters of the unit are located in Lincoln park, where classes meet every Monday night, and Mr. Michelis is establishing a Wednesday night class for south side men, which will meet at Gage park fieldhouse, 55th street and Western avenue.

The personnel of the reserve consists of amateur radio operators who are interested from a scientific and experimental standpoint. The volunteer communication reserve provides a service in which the officers and men serve without pay except when they are called by their own request for two weeks' training duty, when they draw the regular navy pay.

Has 108 Men Enrolled.

The Chicago unit was organized a year ago and now has a roll of four officers and 108 men. From this unit 14 men are being assigned to two weeks' active training duty, either aboard the naval training ships as radio operators or at the naval radio station at Great Lakes. Fifty men have already signified their interest in the new south side subunit, and, according to Mr. Michelis, a large number of south side boys of Scout age are eager to join the boys' class, which will first study radio code work and theory.

The basement of the Gage park fieldhouse is being equipped with telegraph keys and head phones for radio code and procedure instruction. Complete transmitting and receiving apparatus has been installed to establish short wave communication with the other reserve units throughout the entire ninth naval district, which comprises 13 middle western states.

Members of South Side Unit.

South side men who have joined the subunit at Gage park include Harold J. Adler, Lawrence K. Atwood, Forrest L. Barr, Ted Berquist, Ralph E. Brooks, Thomas F. Conroy, William B. Cronican, Bernard D. Curley, George S. Drake, Harold M. Detrick, James C. Filmer, Arthur C. Goodnow, John Hook, Harry C. Hoshell, George Johnson, Adolph A. Karstrand, Frank G. King, Francis H. Melcher, Rudolph P. GROVE AROUND PIONEER'S HOME NAMED AVENUE

Story of Thoroughfare Is Story of Chicago.

BY ELEANOR GRAFF.

Little less than a century ago one of the early pioneer settlers in Chicago built for himself what for that time was an imposing residence. It was situated amid a grove of trees at what is now 32d street. His home was known to the other early settlers as "The Cottage," and the host was famous for his hospitality. It is not strange, then, that when a trail through the trees to "The Cottage" became worn with much travel, it was known as the Cottage Grove road and later as Cottage Grove avenue.

This pioneer settler and owner of "The Cottage" was Henry Graves, who came here in 1831 when 10 years old and remained in Chicago until his death in 1907. He was born in Norwich, N. Y., in 1821, a son of Dexter Graves, who, the following year, led a colony of thirteen families to Illinois. Dexter Graves built the first frame house in Chicago, the site being near the river on what is now State street.

Built Garden City Race Track.

It is stated by some Chicago historians that the name of Cottage Grove avenue was derived from Graves' cottage. However, other historians write of the heavily wooded land in this section of Chicago which, with the tree lined Michigan and Wabash avenues, caused Chicago to be known in the early days as "The Garden City." Thus it seems more logical that the name was taken from the cottage in the grove rather than from the name of the owner.

It is a far cry from the trail winding through the trees to the present busy, clanging, crowded street on the south side. From a level, commonplace road through the woods, dusty in the summertime and muddy in winter, stretching out and disappearing over the horizon, it changed to a city street, adding first a block of pavement with wooden sidewalks; then a horse car line; later a cable line; then concrete pavement and sidewalks; and finally the electric line which daily carries thousands of passengers past the site of the University of Chicago to the parks on the far south side.

Stirs Derision of Writers.

The change has been so complete that only a few years ago both Dean Stubbs of Ely cathedral, England, and Robert Herrick in his novel, "The Web of Life," have written of Cottage Grove avenue as a typical street in Chicago, holding it up to scorn and derision with such adjectives as: clanging, monotonous, unpicturesque, untidy, dirty, and foul.

However, Henry Justin Smith has taken a more kindly view of this avenue, saying that the fact that people can still retain goodness and thoughtfulness in such a clutter is "thrilling." "These people are fighters, and they will win," he writes. "It is this prospect that makes the process of life in Chicago not only interesting but captivating."

In an essay which she has called "A Study of a Typically Ugly Street in a Typically Ugly City," Mrs. Helen E. Starrett compared the lives of persons residing above and behind the stores and shops on Cottage Grove avenue, with those whose imposing homes were situated on the parallel boulevards of Drexel and Grand. According to her conclusions, the average of human comfort and happiness and ambitions in life were probably quite as high as those of residents on the more beautiful and imposing neighboring boulevards.

She has described their freedom from care, and the real enjoyment they gain from life after working hours, sitting on their doorsteps, calling greetings to other doorstep sitters.

Hold Final Meeting.

The final board meeting of the Shakespeare Parent-Teacher association for the school year was held Monday at the school. An outline for the coming year's program was discussed.

PRIZES SET OF DISHES WITH BORDER OF GOLD, PURCHASED FOR $19.95

The Tribune will pay $2 for each story of a best bargain obtained in a neighborhood store printed in the Metropolitan section. Address Bargains, Metropolitan Section, The Tribune. Make them short and snappy, writing on only one side of the paper, and print your name and address plainly.

Chicago, June 18.—During the winter season a neighborhood firm advertised a lot of manufacturers' dishes at a remarkable reduction. Each set, consisting of 119 pieces, was already boxed, but we were assured that they were all complete. My purchase proved to be everything that the dealer said it was and I could not have chosen 119 pieces more carefully. The quality of the china was excellent, the pattern—a twenty-two garat gold and black border—charming. My set cost $19.95, surely an extraordinary bargain.

A TRICYCLE FOR $4.95.

LUCKY DAY FOR SWEET TOOTH.

Chicago, June 17.—Our neighborhood offers bargains even in candy. About two weeks ago I got a three pound box of chocolate carmels and bonbons that sell regularly for 70 cents a pound for $1. It was the candy store's opening day and, apparently, my lucky day, for they gave me a pound box of chocolates free.

In the morning the delegates from the local leagues of the county will divide into six study groups as follows: Cook county government affairs, Chicago affairs, city and village affairs, Cook county school affairs, and sanitary district. COUNCIL GROUP WILL CONSIDER 3 REZONING PLANS

Three ordinances rezoning south side property will be voted upon tomorrow morning by the city council committee on buildings and zoning after a hearing on the ordinances at the city hall.

Foremost among the zoning changes to be considered is the proposed rezoning of the area bounded by 89th and 90th streets and Langley and St. Lawrence avenues from an apartment to a residential and two flat classification. Ald. William A. Rowan [10th], who introduced the ordinance, said yesterday that the section was zoned two years ago and there were some objections at that time. The purpose of the ordinance to place it back in its original classification is to have the matter aired again and to determine the sentiment of the majority of residents.

Another of the ordinances would rezone the west side of South Park way, between 48th street and a line 400 feet south of 47th street, from an apartment to a commercial section.

The third would rezone 71st street, between the alley west of Drexel avenue and the alley east of South Chicago avenue, from an apartment to a commercial district.

HALSTED-71ST STREET PAVING SOON TO START

Contracts Are Already Let on Former.

Paving of Halsted street from Vincennes avenue to the Calumet river, and 71st street from Cottage Grove avenue to Stony Island avenue, will be started soon, it was announced last week.

John B. Hittell, chief engineer for the bureau of streets, said the paving of five miles of Halsted street south of Vincennes avenue will be started as soon as the underground work on the thoroughfare is completed. This, he said, will take about three weeks.

The Halsted street project is one of the many far south side improvements sponsored by the South End Chamber of Commerce and it was mainly through the efforts of the members of the organization that the property owners and the board of local improvements were convinced the contemplated 70 foot roadway was needed.

Direct Route to Pullman.

The paving of Halsted street will be a more direct route to the Pullman district. Motorists who now wish to reach that far south side community are compelled to travel over Vincennes avenue, which runs southwest from Halsted street, leaving the motorists more than a mile from the heart of the Pullman district.

Another thoroughfare now being used to reach Pullman is South Park avenue, one mile east of Halsted street, and the motorist is just as far from where he wants to go as he would be if he were to take Vincennes avenue.

According to Cecil Smith, who was president of the chamber of commerce when the movement to pave Halsted street was first started, the new road will relieve traffic congestion on South Park avenue and Vincennes avenue and allow residents of the Pullman region to drive to Chicago in a direct route.

Contracts Already Let.

Mr. Hittell pointed out that the contracts for the paving of the five sections of the street already have been awarded, so that when the thoroughfare is ready for paving there will be no delay. The contractors, he said, are prepared to start work immediately.

Specifications call for a street 70 feet wide. It will be paved in two roadways, each 27 feet wide, 16 feet being left open in the center. It is hoped by the residents of the territory that the Chicago Surface lines at sometime in the future will use the open road for tracks.

The pavement will be of concrete, eight inches thick, with two inches of asphalt as a top layer.

Mr. Hittell said the west side of the thoroughfare would be ready for use by next January.

Start on 71st Soon.

After being delayed by construction work of the Illinois Central railroad, which is erecting a new platform at 71st street and Stony Island avenue, paving of 71st street will be started in the next few days, according to William J. Hubrich, president of the Stony Island Business Men's association.

Mr. Hubrich said they were forced to defer the paving of the one mile strip until the six car platform was near completion. He added that officials of the railroad had informed him it would be finished this week.

PAVING ISSUE IN CHICAGO LAWN SCHOOL FIGHT

Warm Up in Opposition to Chosen Site.

To pave or not to pave has become the most recent issue on which the fight for and against the proposed site of the new Chicago Lawn High school is based.

It was all a question of mud holes. The board of education apparently believed that if the sections of 60th place and 61st street between Springfield and Crawford avenues remained unpaved, although the other streets in the district were resurfaced, it would strengthen their right to use the site bounded by 60th and 61st streets, Crawford and Springfield avenues.

The school board selected this site more than a year ago as the most centrally located lot for the proposed new school, and if it is used the portions of the streets the board wished to remain unpaved will become part of the school grounds.

Opposed by Civic Groups.

However, members of the South Hamlin Avenue and Vicinity Property Owners' association, one of several organizations which have opposed the choice of the board of education, thought differently. They believed, according to William F. Stelzer, 3755 West 61st street, president of the association, that it is unfair and unlawful for the board of education to authorize two mudholes in the Chicago Lawn district.

Recently the board of local improvements granted the request of the board of education to leave the portions of the two streets unpaved and the paving contractor moved his machinery to another district. As soon as the Hamlin avenue property owners realized what was taking place they authorized Mr. Stelzer to appear before the board of local improvements and state their objections.

Paving Is Resumed.

This he did, explaining that the paving was paid for by the property owners, with the result that the board of local improvements called back its paving contractor and last week both men and machines were at work paving 60th place and 61st street. Mr. Stelzer expressed the opinion that his association could more successfully fight the use of the site for a new school with the surrounding streets completely paved. The objections to the site on the part of his organization are based chiefly on the lowered property values which the members believe will result from the closing of 60th place, 61st street, and part of Crawford avenue.

According to Mr. Stelzer, his organization will continue to fight the chosen site until the ground is actually condemned and construction has been started. Although a committee from the Hamlin Avenue association, as well as the Chicago Lawn Improvement association, has appeared on three occasions to state its opposition to the site before a meeting of the committee on buildings and grounds, the school board elected to build on the originally proposed site in spite of the objections.

Orders Condemnation Proceedings.

Don C. Robers, superintendent of buildings and grounds, has already ordered that condemnation proceedings be started in order that the school may be completed by a year from next fall.

Officers of the South Hamlin Avenue and Vicinity Property Owners' association in addition to Mr. Stelzer, the president, are: Peter Theis, vice president; William A. Steinbrink, secretary; Gottlieb Rebau, financial secretary; Emil Malquist, treasurer; Miss Carrie Krause, librarian; James Potocki, sergeant-at-arms; Robert Stryzek, Joseph Kuehner, and Charles Windish, trustees; John F. Salewski, chairman of the committee on streets and alleys; Albert Weganast, chairman of the publicity committee; Peter Wolf, chairman of the public service committee; and John W. Wallace, chairman of the block captains.

VINCENNES AVE. PLACED IN GOOD REPAIR BY CITY

Business Men's Crusade Bears Fruit.

Motorists who have been accustomed to complain as they bumped over the large holes and the nearly impassible spots, sang last week as they rode smoothly over the newly repaired Vincennes avenue from 68th street to the city limits.

It was this thoroughfare that received the greatest number of complaints in the recent street survey compiled by the Greater South Side Chamber of Commerce and according to H. H. Haylett, managing vice president of the organization, the results of the survey were sent to Richard W. Wolfe, commissioner of public works, with an attached letter giving a clear picture of what south side residents thought about Vincennes avenue.

In Mr. Wolfe's reply it was stated that he would investigate the complaints of the south side residents and would do all in his power to start immediate repair work on the street.

Mr. Haylett declared that Vincennes avenue was one of the streets most used on the south side and the fact that the street is now in good condition will bring relief to the thousands of motorists who have been compelled to use this street to reach far south side points in the western section of the city and it will also mean that motorists who formerly could use this road, but used others because of greater driving comfort, would now travel over Vincennes avenue.

In a letter to Mr. Wolfe Monday, Mr. Haylett stated, "It is my desire to extend to you on the part of our organization an acknowledgment of our appreciation for the repair work which you have put into effect recently on Vincennes avenue throughout its entire length to the city limits.

Appreciated by Motorists.

"The thoroughness of repairs on this street and the promptness with which the work was carried forward following our earlier advices to you is appreciated, I may assure you, by the entire south side as well as the motorists as a whole of our city."

Mr. Haylett pointed out that Mr. Wolfe had assured him last week that repair work on Union avenue, from Garfield boulevard to Archer avenue, and on Princeton avenue from Garfield boulevard to Archer avenue, would be started early this week.

These streets, too, received many complaints in the chamber street survey and Mr. Haylett is sure that residents of the streets and motorists who use them will be happy to hear that within three or four weeks they will be in almost perfect condition.

Union Avenue Important.

Mr. Haylett pointed out that it was important that Union avenue be in good condition. He said that in view of the fact that it was the first through street east of Ashland avenue, it is used by thousands of motorists every day.

RADIO BOARD TO CENSOR FOREIGN PROGRAM RELAYS

Order Will Stop Bootleg Broadcasts.

A step in controlling relay broadcasting from foreign countries to the United States or vice versa, which is being interpreted as an indirect method for censoring these programs and for preventing the broadcasting of foreign propaganda in America, has been taken in by the federal radio commission in a recent general order.

The order also requires quarterly reports from stations engaged in relay broadcasting; this being intended to keep check on their activities to determine whether or not the assigned channels are being utilized efficiently.

Will Stop Bootleg Relays.

A third effect of the order, the commission expects, will be to put a stop to "bootleg" relay broadcasting. It is understood that some station in this country have been picking up foreign broadcasts and rebroadcasting them in the United States without a license to do so.

The order states that "no station engaged in relay broadcasting shall grant authority to any radio station within the United States to broadcast its programs without first obtaining written consent of the commission."

Both the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system have made negotiations with foreign stations whereby they are enabled to rebroadcast foreign programs in this country.

Two Other Orders.

Two other orders issued by the commission require that every broadcasting station shall be given absolute priority to radio communications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress and shall cease broadcasting upon such frequencies when interference may be caused to reception from such ships or aircraft. The order provides further that no two or more broadcasting stations shall maintain a joint or common watch upon such frequencies unless authorized to do so by the commission.

The third order empowers the commissioners to issue subpoenas for the appearance of any witness in the United States to a hearing at their own instigation or upon the request of an applicant.

Inside the Loud Speaker

BY QUIN RYAN.

Two days less than two years after he won the world championship from Jess Willard, Jack Dempsey was called upon to make one of the greatest struggles in his career—his fight against Georges Carpentier, the challenger from France.

A little patch of white canvas, scorching under the summer sun. Dempsey vs. Carpentier. Remember how it sounded through the radio horn on that blistering afternoon? [Gong]

Announcer—There's the bell! The first round has started. Both men are coming out of their corners like twin flashes of lightning. There's no fooling about this fight—it's going to be a fight! They're in the center of the ring—sparring gently, and—O! there's the first punch—Carpentier drove a sweet left to Dempsey's jaw. Jack is weaving and shifting about like a great cat. There's another! Carp landed a right hander that lacked steam in the same spot. Jack is closing in now—he's working on Carpentier's middle. Now they're in a clinch, and Carpentier drives home a stiff uppercut while they're hanging on. Dempsey's got a fight on his hands this time! Now they're boxing and Carp is driving Dempsey back with short left and right arm punches to the head, to the body, any place he can land 'em. Carp is working those two arms like guns.

Jack is still weaving and swaying, working at Carpentier's waist line. Carpentier tries with his right hand, but—they go into a clinch. Socko! Dempsey! Dempsey drives three hard right hand smashes to Carpentier's head! Now they've locked arms. They have broken now, and—Carp just missed with an awful right hand swing to the head, and they've gone into another clinch. Look at Dempsey! He's got his arms free now, and he's punching Carpentier amidships for all he's worth! Look at the Frenchman's face! He can feel those punches! Dempsey is fighting now! O! look at him hit! Dempsey is smashing Carp with everything but the ringposts. He's got the challenger running away —stepping back — one! two! three rights and lefts to head and body for Dempsey! Now George stops his dancing and—Whee! Carpentier tried with his right once more, but Jack made him jump with an awful right hand hook on the chin. Carpentier is taking an awful beating, but he seems to be weathering the gale! O! O! Carpentier almost fell out of the ring that time—a right hand to the head did it. Carp is coming right back; they're dancing, and George tries his right hand again. It's short! [Gong!]

There's the gong! Round two! Both men are coming out of their corners without the speed they showed in the last frame. Dempsey is crouching in much the same way we saw him crouch before Willard in Toledo, two years ago. Carpentier is on his toes, with those huge muscles along the sides of his body tensed. He's going to put all he's got into that first punch. O! Dempsey brought a left hook right up from the floor of the ring! Carpentier came back with a stiff right to the champion's mouth, and—they're in a clinch, and Dempsey is pushing the challenger around the ring. Now they've broken and—Zowie! Carpentier sent that famous right of his straight at Dempsey's ear! Clinch again! They're wrestling all about the ring! Look at Deschamps down in Carp's corner—he's shouting in French and motioning to his boy to stay away from Dempsey. They're breaking again! Now Dempsey is—OHHHH! There it is! Carp smashed Dempsey, and he is staggering away! It was a right hander flush on the jaw! Carp is driving the champion around the ring! It may be all over! The crowd is on its feet yelling and screaming for the knockout! They're smashing home punch after punch and Carp has the champion groggy and holding on! Dempsey is holding on and sending little, vicious jabs at Carpentier's body. Dempsey is blocking that right that's flashing at him every second! Carp is driving right after right against Dempsey's head and body, and he's taking lots in return. They're roughousing it in there now—punch! punch! punch! It's just a pair of brutes hammering, hammering, hammering each other, with rights, lefts, rights, lefts. Carp is pummeling Dempsey's face, and the champ between clinches is after the Frenchman's body! [GONG!]

There's the bell! That's all of round two! And what a round! Carp gave Dempsey everything he had in that round, and he surely had the champion staggering. Both men are in their corners now, and puffing hard. It was a great spell of fighting. Kearns is whispering into Dempsey's ear, and across the way, Deschamps is jabbering excitedly at his French boy. The last one was all Carpentier's round.

There's the bell! Round three! Both men are on their feet with the stroke of the bell and are racing to the center of the ring. Jack leading this time, up on his toes for an opening, and—Ow! There she goes! Dempsey tried with a left hand jab to Carp's head but it was short. They're feeling each other out with their gloves. Wow! Carpentier smashed the champion twice with right hand blows to the head! Dempsey has gone into a clinch. He doesn't seem able to get away from Georges' right hand drives. Now Referee Ertle is breaking them apart, and they're sparring again. Zowie! Dempsey drove a hard uppercut right at Georges' mouth. And it landed! Carp is hurt. He's backing up and Dempsey is right after him, relentless. One! Two! Three! Three in a row!

Jack drove three left hand jabs smack on George's face. There's a cut under the Frenchman's eye, and the blood is running down his cheek. His nose is bleeding again, and the claret is running down his chest and bespattering his fighting trunks. Now Dempsey is crouching and weaving again, and Carp is backing away. Ohh! There it is! Ohh! Three of them! He's slowed up the Frenchman! Dempsey drove three awful socks straight at Carp's stomach. Now—Ohh!—Jack sent a left to Carp's face! Carp is slowing up! Jack is punching now—he's trying everything he's got, and Carp is going at him with his right hand.

The Frenchman is tired! Socko! Dempsey lands a left on Carp's jaw. He's driving the Frenchman to the ropes, and now he's got him cornered with a volley of blows, rights and lefts to the body—to the head—Dempsey is hitting again! He's fighting! Carp is trying vainly to defend himself—the champion has him tired out —Carp tries a right to Dempsey's head but the champion brushes it away, and now—Oohh! He's driving rights and lefts to Carp's middle! There goes—[Gong!]

That's all of round three, ladies and gentlemen. I'm afraid it's only a question of time now. Dempsey, with his hard and swift body blows has slowed up the fast-stepping Frenchman, and taken the steam out of his punches. There's consternation over there in Carp's corner, and Deschamps is wiping the blood off Carp's face and chest, and applying something to that cut under his eye.

Dempsey is blowing and his face is a bit red, but he's unmarked by the battle as yet. There's a world of confidence in the Dempsey corner. It's only a question of time now. Jack Kearns is rubbing the champion's back and talking to him, and Dempsey nods his head. [Gong!]

There's the bell! Here goes round four! Look at Dempsey! Look at him! The man is out of his corner and half way across the ring before the echo of the bell has died away! And he's after Carpentier! With rights and lefts! Oh! Wow! Dempsey drives a straight right for Carp's head, and you can see the pain on the challenger's face! But he doesn't back away! He's standing there and trading punches with Dempsey, snapping out that right hand of his again and again! But Dempsey can't be stopped! He's fighting this time, fighting like the Dempsey who knocked down Willard six times in one round at Toledo. There's a snarl on his face!

Oh, they're punching! We can't even follow them! Georges is slapping Jack with left jabs and then he's winging over right handers to the head. Dempsey is crouching and snarling, and driving rights and lefts into the white body of his opponent! Punch! Punch! Punch! It's just a deadly battle between two men. Dempsey is forcing Carp into a neutral corner, the rain of body blows continues. Jack is swinging up—he's bringing up that left—Carpentier is down! Georges is on the mat! The Frenchman did a nose dive into the canvas.

He's lying there quivering, and Referee Ertle is standing over him counting out the death-knell . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . six . . . seven . . . eight.

He's on his feet! Plucky Carp is back on his feet! He's groggy, but he's on his feet! And he's wrapped his arms around his head to protect his jaws. And he lurches towards Dempsey. Jack drives an awful right to Carp's heart. You can see the Frenchman's knees sag . . . he's dropping like a sack! He's going down again! No, he's lurching toward Dempsey with his head still covered. Jack steps back and takes careful aim! And—Ohh! It's all over! Jack drives a left hander straight into the pit of Carp's stomach, and the Frenchman is down again!

Referee Ertle motions Dempsey back and begins counting. Two . . .three . . . four . . . five . . . Carp quivers, but he's finished now! Dempsey prowls around the ring like a panther at the kill . . . nine . . . ten!

Dempsey is still the champion of the world!

"Turning Time Into Gold"

"A day in the life of the most colossal failure is exactly equal, in point of time, to the day of a successful person. The great difference rests in degree of appreciation.

"The successful person values time as the raw material from which he may extract the gems of accomplishment. He is eager that his supply shall not be wasted.

"The failure regards time merely as a measure of existence. Time has cost him nothing and is consequently of no value.

"The value of time depends entirely upon the use to which it is put and the sincere intensity of application. And there is no commercial use of time that produces a result equal to the rewards of salesmanship.

"The salesman properly equipped with a thorough knowledge of the best selling methods and trained in the best application of that knowledge will literally turn Time into Gold."

Geo. L. Dick.

If you ever thought of becoming a salesperson you are cordially invited to attend George L. Dick's third lecture,

INDUSTRIAL ENGINEERS

I am badly in need of 10 high grade engineers who have had not less than 3 years and preferably 5 in installing wage incentive plan using time study method who are competent to [illegible] manufacturing costs.

Under the MAY method there is no "cut and dried" scheme, but routines are devised to fit the conditions. This fact alone necessitates men who are creative and have sufficient initiative to meet complicated situations. You must be mechanically trained and be able to improve the methods of the operation. While reducing the cost you must at the same time increase employe's wages, get more production and eliminate red tape in system. Unless you can sell your ideas to the man on the machine, the foreman and the management your ability as an engineer will not count.

You will be trained to work under my "methods" by six very capable supervisors. You must be of neat appearance and from 30 to 40 years of age. You must have a highly successful record to be employed on my staff. You must be willing to travel extensively in the United States and Canada, working out of either my New York City office at 712 Chanin Bldg., 42d-st., and Lexington-av., opposite the Grand Central Terminal, or my Chicago office.

There are men who are tied down in positions now where earnings and promotion are limited, who can qualify for these positions if they have sufficient courage to leave their present positions. Write complete personal and industrial history, naming every company you have been employed by and tell what you have accomplished there. Tell where you are now and it will be kept confidential.

I have never laid an engineer off on account of lack of work. Any one of the 83 people in my organization will substantiate that statement. Write complete information, giving telephone number, how soon available. Applicants answering this advertisement in New York papers address me at New York offices.

A MAN OF Exceptional Mentality

A manufacturer, rated AAA1, operating nationally, has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

We are not so much interested in a salesman as we are in a man with potential executive ability—one who can learn our business and then qualify to direct others. For such a man there is a brilliant future.

This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance or books—nor is it posters.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that your services are worth $8,000 per year or more.

We can use a man immediately in each of the following territories: Detroit, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and one in Chicago.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. C. C. Below on Monday for appointment, Randolph 4745, or, if you prefer, address G H 387, Tribune.

SOUTH SIDE OF CHICAGO.

This business is growing rapidly and it offers a splendid opportunity for a permanent position with an attractive income and possibilities for advancement.

Only married men, 27 to 45 years old, will be considered.

Experience in this line is not necessary, but men must be able to show a successful selling record.

We are not interested in any except the highest class men available. The position to be filled requires aggressiveness, initiative, tact, and good judgment. Unless you can make contact with big men and talk with them on a basis of equality, unless you have a record of honesty and integrity, and are between the ages of thirty and forty-five, please do not waste our time or yours.

Should you be able to interest us over the phone, we will give you a personal interview.

When You Buy a HOME Be Sure It Is Also an INVESTMENT

Values Are Rising Rapidly in Chicago's Most Outstanding Suburbs

The Arthur T. McIntosh suburban property has been carefully investigated, planned, improved, restricted, and opened for your approval.

It is located in a community of 12,500 where values have always been rising. The increase is assured.

The transportation includes express service, 38 minutes to the loop, super highway with bus line direct to loop. Electricity, water, sidewalks, etc., already in.

We have selected this property mainly for its investment value, BUT there is no other district in the vicinity of Chicago which surpasses its natural charm and beauty. Here you will find high, rolling sections, ideally arranged and carefully landscaped, with trees and foliage; what a location for the home you have dreamed of! High grade stores, churches, theaters, and schools only a few blocks away.

The Trend Is to the SUBURBS

Chicago Realty Values Will Reach Unheard of Heights by [illegible] Because

1. The World's Fair will send suburban values soaring. This will be a permanent increase, because of the additional population that will settle in Greater Chicago.
2. The settlement of the traction question eliminates real estate speculation in outlying districts. Oscar Hewitt, Tribune traction expert, says:

   "The conclusion is that the proposed transportation scheme for Chicago will boost real estate $1,372,000,000 beyond its normal increment value.

   "It is firmly believed that a billion and a third is an underestimate rather than an overestimate."
3. Business survey charts indicate beyond a doubt that investors are concentrating in real estate in preference to the stock market.
4. The construction of aviation fields alone in this district points to an increase in property values.
5. The Arthur T. McIntosh subdivision is convenient to private and public golf courses, and is surrounded by some of the foremost developments in this vicinity.

Our Purchase Plan Makes It EASY

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

FIRST RATE 2D MORTGAGE LOANS

Second mortgage loans are cut to order, so to speak, just like a suit of clothes. They may be first rate, second rate, or tenth rate.

The rate applied by the Chicago Morris Plan Bank as agent is first rate, because it is the lowest rate.

And it is the only rate which we apply to any second mortgage loan which is made by this institution.

If you do not get this distinction, just make a few inquiries as to what a second mortgage loan will cost you and see how they compare with our rate of 6% interest and commissions as follows:

3½% for one year.
6½% for two years.
9% for three years.

AN "885" PAIGE 5 PASS. SEDAN that has just been traded to us on a new Graham-Paige car. It has had but slight service, is in the original finish and presents a handsome appearance. This model has many exclusive features, including the 4 speed transmission. It can be bought at a very considerable reduction, and is undoubtedly equally as reliable as a new car, having been carefully reconditioned. To those interested in a late model car that operates and looks like new, we feel sure that you will easily appreciate the exceptional value we offer in this completely equipped car. $775.

THIS 1928 GRAHAM-PAIGE 619 5 PASS. SEDAN should appeal strongly to the purchaser who insists upon absolute value for every dollar invested, a car that is truly economical to operate and one that presents more and better looks than any other car in its class. Car has perfect duco finish, hydraulic 4 wheel brakes, practically new tires and everything else that goes to make up a complete car. It's reconditioned and guaranteed. Try to match its value and performance with the car you have been thinking about. Price $1,075.

THE 614 GRAHAM-PAIGE 5 PASS. SEDAN model with 4 speed transmission; a recent delivery; used few thousand miles; like new in appearance and performance. Reconditioned and guaranteed. $875.

IF YOU ARE CONTEMPLATING SPENDING from $300 to $800 for a closed car, we believe it would be folly to invest in any car before seeing and riding in this 1928 "610" Graham-Page 5 passenger sedan. Mechanically it's as near perfect as an automobile can be; the finish is high grade and should stay like new for some time to come, and it handles as easily, goes as fast, and just as efficient on gas, oil and tires as cars costing three times as much. This is a full sized 5 passenger and one that any family would be proud to own. It's a special for today. $725.

A BEAUTIFUL GRAHAM-PAIGE 614 COUPE, 4 passenger; appearance exactly like new; has 4 speed transmission and many refinements; thoroughly reconditioned and guaranteed. One of the finest cars we have ever offered. $875.

DO YOU KNOW

That after 18 years in the retail and wholesale automobile business I have decided to enter a bigger field which will take me to the various large centers of the country to conduct automobile auctions for distributors and manufacturers.

To enable me to do this quickly I am willing to sacrifice my present stock of high grade cars at prices far below their actual values, in some instances reductions of $300 to $800 below prevailing prices. It is absolutely necessary that every car be sold in the next three or four days. Practically every make and model of car is here; nearly all are 1929 and 1928 models, consisting of Fords, new models, Chryslers, Buicks, Cadillacs, Graham-Paiges, La Salles, Auburns, Hupmobiles, Studebakers, Packards, etc.
